Siege Enters Fourth Day

LONDON (Reuter) — The police siege of a London restaurant dragged into its fourth day today with six hostages still at the mercy of three gunmen.

The gunmen and their Italian hostages, all male restaurant staff, were holed up in a tiny storeroom below the Spaghetti House restaurant in London's fashionable Knightsbridge district.

The gunmen were demanding an aircraft to fly them out of the country but police refused to comply.

Italian Consul - General Mario Manca offered to replace one of the hostages who was taken ill Tuesday but Police Chief Sir Robert Mark rejected the idea, saying he could "not contribute to putting further people in danger."

The police are convinced the gunmen, led by an ex-convict, have no political motives.

Perez Urges Oil Fund

CARACAS (AP) — President Carlos Andres Perez has urged other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) to join Venezuela in establishing a fund of $1.5 billion to $2 billion to ease the effect of OPEC's new 10-per-cent price increase on its customers in the Third World.

Perez called his proposal Tuesday to the leaders of the other 12 OPEC members. Venezuela's production of approximately 2.4 million barrels a day is the organization's third largest.

Civilian Government Returned To Nigeria

LAGOS (Reuter) — Nigeria's new head of state, Brig. Murtala Muhammad, announced today that the country will be returned to civilian rule by October, 1979, at the latest.

The brigadier, who took power two months ago in a bloodless coup that ousted Gen. Yakubu Gowon, was speaking in a country-wide broadcast on Nigeria's 15th independence anniversary.

He outlined a five-stage program for a return to democratic government; the first stage including drafting of a new national constitution. The constitution drafting committee will start work this month, he said.

Terrorists Kill 3 Spanish Police

MADRID (AP) — Terrorists killed three policemen and injured three others in attacks in Madrid today as the Spanish government replied to its critics abroad with a demonstration of public support for Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

The four attacks on armed police were apparently a coordinated terrorist demonstration on the 20th anniversary of Franco's rebellion against democracy at the start of the Spanish civil war.

The attacks came as crowds assembled in the Plaza del Oriente, in front of the National Palace, to cheer Western Europe's only remaining dictator when he appeared on the palace balcony.

The attacks occurred in the northern, eastern and southern parts of the capital, but there was none in the western part, where the National Palace is located.

The government ordered a holiday for all factories, schools, shops and offices. Youths in cars and on motorbikes toured the capital and other large cities Tuesday night to whip up enthusiasm.

Reuters news agency quoted Europa Press as saying three policemen were injured in Madrid in separate run attacks Tuesday by groups of youths. The report could not be confirmed immediately.

Premier Carlos Arias Navarro appealed to the Spanish people to stand fast behind their 83-year-old leader in defiance of the widespread foreign condemnation of the execution of five terrorists last weekend.

He accused Mexico and other Western nations that condemned the executions of "hypocritical and intolerable" interference in Spanish affairs.

Government officials were stunned and angered by the continuing vehemence of international reaction to the executions, even though some of them admitted the military trials of the terrorists were conducted too hastily.

These officials said this blunder will not be repeated in the coming trials of 15 Basque nationalists and dozens of Maoists charged with terrorism.

The protests abroad continued but on a lesser scale.

Amnesty International, the private organization which works to improve the lot of political prisoners, said that at least 250 Basques were tortured systematically during May, June and July. Washington lawyer Thomas Jones, who led an Amnesty investigation mission to Spain, said the information came from interviews with 48 persons who were tortured, lawyers whose clients were tortured and from witnesses to the tortures.

Liberals Predict January Leadership Convention

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Liberal party sources are predicting a mid-January leadership convention to choose a successor to Robert Nixon who resigned Tuesday.

Several Liberal members of the provincial legislature say they are considering contesting the leadership.

Party president Jeffrey King said the convention would be held "certainly no later than January" after he received Mr. Nixon's letter of resignation Tuesday. Sources gave Jan. 10 as a prospective date.

Mr. Nixon's five-paragraph letter said he would continue in his leadership duties until a successor is chosen. The 47-year-old leader has held the position since 1967.

At a news conference, Mr. Nixon said he believes "quite firmly" that the Liberal party's opportunities would be better with a new leader. He said there is no possibility he would change his mind.

His decision came 12 days after the Sept. 18 provincial general election in which the Liberals won 36 seats, trailing the Progressive Conservative's 51 seats and the NDP's 38.

Mr. Nixon, whose riding is Brant, noted that the Liberals now hold more seats than they have since 1937. He said in his letter that the popular vote had the Liberals "less than two per cent behind the Conservatives and well over five per cent ahead of the NDP."

Meanwhile, James Bullbrook, MPP for Sarnia, said in an interview he is "not shutting the door" on a leadership attempt. But he added he wants to see who else will enter the forthcoming race before making a firm decision.

Earl Rowe, MPP for Rainy River, said it is too early to say whether he will run, but added that he is interested in the leadership.

Davis Says Oct. 28 Legislature Opens

TORONTO (CP) — The new session of the Ontario legislature will begin Oct. 28, a week later than originally intended, Premier William Davis said Tuesday.

The premier said in a news release that the new date was reached after discussion earlier Tuesday with the opposition parties.

He said the cabinet shuffle will be announced next Tuesday to allow completion of a judicial recount in Niagara Falls, where Attorney-General John Clement lost to Liberal Vincent Kerrio by less than 200 votes.

Mr. Davis said the new session will begin with a brief speech from the throne outlining the basic program of legislation the government intends to introduce, including rent regulation, energy and mortgage interest rates and Sunday store hours.

Beirut Fighting Continues

BEIRUT (AP) — Night-long fighting broke a two-day lull in Christian-Moslem fighting in this Lebanese capital and police today reported at least 16 more persons killed and 60 abducted. There were mortar and machine-gun battles in the neighboring eastern suburbs of Ein Rummaneh, a Christian district, and Moslem Chiyah. Officials said snipers have closed all eastern and northern approaches to the city.

Gray May Seek Leadership

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Herb Gray, former federal minister of consumer and corporate affairs, said Tuesday he has been approached to seek the position of Ontario Liberal party leader vacated after the resignation Tuesday of Robert Nixon. Mr. Gray, Liberal MP for Windsor West, said before a Liberal riding association meeting he would not rule out becoming a leadership candidate, but that it was a remote possibility.

Services Maintained

OTTAWA (CP) — A spokesman for Ottawa and area doctors said Tuesday that an Oct. 29 meeting of eastern Ontario doctors will not be a "one-day study session or teach-in" to lobby for higher fees. Services will definitely be maintained, said Dr. W. J. Troup, chairman of the Academy of Medicine.

Urged to Save Trains

OTTAWA (CP) — A rail union group Tuesday urged Transport Minister Otto Lang to act quickly to reverse what it said was the government's anti-passenger-train policy. E. G. Abbott, executive secretary of the Canadian Railway Labor Association (CRLA), said in a statement that the passenger train service is virtually doomed unless new equipment is bought and the passenger system improved.

Ali Did Not Faint

MANILA (AP) — No, Muhammad Ali did not faint after retaining his world heavyweight boxing championship by a technical knockout over Joe Frazier early today. It was just one more bit of acting. While handlers cut the gloves from Frazier's arms and the referee screamed the announcement that Ali had won, the champion could not resist one final charade.

Quinte Liberals Toy With Turner Leadership

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Some local Liberals still are toying with the possibility that former federal finance minister John Turner might seek their party's Ontario leadership.

One even intends making a personal appeal to Mr. Turner.

This despite a disclaimer Tuesday from Mr. Turner's office following the resignation of Ontario Liberal leader Robert Nixon.

Lyn Harrington, Quinte riding Liberal president — and a key organizer in his party's takeover of the constituency in the Sept. 18 provincial election — was one who didn't agree.

Mr. Harrington said he didn't think a Turner leadership candidacy "is very likely."

"I'd be very pleased. But I don't expect it."

Nonetheless, Charles Bates, of Melrose, Liberal vice-president for 25 eastern Ontario ridings, felt Mr. Turner still may have "let the door open" for a leadership bid.

"If he's there — he's a shoo-in," predicted Mr. Bates.

George Cunningham, president of the Quinte District Liberals organization — which includes four provincial ridings — hoped the Ontario party would "search out" Mr. Turner.

Mr. Cunningham, twice Liberal candidate in Prince Edward-Hastings, dates his Turner loyalty from the 1968 federal leadership convention.

At that time, he worked for Mr. Turner's candidacy, he said.

"And I'm now going to personally put my nickel's worth in with John Turner and see that he consider this" possibility of seeking the Ontario leadership.

"He has the stature we require. He has the ability — and I think he could lead the Liberal party to victory in Ontario," said Mr. Cunningham.

Colby Stops Charge

WASHINGTON (AP) — CIA Director William Colby unexpectedly ended a move to hold him in contempt of Congress by turning over to the U.S. House of Representatives intelligence committee all but about 50 words of subpoenaed documents.

Colby turned the documents over late Tuesday with the understanding that President Ford will decide what can be made public.

Lahr Manager's Visit Winds Down

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The Canadian holiday of Adolf Kohler is winding down on a busy round of receptions—reciprocal gestures for the representative of Belleville's twin city.

Herr Kohler, city manager of Lahr, West Germany, is paying an informal visit to Belleville at the end of his vacation in Canada.

But, his arrival in the city prompted a program of special events and receptions for those who had contributed to his visit—and been impressed by—Lahr's hospitality.

Tuesday night the latest event went on the rails abroad two business and reception cars of the city's Canadian National station.

There, J. Robert Burns, manager of CN's Rideau area, played host for a gathering that included civic and community representatives. With Herr Kohler and his wife, Else, as guests of honor.

Mr. Burns, who visited Lahr with a friendship flight of Belleville-ians in June—and who also has travelled extensively on the German railroad system—arranged for the reception when he heard Herr Kohler was coming to Belleville.

He said it was to "reciprocate some of the "kindness" and hospitality shown by the city and citizens of Lahr.

Today, Herr Kohler meets with the four students from his city currently participating in the latest student exchange program with Belleville. All will be guests of Abl Jean Smith, chairman of the exchange committee. Tonight, Ald. George Zegouras gives a cocktail reception for the visitors.

Thursday, it's the turn of the armed services—Lahr is headquarters of Canada's NATO contingents. The Kohlers are to be guests at a luncheon at CFB Trenton. Then, at night, there's a reception and slide show at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, including many of those who participated in the June friendship flight.

Canada - U.S. Auto Pact Talks Open Nov. 18 in Detroit

OTTAWA (CP) — The next act in the Canada-U.S. debate over auto trade opens in Detroit Nov. 18 with public hearings before the United States International Trade Commission (ITC), which is investigating the 10-year-old Canada-U.S. auto pact.

Canadian auto parts makers are planning a major substitute plot to counter U.S. claims that Canada is taking away the U.S. market for North American-type cars. The industry department has not yet decided whether it will send a representative.

The U.S. inquiry was requested by the Senate finance committee on behalf of Sen. Vance Hartke, who already has labelled the agreement a piece of Canadian blackmail.

Patrick Lavelle, president of the Automotive Parts Manufacturers Association (APMA), says its Canadian members will show the value of domestically-produced goods used in cars assembled here has deteriorated under the trade agreement.

In the first six months this year, the lion on auto trade with the United States rose 32 per cent from last year to a record $1.132 billion. Most of the loss occurred in parts trade.

Mr. Lavelle is critical of the industry department for what he terms its inaction so far, and claims the government has "misjudged events in the United States."

Besides reviewing the auto pact, the ITC also is investigating Canada and seven other countries to see whether they are injuring the U.S. industry by dumping cars.

Dumping is selling in a foreign market at prices below those charged in the home market.

The U.S. labor department already has ruled about 18,000 unemployed Chrysler Corp. workers eligible for special federal assistance because their job losses were caused primarily by auto imports from Canada.

The stiffening U.S. opposition to Canada's participation in U.S. markets comes at a time when weak sales have led to widespread industrial layoffs there.

The United Auto Workers Union (UAW) claimed at ITC hearings in July that Canada was responsible for the loss of 13.1 per cent of the U.S. market for North American-type cars. It requested the Canadian Treasury Board to investigate whether cars were being dumped in the United States.

Following a meeting of its international executive board Sept. 24, the UAW decided it would have to "clarify the situation", a UAW official in Toronto said in a telephone interview Tuesday.

The UAW official says part of the answer to the problem lies in eliminating the price difference between cars sold in Canada and those sold in the US. The same model generally costs about 6.5 per cent more in Canada than in U.S. because of higher import duties here, the UAW official said.

This price difference leaves Canada vulnerable to charges of dumping, the union feels.

Both the federal and the Ontario governments, also studying the whole auto industry, Canada has a large stake in a healthy industry because auto assembly and parts production operations are about 75 per cent-based in the province and employ about 200,000.

The APMA has actively promoted a review of the auto pact, but it wants government initiatives to ensure that Canada will not be caught short should the United States demand changes that benefit it at the expense of Canadian production.

Mr. Lavelle says the appointment of Don Jamieson to replace Alastair Gillespie as industry minister is a hopeful development. It will give the government a chance to take another look at the problem."

Art Selection

Judges Jennifer Colby, right, Tony Lassing, and Diana Atkin, representative of the Ontario Arts Council, discuss a selection for the exhibition at Belleville General Hospital. Quinte Arts Council sponsors this rotating art show where pictures are displayed at both the Belleville and Trenton Hospitals and Belleville City Hall before the art is sold.

Art Show Entries Decline

Despite more than 60 entries of art for the year-long exhibition in Belleville and Trenton Hospitals and Belleville City Hall, Lois Thompson, co-ordinator of the juried shows sponsored by Quinte Arts Council, said exhibits usually numbered at least 90.

Mrs. Thompson said the lack of art shows is due to the upcoming Eastern Arts Exhibit the end of October.

Members of the council have spent the last three days receiving, organizing and hanging various forms of art exhibited by local artists.

But it isn't just an open field day for artists. The works are judged by a panel of three artists — this time Tony Lassing, an architect, Jennifer Colby, potter, and Diana Atkin, representative of the Ontario Arts Council.

Forty pieces of art have been chosen for the displays.

The juried shows, staged three times a year, work on a rotating basis. All the work, which is on sale, is usually exhibited at all three places.

Mt. Colby said the judges look for good design in this multi-media show. "Some people will never go to a gallery but they stop in the lobbies to look at the art here," she said.

Not only are the displays good exposure for the artists, explained Mrs. Thompson, they're also good for the public.

"A person can identify with some of the hangings — and that's just a step away from looking at the piece next to it that could be more sophisticated. It's a step in understanding art," she said.

Mrs. Thompson said she has noticed many people reaching a point where they purchase other things besides painting of scenery and flowers. "They're more confident when they purchase art: they simply buy it because they like it."

Official Plan Draws Fire from Residents

TRENTON — A public meeting to discuss the new zoning bylaw for the municipality, Tuesday night, became nothing more than a safety valve for letting off steam about shortcomings in the town's official plan.

Douglas Whitley, a local businessman, who informed there was additional information made available to council by the Quinte Planning Board (QPB) last Friday, asked that it be distributed to interested parties and that the meeting be postponed until the study could be analysed and property discussed.

Mr. Whitley said council both agreed the new density recommendations embodied in the QPB report are pertinent and would have a substantial effect on the zoning bylaw and it was suggested all parties concerned might be able to use additional time to discuss the proposal.

Councilman Peter De Groot chairman of the meeting said however, the report did not relate directly to the issues being discussed and that the meeting would continue.

One speaker, echoing the feeling of many of the people crowded into the council chambers, said the meeting would be nothing more than an exercise in futility unless all the available information could be assessed.

Most of the complaints raised by the audience dealt with the official plan rather than the new zoning bylaw.

The zoning bylaw is established as a working format for the implementation of the official plan and must conform to the municipal study.

Repeated questions to council received no answers as members said the information was not available and that they had not had enough time to throughly examine the new study filed by the QPB.

The majority of the questions asked were about density designations, holding zones and environmental protection areas Most, however, remained unanswered.

Tom Fleming, a lawyer and solicitor, told council the proposed change would completely stifle any growth or development in Trenton and that the municipality should continue working under its present bylaw until the official plan could be revised.

Mr. Fleming told the meeting it is necessary to correct problems in the official plan before attempts can be made to implement changes in the zoning bylaw.

Many of the speakers questioned the designations of land as commercial or residential and questioned the council on how the zoning decisions were reached. Council said they did not have the information and could not answer the questions.

Future meetings will be held to discuss the zoning bylaw and the town's official plan when all parties have had a chance to review the available information from officials said following the meeting.

Lawyer Stresses Limits On Legal Aid System

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — The province of Ontario has a legal aid system unique in Canada but if the program is expanded to the middle class many lawyers may withdraw from it says Picton attorney Richard Byers.

Mr. Byers, a partner in the law firm of Byers and Williams and deputy-reve of Picton, Tuesday told Picton Rotarians other provinces rely on a public defender system in which the government pays an office to assist persons unable to afford legal representation.

When Ontario's legal aid plan was organized it was decided that a major detriment of the public defender system stemmed from the fact that lawyers were not of the individual's choice.

In Ontario, the plan is a lawyer's plan, not a government plan and it is run by the Law Society of Upper Canada.

Mr. Byers said the program is funded through general revenue and lawyers' trust accounts. Lawyers are not allowed to earn interest on their trust accounts and all interest money is divided between the banks and the law society.

Mr. Byers noted that legal aid provides three services, certificates, duty counsel, and legal aid clinics. An area director decides if the individual qualifies for legal aid and an assessment officer determines what he can pay. A certificate is then issued to eligible applicants.

If a lawyer is a participant in the legal aid program he will work for his client, then bill the legal aid plan. The lawyer's fee is deemed to be what a client of modest means would pay if he could afford it. Mr. Byers explained that the legal aid plan pays 75 per cent of the fee.

When court is in session a duty counsel is paid $35 an hour to offer free legal advice when it is required by an individual. The counsel will receive 75 per cent of his $35 an hour fee.

Legal aid clinics inform poor persons of their rights and assist in landlord tenant disputes and other matters.

Mr. Byers observed the largest problem of Ontario's legal aid system relates to the fact that should the plan expand to take in a large part of a lawyer's practice, he is likely to drop out of the program.

"This legal system is unique. It is the only one in the world that I know of," he remarked.

Bogus Bill for Ad Caught by Hospital

TRENTON — The bookkeeping staff at Trenton Memorial Hospital (TMH) may be recommended for raises. Ontario hospitals' hundreds of thousands of dollars in bogus billing charged for advertisements supposedly placed in California newspapers.

Hospital officials said they notified the Ontario Hospital Association (OHA) when they received a bill for $20 from a U.S. advertising agency for a want ad that was never placed outside of Canada.

The California agency has been clipping advertisements from Toronto newspapers and billing Ontario hospitals for placement of the ads.

A hospital official said the procedure did not work because of the small staff size but the OHA said larger hospitals throughout Ontario have paid the counterfeit bills until they were advised by the association of the rip-off.

Letter of the Law

President of the Picton Rotary Club, William Dugan (Right) and fellow Rotarians Tuesday heard the letter of the law on Ontario s legal aid system from Picton lawyer Richard Byers. This plan, unique in Canada, permits the individual to receive help from a lawyer of his choice instead of a public defender.

Former Educator 99 and Still Active

MARMORA — Marmora's oldest resident will celebrate another birthday Thursday.

Edward D. O'Connor of 16 McGill St., will be 99 years young. Just one year short of a century.

Mr. O'Connor acted as second every day, although in the past year he has had to give up his daily walk to the post office to pick up his mail.

Ed O'Connor, as he was known, was born and grew up in Marmora Township. He was a member of the first graduation class from Ontario Business College in Belleville.

In addition to farming for most of his life, he served as assessor for Marmora Township for 30 years and as president of the Silver Leaf Cheese Company for 29 years.

Mr. O'Connor acted as secretary-treasurer of the local Separate School Board for 33 years. He was later to be presented with an Award of Merit by the Separate School Trustees Association of Ontario for his contribution and in 1972 was chosen to receive the Hastings County Education Week award.

Street Signs Set Ablaze

PICTON — Two street sign posts were set ablaze by vandals here early today.

Picton Police Chief Charles Fletcher said the fires, one at the corner of Queen and Johnson Streets, and the other at the intersection of Gladstone Ave., and Johnston St. were set in piles of leaves.

The flames burned half way up the wooden sign posts which were pushed down by the vandals.

Earlier this week rope barricades at the track of Picton Fairgrounds were set on fire.

Task Force Questions Trenton Land Demands

TRENTON — Northumberland Task Force project director Peter Walker has forwarded a letter to the town of Trenton Tuesday afternoon suggesting the municipality re-examine some "debatable statistics" contained in its request for 1,300 acres from Murray Township.

The request for the land which will be used for industrial development was contained in a brief filed with the task force two weeks ago by the town and discussed at a public meeting in Brighton.

The statistics questioned deal with proposed population projections for Trenton and were based on a 1972 study done by the Quinte Planning Board, said a member of the task force technical committee.

The letter is not a complete rejection and the land acquisition request will still probably be considered at the task force study workshop in late October, the committee member said.

It is assumed Trenton will revise its figures and resubmit them to the technical committee before the workshop begins, said the official.

Town officials could not be reached for comment.

The task force is responsible for drawing up a 25 year plan for economic and population growth in Northumberland and will give its final report within six weeks.

Province Okays Power Corridor to County

PICTON — Ontario Minister of Energy Dennis Timbrell recently announced that Ontario Hydro has received approval to proceed with utilities to the electrical supply system for Prince Edward County.

Mrs. Timbrell said improvements involve a low profile transformer station at Elmbrook, near Picton, and 14.5 miles of 220 kV transmission line between the new station and the hydro right-of-way connecting the stations at Lennox and Napanee.

The energy minister stressed the additions to the system are necessary needed to ensure adequate future power supply for the county.

"The approved route incorporates many modifications to reduce effects on agricultural lands and to preserve scenic values," said Mr. Timbrell.

"Included in the modifications will be the use of submarine cable at the Long Reach crossing and over three miles of low visual impact steel poles in parts of the line near the crossing," he added

Picton town council, other municipal councils, the Quinte planning board and the Prince Edward County planning board have approved the route for the transmission line.

The route was chosen by the Ontario Hydro study team after a two-year review of alternate routes for each of three possible supply voltages studies.

Goal of the studies was to select an electrical system to adequately provide power to Prince Edward while having a minimal impact on the environment.

As Sun Sets on Grits the PCs with New Leadership Could Return to Ottawa

By RICHARD JACKSON

Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — Oh, oh! Look what's happening to the Liberals.

Not just former Finance Minister John Turner taking his leave of Pierre Trudeau.

That about the Liberals as they hadn't been shaken since Mackenzie King, bowing to the dictates of Quebec, lost his wartime pro-conscription ministers through resignations.

Not just the latest round of musical chairs in Cabinet and the further strengthening of the already dominant Quebec wing.

And that has done little if anything to quiet the unrest and soothe the unease of the ever-less-powerful English wing of the Liberal caucus.

But finally — after seven years of being lionized if not actually worshipped — the open questioning by some key Liberals, of the omnipotence and his casually taken-for-granted divine right to rule of Leader Pierre.

Two events have opened some Liberal eyes wide enough to perceive, at last, that Trudeau is not really the Political Almighty.

One, of course, was the otherwordly outlet — but inside the Liberal Party, the explosively disruptive — resignation of John Turner.

And the other was the provincial Liberal Party, the Ontario election to hold its long-established and widely-accepted place as the Official Opposition.

The Turner resignation removed the last challenge within the party to Trudeau supremacy.

It satisfied French Canada's complete control of the federal Liberal establishment.

"The Quebec wing now is in full command," says Liberal Senator George J. McIlraith who in his day served in the Cabinets of Prime Ministers Pearson and Trudeau, and appreciated for his 32 years in the House of Commons as parliamentary assistant to Trade Minister Howe.

There is no counter-veiling force, now with Turner gone," he says. "Not even the Conservatives, in their leaderless condition, present anything but a vacuum of power. And power vacuums, like power surpremacies, are dangerous."

Another Liberal senator, Hazen Argue, long-time member of the House of Commons, sees what he calls the "devastating blow" to the Ontario Liberals in the provincial election as the "writing on the wall for the Liberal Party federally."

Historically, he says, there always has been "a very significant relationship between the Ontario and Federal Liberals."

Unless the shattered Ontario Liberals can rally behind a new and more affective leader than Robert Nixon, the three-time loser, then, says Senator Argue, "we are in deep trouble."

Another leading Liberal, Herb Gray, MP for Windsor West, and former Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister in the old Trudeau Cabinet, sees the Liberal defeat and downgrading to third party status in Ontario as "a warning to us federally."

He finds it "disturbing."

And he sees it as a provincial signal that the Liberals, in Ontario and federally, too, have become stale.

Too much power for too long — through 34 of 40 years — is heady stuff, making for comfortable complacency, inertia and disinterest in everything except holding office by what ever means.

"Pierre's in his pool, and all's right with the world," says another leading Liberal, a Senator from Toronto who has been anti-Trudeau from the day, back in 1968, when Lucky Pierre won the party leadership and the office of Prime Minister with it. "That has been the prevailing mood, and it's dangerous."

Senator McIlraith, who never had an election in his 19 campaigns for the Commons, is lamenting the state of the federal Liberals makes a surprising prediction.

He calls the Conservatives to win the next federal campaign, led by — would you believe it — New Brunswick MP Gordon Fairweather, with former Ontario Premier John Robarts running for Parliament as his Central Canadian lieutenant.

Public Still Awaits Government Restraint

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

In a way, Canada's current economic dilemma recalls a familiar point in those old Laurel and Hardy two-reel comedies.

As exasperated Oliver Hardy, flicking his tie up and down, would turn to a hapless Stan Laurel and say: "This is another fine mess you've gotten us into."

That's what Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau appeared to be saying when—in the course of announcing cabinet changes—he offered his analysis of the messy state of the economy.

Some people have been taking more out of the economy than they have been putting in, he noted. There has been an increase in socially neurotic behavior, a correlation between a declining economy and increasing crime.

Mr. Trudeau said that a freeze on prices and incomes would not solve the underlying problem.

That means, at least, that the country won't be saddled with another bureaucratic nightmare—a bureaucracy—for the time being.

Why not, then, use those resources to tackle the most pressing task of putting the government's own affairs in order?

Nothing would help to restore public confidence in Ottawa—which has given us everything from Mirabel to Egg Marketing—so much as evidence of a will to restrain its own spending.

There will never be a better time for the federal government to set a good example than right now, with new ministers in key economic portfolios.

But if Ottawa sticks to its "policy" of talking piously while remaining wantonly, our economy may well go the way of the Italian and the British.

Inflation is rising inexorably. Unemployment is the highest since 1961. Our foreign-trade deficit is about $200 million each month.

Labor productivity growth is declining, and wages are rising. Wage increases grow faster, yet such increases are so restive that they increasingly reject wage contracts negotiated by their elected representatives.

And at the helm of the ship of state is a prime minister so committed to spending that he could actually say that, if people don't want a second airport for Toronto, the government would just spend only hundreds of millions of dollars elsewhere. So much for restraint.

Let's hope that the rear-ranged federal cabinet will be able to convince its leader that good sense and simple prudence in government can catch as many votes as profligate spending.

Donald Macdonald, new finance minister, has a reputation for toughness. He will need to be tough to resist—as he must—the chorus of public and private appeals to go easy on the forces of inflation.

Alastair Gillespie, the new energy minister replacing Mr. Macdonald, must find a way to rein in the enormous greed for oil-and-gas taxes on the part of the federal and producing provinces governments, as well as the short-sighted pricing policies of the consuming provinces—and then do something constructive to stimulate new production before it is too late.

And for their cabinet colleagues, the time has surely come to co-operate in halting the expansion of the bureaucracy and the proliferation of give-away fiascoes.

Mercury Contamination

Like the tobacco habit, the threat of dire health consequences from eating mercury-contaminated fish is having little or no effect on Indians in Northern Ontario.

Even the recent visit of three Japanese victims to the reserve at Whitedog had little impact.

As a reserve spokesman put it, many Indians would probably continue eating mercury-poisoned fish. "For them, there isn't any choice. They have to eat it to get by."

This is the answer for instance to provincial health minister Frank Miller's contention that one of the biggest problems the government faces is coping with the attitude of the Indians who go on eating the fish.

Some are said to be getting the message — and are buying food at the store, but as Roy Martin, son of Chief Roy McDonald, says, "but what can they get — Kraft dinner, beans, spaghetti; there's no good in it."

Better surely than contaminated fish.

While Mr. Miller notes it is the federal government's responsibility to provide treatment for victims of mercury poisoning, the Ontario government is taking other steps. For one thing it is sending a team of neurologists to Japan to consult with experts there on the problem.

But what of the Indians and their contaminated fish diet in the meantime? Their very survival is at stake.

Isn't there a moral obligation on Canada at large to assist them? If we can provide a billion dollars in overseas aid through the Canadian International Development Agency, then surely we can spare enough to diversify and supplement the food supply of the native population of Canada.

Girl in a Coma

The guts of fiction is often the wide-spectrum of worth we apply to human life — but when it becomes visibly real all of us are tortured by its consequences.

Case in point being the 17-year-old Philadelphia girl, Karen Quinlan, who for the past two years has been suspended in a mysterious coma, kept alive only by space-age technology. Her brain is totally damaged beyond repair.

Meanwhile a legal and medical controversy swirls around the girl, whose parents have given up hope of any recovery and want their daughter's life terminated.

Everyone has an opinion on the girl's fate. Whether it be based on humanitarian reasons, religious ideology or common practical sense, the solution still tests our values of human worth, regardless of the medical diagnosis.

Like other issues of human worth, including abortion and genetic selection, euthanasia is an issue society will have to come to grips with in the future.

But in all these problems it is becoming evident that the legal profession and the medical profession are facing mounting responsibilities, especially in view of new technology and its impact on human society.

The emotionalism of these issues begs reason and direction from the legal and medical professions.

There will come a day very soon when both professions, who have traditionally isolated themselves from public controversy, will have to come together as one body to face the issues and provide the guidance demanded of them from society.

It may call for much closer ties through joint professional conventions and associations. It may call for legislators to keep space with social developments rather than allow laws to fall at least 15 years behind society.

Years Pass

We are all getting older. Just how much older may be felt keenly by those who remember the movies of child star Shirley Temple Black.

Now far removed from those Hollywood days, and a diplomat who serves her country as ambassador to Ghana, the former actress was pictured recently with her daughter, Linda Black.

Miss Black next month will marry Roberto Palascki, first secretary of the Italian embassy in Accra.

That's one reason why some of us suddenly begin to give a thought to those passing years.

Provincial Liberals Slipping Too

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Election notes:

Now are expert on back-fires.

Their campaign strategy was to get into policy in detail. Then, they figured, it couldn't be attacked.

Its hum.

They had in their platform practically all the planks the NDP made time on. For two years, for example, Margaret Campbell had a private bill in the house calling for rent review boards with power to set rents. But to the man on the street this is completely an NDP proposal.

Cross-tide-light is that the federal party now definitely will have to pay some attention to the provincial group.

Attention in the form of money, effort and probably a leadership candidate.

But not John Turner.

The premiership of Ontario may be, as is so often said, the second biggest job in the country.

But it still is Triple A ball, and Turner is definitely a big leaguer.

The party apparently gets the credit for the clinest campaign of the election.

Some of the reports of the campaign against John Clement in Niagara Falls are shameful.

The provincial leadership claims no association with it.

But still it happened.

The Liberals go into the house with one advantage.

As the third party they are last to vote. This means they can stall on the election under many circumstances.

However, the NDP could convive an issue and a wording they would simply have to vote for.

This area has problems which it shares with the rest of Ontario, but it also has unique problems. Many people in our area are farmers or dependent upon the farmed industry for their income. The need to provide farmers with an adequate and guaranteed income and to stop the loss of productive farmland is essential to our well-being.

At the same time, more outlets are needed for the creative energies and ambitions of our young people. Many of our high school graduates must proceed to leave their homes in search of employmnt. The young are the lifeblood of any community and the government should encourage industry to locate in areas like ours.

France Plays with Economic Fire to Counter Stagnation

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

French Premier Valery Giscard d'Estaing with whom Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau hopes to do a lot of business, has made his move to cope with economic stagnation where Trudeau has not.

Earlier this month France took the dangerous move of pump-priming her economy by putting an additional $7 billion into it and reducing the bank rate a whopping 1.5 per cent from 9.5 to eight per cent, the highest in Europe except for Britain.

At the corporate and consumer levels, Premier Giscard did other astounding things, which Ottawa tells us we could in no way risk. He reduced the corporate income tax, postponed collections in many instances, extended maximum period of term loans from 24 to 30 months for individual borrowers.

At the beginning of 1973, the restraints on the declining French economy were about the tightest in Europe with the bank rate at a staggering 13 per cent and down payments of as much as 40 per cent of the total cost required for car purchases.

France was afraid she might go the route toward economic chaos of neighboring Italy or the incipient route in that direction of Britain across the channel.

Official Paris figures released this summer admitted to an unemployment rate of no more than four per cent. Independent French economists are sure the government was massaging" the figures and that it could be as high as six per cent. If so this would mean more than a million out-of-work Frenchmen, a figure about the same as the British.

The new measures have to work since France to any case will be left with a record deficit of around $13 billions by the end of 1975.

By comparison with the French leap into pump-priming, the Canadian stand-pat position on an economic policy appears unreal. Our central bank rate instead of being dropped was hoisted another three-quarters of a point to nine and three-quarters per cent on Sept. 2.

Except for Britain and Italy which are much further down the road to economic decline than Canada, our central bank rate remains one of the highest among the industrial nations.

All of these nations are hard-pressed by the same inflation and bad business conditions which have hit Canada. Yet the Japanese coop with a 7.5 per cent bank rate, the West Germans with a record low 4 per cent one and the United States at 6 per cent along with official announcements that the depression in that country has come to an end.

Economics has never been a strong point with Prime Minister Trudeau, nor has it with any previous prime minister of recent years.

One wonders if we would do better if an economist were prime minister. In effect, the reasons for our failure to establish a policy is not that simple. Canadian prime ministers are well served by economic talent in their public services and through outside advisers.

The French formula could backfire, in the case that action will sink into a new abyss of economic failure and high unemployment.

But at least Premier Giscard with whom our prime minister has good personal rapport has acted and boldly.

At the same time Europeans are successfully practicing some restraints, especially on fuel consumption which we in Canada so far have refused to practice, here is one on the citizens as well as the state to find a way out of down-turn and constant unemployment.

If the prime minister can't find the formula he wants from the new cabinet, he may have to settle for the more severe kind which France is trying. It is continuing to prosperitate while inflation mounts.

PC Philosophy Under Fire

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

May I commend my two critics in the issue of September 26th. They had the honesty of purpose to sign their names.

With regard to Anne Redgate White of Trenton I would say Jolly Good Show that you were brought up to believe that the Conservative party stands for God, King and Country. I used to believe that until I lived for a number of years in the constituency of a prominent named Churchill — you may have heard of Woodford.

The United States of America is always being held up as the epitome of President, God, and country by the Conservatives. You know what Mr. Nixon and his Conservative crowd did to that image, perhaps with your blinkers on you do not believe they indulged in activities in "bad principles, ideologies and ways of life." Perhaps I ought to disagree. It is a sad fact that Canadian Conservatives only believe in God, King and country — they also believe they are God.

To Mr. Scott, Thanks for your sympathy! — It's you that needs it however, if you find Conservative philosophy confirment to be "tearing" somebody down.

And, finally, I am sure that the Conservatives in the same area as Anne Redgate White, Mr. Scott and I do not live in a world of "tearing" anyone down.

Conservative philosophy gave Great Britain an empire, child labor, poverty, monarchy, class distinction, and such a distorted concept of life that its aftermath is now causing the breakup of the empire. If you doubt me ask any of the pathetic refugees from the outpouts of the empire now emigrating to the Conservative philosophy that made them "British subjects". Note, not citizens of Canada.

Baiting Hunting Areas Becoming More Flagrant Says Conservation Official

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Seeding city wetlands with duck bait has produced another — maybe biggest — crop of charges against hunters in the Quinte district and neighboring areas.

The problem is becoming "more flagrant," said a provincial wildlife conservation officer this week.

Illegal baiting is among the roster of charges resulting from the opening of the 1975 duck-hunting season last Saturday.

The abuse is caused when hunters spread grain to lure ducks close to their shooting areas. The law demands that any feed which can be construed as bait be cleared from the vicinity of hunting blinds — the cover used by marksmen — a week before the season starts.

"It's an ongoing problem (every year), but I think they're becoming a little more flagrant about it," said Jack Stewart, conservation officer co-ordinator for the natural resources ministry's Napanee district.

"We find that the baiting problem is quite severe this year."

The number of alleged baiting infractions were discovered by conservation officers, provincial police and RCMP patrolling wildfowl hunting areas in the Napanee district — an area reaching from Colborne to Gananoque.

Allegations of illegal baiting will be among 40 to 50 charges which may be laid for various hunting infractions opening day in the district, said Mr. Stewart.

Other charges likely to be laid include careless hunting, shooting of protected birds, unlicensed hunting and trespassing, he said.

But illegal baiting is a problem becoming "very, very serious."

"There is little excuse when a person is found shooting over a baited area readily visible in front of a blind," said the official.

Meantime, preliminary tallies of huntings bags indicate the success rate of hunters was "pretty good" as the season opened last weekend.

Last week conservation officials had predicted good hunting because of an apparent increase in the district waterfowl population.

Enumerators Again Knocking on City Doors

Belleville residents are quickly becoming the most enumerated people around.

Enumerators have been visiting Belleville homes for about the past two weeks collecting information for publication the city directory published every two years.

Residents have already been visited twice by enumerators this year — once in preparation for the provincial election and again by city assessment workers.

For the city directory to be published early next year residents over 18 are asked their names, occupations and address.

"We're trying to avoid any confusion with the assessment enumeration which is just completing," said Owen Ebert, enumeration supervisor for Vernon Directories of Hamilton, publisher of the city directory.

"We hope people don't mind going through it again," he said.

About 25 enumerators will be going door-to-door.

It is the first time a directory will be published for Trenton, also being visited by enumerators.

The directory is sold mainly to industry, business and government services.

"In cases of emergency it's a very important book," said Joan Dinne, co-ordinator of the Belleville enumeration.

The list of residents is often used by police, fire departments and hospitals to locate victim's relatives in an emergency.

Auctioneers Say Used Tools in High Demand

Carpentry, mechanics' and other types of tools for the home handyman and the small businessman or contractor are increasingly becoming more in demand and selling for higher prices, a random sampling of area auctioneers reveals.

Auctioneer Phil Brooks says he was "swamped" with people at a recent tool auction he held in Belleville.

The demand for used tools is high, says Mr. Brooks, and part of the reason is the high price of new tools.

An air compressor, that could be bought five to 10 years ago for about $250, now costs about $1,000. People are unwilling to pay such a high price and, as an auctioneer, Mr. Brooks says, he can sell that same compressor for as much, or slightly more, than it was purchased for 10 years ago.

Auctioneer Harold Bunnett says the demand for tools has always been high. Part of the demand lately, can be attributed to the inflation caused increase in price of new tools, he says.

Interest is partly due to the slow deterioration of tools, he says. A hand saw used for 15 years can be sold, and still be used again; "good quality still sells well," he says.

Whereas a refrigerator deteriorates with age, "a good vi-- -"I bo worth as much paid for it," Mr. Bunnett says.

Grath, an auctioneer for 25 years before he quit four years ago, echoes Mr. Bunnett's comments. "I've been to sale lately and the prices were real dear, but you're still not paying the price you would in a hardware store."

People are coming to auctions to buy tools as the alternative to paying high prices for new equipment, he says.

His son, Eugene, also an auctioneer, differed saying that the prices people are paying for used tools has gone up, but "I don't know whether it reflects back on the cost of new tools."

However, tools of any type sell well, says Mr. McGrath, because people don't know their dollar value when new. Generally, people, other than home handymen, borrow tools from their neighbors when they need them. But at auctions, impulse buying occurs with people saying, "Well, we don't have one of those."

Budget Stretchers

Noodles, Rotini, Macaroni Shells and Spaghetti

The cost of food keeps going up and serving nutritious, tasty meals becomes more difficult by the day.

One very traditional way to stretch food dollars is to prepare main dishes which include noodles or pasta. Here are seven main dishes which use noodles and cost an average of 66 cents per person to serve.

Noodles Tetrazini

8 small mushrooms (quartered)
4 tbsp. butter
one - 2lb. cooked chicken, diced
¼ tsp. salt
one tsp. flour
½ cup heavy cream
1½ cups milk
2 egg yolks
one lb. noodles
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Saute mushrooms in 2 tbsps. of butter. Add chicken. Sprinkle in salt and flour. Add the cream and ½ cup of milk and simmer. Beat egg yolks with remaining 1 cup of milk and add to chicken mixture. Stir quickly (do not boil) until sauce is slightly thickened (about five minutes). Cook noodles to desired tenderness. Toss with a tablespoon of butter and ½ cup of the Parmesan cheese. Place in a buttered casserole dish. Pour the chicken mixture over the noodles. Sprinkle with the remaining Parmesan and dot with the remaining butter. Place under broiler until brown. Serves six. Total cost: $4.69. Cost per serving: 78c per person.

Macaroni Shells Stuffed with Shrimp

4 oz. large sea shells
¼ cup chopped celery
2 tbsp. chopped onion
2 tbsp. vegetable oil
one cup cottage cheese
one - 7 oz. can shrimp, drained and flaked one - 10 oz. package frozen spinach, cooked and drained, chopped one egg, slightly beaten

dash of pepper
two tbsp. chopped onion three tbsp. vegetable oil three tbsp. flour
¼ tsp. salt
2½ cups milk
one bouillon cube, chicken flavor
¼ cup water
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Cook sea shells according to package directions; drain and rinse with cold water. Drain well and chill.

Cook celery and onion in hot oil until tender but not brown; drain. Combine with cottage cheese, shrimp, spinach, egg, salt, oregano, lemon juice and pepper; mix well. Fill sea shells with mixture.

In saucepan, cook onion until tender. Blend in flour and salt. Stir in milk and chicken broth and cook, stirring until thickened. Stir in cheese. Pour half the sauce into a 12" x 7" x 2" baking dish. Arrange stuffed shells in 2 layers in sauce.

Bake, covered, in moderate oven, 375 degrees F., 15 minutes. Drizzle remaining sauce on top and bake, uncovered, 10 minutes longer. Serves six.
Total cost: $4.18.
Cost per serving: 69.5c per person.

Ann Landers

Wife Is Wounded by Husband Who Never Says Anything Nice

Dear Ann: I'm almost ashamed to bother you with my little "spy problem," knowing that so many others have crushing burdens. But it's beginning to get to me and I'd like your opinion.

Al and I have been married 20 years. We have two wonderful children. Al is a fine provider and a morally upright person. He appreciates good-looking women but it by no means a skirt-chaser. Here's my complaint: In all the years we've been married he has yet to give me a real compliment. I'm not a raving beauty but my figure is good and I do make an effort to appear well groomed and smartly dressed.

Al can't seem to bring himself to tell me I look nice. It's pretty hard to understand because I've heard him tell other women, "You look scrumptious in that outfit," or "That shade of blue is just right for your eyes." He seems to find the most enchanting words for everyone but me.

Yesterday I wore a new dress. It was nothing spectacular but it did flatter my figure. Al said nothing. When I asked for a comment he replied, "Your underwear is showing." (My slip was peeking through the neckline.) I was simply crushed.

I compliment him often, select his ties and shirts. People tell him he looks sharp. He enjoys the praise but it stops there. What do you make of it, Ann?—D. Plated

Dear D.: Sounds as if you've married a peacock, Lady. Obviously he compliments other women to curry favor. With you he doesn't feel it's necessary.

Tell Al you know he appreciates your efforts to look pretty for him, but say, "I need to HEAR you say it." Explain that one temp-every compliment from the man you love can make your whole day. And don't give up. You're 20 years late with the training program, dearie.

Dear Ann Landers: My best friend's 10-year-old son has a nervous condition. She is having a terrific battle with her son's teacher because the teacher wants to get the boy transferred to a private school.

The teacher's complaints sound valid to me. The child disrupts the class because he gets up and goes to the bathroom every half hour, eats special candy, chews gum, falls asleep from the medication and makes a general nuisance himself.

I don't believe any child should be accorded privileges just because he happens to have an illness. In fact, such privileges encourage the child to view himself as a special per son.

Teaching school today is very hard work. A kid like this can make it a lot harder. What's more, it's a public school and the extra time spent on one student takes time from the others, which is unfair. I'm with the teacher. Where do you stand?—Objective-Minded

Dear Ob The Other Side Lady: What about the kids who don't have illnesses but are a pain in the neck to teachers? Do you want to get THEM out of the public schools, too?

Teaching school today is an enormous challenge. It requires a great deal of patience, understanding and love for children. That teacher who is trying to get the nervous child transferred...should be transferred herself—to another line of work.

Pets Expensive, So Be Prepared

TORONTO (CP) — Maurice Cowper-Smith, executive director of the Toronto Humane Society, says a pet is an expensive item of housekeeping today and if people are not prepared to pay the high cost of upkeep, or maybe they shouldn't have one.

He said it may sound harsh, but a pet must be cared for, and although you can adopt a dog or cat from the humane society for as little as $15, other expenses may run up to $250 more in the first year.

Toronto veterinarians recently quoted minimum services for a new puppy or a kitten as costing $54 to $125.

Licences, food and hardware might push the total expense to $250 and that doesn't include the cost of shampooing, clipping, and grooming for pampered pets.

All Toronto municipalities have bylaws saying dogs must be licensed and a number of veterinarians suggest new puppies need a minimum of two distemper and hepatitis booster injections and one rabies shot. Rabies, hepatitis and other diseases can be transmitted by dogs and cats to humans.

These shots may cost from $20 to $30, depending on the veterinarian you choose.

Dr. J. Wayne Smith, president of the Toronto Academy of Veterinary Medicine, says the wide range of pets is due to the amount of money a veterinarian has tied up in equipment. If a veterinarian wants to provide more services, his fees will be higher. Extra services include worm and blood tests, additional vaccinations and advice on pet diet.

Some pet shop owners estimate the cost of hardware for dogs and cats has increased by as much as 25 per cent since 1973.

A shampoo, clip and combout for poodles at some grooming shops in Toronto costs $12 to $13 and as much as $100 for bigger, longer-haired dogs.

The death of a pet may cost a lot if it is put to rest in a special pet cemetery.

Although most still take their dead pet sto the veterinarian for cremation and quiet disposal, some animal lovers require the services of an undertaker to bury their pets.

Undertaking expenses range from $35 for small cats and dogs to $150 for larger dogs.

Veterinarian Dr. Alan Sefton has operated Sky Hills Pet Cemetery since 1949 on his farm near Goodwood, 30 miles north of Toronto.

He says he went through great emotional upset when one of his own dogs was poisoned 26 years ago. He wanted it buried. He said when other people had to go through that trauma, he started burying their pets on his property too.

Sky Hills offers a package deal on burials. For $75 to $100, depending on the animal's size, a pet can be buried and its resting place marked by an inscribed concrete slab bearing the pet's name, age, date of death and owner's name.

Community Spirit Raises New House

PLEASANT POINT, Ont. (CP) — In the old days it was called barn-raising—when neighboring farmers in rural areas of Ontario would gather at the home of one of their own to help build a barn.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Leishman have found themselves involved in the 1976 version—but this time it wasn't a barn. It was their brand new bungalow that was "raised" by friends, neighbors and people they'd never met.

It all began April 25 of this year, when the Leishman's former home in this small community north of Lindsay, Ont., was destroyed by fire.

Besides losing all their personal belongings, keepsakes, and they also lost clothes, $7,000 worth of antiques, which they had been storing to finance a trip overseas.

Unfortunately, there had been a mix-up with their insurance, and as a result, they discovered after the fire they had no coverage.

But although their material possessions were gone, they discovered they still possessed something stronger—friendship.

"Within two hours after the fire, we had more clothes than we've ever had in our lives," said Mr. Leishman. "I finally had to stop the donations. As they say, you can only wear one suit at a time."

But this was nothing compared to what was to come.

Mr. Leishman said he planned to rebuild the house a little at a time possibly moving in his mother-in-law's farm in the meantime. But the community had other ideas.

Neighbor J. O. Hodgkiss had initiated the Leishman Building Fund through the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce. And the funds began rolling in.

Mr. Leishman does general maintenance in Point Pleasant for both villagers and cottage owners. As he described his work: "I do everything. If someone busts a pipe I fix it, and if the roof fails in I'll fix that. It doesn't matter."

And suddenly it seemed almost everyone he had ever worked for heard about his fire and chipped in.

Approximately $1,600 poured into the Leishmans and $6,800 into the building fund—not to mention donations of materials and labor.

The list of donations seems endless. A Lindsay merchant offered them their choice of light fixtures; someone gave table and chairs; skilled workers such as block layers, carpenters, and electricians donated time; a firm donated 200 pounds of nails; painters offered their time—and then there were the neighbors who showed up evenings and weekends to pitch in.

Mr. Leishman said there was someone helping him every weekend this summer and the day the roof was put on 19 men showed up to lend a hand.

"I couldn't believe I knew so many people," he said.

The majority of persons who made donations, he said, were people he had worked with although some he had not seen for some time.

And a few donations rolled in from complete strangers as well.

Pinnacle Playhouse Gets Facelift

By SUSAN McCONNELL
Staff Reporter

"Tigger" Gouzard, one of the busy people hammering plywood and fixing dangling limbs of wood into place at Pinnacle Playhouse is one of a kind.

She's been through the theatre circuit in every role from producer and actress, to set designer and head of construction.

She now is using her varied skills for the upcoming production of Around Abv 84.

The design consultant was Gavin Semple from Kingston and his efforts combined with director-writer Bill Culp, Jim Alexander and Tigger have transformed the once black theatre to a light blue and the uniform arrangement of seats has been altered to a cattered version with the cats around and on the stage proper.

Painting the theatre blue was simply a matter of practicality, according to Tigger. It makes the line theatre seem larger and gives the lighting more scope. Also, says Tigger, it provides a lot of atmosphere.

The arrangement of the seats is to accommodate the open concept of the play.

A native of Belleville, Ms. Gouzard, a graduate of Waterloo University in integrated studies, majoring in drama, spent the summer touring with the Water Safety Theatre Company.

Young Ballet Dance Group Plans Two Belleville Shows

Ballet Ys, a young, modern and five-year-old dance group, has been making a name for itself with its combination of dramatic modern dance and traditional classical ballet.

Named after a Celtic word meaning of the times', the group has filled a need in the community by performing in smaller centres and towns.

The original choreography evident in works like Relics, Nelligan, Decrescence and Spirals will be performed in Belleville Oct. 6 at Centennial High School for students, and that evening at the school for the public.

The show sponsored by the Belleville branch of the National Ballet of Canada and the Quinte Dance Centre, will get under way at 8:30 p.m. and admission is $1.50 for students and senior citizens and $2.50 adults.

Founded by Gloria Grant and Les Spits, Ballet Ys boasts the former principal dancer with the National Ballet of Canada-Karen Bower; Clinton Rothwell, current principal dancer with the National Ballet of Canada; and Angela Leigh, former principal dancer with the National Ballet of Canada among the small group of eight choreographers.

And among the seven dancers there are notables such as Gail Benn, Levis Peterman, Amanda Vaughan, and Valerie Wright who performed as soloist for one season with the Pittsburgh Ballet Theatre after studying with David Morone of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet, Vera Volkova of Denmark, Richard Gibson of Jeffrey Ballet and Maggie Black in New York.

BGH Highly Praised During Guarded Hospital Opening

Belleville General Hospital (BGH) was praised at the recent opening of the new Fairoaks Ridge Hospital in Rochester, N.Y. for its assistance in the start of operations.

Philip Rickard, BGH executive director, a platform guest at the affair, says, "It was stated several times, quite emotionally perhaps, that without our assistance their opening would have been delayed by some three months."

"Many of their staff visited here on a number of occasions to various departments," he says.

"Our contacts with this hospital are likely to prove beneficial to BGH in the future," Mr. Rickard remarks.

He explains it is an ultra-modern hospital — "for example, supply carts are hooked on a monorail system and they plan to start their computer activities with the pharmacy and the laboratory."

Mr. Rickard describes the security arrangements for the opening ceremonies which were performed out-of-doors By U.S. Vice-President Nelson A. Rockefeller.

"As I sat just behind him on the platform, I noticed we were guarded by several hundred security personnel. There were hospital police, police from the Township of Greece, the County of Monro, the FBI, the Secret Service, helicopters from the New York State Police, police dogs and their handlers on the perimeter and behind us on the walls of the hospital with sub-machine guns at the ready were members of S.W.A.T."

OHIP Payments Rise Sharply in 8 Months

Ontario Health Insurance payments for the eight-month period April to November, 1974 to medical and other practitioners totalled $426.7 million, the provincial ministry of health announced recently.

The ministry said this compares with $366.7 million for the same period in 1973, an increase of 16.4 per cent.

Some $23 million of this $60 million increase in plan payments resulted from an average of 137,500 more patients being treated each month.

The remaining $37 million increase is attributable to an increased average cost of $1.98 a month per patient receiving services during the period April to November, 1974.

The rise in average monthly cost per patient reflects more services being rendered to each patient and the overall 7.75 per cent increase in Ontario Medical Association schedule of fees which went into effect May 1, 1974.

Hospital Approves Two New Staff Positions

Belleville General Hospital (BGH) will soon revive a former technological position

Chaplain On Duty

A volunteer pastoral care service has been established at Belleville General Hospital (BGH) which will provide a chaplain on duty each day at BGH from 4 p.m. to midnight.

Philip Rickard, BGH executive director, explains, "The sphere of activity is restricted to the spiritual welfare of the patient and only to such patients as are so disposed."

"The duty chaplain will have special contact with the emergency department, intensive care unit and the surgical floor," he adds.

Retirement Age Questioned

Belleville General Hospital (BGH) Board of Governors does not unanimously agree on its own mandatory retirement age of 65 years for BGH employees, it has been learned.

The issue surfaced during the last board meeting Friday when city Ald. Stu Meeks commented, "I question the wisdom of having a retirement age of 65."

His comments, came following a report that medical director Dr. Reginald Anderson would retire Dec. 31, although the two situations were not directly connected in following statements by board members.

It was revealed a special board meeting held recently upheld the ruling but Mayor Ben Corke noted that the decision was not unanimous.

and create a new one following BGH Board of Governors approval of the necessary expenditures.

Philip Rickard, BGH executive director, says the two positions are infection control officer and respiratory technologist and "requests from hospital departments for approval for these appointment date back a considerable time."

He explains the respiratory technologist job was a position for about 20 years until the death of the person who filled it. Work has been carried on by nursing staff since.

An infection control officer has been a recommendation of the BGH infection control committee for at least two years, Mr. Rickard adds.

"Administration now feels that through economies of operation, that have been achieved this year, the necessary expenditures can be met within our global budget" he says.

Settlement Reached

The planning and property committee of Belleville General Hospital (BGH) Board of Governors reports an out-of-court settlement has been reached with Sherwood Windows regarding window breakage at BGH.

The report says Sherwood Windows has agreed to replace 61 defective windows as well as to make payment to BGH of $8,946 for windows previously replaced by BGH and $2,500 toward legal fees incurred by BGH.

Total cost of BGH's legal fees was $4,485.64.

Many Disapprove of Stores Opening on Sunday

An all-out war among the giants of the food retailing industry may be see step from reality and may catch the consumer, for whose dollar the supermarkets are vying, in the middle.

The first salvo, at least in Belleville, was fired by the A and P supermarket chain with its decision to open their Belleville Plaza store Sundays. Reaction from other supermarkets has been mixed, some expressing no reaction, while others saying that they will likely open Sundays to provide competition.

Are shoppers keen for Sunday store hours, a contravention of the provincial Lord's Day Act, or are they in favor? The question was put by The Intelligencer to a sampling of shoppers at the Quinte Mall this week. Most reacted by saying they opposed Sunday hours. Others were disinterested.

WILLIAM BURKITT

A Deseronto grocery store owner for 18 years still be told his business, William Burkitt, 71, is "dead set" against Sunday store hours saying that he didn't once open Sundays.

"If people can't do their shopping in six days, there's something wrong," said Mr. Burkitt.

DOUG SHORTT

Stirling supermarket employee, 16-year-old Doug Shortt says he doesn't think supermarkets should be open Sundays.

"Workers should have one day off at least," said the Centennial Secondary School student. "Everyone is entitled to have a day of rest."

BILL MORTON

Centennial Secondary school student, Bill Morton, 18, says his marketing class has discussed the Sunday store hours issue and concluded that A and P is going to lose money because "they're going to have to pay their help more than they're going to make."

BETTY RAPPEL

Mother of four children, housewife Betty Rappel says that, "personally, it doesn't bother me" if A and P is open Sundays, a day I always have work to do at home.

"But I don't think they should be open," says Mrs. Rappel. "Like everyone says, you have six days to shop. Employees want a rest too."

SOPHIE JANSEN

Former Loyalist College student now a resident of Cobourg, 22-year-old Sophie Jansen doesn't care whether supermarkets are open Sundays: "If they want to be open they can be open."

Miss Jansen works Sundays and the day "is like any other day of the week."

IVAN GARNEAU

A Toronto cosmetic company representative Ivan Garneau opposes Sunday store openings on religious and the "day of rest" grounds.

"Supermarkets can make enough money in a week," he says. "If one opens, then they might all open."

Labor Council Upset

Sunday Shopping Under Attack

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The Quinte District Labor Council, representing approximately 8,000 area workers, sees Sunday store hours as a violation of retail employees' rights.

During an interview Tuesday, president Doug Sword said his council is completely opposed to Sunday store hours.

"Not only because it deprives retail employees of a common day of rest that they should be able to spend with their families, but also because it adds to the stress inherent in our way of life," he said.

The issue of Sunday store hours came into focus in Belleville this week with the opening of a Belleville plaza chain grocery store. So far, in the flurry to determine whose jurisdiction or responsibility it is to enforce store hour legislation, no action has been taken on behalf of the city.

"The council feels that it is time that the government of Ontario stop procrastinating and produce legislation to create uniform store hours and a day of rest and to make statutory holidays inviolate," said Mr. Sword.

"For more than a year — when the question of uniform hours was first raised — the provincial government has been dragging its feet," he said.

Mr. Sword said his local council does not intend taking any specific action in the way of boycotts — but if the Sunday openings gain momentum, labor "on a larger scale such as the Ontario Federation of labor may consider further action," he said.

The provincial labor federation has yet to take a firm stand on store hours though federation president David Archer charged Tuesday increased costs to operate a store on Sunday works to the disadvantage of the consumer.

"Organized labor is vitally concerned about the lack of regulations which could lead to the exploitation of employees working in the retail sector," said Mr. Sword.

Quinte Liberals Surprised At Quick Nixon Decision

In common with all their party colleagues, local Liberals today are pondering the potential of possible candidates for their Ontario leadership.

And, like most, since the Sept. 18 election they anticipated the resignation of Robert Nixon.

But Hugh O'Neil, newly elected MPP for Quinte, admitted surprise at the swiftness with which it happened Tuesday.

Mr. O'Neil, attending the first post - election Liberal caucus of the party at Queen's Park, said he expected "there would have been some great discussion in the caucus" with Mr. Nixon.

But, within a few minutes of the caucus starting, Mr. Nixon announced he was resigning, that the move was a "personal decision...a final decision," said Mr. O'Neil.

Lyn Harrington, Quinte riding Liberal president said the resignation "was somewhat surprising coming the way it did" although no surprise to most Liberals.

Charles Bates, a key Quinte district and eastern Ontario Liberal organizer—and foiz a Nixon supporter-backed Mr. O'Neil's explanation of the events.

"It was his (Nixon's) own decision and had nothing to do with any pressure from the caucus or party," said Mr. Bates.

"I think Nixon will go down in the minds of Liberals as doing what had to be done and what is best for the party..."

Hardware Store Sold

White's Dominion Hardware on Front St. has been sold and will lock its doors for the last time at the end of November.

Ross White said Tuesday two men had purchased his store, located at the main Front St. bus stop. These two men he said come from Picton and Toronto.

It is not known what type of business will take the place of the hardware business which has operated under White family management for 52 years.

Commenting on his leaving the business, Mr. White said "I'm afraid the days of the small independent are numbered."

Twenty years ago, there were eight hardware stores on Front St. Now there will be two when I leave, he said.

Business has been increasing every year but so have the costs of operating the business, he said.

Mr. White said he will stay in the area but has no firm plans for the future.

Vandals Smash Church Windows

Unknown vandals chose Tabernacle United Church on Church St. in Belleville as a target sometime between late Sunday and early Tuesday causing about $1,000 damage in broken windows.

City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said today stones were used to break 18 stained glass panes and 14 outside glass panes.

LIP Officials Narrow List of Projects to 17

If only they knew it, there are 17 applicants for federal Local Initiatives Program grants closer to possible approval in the Belleville - Bancroft district.

That's the total selected for final, official scrutiny by the citizen advisory committee on LIP in Hastings riding.

The list was selected Tuesday at a day-long session of the committee in Belleville that scrutinized 44 applications for LIP funds.

The projects—if approved by federal authorities—would full the $314,000 grant allocated for LIP spending in Hastings riding this winter, said committee chairman Gordon Bennett.

But the projects remain unidentified until the final choice is formally announced by Manpower and Immigration Minister Robert Andras.

"The proposals we've approved are all, in our view, good ones and worthwhile," said Mr. Bennett. "They're also very well spread throughout the area.

Mr. Bennett, from Marmora, heads the 10-member committee of citizens from various urban and rural centres in Hastings throughout the riding.

Such committees, — the memberships - are suggested by local MPs — are aimed at injecting grassroots advice into the LIP app oval process.

Director Admits No Bylaw To Keep Pet from Arena

By AL. ZARAS
Staff Reporter

No city bylaw exists that prohibits guide dogs or any form of pet from entry into Belleville recreation facilities, but recreation director Cliff Belch said Tuesday he plans to keep pets out of all buildings used by his department.

A search through city bylaws by several city hall officials produced no ban on such regulations.

The non-existant city provision was cited last week as one reason John Warren, a blind Loyalist College students with a guide dog, could not roller skate in a city-run program at Ben Bleecker Auditorium.

Refusal by supervisors sparked anger and a confrontation between city officials and Mr. Warren, who said it was the third time in a week he had been refused admittance into a public place because of the guide dog.

Mr. Belch said Tuesday no recreation regulations exist or at least, he "cant find anything in writing" to say so (that dogs are banned).

But as recreation director, and from a "program safety aspect," he said he plans to continue banning pets, with the exception of guide dogs.

But, within a few minutes of the caucus starting, Mr. Nixon announced he was resigning, that the move was a "personal decision...a final decision," said Mr. O'Neil.

Lyn Harrington, Quinte riding Liberal president said the resignation "was somewhat surprising coming the way it did" although no surprise to most Liberals.

Carrier Spots Fire

Fast action by a 19-year-old newspaper carrier early today is credited by Belleville Fire Department with possibly saving a man's life.

Chief Leo Culhane said Randy Bartley of 126 Burnham St. was passing 196 East Dundas St. at about 5:30 a.m. when he observed smoke issuing from a second-story bedroom window.

Bartley immediately notified firefighters who discovered a mattress fire caused by smoking in bed in the room of a boarder identified as Harvey Reed; Chief Culhane said.

Two youths have been charged with theft of gasoline following city police investigation late Tuesday.

Gasoline was reported taken from a car parked on the lot of Fry Ford Sales.

Stolen Car Wrecked

A 1974-model car owned by Bardon's Supply Ltd. of 33 Wallbridge Cres. in Belleville was discovered wrecked in Sidney Township about six miles west of Belleville late Tuesday almost two hours after it was stolen from company property.

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville said Tuesday the car was found abandoned at the junction of Aikens Rd. and Concession Rd. 3 but there was no indication the driver had been injured.

Police said the car was apparently cautioned on the concession road, failed to negotiate a right-hand curve, went into a ditch and struck a fence and some trees.

Arthritis Cripples Thousands of Canadians Each Year

By SUSAN McCONNELL
Staff Reporter

The problem with the Arthritis Society, says Jesse David, is that since it isn't based on a dramatic disease like cancer, it doesn't get a lot of attention.

But this United Community Service (UCS) organization deserves its share of the spotlight.

Enos and Jesse David have a long story to tell about their involvement with the society.

[illegible] efforts of Dr. Jim Loynes, organized the local association in 1955 under the sponsorship of the Belleville Rotary Club.

Since then the society has been sponsored by the UCS.

The Davids talked about long hours of di'cussion, organization, arranging transportation to the Belleville General Hospital for arthritic stricken patients and workshops teaching people how to deal with their disease.

Their interest was sparked by Jesse's ongoing battle with arthritis. She's had the disease for more than 25 years.

Now almost two hundred people in the Quinte area benefit from the efforts of the society. Evening clinics at the hospital, home physiotherapy and treatment centres like one in Kingston are provided.

National statistics show that 95,000 Canadians are confined to beds or wheelchairs because of the disease and nearly 500,000 are partially disabled. This shows a loss of an estimated 9,000,000 work days each year costing the economy more than $500,000,000 each year.

It's difficult to speculate on causes and aggravations of the disease it knows no age limit, the re are 100 different kinds of arthritis and associated diseases, treatment varies for every patient and many patients undergo periodic remissions.

No drug, diet or any other known remedy will cure arthritis. But with continued medical research, one of the major goals of the society, volunteers like Mrs. Kelly, director of the Belleville society, are confident the cause and cure of the crippling disease will be found.

During October-the United Appeal campaign month, funds raised by the UCS will be used for the Arthritis Society and 14 other agencies in the Quinte area. The goal this year has been set at $146,000.

Immigration Searches For Foreign Criminals

TORONTO (CP) — The paper-chase search for alien criminals begins at about 9 a.m., an hour before the courts begin sitting in Ontario, at the immigration office.

About six members of the usual 18-member immigration enforcement unit spend all day checking dossiers, sifting information from immigration central records in Ottawa and from the centralized computer storage of the Canadian Police Information Centre, as well as actually visiting courts across the city to follow the progress of cases.

The idea is to locate foreign criminals as they pass through the court system and see they are deported, if they should be, under the Immigration Act.

The processing officers are all young university graduates and the court unit is regarded as a training unit, a chance for new enforcement officers to discover how complicated immigration law is and how it is enforced.

"When you do a spell on the court unit before doing street-work (hunting for illegal immigrants in the city) it teaches you that there's nothing arbitrary about an immigration officer's powers," a senior official said.

Venezuela Oil-rich For Years

CARACAS (Reuter)—While most major oil exporting countries see their oil reserves being relentlessly depleted, Venezuela expects to remain oil-rich for another two centuries.

The Orinoco River basin across Southeast Venezuela, whose jungle and powerful rivers provided the setting for novels by Venezuelan Romulo Gallegos and Frenchman Jules Verne, contains the world's largest oil reserves.

The old light oil deposits in Western Venezuela, which have been exploited for 60 years and earn an annual 10 million, are expected to last less than 30 years.

Economists had started to worry about what Venezuelans would live off after that — particularly since many have grown accustomed to unlimited whisky, large cars and Havana cigars.

But as the saying goes here, "God was very thoughtful" when he made Venezuela.

For the Orinoco River flows over an oil deposit 370 miles long and 41 miles wide containing an estimated three billion barrels of heavy oil.

Until a few years ago, the deposit was believed to contain a mere 100 billion barrels which would have been uneconomical to exploit at prevailing prices.

The reserve figure was later revised to 700 billion barrels with the help of research by U.S. space satellites.

In July, Venezuelan Mines and Hydrocarbons Minister Valentin Hernandez announced the new three-billion-barrel estimate, but gave no other details.

Now a technical report has been published by the state oil company, Corporacion Venezolana Del Petroleo (CVP), saying it has discovered 727 billion barrels in loose sand in the basin eastern section alone, in joint exploration with Mobil Oil.

Crudes are heaviest in the south near the Brazilian frontier, but gradually become lighter towards the north of the belt where they reach a density of nine to 15 grades and could be extracted without much difficulty.

The bulk of the reserves in the belt are in solid or semi-solid state, not fluid, and appear to be a form of tar.

"THINK COLOR" FOR NUTRITIOUS VEGETABLES

Green and yellow-to-orange vegetables do more than brighten salads and main courses. Their color indicates a good amount of important vitamins and minerals.

The darker the green or orange, the greater the food value. Autumn squashes, yams and broccoli, for instance, are high on the nutritional scale.

Your family gets greatest mineral and vitamin value when you serve vegetables raw. When cooking, stop at the crisp-tender stage - drain and serve at once - and use the vegetables liquid in sauce, gravy or home-made soup.

Among red vegetables, tomatoes are a great source of vitamins A and C. For other interesting facts, see the Nutrition Information Book in your Miracle Food Mart's Consumer Corner.

Foreign Investment Increases in Canada

OTTAWA (CP) —Foreign investors held long-term investments worth $34.57 billion at the end of 1973, a nine per cent increase from the $49.30 billion they held at the end of 1972, Statistics Canada reported Tuesday.

Direct investment by foreigners in productive operations accounted for 49 per cent of the 1973 total, while holdings of government bonds accounted for 18 per cent.

U.S. investors held $42.65 billion, which was 77 per cent of the 1973 total, the same as in 1972.

British investors held $4.96 billion or nine per cent of the 1973 total and all other countries 14 per cent, each the same proportion as a year earlier.

Direct investment by foreigners, which includes stocks and bonds, was up 11 per cent in 1973 to $32.84 billion from $29.52 billion a year earlier.

By comparison, foreigners' holdings of government bonds rose five per cent to $9.91 billion at the end of 1973; other portfolio investments were up nine per cent to $8.55 billion, and miscellaneous investments increased four per cent to $3.77 billion.

Of total U.S. direct investments, manufacturing industries accounted for 30 per cent of their holdings. The greatest concentrations were in iron and iron products and in wood and paper products industries.

Petroleum, natural gas, mining and smelting accounted for 27 per cent of U.S. holdings.

Most British holdings were in the financial industry, primarily insurance and real estate businesses.

Most of the investments held by foreign residents in countries other than the United States and Britain were of government securities, due mainly to provincial borrowing abroad.

Tax Wine

PARIS (CP) — The French government has announced a tax on the import of foreign wine to safeguard the domestic industry. The tax will raise prices of Italian wine by 11 per cent.

Criminally Insane Should Have Rights

OTTAWA (CP) — Mentally disturbed persons convicted of crimes should be able to spend all or part of their sentences in a psychiatric facility, the law mended today.

The commission said that a judge, with the consent of the offender and a mental hospital, should be empowered to order hospital treatment instead of sending the offender to prison.

Judges now can recommend psychiatric treatment but the final decision is left to prison authorities. The commission said that although prison officials can transfer prisoners to mental hospitals they rarely do, and that "many prisoners suffering from serious mental disorders are detained without the prospect of treatment."

The recommendation is made in the commission's 14th working paper entitled The Criminal Process and Mental Disorder.

Other recommendations:

—Accused persons judged mentally unfit for trial should not necessarily be detained in a mental hospital, and never for indefinite periods.

—Criteria for mental fitness should be clearly defined in the law.

—Police and prosecutors should be encouraged to screen mentally disordered accused positions where appropriate.

—Prison psychiatric facilities and procedures for transfers to mental hospitals should be improved.

—Psychiatric treatment should be a possible condition of parole.

Contrary to popular belief, the report says, the mentally ill are no more prone to violence than society generally and should not be treated more harshly and restrictively.

The commission also recommended that, whenever possible, psychiatrists not be required to give oral reports in court.

Indians Demand End To Mercury Pollution

TORONTO (CP) — About 30 members of the North American Indian Movement demonstrated outside Queen's Park Tuesday, demanding an end to mercury pollution in northwestern Ontario and the resignation of Judd Buchanan, federal minister of Indian affairs.

Indian spokesmen met briefly with Donald MacDonald (NDP—Toronto York South) to outline their demands.

Alex Akiwenzie, national coordinator of the Indian organization, called on the government to stop mercury pollution from pulp mills at the Grassy Narrows and White Dog Indian reserves near Dryden, Ont.

About 20 persons on the reserves suffer from methyl-mercury poisoning from eating contaminated fish. Representatives of the Indians met Monday with Health Minister Frank Miller.

Mr. MacDonald told the group that the NDP plans to press the case for Indians whose livelihood and health have been threatened by mercury poisoning.

Brain Damage Possible With Mercury Poison

TORONTO (CP) — A medical newspaper says serious neurological damage might result from mercury levels previously considered safe.

An article in the Sept. 30 issue of The Medical Post says "much larger populations than previously realized" may be threatened by methyl mercury poisoning.

The article quotes several Canadian doctors as saying recent Japanese studies indicate mercury poisoning can develop over a period of time in persons with relatively low mercury levels in their systems.

Dr. Peter Newberry, who has visited Japan to study the problem, is quoted as saying some Japanese developed symptoms of mercury poisoning 10 years after they stopped eating contaminated fish.

"I'm afraid for a number of people up here (northwestern Ontario) it may indeed be too late," Dr. Newberry says. He said the disease had been diagnosed in some persons with blood levels of 50 to 100 parts per billion.

Tests by a Japanese team which suggested 29 northwestern Ontario Indians had one or more symptoms of mercury poisoning were "very close to being unequivocal," Dr. Newberry is quoted as saying.

"I think it virtually certain that a number of these people are going to progress to much more serious disease.

Spraying Results Expected Soon

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The results of aerial spraying Saturday to destroy mosquitos suspected of carrying encephalitis should appear in about five days, the medical officer for Windsor and Essex County said Tuesday.

Dr. Joseph Jones said five to 14 days is the incubation period for St. Louis encephalitis, the strain identified in the Windsor area.

He said the number of suspected cases of encephalitis in Windsor stands at 86 with 24 confirmed cases and two related deaths.

Dr. Jones said earlier that about 85 per cent of the mosquitos were eliminated by the $100,000 spraying by a DC-6 and added that the health unit and ministry of environment have scheduled extensive research and planning to prevent an outbreak in the spring.

Dr. Lucy Duncan, Lambton County medical officer, said Monday that two cases of encephalitis have been confirmed in Sarnia and a third case is suspected.

Meanwhile, area beekeepers say the spray is killing their bees.

Dr. Jones said he had received some complaints that insufficient time had been given beekeepers to cover their hives. He said the complaints have been turned over to the board's lawyer.

P. W. Burke, a provincial department of agriculture apiarist who teaches beekeeping at the University of Guelph, said the good weather Saturday which provided good conditions for spraying also was good flying weather for the bees.

May Be Feasible

NEW YORK (AP) — New York is one of the few cities in the United States where solar energy may be economically feasible. Scientists say the price of oil and coal in the city already makes it one of the few areas where solar energy, even at its high cost, is competitive with fossil fuels.

Indian Women Treated Second-class: Cooke

OTTAWA (CP) — The only strong words in Katie Cooke's annual report on the Advisory Council on the Status of Women (ACSW) are reserved for a description of a clause in the Indian Act.

Under the clause "which stands as a shameful monument to the second-class citizenship of Canadian women," a native woman loses Indian status when she marries a non-Indian.

The council's recommendation that the Indian Act be amended to allow native women to maintain Indian status is one of several pieces of legislation Ms. Cooke and the 25-member council will continue to pursue, the chairwoman says in the report released Monday.

The report, which includes a financial statement covering the $421,500 it cost to run the council during the year ending March 31, 1975, is a product of politeness, Ms. Cooke said Tuesday.

In the report Ms. Cooke accused the federal government of being a laggard for not yet passing human rights legislation.

"The lack of federal human rights legislation means that women have no recourse in the courts when they are denied access to employment opportunities in areas under federal jurisdiction—the public service, banking, communications and transportation," the report says.

However, the council is concerned about a clause in the human rights bill that says any job discrimination cases that go the court must first be approved by the attorney-general, because it might result in complications.

The commission should have the right to take it straight to the courts," Ms. Cooke said. The council also wants the issue of native womens status included in the human rights legislation.

The council also intends to follow up on its birth control recommendations, and recommended that the manufacture of contraceptive drugs and devices indicate clearly on the package such things as failure rates, secondary effects and expiration dates.

It has asked the federal health department to provide subsidies to radio and television stations to broadcast birth control information, Ms. Cooke said.

Other proposed amendments to legislation would ensure that mothers have equal rights with fathers to confer citizenship on their children.

Andras Urged Reduction Of Immigration Over Jobs

VICTORIA (CP) — Robert Andras, federal minister of manpower and immigration, said Tuesday the Canadian government should reduce immigration now that unemployment has risen above seven per cent.

Mr. Andras, here to discuss immigration policies with B.C. Labor Minister Bill King and Human Resources Minister Norm Levi, told a news conference that Immigration should be reduced this year but increased in 1982 when, according to federal projections, there will be a shortage of workers in Canada.

About 55 per cent of immigrants select Montreal, Toronto or Vancouver as a destination and this is aggravating the unemployment problem, he said. While there is a surplus of labor in cities, there is a shortage in some rural areas.

The federal government has the power to restrict movement of immigrants within—Canada and is debating whether that power should be exercised.

"Obviously we do not plan to restrict the movement of Canadians within Canada," Mr. Andras said. "We can offer incentives but not restrictions."

He said Ottawa could insist that landed immigrant status be granted in Prince Rupert, B.C., 500 miles northwest of Vancouver on the B.C. coast, rather than Toronto, thus getting immigrants into the desired community.

He said some countries issue identity cards and require citizens to obtain permits before they can move. If such a policy were introduced in Canada, it would only apply to immigrants and not to Canadian citizens, he said.

Ottawa, Provinces Sign Environmental Pact

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government and at least six provinces will sign an environmental agreement next week, an environment department spokesman said Tuesday.

Pierre Nadeau, special assistant to Environment Minister Jeanne Sauve, said the agreement will be a general document designed to promote federal-provincial co-operation and higher standards in the environmental field.

Ontario, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Manitoba and Saskatchewan have agreed to sign and negotiations still are going on with other provinces.

"We hope more provinces will agree," Mr. Nadeau said.

The signing will take place at a meeting of federal and provincial environment and resources ministers Oct. 8-10 in Ingonish, N.S., a Cape Breton Island resort community.

Mr. Nadeau said details of the agreement will be released when it is signed.

Doubt Develops Over Assassin's Warning

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Secret Service and San Francisco police officials apparently disagree on whether the place where federal agents that Sara Jane Moore had be a threat to President Ford.

At the same time, a Secret Service official says Mrs. Moore made five telephone calls to law-enforcement agencies on the day she allegedly shot at President Ford in San Francisco last week.

She called the San Francisco field office of the Secret Service three times and the FBI and San Francisco police once each, said Assistant Secret Service Director James Burke.

Each time she called the Secret Service, Mrs. Moore asked for the agents who had interviewed her the night before, and each time she was told they were not in the office, Burke said.

The agents who tried to reach her the night before, and each time she was told they were not in the office, Burke said.

The agents who tried to reach her were Gary Yauger and Martin Haskell, who, along with San Francisco Police Inspector Jack O'Shea, are scheduled to testify today at a hearing of the Senate subcommittee on treasury, postal service and general government appropriations headed by Senator Joseph Montoya (Dem. N.M).

The committee is investigating the Secret Service following the attempts on Ford's life within 17 days.

Yauger and Haskell interviewed Mrs. Moore on Sunday night, Sept. 21, and the next day she allegedly fired a .38-caliber pistol as Ford left the St. Francis Hotel.

While interviewing Mrs. Moore, one of the agents spoke by telephone with OShea, who had been Mrs. Moore's contact on the San Francisco police department. Burke said a Secret Service agent asked O'Shea: "Do I have a problem?"

The comment he says he got back was, "No, you have no problem," Burke told the committee.

Burke said O'Shea described Mrs. Moore as an informer for the department with no history of violence and who wasn't a problem "but you guys probably ought to talk to her, anyway."

He testified that "the two agents interviewing her on the night of the 21st gave this a very high evaluation."

Burke's testimony conflicted with an earlier statement by OShea, who says he warned the Secret Service of Mrs. Moore: "This gal could be another Squeaky Fromme"—a reference to the young woman who allegedly pointed a gun at Ford in Sacramento, Calif., on Sept. 5.

Checking with other law-enforcement authorities, the Secret Service discovered that Mrs. Moore worked as an informer for the local police, the FBI and the treasury department's bureau of alcohol, tobacco and firearms, and that she specialized in information on illegal gun sales.

Burke said the two agents who interviewed Mrs. Moore did not find out that she called them Monday morning until "shortly after the allegedly fired the shot that afternoon."

"She gave no indication why she was calling," Burke said.

U.S. Vetoes Two Vietnams From UN Membership

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States has vetoed UN membership for South and North Vietnam again because of the continued exclusion of South Korea from the world organization.

U.S. officials said the Security Council's decision not to give equal treatment to all three membership applicants was the sole reason for the U.S. veto Tuesday.

The United States vetoed the two Vietnams on Aug. 11 for the same reason and said it would keep on using the veto until South Korea was admitted. But the Communists mustered a big majority in the General Assembly last week and asked the Security Council to "reconsider immediately and favorably" the applications from Saigon and Hanoi.

The vote in the council was 14 to 1 in favor of the two Vietnams, with only the United States opposed. The vote on Aug. 11 was 13 to 1, with Costa Rica abstaining.

Six council members voted with the United States last Friday to put South Korea's membership application on the council's agenda, but this was two votes short of the necessary nine. The six were Costa Rica, France, Britain, Japan, Italy and Sweden.

The countries voting against a hearing for South Korea were China, the Soviet Union, Byelorussia, Iraq, Guyana, Mauritania and Tanzania. Cameroon abstained.

South Vietnam's observer at UN headquarters, Dinh Ba Thi, told a news conference recently that both applied for UN membership because at present there are "two zones," and both want to contribute to international causes. He said reunification is "the most profound aspiration" of the Vietnamese people and a timetable will be decided soon.

Canadian News Magazine Starts Today

TORONTO (CP) — Maclean's magazine hits the newsstands today with a newly-upholstered and streamlined format as Canada's first entirely domestic news magazine.

The organization, including managing editor Mel Morris, is keeping its collective fingers crossed—mainly over competition from Time and Newsweek.

"I don't think it's a great magazine yet but for a beginning issue, I think it's OK," Mr. Morris said Tuesday in an interview.

Donald Macdonald, recently appointed federal finance minister, smiles from the cover of the initial 96-page issue, which is heavy with advertising, meaty news and background material.

Beirut Tension Erupts

BEIRUT (Reuter) — Efforts to restore normal life to this Lebanese capital after recent factional violence seemed seriously threatened today by new tension after the murder of eight persons in a Christian suburb.

Earlier, a man repairing a water pipeline in a neighboring Moslem suburb was reported killed by sniper fire.

After news of the incidents became known, unconfirmed reports said scores of people were kidnapped and barricades set up in several Moslem districts. Shooting was also heard in a handful of areas.

An explosion in the city centre wounded three persons, police sources said.

Three of the persons killed in the Furn el-Shebbak suburb of the capital were members of the Druze Moslem sect riding in a bus, police sources said. It was not clear whether the other five, whose bodies lay nearby, were also passengers on the bus.

GM Executive Now Back Home

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A General Motors Corp. executive, his wife and three sons are safely home together again after $54,000 was turned over to three men who held them captive for more than 13 hours, police said.

Police said they were looking for the trio, aged 18 to 21, who escaped with the money after forcing William Schulenberg, works manager for GM's Hydramatic Division, to set up the payment while his family was being held in the trunk of a car.

"I feel all right now," Schulenberg, 48, said Tuesday after his family was reunited. "Fortunately, nothing physical was done to me, my wife or my children."

Speaking outside his home in an affluent neighborhood in Ann Arbor's northeast side while police searched for clues, Schulenberg said: "I have no idea why they chose us. It was an unnerving experience. I'd never want to do that again."

Police gave this account of the Schulenbergs' ordeal:

The three men, two of them armed and one of them carrying a shotgun, broke into the Schulenberg home about 9:30 p.m. Monday. Two of them forced Schulenberg's wife and three teen-age sons into the trunk of the family's Cadillac and drove to an undisclosed location.

The third man remained at the home with Schulenberg, who was told to make telephone arrangements for a ransom payment for his family's release. The amount of the payment was not specified in the demand. Schulenberg called his stockbroker and the general manager of the Hydramatic plant to ask them to raise as much cash as possible by morning.

At 10 a.m. Tuesday, Hydramatic plant manager George Smith dropped $54,000 off at the Schulenberg home and then left. A Hydramatic official said the money was Schulenberg's and there were no GM funds involved. The official said no ransom demand was made to the company.

Schulenberg was then taken by his captor to the place where his family was being held. He turned over the money and Mrs. Schulenberg and the two youngest sons were released.

Pros Not Responsible For All Our Problems

Big league hockey (sometimes in name only) is asking for it again.

I can see the fingers pointing now.

Consider this.

National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell has already levied $9,050 in fines in an attempt to cool out some of the players who have taken to brawling ... and they aren't even playing for keeps.

Mr. Campbell may have hit some rowdies in the pocket book but he did not keep others from going at it hammer and tongs a night or two later. No doubt, more fines will be forthcoming.

Now, all self righteous parents will be putting the finger on the pros if Johnny develops an inclination to mix it up in the minor leagues.

Parents who do so should take a good look at themselves, first.

Pick almost any minor league game and you'll hear some proud mom or dad encouraging his or her youngster to cream somebody or other.

And the coaches aren't all saints, either.

Some members of the minor hockey coaching lodge would rather see an opponent deliberately fouled than taste defeat.

The youngsters follow the example of the pros?

Perhaps to a degree.

But the real fault lies with you and I and some of the people involved at the coaching level.

Let's put the blame, or at least part of it, where it belongs.

And that's right at home.

No, not from television.

Over zealous parents are the real culprits.

SLICES — Head coach Bob Mound and his assistants Bob Clarke and Jack Reid have assembled an excellent junior football club at Centre Hastings Secondary School, in Madoc.

The Junior Centurions showed off to a good crowd, Tuesday in Trenton, bowing to the home town Tigers 20-14 but giving a good account of themselves in the process.

Centurions, Junior and senior variety, are no pushovers. When they come, they come to play.

* * * * *

Other commitments made it impossible for me to take in all the Bay of Quinte High School Football League senior match in Trenton, Tuesday. But I did see most of the first half and two players caught my eye.

Quinte Saints' halfback Scott Bowes, not the largest back in the league by any stretch of the imagination, is sometimes also when he's on the run with the ball.

Bowes is a treat to watch.

And while defensive units on both sides deserve, to my way of thinking, defensive end Bill Kirk of Trenton Tigers deserves special mention. He gave every indication he could penetrate a brick wall if one suddenly confronted him.

High school football.

Belleville Olympics, having appealed the suspension of player-coach John O'Neill and defender Charlie Nestorovski, to the Ontario Soccer Association, expect to be notified of the group's decision on the matter, tonight.

* * * * *

Whatever you may think of Howard Cosell, you've got to agree, his Saturday Night Live show (ABC, 8 p.m.) has been worth watching so far.

If there is a rap against the show, it's a little too much Cosell who never seems to get out of the picture. But even with that drawback, I'll take it.

Whitby Young Bruins' goalie, Larry Piatt, suffered the brunt of Tony Meagher's fall into the goal crease Tuesday night. This wasn't all Piatt suffered when the Metro Junior B contest was over though as the Belleville Bobcats rolled to a convincing 7-2 victory. It was the season opener for both clubs, but combined with the Cats' pre-season games the win ran their unbeaten streak to seven straight.

Bobcats Crush Bruins In Junior B Opener

SCARBOROUGH — The Whitby Young Bruins, fittingly enough were the victims of their own mistakes in Tuesday's Metro Junior B League opener here. The Belleville Bobcats routed the Bruins 7-2.

The Cats were well prepared for what they were to come up against in the form of intimidation by the home team and never once lost their cool. Of the seven Belleville goals scored, four came while the Cats held a man advantage.

Belleville twice took on the Bruins during the exhibition schedule and for the third consecutive meeting of the clubs Belleville came out on top.

The Bruins had to about long Meehan Bonnar.

"We were ready for the aggressive style of play by the Whitby team. The plan tonight was for the Wingers to come back and the defencemen to stand up at the blue line, forcing them to shoot long," explained Bonnar after the exciting contest.

"The guys played just super tonight," said Belleville coach as the defensive corps held their ground and the wingers skated miles both ways continuously back checking at the opposition forwards. That strategy worked superbly to keep the Bruins off balance and shooting from outside.

A problem that the Belleville opponents had feared would beat the Cats never did materialize. Coach Bonnar expressed concern before the start of the season about the absence of four players from the first game in Whitby.

Andy Ricketts, Tom Belch, Mike Iatt and John Murphy all sitting out of Tuesday's opener were not missed quite as much as had been thought however.

"Those guys who filled in for us played just unreal," said Bonnar referring to two replacements from the juvenile, Gary Thompson and Wayne Chapman.

Chapman helped ease some of the pressure on the blue line for Belleville dishing out some of the harder checks.

Thompson fired in on the left wing position and looked sharp, digging in the corners and did a good job of backchecking also.

Belleville was well in control of the game by the end of the first 20 minutes of play and held a 3-1 lead heading into the dressing room. All of the goals in the first period came on a Whitby player sitting in the penalty box.

Again the scoring was equally divided among the team members. Grant Geegan opened the scoring for Belleville while Bubba Thompson and Mike Powell rounded out the first period production.

Whitby drew first blood however as Dave Phillips cashed in on what the Belleville coach termed "a mental error."

The Cats added a pair of tallies in each of the remaining periods including another power play goal. The final goal for the home team came in the early stage of the final period. Belleville were assessed 22 minutes of the 40 handed out by the referee.

Cats will play their first home game of the season on Friday night, when the Kingston Voyageurs will be on hand at Memorial Arena.

Olympics missed a pair of free tries from the penalty spot on the way to a 2-0 defeat and departure from Charity Cup play.

Adding to the Belleville team's woes was the inspiring effort turned in by Trenton Minor Soccer Association players called up by Citizens for the match.

The foursome, all under 15 years old, formed the Trenton forward line and gave Olympics' defenders fits, while counting both goals.

After a scoreless first half, David Boers shot Citizens in front with a well-placed shot high to the corner of the net, after taking a relay from Paul Carruthers.

Sandy Stephens slammed the final goal of the match home, speeding in to fire the ball home after Boers beat goalie Gary Donovan.

Len Sontneveld was the other member of the young attacking unit.

His brother, Henry, a regular with the club, scored the shutout the hard way. He stopped Tony Gonzalves from the penalty spot and turned aside other dangerous thrusts by Olympics.

"It's the worst game we've every played but don't take anything away from those young Trenton players," offered one disgruntled Olympics' player.

Citizens will meet the winner of today's Quinte Hellenic-Quinte Italo-Canadians game here. Kickoff for today's game is at 3.30 p.m.

Twin Wins for Tigers

TRENTON — Tom Nigro's Trenton High School senior Tigers, still smarting from an opening game 13-6 loss to Centre Hastings Secondary School Centurions, scored their second straight shutout of the Bay of Quinte High School Football League schedule here Tuesday.

Tigers'11-0 defeat of Quinte Secondary School Saints created a points tie for first place in the standings. It was the first loss of the season for Saints who put on an identical record to that of Trenton, 2-1.

The senior Tigers' hard fought win came after the Trenton High junior squad had made it three victories in as many starts by stopping Centre Hastings 20-14. The teams went into the contest sporting 2-0 records.

Only one touchdown was scored in the senior game. That one came late in the first half and built Tigers' lead to 18-0.

Flanker Gerrard Magne was in the clear on the Quinte five yard line and he took a strike from quarterback Dave Lewis to put the major on the board. Lewis fired from about 25 yards out.

A single by Lewis and Rob Oliver's field goal staked Tigers to a 10 first quarter lead.

The defences on both sides, strong throughout the contest, dominated play in the second half. Another Lewis punt for a single rounded out the scoring.

Halfback Scott Bowes was a standout for the winners with his determined running.

Defensive end Bill Kirk was solid for the winners.

Both teams had plenty of muscle on defence.

In the junior match, Tigers' quarterback Brian Hanson took a page from the playbook of Ottawa Rough Riders of the Canadian Football League to put six points on the board for his side.

With time runing out in the first half and Tigers trailing 6-1, TSH found itself with third down and plenty to go, deep in Maple territory. Tigers lined up in field goal formation and it was no fake.

Hanson, set to hold the ball for Mark Scuccato, appeared to have trouble handling the snap. He calmly ad1ibbed a pass play to John Webb who was all alone in the end zone, and it was 13-6, Trenton. Scuccato added the extra point.

The Junior Centurions opened the game with a Jamie Mantle to Webb.

Tigers' offense stiffened after that and the Trenton offence began to get unlocked.

In the second quarter, Webb went all the way on a reverse and Scuccato was good for the extra point, to make it 8-7. Then comes Tigers third down gamble and Tigers were in front 14-6 at the half.

Trenton made it 20-8 when Scuccato powered his way up the middle from about 10 yards out. The ball carromed off the goal post on the convert attempt.

Neither side could make much headway in the final quarter, until, with play in the final two minutes, Welch connected with Justin Hanley on a halfback option play to put the visitors right back in the game.

Determined running by Dave Petkovic and Harry Peterson enabled Tigers to run the clock out.

Trenton High School Junior Tigers' halfback Mark Scuccato is headed for a fall after picking up plenty of yardage on romping during Saints's 20-14 defeat of Centre Hastings Secondary School Centurions, Tuesday. Scuccato counted one touchdown and booted a pair of converts for the winners who stretched record to 3-0.

JOE FRAZIER

Toughest Fight Ever Admits Ali

TKO in 14th Ends Frazier's Determined Bid

MANILA (AP) — Muhammad Ali sent Joe Frazier reeling around the ring in the 14th round before a howling crowd here today, and when the bell sounded ending the round the fight was all over and Ali was still heavyweight champion of the world.

It was a great fight, one of the greatest, brutally physical and gutty. The combatants—the stand-up matador with lightning reflexes and the charging, pursuing bull, his attack unrelenting—gave no quarter.

And at the end of it—after 43 incredible minutes of warfare, of intense battle among two bitter and familiar rivals—there stood Ali, undisputed king in boxing's heavyweight ranks.

The record books will record it simply: Ali over Joe Frazier, TKO, 14th round. But the cold statistics don't pay proper tribute to the durability and refusal to fold on the part of a great champion and the raw courage of the challenger.

"He could have whupped any fighter in the world, except me," a weary Ali said afterward. "He is great—he is greater than I thought. He is one hell of a fighter and it was one hell of a fight."

It was the third meeting between these two—the champion out of Louisville, Ky., 33, a man who has been at centre stage for 15 years now, and the challenger, 31, out of the Jim Crow South, and a one-time slaughterhouse butcher in a Philadelphia ghetto.

Both of the early battles were slugging matches which went the limit—Frazier taking the first in 15 and Ali the second in 15—and this one went through 14 rounds with little to choose between them.

But in the 14th, drawing upon some mysterious source of strength after appearing on his last legs in the fight's middle rounds, Ali jarred Frazier's rock-like head with a sledgehammer right and sent the challenger's knees crumbling with a series of one-two punches to the head.

Before the bell could ring for the final round, Eddie Futch, Frazier's trainer, stepped in the middle of the ring and told referee Carlos Padilla, Jr., that his man had had enough.

A loud roar of "Ali, Ali, Ali" went up from the crowd of 25,000 in the indoor Philippine Coliseum.

Frazier stood in his corner, a sad sight with a purple bruise under his right eye, a knot on his forehead and blood oozing between his teeth.

"Joe was taking some hard shots to the head and, in his condition, I thought he had no chance of winning the fight," Futch said afterward. "I didn't want him to get hurt."

Angelo Dundee, who has guided Ali's fortunes through 31 fights, all but two of them victories, said he thought Futch took wise and humane action. "I would have done the same thing," he said.

"I am tired," Ali said after the victory. "My arms are sore, my legs are sore, my side is sore. I want to rest."

Addressing himself to the beaten challenger, who never touched a knee to the floor although he absorbed appalling punishment, the champion said: "I couldn't have taken the punches he took. He is really tough. He shook me a couple of times, shook me good."

One of the times was in the 10th round when the stubby, pipe-bodied Frazier lashed out with a left hook that caught Ali flush on the jaw. Ali's legs wobbled momentarily, but he quickly recovered.

"I felt like quitting," he said. "But I said to myself, 'I cannot quit. I am a champion.'"

When the fight ended, The Associated Press scorecard showed the fighters tied in points 66 to 66. The Filipino officials had Ali ahead. Judge Larry Nelayaz had Ali ahead 66-62. Col. Alfredo Quizon scored it 67-62, and referee Padilla had it 66-60, both for Ali.

It was a vicious slugfest for all 14 rounds, with Ali, the matador, stabbing his man with lightning shots to the head, he delivered his one-two punches with such quickness that sometimes six and eight were sent in Frazier's head in succession before there was response.

Frazier, a buzz-saw always moving forward and often taking a half-dozen blows to land one, was the aggressor throughout, moving in close to punish Ali in the mid-section but frequently scoring with his shattering left hook.

Many observers believed Frazier would now retire but he refused to make a commitment.

"I don't know, I'm saying that, way yet," he said. "I would like to kick it around a little bit."

Ali has announced he wants one more fight, preferably a bout with the winner of a match between former champion George Foreman, from whom he took the crown last October, and Ken Norton, who once broke Ali's jaw and handed him one of his two defeats.

Ali was guaranteed $4.5 million against 45 per cent of the gross gate, which could reach $22 million, and bring him $8 million. Frazier's guarantee was $2 million against 23 per cent, which might gross him $5 million.

MUHAMMAD ALI

Foreman or Norton Next Unless Champion Retires

MANILA (AP) — "There is a great possibility that was my last fight today."

Thus did Muhammad Ali, again, at least briefly, see he might retire. But in the next breath, he said he might fight George Foreman or Ken Norton.

Retirement announcements are nothing new from Ali, who proclaimed that his fight this summer against Joe Bugner was his last. The latest thoughts come after today's defeat of Joe Frazier.

As usual, Ali reminded those around him that he had been right. "I predicted that I will emerge superior," right? So I still reign supreme, right?"

But Ali also admitted that Frazier, who went down on a TKO when his manager Eddie Futch prevented him from coming out for the 15th round, is the "toughest fighter I ever fought."

And Ali even had a mouse above the right eye—rendered but otherwise unbroken facial skin to show for the fight.

Ali said "It was close in the end."

"It could have gone either way, I heard. But it was my round that pulled it out. The constant pounding has finally taken effect. But he is great."

His strategy was to tire Frazier and use his longer reach. "I quit dancing, stayed there and slugged it out and let him wear himself out."

The self-styled clown king of boxing admitted Frazier "shook me a couple of times" and sighed relief when he added: "I'll never have to fight him again."

On his plans, Ali was definite only about resting. "I am so tired I don't want to do nothing. I will rest for one week. My hips are sore, my arms are sore, my sides are sore. I'll take a rest. That's my fourth fight . . . 54 rounds in eight months of the year."

Who will he fight next?

"I don't know," he said. "I will rest for a while. Maybe I will make George Foreman fight Ken Norton, then I will fight one of them." And then, as an afterthought, he said, "There is a great possibility you probably saw the last of Ali."

Frazier, his left eye almost closed and the right side of his face puffed, attributed his loss to getting "a little careless in the last rounds."

"I thought it was a good fight" and "I thought I could go on. But Eddie's the boss, so when he said it's all over, that's it."

"I thought I had him in the ninth and 10th rounds," Frazier said. "I thought I was ahead on points in the fight."

How does he feel? Frazier said he will be as good as new tomorrow morning.

"I'll be kicking around."

Some Fight Fans Miss the Action

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

In arenas and movie houses across Canada and the United States and around the world, people gathered to watch Muhammad Ali successfully defend his heavyweight title against Joe Frazier.

Reception was clear and true at New York's Madison Square Garden where 19,817 patrons paid from $20 to $30 for a free fight undercard and the closed-circuit projection of the Philippines fight from Manilla.

The same was true at Philadelphia's Spectrum where all 18,500 seats and a number of standing-room tickets to the fight went for $15. At Fort Lauderdale, Fla., all 25,200 seats were sold at $10 and $15 and all enjoyed a clear picture.

A standing-room-only crowd of 15,000 was reported at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens where tickets went for $10 and $15 and another 4,000 turned out at Toronto's CNE Coliseum at $12.50 each.

There was no such joy in Panama City, however, where members of the national guard were called out to make several arrests after chairs were broken at Revolution Stadium by disgruntled fight fans disappointed at not being able to see the fight.

Some 7,000 persons had paid $3.50 to see the match and the Roberto Duran-Edwin Viruet non-title bout from the Nassau Coliseum in Uniondale, N.Y. on a 13-foot screen. But the showing failed to materialize and the ruckus began when the equipment at the stadium was unable to pick up the satellite signal.

DIDN'T SHOW

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain didn't show up at a Los Angeles Lakers practice Tuesday but his attorney, Jerry Goldberg, said the now-retired star still plans to report to the National Basketball Association club. Chamberlain, 29, says the Lakers demand one year of his playing service. Goldberg said Chamberlain will demand $426,000 for the season under the so-called option clause of the NBA.

Red Sox Shake Familiar Tag

No Longer Country Club Set

BOSTON (AP) — A funny thing happened to Boston Red Sox en route to the American League East championship this year: no one called them the Country Club set.

The old charge that they were pampered by owner Tom Yawkey was forgotten as the Red Sox proved themselves dedicated, determined professionals in winning the division title with 95 victories.

In the clubhouse, there was plenty of laughing and joking, a little grumbling, a few heated disputes and bitter outbursts against some writers, but on the field, the Red Sox were all business.

Pitching ace Luis Tiant, who won 18 games despite back trouble, summed it up. "Everyone on the club did helpful things."

Rookie slugger Jim Rice, the International League's most valuable player in 1974, raised a few eyebrows early in the season when he said he wanted to lead the Red Sox in every hitting category.

"If I do," he explained, "it will mean we'll win a lot of games, and that's what it's all about."

Rice led the team in only one category—23 homers—but his .309, drove in 102 runs and scored 92 before suffering a broken hand Sept. 21.

Rookie Fred Lynn overshadowed Rice with a .331 average, 21 homers, 105 RBI, 103 runs and 47 doubles.

LUIS TIANT

First baseman Cecil Cooper admitted he had matured, accepting his role behind veteran Carl Yastrzemski. But with the designated hitter rule, Cooper got to the plate often, hitting .311 with 14 homers.

Journeyman Bob Heise contributed key hits while filling in occasionally for Yastrzemski, Outfielders Bernie Carbo, Dwight Evans, Rick Miller and Juan Beniquez did plenty. Bob Montgomery and Tim Blackwell filled in well behind catcher Carlton Fisk returned.

Second baseman Denny Doyle, obtained from California Angels in mid-June, hit more than .300 and won the job from Doug Griffin.

Rick Wise and Reggie Cleveland, disappointments in their first year in Boston in 1974, came back with 19 and 13 victories, respectively. Southpaw Rogelio Moret, an enigma for several years, had a 14-3 record. Veteran Bill Lee won 17 games before a late slump.

Shortstop Rick Burleson became the indispensable man in his second season, playing in all but two regular-season games.

REGGIE JACKSON

Confirms Trusteeship

MONTREAL (CP) — President Andre Forget has confirmed that the Quebec Amateur Boxing Association has been placed under trusteeship by the provincial government because of mismanagement of funds. Forget said almost one-fifth of the association's $46,000 budget had been squandered or used for unintended purposes. Under terms of the trusteeship no expenditures may be made without the approval of a three-man board of trustees, Forget said.

Beavers in Junior Tournament

OTTAWA (CP) — Sherbrooke Beavers of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League (QMJHL) will represent Canada at the World Junior Hockey Tournament in Finland at Christmas, a Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA) official said Tuesday.

But the other teams in the Quebec league have turned down a CAHA request to strengthen the Beavers with extra players, he said. The Beavers, Memorial Cup finalists last year, are "considered just as good as last year" by the league.

He said the CAHA approved the decision not to reinforce the Beavers but told the QMJHL not to be surprised if the Beavers don't fare well in the tournament which includes the Soviet Union, Finland, Sweden, Czechoslovakia and possibly the United States.

Last year, a Western Canada Hockey League all-star team lost the junior championship to the Soviets in a close game and had trouble defeating Finland.

Two years ago, Peterborough Petes of the Ontario Major Junior Hockey League represented Canada and were trounced by the Soviets for the title.

SETS RECORD

PORTLAND, England (Reuter) — British helmsman Tim Colman broke his own world sailing speed record Tuesday in Portland Harbor when he reached 31.09 knots in his flying proa Crossbow. He had held the record at 29.3 knots, set in the same craft in 1972.

Unspoiled by Success

A's Are Still Hungry

OAKLAND (AP) — Everyone mentions Oakland A's edge in experience over Boston Red Sox, but Reggie Jackson says he's counting on the team's talent.

"We're going to play good, tough ball in the playoffs and it's going to take a great team to beat us."

There are no signs that three consecutive World Series baseball championships have tempered the A's determination.

"A lot of things can happen in the playoffs, but we're the best," said centre fielder Bill North after the A's took a fifth West title.

The A's won by five games in 1974 when Jim (Catfish) Hunter led the pitching staff with 25 victories. This year, with Hunter in a New York Yankees uniform, the A's finished seven games in front with the help of increased run production and good relief pitching to back up Vida Blue, Ken Holtzman and numerous third and fourth starters.

Jackson tied Milwaukee's George Scott for the league home run title with 36 and drove in 104 runs. Gene Tenace, Joe Rudi, Claudell Washington, Sal Bando and Billy Williams each had at least 75 runs.

Manager Alvin Dark has chosen Holtzman, 18-14, to pitch the opening game in Boston on Saturday. Last year, Hunter lost the playoff opener to Baltimore and Holtzman came through with a five-hit shutout to win the second game. The A's went on to win the series in four games.

Gates Brown Retires To Become a Scout

DETROIT (AP) — The most prolific pinch-hitter in American League history, Gates Brown of Detroit Tigers, has announced his retirement to become a Detroit scout.

General manager Jim Campbell said Tuesday the 35-year-old Brown will assume his new duties immediately, and begin with two weeks of orientation at the Tigers' offices in Detroit before taking to the road.

Brown was signed by the Tigers in 1959. He retires with the American League record for career pinch hits—107—and pinch-hit home runs—18. He went to the plate 505 times as a pinch-hitter.

Campbell said Brown will scout teams in the Florida Instructional League and then will assist the Tigers in their preparations for the free agent draft in January.

Too Nice, Old, Thin But Reds Are There

CINCINNATI (AP)—The rollicking Reds, a happy-go-lucky band that thrived on locker room ribbing, may have set a National League record for laughs en route to a division title.

The only thing they took seriously was baseball.

They heard the raps and laughed up their critics sleeves. They had a manager (Sparky Anderson) considered "too nice," some superstars who might be getting "too old," and a pitching staff pronounced "too thin."

But Cincinnati's collection of lovely-loving "bill-men" made life miserable for opposing pitchers, winning the most games since 1907 on the way to burying the defending National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers by a 20-game margin.

Pete Rose, ever ready to start something, was a chief agitator—either with his bat or his needling.

He had company from sidekick Joe Morgan, whose quips were as quick as his bat.

Morgan, one of the game's most versatile stars, has some of baseball's best credentials ever for most-valuable-player consideration: a career-high .327 batting average, 67 stolen bases, 17 home runs, 111 walks, 107 runs and 94 runs batted in.

But he's at his best exchanging barbs with Rose and his other team-mates and Johnny Bench has never been at a loss for words when the needling starts.

When Morgan voiced dismay that his batting average was slipping because of little rest, he found a cot, aspirin, a pillow and, a some slippers in front of his locker the next day.

Bench and his fellow culprits got the message across.

A key contributor to the runaway was George Foster, the "Ice Cream Man," who superstitiously stopped for an ice cream cone before each home game. "I only went hitless twice, so I guess it worked," said Foster.

Slugger Tony Perez, the best run producer in baseball over the past eight years, shortstop Dave Concepcion and a fleet outfield of Foster, Ken Griffey and Cesar Geronimo round out the regulars.

Waiting in reserve are catcher Bill Plummer, infielders Dan Driessen and Darrel Chaney and outfielder Merv Rettenmund.

A top candidate for baseball's comeback award is Gary Nolan, whose arm miseries allowed him to appear in only two minor league games. Nolan is only a shadow of the pitcher he was in 1972, but he was one of three 15-game winners on the team this year.

The Reds' other top winners were Jack Billingham and Don Gullett, but a four-man bullpen was the strong point of the pitching staff. Clay Carroll, Rawly Eastwick, Will McEnaney and Pedro Borbon were all reliable in relief.

Scouts Recall

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City Scouts have recalled defenceman Claude Houde and Roger Lemelin from their Springfield, Mass., farm club, the National Hockey League team announced Tuesday.

Bucs Needle Their Way Along

PITTSBURGH (AP) — No one, one of baseball's Pittsburgh Pirates escapes the needling that is habitual on the team—and perhaps the key to its success.

Their play does not always blend smoothly, and their personalities are not all harmonious. Yet the banter never varies.

"You're asking for it if you take yourself too seriously or walk around with your head down," says newcomer Bill Robinson.

"We just a doubleheader one Sunday... It really surprised me the next day that everybody was joking on the bus, and we beat Cincinnati that night."

The Pirates, who topped the East, will be in Cincinnati this weekend to open the National League playoffs against the Reds.

Jerry Reuss, a six-foot, five-inch left-hander, will pitch the opener.

Reuss isn't the tallest Pirate pitcher. Rookie John Candelaria is six-foot-seven, and so poised he never let up when the Pirates asked him to a 2-0 lead one day against the Cubs.

There's also Bruce Kison and Ken Brett, a pair of six-foot-four, 170-pounders

The pitching staff, which had the second best earned-run average in the league, also includes Ken Brett, Jim Rooker, relievers Dave Giusti and Ramon Hernandez and Dock Ellis, whose hot rhetoric got him suspended a few months ago. He's back again.

Dave Parker, six-foot-five, helped the Pirates lead the league in homers. Willie Stargell calls him Adonis, but when Parker and other Pirates talk about Willie Mays, they mean Stargell. He is not loud, but he is the team leader.

Big bats also include left fielder Richie Zisk, still playing without a contract and Al Oliver, who says he "always" hits the ball hard, except for one spell this season he admitted was "my first slump—ever."

Other potent hitters are third baseman Richie Hebner, second baseman Rennie Stennett and catcher Manny Sanguillen, both natives of Colon, Panama. At shortstop is Frank Taveras, who hit .322 this season.

In reserve are Ed Kirkpatrick, Art Howe, rookies Willie Randolph and Craig Reynolds and veteran catcher Duffy Dyer.

Pact with Cougars Heart of the Problem

TORONTO (CP) — The signing of a 17-year-old United States-born hockey player by New England Whalers team may have deeper implications than the fact he is under-age.

It has been learned from World Hockey Association sources in Chicago, where league trustees met in secret Monday, that the contract between Gord Roberts, a native of Detroit, and Victoria Cougars of the Western Canada Hockey League, is at the heart of the problem.

The sources, reported locally, suggest the WCHL Cougars indicated the contract document was signed by Roberts's father, but that the conjecture is the player signed it himself.

"As of now, nothing is settled," said Ben Hatskin, the WHA's chief executive officer following his arrival here from Chicago Tuesday. "There are things I have to look into before any announcement is made.

Under WHA bylaws, an amateur cannot be signed unless he is drafted first. One WHA trustee phoned the disagreement on Victoria.

"We (the WHA) are taking flak for something we had nothing to do with," he said. "The Whalers assumed the kid was free since he is a U.S. citizen. They assumed he never signed anything with the junior club, therefore there is no commitment to Canadian minor hockey."

Second Half Surge Sparks U.S. Victory

CALGARY (CP) — The United States national basketball team piled up 18 points in the opening minutes of the second half to seal a 75-67 victory over the Canadian team as the top-ranked Olympic contenders met here Tuesday.

Canada trailed by five points at the half, evened the score as play resumed, then watched as the U.S. team got down to work. The Canadians managed to pare the U.S. lead back to eight points as the game ended.

Canada and the U.S. both finished with 44 records in international Cup competition and both are considered to be medal contenders at the Pan-American Games, which start Oct. 12 in Mexico City.

PRESENTING PONTIAC '76
and the kind of economies you can expect in the 1976 Pontiac Travel Plan!

For '76, Pontiac plans to help you drive down the costs of driving by getting good gas mileage and saving on upkeep in a car you'll be proud of. From a full-size Pontiac to the all-new Sunbird, your dealer has an economy plan to fit you and the way you like to travel—around town or across the country.

'76 LeMANS. A new trim look ...and a plan to trim your operating costs.
LeMans cuts out every year to show you Pontiac's way with mid-size cars. And for 1976 LeMans looks like an exciting way to go.
The new front end styling is smooth, integrated. Dramatized by four rectangular headlamps.
As for trimming operating costs, the combination of LeMans' High-Energy Ignition and unleaded gas lets you travel up to 22,500 miles on spark plugs, 7,500 miles between oil changes.
Your Pontiac dealer has all the good news—including new opportunities like a small displacement 305 CID optional V8.
It's some story.
It's some car!

SUNBIRD. New for '76 ...a very "personal" economy plan.
This is the original, the first Sunbird—a new, personal-size Pontiac that is sporty and luxurious, yet has a definite talent for economy.
Sporty? Its lines only suggest the fun of driving a Sunbird.
Luxurious? You sink into a deeply-cushioned bucket seat and grip a steering wheel that looks and feels as if it's trimmed with leather.
Economy? Choose a single- or dual-barrel carburetor overhead cam 4-cylinder engine (the single-barrel version is standard) or an optional V6 that's a sparkling performer and a winner in miles per gallon.
There are four floor-mounted transmissions including an overdrive 5-speed.
Sunbird—the Grand Prix of small cars. A new Pontiac classic!

'76 VENTURA. Start a savings plan ...with our family compact.
Our lowest-priced six-passenger Pontiac will be an even greater challenge to other compacts. Price a '76, you'll see.
And a Ventura, with electronic High-Energy Ignition and using unleaded gas, can save on oil, oil filters, spark plugs and tune-ups.
If it looks like Ventura's size and features were planned for today, that's the plan.

'76 PARISIENNE BROUGHAM. Full-size luxury...and good gas mileage.
You like full-size cars? You'll be impressed with the fuel economy of a '76 Pontiac tuned to deliver good mileage in this class, along with smooth overall performance.
Another feature you may appreciate is being offered the widest choice of standard and optional seats in Parisienne Brougham's history.
For people like you, a '976 full-size Pontiac offers full-size value and economy in the Pontiac Travel Plan. Ask your dealer.

'76 ASTRE. It gives the economy class a little class.
Economy first class in a Coupe, Hatchback and Safari station wagon—with a new, smooth, quiet ride—

new options like a 5-speed manual transmission—and a 5 Year/60,000 mile engine guarantee that's at the head of the class.
Some of the equipment shown or mentioned is optional at extra cost.

Pontiac has a Travel Plan to fit you perfectly!

Dillon and Hickey Lead Rangers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The big salaries New York Rangers paid Pat Hickey and Wayne Dillon to switch from the World Hockey Association looked like a good investment Tuesday night.

Hickey scored three goals and Dillon one for the National Hockey League team in a 4-2 win over New Haven Nighthawks of the American Hockey League.

The talented youngsters moved to the Rangers after the budget-trimming Toronto Toros failed to match offers from the NHL team.

Hickey, who had 34 goals and 34 assists last season, scored two of his goals in a 34-second span in the third period, Dillon was one with WHA, best young players last year, leading the Toros with 29 goals and 6 assists.

In Tuesday's other NHL exhibition, Boston Bruins defeated Chicago Black Hawks 8-1 at Springfield, Mass. In a WHA exhibition, New England Whalers topped Minnesota Fighting Saints 6-2

The Bruins [illegible] game with [illegible] in the last four [illegible] by Billy Pale[illegible] Hawks's rookie Rick Middleton. Walt Tkaczuk and Greg Polis had the other New York goals.

Earl Anderson was the other Boston scorer. Rookie Ian McKegney scored for Chicago.

Three goals in the third period gave the Whalers their win at St. Paul. Defenceman Gerry Meehe tied the game at 2-2 with a power-play goal at 11:48. Gerry Swain scored the winner less than a minute later and Nick Polis clinched the win.

John Danby had the other New England goal. John McKenzie and Wayne Connelly were the Minnesota scorers.

Sale of Boston Bruins Complete

BOSTON (AP) — Storer Broadcasting Corp. has completed the sale of Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, Storer chairman Bill Michaels said Tuesday night.

Terms of the sale to Sportsystems Corp. of Buffalo, N.Y., were not disclosed, but earlier reports put the price at $10 million.

In Springfield, where the Bruins were meeting Chicago Black Hawks in an NHL exhibition game, team spokesman Nate Greenberg said he knew nothing of the completion.

Storer purchased the team and Boston Garden two years ago in a stock transaction estimated at $15 million with a real value of $7.2 million.

Sportsystems, which says it is a diversified investment firm, is headed by Jeremy Jacobs of Eggertsville, N.Y. His brother Max, former chairman of Cincinnati Royals basketball team, is a Sportsystems consultant, and another brother, Lawrence, is a neurologist.

Although the Jacobs family was not prepared to make any announcements on the transaction, other sources said Paul A. Mooney of Ridgeway, Ont., has been named president.

Expect Decision On Seals' Future

NEW YORK (AP) — The future of California Seals will be decided Thursday at a National Hockey League meeting in Montreal, NHL president Clarence Campbell said Tuesday.

Campbell said in a telephone interview "there has been no improvement in the situation" with the Seals, whose ownership was transferred in July to a group headed by San Francisco businessman Mel Swig.

"He hasn't put up any money as of now," said Campbell. "He has arranged for a loan at the bank, but the bank isn't going to let any money go until they get the security they need."

Campbell said Swig's group was short $600,000 of the $1.5 million guarantee payment due the league and one of the options open to the board of governors at their meeting would be to "shut the operation down entirely" if no mutually-agreeable settlement can be reached.

"There's no way the NHL is going back to supporting the Seals," said Campbell. The league spent a reported $10 million to keep the Seals afloat before Swig and his 10-man group took over.

The NHL bought the club from Oakland owner Charles O. Finley two years ago.

A well-placed team source said the Seals still owe Finley $1.8 million in payments and that Swig's group currently was short $600,000 instead of the $600,000 to which Campbell referred.

The source added that prospects were slim of the league dropping the team, for if that took place, the NHL would have to deal not only with player dispersal but with the $1.2 million owed Finley.

California entered the NHL in the 1967-68 expansion which at the time doubled the league's size to 12 teams.

Greys in First Place

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) — Owen Sound Greys took over first place in the Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League when they defeated Guelph Biloxi Platers 7-1 Tuesday before a crowd of 700.

Greys have a record of two wins and one loss while other teams, with the exception of Guelph, have one win and one loss. Greys' record is one win and two losses.

The Greys led 3-0 at the end of the first period and 4-1 at the end of the second.

Mike Bullock, Rob Thomas and Don Taylor scored two each for the Greys and Don McLeod added a single goal.

Keeling Will Face 'Strangers'

HAMILTON (CP) — Gerry Keeling made a lot of friends in his three years with Ottawa Rough Riders, but he won't see many familiar faces tonight when he leads Hamilton Tiger-Cats into their Eastern Football Conference clash with the Riders at Ivor Wynne Stadium.

With injuries ridding both Ottawa lines in recent games, Keeling will have to rely on sweater numbers to know who is who across the line of scrimmage.

Rudy Sims at tackle and Jim Piaskoski at end will anchor the right side of the Ottawa line; Gerry Campbell will be at middle linebacker with Mark Knonos at his right hand. But there Keeling will run out of recognizable faces.

JERRY KEELING

At 6-foot-4 and 240 pounds, McCallum almost got away from the Riders after reporting last week for a five-day trial after being cut by Houston Oilers of the National Football League. He played two years at Houston.

But when Jim Coode was injured Saturday, general-manager Frank Clair signed McCallum in a contract.

Right behind these players at the left corner will be Kent Carter, another newcomer, who has been as impressive and hard-nosed as anyhoo in that position for Ottawa in several years.

The Ottawa offensive line also will be something Hamilton has never seen before.

Bob McKeown is back at centre after missing several games with a knee injury but he'll have Doug Smith playing one tackle position and Jeff Turcotte the other while newcomer Daryl White and Jim Neece line up as the guards.

These shifts became necessary last week when Coode had his leg broken playing against Toronto Argonauts and Tom Schoetle suffered a cracked pelvis two days earlier in an automobile accident.

The game is crucial in the conference standings. Ottawa will be trying to break a tie with Montreal Alouettes at the top of the EFC and Hamilton will be trying to move ahead of Toronto into third place. The Argonauts now have six points and the Ticats five.

Like the Rough Riders, the Ticats also have a number of lineup changes following recent shuffles, some due to player injuries.

Britains Rail System Faces Economic Dangers

LONDON (Reuter) — One hundred and fifty years ago, Britain proudly pioneered the world's first passenger train.

Today, as railroad fans loyally celebrate the anniversary, the nation's state rail system is deeply in debt, beset with labor problems and faced with economic danger signals.

None of this could have been foreseen on Sept. 27, 1825, when Locomotion No. 1 — cheered by spectators, pursued by horseman and crammed with excited passengers — made its historic 13-mile journey between Stockton and Darlington in northeast England.

To the crowd's amazement the train reached breathtaking speed, later assessed at 15 miles an hour thus the Stockton - Darlington railway was born — first of many that spread across the world and revolutionized everyday life.

But for years now the age of mass rail transport has been giving way — first to the automobile, then to the airliner.

According to the head of Britain's state rail system, a railway should no longer be "considered on the basis of commercial viability but rather as a social service to be state subsidized. The railroad had a $345-million deficit in 1974.

British Rail Chairman Richard Marsh, putting forward the idea of a "necessary railway," also promised cuts in staff recruitment and tracks for the country's 11,000-mile system.

Marsh said expected losses for 1975 would be three times higher than the 1974 figure largely because high dependence on manpower made the railways system specially vulnerable to inflation.

But granted a case for retaining a railway system more expensive than the users wish to pay for, there still are arguments over just how large a margin of "social" rail services should be kept going — and how much support tax-payers should provide.

No rundown in British Rail activity is useful without a corresponding reduction in administrative levels. But according to one critic, administrative costs increased from 16 per cent of total railway costs in 1973 to more than 17 per cent in 1974.

It now seems that the public will be paying more in subsidies than it is contributing in passenger fares — even though by mid-September fares in Britain will have been raised by 67 per cent in 15 months, with more increases expected.

Economists say the subsidy will amount to about $2.3 billion a year, and ask whether such sums could not be better used elsewhere.

But rail planners argue that the country should retain the present scale of rail services because the savings through closing a few branch lines would be marginal while major retrenchment would forell more revenue than it would gain savings.

They say that nowhere within the present rail system is there a core of basically profitable services.

Another argument is that high costs would be incurred in any transition, notably because of redundancy payments.

Meanwhile, the 150th anniversary celebrations show that the romance of steam still is a powerful sentiment.

Members of the Royal Family have opened exhibitions and rail museums and attended gala films.

In August more than 750,000 railway enthusiasts from all over the world swamped the tiny town of Shildon in northeast England to watch a steam cavalcade which included a model of the "locomotion" passenger train.

Village Still Prospers

ELBOW, Sask. (CP) — In a province where many rural communities have all but vanished because of minor changes in transportation routes, this village of 356 almost seems as though it should be nothing but a wheat field.

Diefenbaker Lake, created by construction a decade ago of the nearby Gardiner Dam, cut off Elbow's market to the west, submerging the only direct road to that area.

Bus service was withdrawn about the same time, the paved secondary highway is in poor shape and passenger rail service became memory long ago.

Yet the central Saskatchewan community, 72 miles northwest of Moose Jaw, is a prosperous village with great plans for the future.

Like several other rural communities that have prospered despite over-all rural decay of the last 10 years, Elbow has a growing nearby tourist attraction, the same lake that was initially a blow to local merchants.

Like many of the other successful rural communities, it also has a spirit of co-operation among neighbors and the will to push the powers that be when necessary.

Take the time when the three-man RCMP detachment was reduced to two.

That produced a round of meetings with various officials, recalled Mayor Frank Gallant, and finally direct approaches to the provincial attorney-general. RCMP strength now is three again.

"Now we're going to hand together and push Douglas Park a bit harder," Mr. Gallant says, referring to the community's desire to see tourist facilities expanded at the lakeside park.

Another drive, at the civil service and federal-MLA level, is on to get a ferry to take the place of the long-vanished road to the west.

Without the ferry, the mayor says, farmers just across the lake have to drive 40 miles to get to town.

Bus service and better roads are also on the list.

Mr. Gallant, however, knows the limits and disadvantages of relying on the government:

"There's grants available—we've taken a lot of them—but people forget that for every dollar you get from the government you have to put up 45 cents of it."

The village also hopes to attract a canning plant which a provincial winery wants to establish as a sideline, employing about 200 people.

But Elbow's horizon is not without its grey clouds.

One is the possibility of an area inland grain terminal, the controversial concept that some critics say would mean farmers having to truck grain long distances and not shopping at the small communities to whose grain elevators they now deliver.

"One thing that would hurt us more than anything would be if they went in for an inland grain terminal," Mr. Gallant said, adding with a chuckle, "unless it were here, of course.

"I can see it would be disastrous for all the small towns like us."

A more gradual concern is the trend to larger farms and thus fewer farm families to support rural communities.

Charged With Friends

NICE, France (CP) — Michael Flitz, 50, refused to bring charges against two teen-age brothers who had broken into his apartment a year ago. Instead he befriended them. After an armed robbery at a post office, recently, police arrested the trio. Mr. Flitz said he was unable to dissuade the brothers and "rather than risk them facing a heavy jail sentence, I handed the gun."

Publisher's Property May Be New Community

CRIEFF, Ont. (CP)—When the late Lt.-Col. J. B. Maclean of Maclean's magazine died in 1950, he left his 250-acre model farm in this cross-roads community 12 miles east of Cambridge, Ont., to the Presbyterian Church of Canada.

Lt.-Col. Maclean's will stipulated that the property and its buildings must be used to set up a model community.

Church officials have spent much of the time since the will was probated trying to decide what might constitute a model community.

And during most of this time the land has been rented for agricultural purposes and the 101-year-old stone school house with its adjoining property has been added to the estate.

The church has decided that until officials can agree on the definition of a model community, the property should become a retreat centre.

Rev. Robert Spencer has been appointed resident director.

One of the houses used by employees of the estate has been refurbished as a retreat house with accommodation for up to 18 persons.

There are plans to expand the school and to build more retreat houses. The facilities are at the disposal of Presbyterian congregations throughout Ontario and Mr. Spencer provides assistance and guidance in planning the activities.

The late Lt.-Col Maclean was the son of the first Presbyterian minister at Crieff. He went to work as a newspaper reporter for the old Toronto World when he was 20. In 1887, on a salary of $11 a week, he founded his own publishing company.

He bought a magazine called Business, which was almost bankrupt, and changed its name eventually to Maclean's. Later he became publisher of The Financial Post, and of a line of trade magazines.

As a gesture, Lt.-Col. Maclean helped the Presbyterian Church restore and improve the old Crieff church. Out of gratitude, the church gave him the former manse when it was no longer needed for church purposes.

He then bought three adjoining farms to establish his model farm, where he hired experts to supervise the raising of purebred cattle and to carry out forestry conservation projects.

Lake Geneva Now Polluted

GENEVA (Reuter)—Scenic Lake Geneva, lined with the mansions of statesmen and film stars, is in danger of dying.

Some 65 tons of mercury lie on the lake bed. France and Switzerland, separated by the waterway, have begun a program aimed at cleaning up what still is Geneva's most popular tourist attraction.

"The pollution of the lake has been increasing over the past few years and there now is a real danger that sections of it will become bacteriologically dead unless something is done," said Rene Monod, secretary of the Franco-Swiss commission for the protection of Lake Geneva.

The Swiss Government has recently given the commission a five-year grant of 5.6 million francs ($2.1 million) and the Canton (semi-autonomous state) of Geneva spent a total of 500 million francs ($189 million) on cleaning-up operations since the Second World War.

The lake acts as a sewer for a score of industrial complexes in the valley of the River Rhone, which flows into the lake, and for the urban conglomeration of Geneva itself.

Monod said in an interview that industrial firms, including the Swiss chemical and pharmaceutical giants Ciba-Geigy and Sandoz, were doing their best to limit the effluents they pour into the lake via the Rhone, but the damage has already been done.

Manitoba Government Tackles Industrial Alcoholism Issue

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba government has been training managers of business and industry to help employees come to grips with alcoholism, a problem with both economic and personal aspects.

The government's three-day training course is offered to employers whose staff have lost a significant amount of working time due to illness that can be traced back to alcohol abuse.

Dr. John Bannen, assistant deputy minister in the provincial department of corrections, said demand for the course has been so great that a full-time person has been hired to teach it.

He said the course has been a resounding success. The first few dozen managers who took it learned how alcoholism hurts staff and production.

Managers taking he course learn about the debilitating effects of alcoholism, how to recognize whether absence from the job is due to alcoholism, and how to help a worker to cope with alcoholism.

One of the first things the manager does with his employee is help them accept the fact that there is a problem and that it will have to be worked out." Dr. Bannan said in an interview.

The other major point is not to realize the worker in question is addicted but to admit that he is an alcoholic. Insisting on a confession would not necessarily help the worker to handle alcohol better, he said.

"Often, in fact, people don't have a problem with alcohol but use alcohol to deal with the problems they do have," he said. In such cases, other ways of coping can be suggested.

"That's much more successful than in say to the employee, 'all right, you're an alcoholic. We'll have to each you, do this, do that, send you away and what-not'," he said.

Dr. Bannan said he understanding position that course tries to promote is much more effective than a self-righteous approach, which would only make the employee defensive and uncooperative.

He said there are 20,000 men and women in Manitoba with drinking problems and 16,000 of them are recognized as full-blown alcoholics. He added most of Manitoba's problem drinkers are men.

"But the women are beginning to catch up with men now at a frightening rate. And we don't even know how many problem drinkers there are among housewives who drink while doing their household chores because they're bored out of their minds by the daily routine of their lives."

Bass Have A Fleet

LONDON (CP) — Bass Charrington, Britain's biggest pub owners, have found that their five floating pubs are becoming more and more popular. These pub restaurants include the Old Caledonia, former Clyde paddler now moored in the Thames at the back door of the Savoy Hotel, and three ships bought from a steamship company which now float up and down the Severn River.

His Job Is Building Dinosaurs

DRUMHELLER, Alta. (CP) — Trygve Seland, 67, builds dinosaurs.

Self-taught, he has filled parks in this southeastern Alberta area with copies of Tyrannosaurus rex, the brontosaurus, triceratops, hadrosaurus, gorgosaurus and ankylosaurus.

"I never had a lesson," Mr Seland says of his craft, which has become a tourist attraction. "I just found I can stick 'em together pretty quickly."

He was born in New York. His parents, originally from Norway, came to Alberta to farm but the family homestead "dried out." Trygve worked for the railroad for 25 years, from call-boy to clerk to chief weigh-master.

"That was a wasted time of my life, pounding a typewriter. It was a lot like digging a hole and filling it in again."

He worked as a contractor for 19 years, a vocation that never developed into more than a small-time operation.

"I always liked doing something with my hands. But, after 19 years, that got to be a rat race."

The Red Deer River Valley through Drumheller, for archeological and geological reasons, is known as the dinosaur valley. About 15 years ago Drumheller decided it's "dinosaur trail" needed a dinosaur.

"I told them I'd build one," Mr. Seland said in an interview. "They wanted me to go in and see John Kanerva but I had ideas of my own." Mr. Kanerva built most of the dinosaurs in the St. George's Island Zoo in Calgary.

"I stuck my neck out a bit. I said, sure I'll build it. I was a little doubtful if I could. But I used a five-inch model and stuck it together in my spare time."

Mr. Seland's finished product created a demand for dinosaurs. In 1969, he bought 140 acres of land and started building new models.

"It caught on. People seemed to like it." There now are 20 models scattered along various trails.

Mr. Seland, using pictures for models, builds with reinforcing rods, wire mesh, stucco and paint.

"I never really keep track of the time. I suppose I can do one in six weeks. With a lot of them, I'm surprised myself at the way they turn out."

Mr. Seland doesn't stick to dinosaurs. He built an oversized Canada goose for the town of Hanna.

Drumheller's dinosaur park is open from May through October and attracts up to 30,000 visitors a year. It costs adults $1 and children 50 cents to get in.

Mr. Seland says it's fun.

"I enjoy being out here, meeting people from all over the world. It's important to be nice to them. We try to put them at their ease and make them feel we care about them."

Astrology Attacked

LONDON (CP) — One hundred and eighty-six leading scientists, including 18 Nobel Prize winners, have attacked the "pretentious claims of astrological charlatans." They say there is no dictinct basis for astrology and that it is nonsense to suggest that stars and planets guide lives and affect characters.

Save $1,000.00

MOORESTOWN, N.J. (AP) — Virtually any company can save $1,000 per job a year from an employee productivity improvement program, the Science Management Co.p estimated. The biggest source of low productivity are overstaffing, inadequate supervision and poor work methods, particularly among white-collar workers, the company reported.

WELLINGTON (Reuter) — Singer-pianist Ray Charles has been refused a visa to enter New Zealand, Immigration Minister Fraser Colman said Tuesday.

However, he said the visa application was being urgently reviewed and further information was being sought.

Colman would not specify the grounds for the refusal except to say the entertainer did not meet New Zealand's requirements for entry.

He added that Charles was scheduled to make a "one-night stand" and because the grounds on which the visa had been refused were now several years old, it was possible he would be given a dispensation.

Charles is booked to appear in Auckland on Oct. 10. The drummer in his band also is reported to have been declined a visa.

The move follows similar refusals earlier this year, which led to the cancellation of planned tours here by soul singer Dionne Warwick and her group and the blues-rock group, Savoy Brown.

LONDON (Reuter) — U.S. entertainer Danny Kaye flew into London Tuesday to "borrow" the London Symphony Orchestra.

He will be taking the baton from the orchestra's regular conductor, Andre Previn, for part of a charity concert Saturday which will be attended by Princess Margaret.

Kaye has raised $5.25 million for charities by guest conducting. Tickets for the concert, in aid of the Variety Club of Great Britain, cost up to $100.

NEW YORK (AP) — Singer Paul Anka called off his Thank You, New York City engagement Thursday because of a week-old strike by musicians.

Further negotiations were scheduled for Thursday night but state mediation board chairman Vincent McDonnell said there was still "no real progress toward settling the dispute."

Anka said he would wait until Saturday to see if the walkout by 300 members of Local 802, American Federation of Musicians was settled.

Hopes for Old Coal Mine Still Being Held

ST. ROSE, N.S. (CP) — If the shore road just 20 minutes coal ever makes a comeback as by car from the nearest com-a primary energy source in this munity, Inverness province, independent producer Dean Evans is determined that the mine he built in the wilderness 30 years ago will share at least a little of the profit.

He's an optimist and a realist and while other mines have come and gone, the Evans mine has continued to produce a respectable yield through good years and bad.

Dean Evans has operated profitably for most of the years he's been in business and he did it for 22 years without any government assistance.

In fact, he doesn't like the provincial government subsidization plan whereby deficits are covered through the public purse and the independent operator is allowed a maximum of 50 cents profit per ton for his trouble.

His beef with the system is that it allows the coal to be sold to the provincial power commission for no more, and sometimes less, than it cost to bring it to the pithead.

That kind of program, he said, serves only to destroy any incentive to be efficient.

For Dean Evans one of the keys to ensuring his own efficiency has been the adoption of a plan to update and modernize the $300,000 worth of equipment he uses in his operation. That overhauling will be completed within 12 months.

The Evans mine is a cache of good steam coal located along provided reason for temporary optimism. The current suggestion from the surveyors is that the deposit could be larger than first believed and may, in fact, be large enough to support a thermal power plant here.

However, Dean Evans isn't counting on it.

He believes coal is good forever as a domestic power source but he firmly believes that the technology is available to tap all or most of Nova Scotia's coal seams safely and economically.

Until that development takes place, Dean Evans will continue working his 30-year-old mine and will continue pumping as much as half a million dollars a year into the local economy.

He isn't counting on expansion. But, if it comes he'll welcome it.

Each War Helps Medical Research

HALIFAX (CP) — Medical research benefitted from the American experience in the Vietnam war and the same will probably be true with every major military conflict in the future.

The First World War introduced plastic surgery.

The Second World War introduced infectious-disease control.

And, Vietnam taught science something about lung problems.

That's the view of Dr. Thomas De Kornfeld, a University of Michigan professor, who said the Vietnam war focused the attention of medical researchers on adult respiratory distress syndrome (ARDS).

The syndrome was noticed when combatants suffering injury frequently died of lung failure.

Dr. Kornfeld said the syndrome is caused by a variety of conditions: shock, sepsis, aspiration, fat embolization, renal failure—all leading to a condition which causes stagnation of blood flow.

Any damage to lung tissue leads to fluid in the lungs and a vicious cycle is established—the area is unsuited for gas exchange and capillary emboli leads to increased pressure on the heart.

B.C. Cops Assist New Guinea Force

VICTORIA (CP) — Two British Columbia police officers are spending a month in Papua New Guinea to assist the emerging nation in establishing its own police force.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said the "land-police" arrangement was a result of a request for assistance from the Australian government, former administrator of the country. Papua became independent Sept. 4.

The two officers, Geoff Mortimer and Joe Horwell, are both from Vancouver.

Mr. Macdonald said it was gratifying that the police system in B.C. had been selected as the one on which the Papuans wanted to model their force. The officers from the newly-formed Papuan force will travel to B.C. for a full course at the two B.C. police officers, four or B.C. Police College.

Want Own Anthem

TORONTO (CP) — Downtown businessman want a song written by Tommy Ambrose and Gary Gray to become Metropolitan Toronto's official anthem. The group made the suggestion to Metro Council's executive committee and Chairman Paul Godfrey thought it a good idea. The song, People City, could be sung after O Canada at the start of each meeting, Mr. Godfrey suggested.

Old Nudist Camp Has 40 Members

VANCOUVER (CP) — Nestled on the side of Grouse Mountain in North Vancouver and surrounded by tall evergreens is what members call Canada's oldest nudist club.

Founded in 1939, the Van Tan Club has a membership of 40, not including children. Most are couples.

Ursula, the public relations officer, said in an interview there is a quota of single people.

"Experience has taught us that too many single men usually supply trouble," she said.

"People who want to join are interviewed by the executive. We have to let common sense be the judge. If we feel good about a person, he or she is invited to join. With a small club we have to be a little careful.

"We have no rules—just common sense, that's all. It's all very relaxed."

Members are generally shy about personal publicity.

"The last thing I want," said the president, a data processing manager, "is to walk into the office one morning and see a nude picture (I me on the notice board."

He said, even in 1975, there are people who are prejudiced against nudists—although publicity surrounding public nudism at Vancouver's hard-to-reach Wreck Beach has done a lot to alter people's misconceptions.

"It's a funny thing," he added. "You can say you go to Wreck Beach and people say, 'That's cool.' But if you tell them you belong to a nudist club they think you're a bit weird. I think it's the idea of having to belong somewhere to do it."

But there is more to do at Van Tan than just get an all-over sun tan. Although there is no electricity, there is a swimming pool and a sauna. Members can play volleyball, shuffleboard or tennis.

But most of all Van Tan is a place to relax, somewhere to get away from it all.

As Ursula put it: "When I was expecting Christoph, I couldn't walk around on the beach without everyone staring. But here nobody bothers about a big stomach. I remember it was July and very hot. I felt so good letting it all hang out."

Labor Federations Demand Freedom

MONTREAL (CP)—A new formula aimed at curbing violence and keeping union troublemakers in Quebec's construction field is about to receive its first big workout.

Three Quebec labor federations are empowered to begin rival recruiting campaigns in late August the period of 147,000 construction workers employed on a host of projects, including the vast James Bay power development and the 1976 Montreal Olympics site.

Under the legislation, imposed by the Quebec government following a sensational inquiry exposing violence and corruption in the industry, the four-week membership drives will be followed by a secret ballot Nov. 9-11.

A spokesman for the newly-formed Quebec Construction Office (QCO)—which will supervise the balloting—stressed Tuesday that the law forbids no-like-job campaigning.

The new law aims at eliminating the intimidation, baseball-bat diplomacy and bribery by which union membership rolls were expanded during designated raiding periods in past years.

Workers will vote for the union of their choice at 350 polling stations established across the province by the QCO, headed by Real Mireault, former labor minister of labor.

It will be the first such vote in an industry in which the internationally-affiliated Quebec Federation of Labor (QFL) now represents about 70 per cent of the workers. The rival Quebec-based Confederation of National Trade Unions (CNTU) represents 25 per cent. The Centrale des Syndicats Democratiques (CSD), a newer federation, stands a distant third in present membership.

The unions say they plan to woo membership by leaflets and booklets as well as advertisements in newspapers and other media. But officials of the QFL, CNTU and the CSD, wary of government interference, have been critical of the new law for various reasons.

Post Office Automation Still Brews in Unions

OTTAWA (CP) — The word automation conjures images of dozens of glittering, flashy lights and metallic robots usurping the work of more men.

In the post office, it has been the central issue in a long controversy that threatens to embroil the oft-criticized department in its worst labor dispute ever.

To the public, successful automation offers the hope of letters arriving a day after mailing—perhaps even the same day. To post office administrators, it offers visions of an efficient service erasing the gloomy years of accumulated debt and magically turning the department into an operation that pays its own way.

But to postal workers, who handle and sort the mail and run the machines, it is a constant peril to job and wage security.

Automation, says Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey, could also be the savior of the postal service.

Automation, union leaders promise, will not work until labor has a say in its implementation.

The post office's programs, which costs between $96 million and $1 billion depending upon what is included as spending on automation—has proven a number block to the industrial peace that has been the elusive goal of successive postmaster-generals.

Government officials have set the cost of machines and coding desks at about $96 million but union leaders, throwing in the cost of new buildings, land and ancillary equipment, say the cost will be about $1 billion. Both figures can be justified from government documents.

Trudeaus' Third Son Arrives

OTTAWA (CP — Prime Minister Trudeau and his wife Margaret are parents of yet another boy — the third.

The prime minister's office announced that Mrs. Trudeau gave birth to a seven-pound, 14-ounce boy about 2:30 a.m. EDT today at Ottawa Civic Hospital.

The Trudeaus have two other sons both born on Christmas Day — Justin in 1971 and Alexander Emmanuel, better known as Sasha, in 1973.

A statement from the prime minister's office said Mrs. Trudeau and the baby both are in good health.

The spokesman said that Mrs. Trudeau went to the hospital sometime between 9:30 and 10 p.m. EDT Wednesday and was accompanied by the prime minister. It was not known if the prime minister remained at the hospital until the baby was born.

Justin was six pounds, nine ounces at birth, Sasha seven pounds, nine ounces.

The only other prime minister to have a child born while in office was Sir John A. Macdonald. His second wife, Agnes, gave birth to a girl in 1869.

In May this year in an interview in Kingston, Jamaica, Mrs. Trudeau said she foresees the day when husband Pierre says he wants to look after things while she goes to work.

She said the prime minister respects her freedom and helps around the house when he can, even changing diapers.

She also proved to do her own housework but accepts that life in the large home at 24 Sussex Drive makes that impossible;

Today's opening was slightly above the record low of $2.0275 reached temporarily during trading Wednesday.

Agency Admits Error

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of a Senate committee investigating the United States Secret Service says the agency's decision that Sara Jane Moore was not a threat to President Ford resulted from an error of human judgment. But the Secret Service agents responsible for the decision, Gary Yaager and Martin Haskell, say they would make the same decision again.

Turner Says No

OTTAWA (CP) — "I am definitely not in the running," John Turner said Wednesday when asked if he was considering trying for the Ontario Liberal leadership. Ever since Mr. Turner resigned as federal finance minister last month, and especially since Robert Nixon resigned Tuesday as Ontario Liberal leader, Mr. Turner's future plans have been a constant matter of public speculation. In a telephone interview Thursday, Mr. Turner made it clear: "It is my intention, as I said in my letter to the prime minister, to return to private life."

Robert Neilson has had his telephone disconnected and has removed signs directing the way to his tourist cabins at RR 2, Lanark, about 20 miles south of Ottawa. The 55-year-old father of six refuses to comment on his win but fellow workers at the Minister of Natural Resources, where he was seasonally employed as a trapper, say he dropped into the office Tuesday.

CAPE HATTERAS, N.C. Gunmen Develop Rapport With Italian Hostages

LONDON (AP) — Three gunmen trapped in the basement storeroom of a London restaurant for four days and the six Italians they are holding hostage are getting friendly, Scotland Yard said today.

"There appears to be very much less tension between them now," London's police commissioner, Sir Robert Mark, told reporters outside the Spaghetti House.

"Events are following the classic tradition of a criminal kidnapping. The captors and their victims have now been together sufficiently long enough for them to have established a degree of rapport."

The gunmen, a Nigerian bank robber named Frankfort Dawes and two Jamaicans, herded eight Italian restaurateurs into the 10-by-12-foot storeroom early Sunday when the arrival of the police foiled their attempt to rob the restaurant.

One hostage was released Sunday and another one Monday, but Scotland Yard repeatedly refused the gunmen's demands for a plane to take them to the West Indies.

The Yard appeared to be using a psychological approach known as "transference," developed in the United States and used successfully in Sweden last year.

It is based on the principle that a person is more likely to kill a stranger than someone he has gotten to know under arduous conditions. The theory is that a bloody outcome becomes less likely the longer captors and captives are together.

When two armed convicts were trapped in a Stockholm bank vault with four female hostages last year, a strong bond built up between them while police used containment and exhaustion tactics.

Madrid Police Want Premier to Resign

MADRID (AP) — Irate policemen at the funeral of three colleagues slain by terrorists based Premier Carlos Arias Navarro of Spain today and demanded his resignation.

"We demand justice and not clemency," they shouted, apparently referring to the action of Francisco Franco, head of state, last week in sparing the lives of six convicted terrorists, including two women.

"This is the price we are paying for allowing foreign tourists into the country," others cried. A number of foreign tourists were manhandled in Madrid on Wednesday, the day the policemen were shot, during a rally honoring the 20th anniversary of Franco's rise to power.

Long lines of mourners filed through the night past the policemen's bodies in the chapel of a police post in east Madrid.

A fourth policeman shot Wednesday in south Madrid was reported in critical condition.

The latest police killings brought the number killed by terrorist bombs and bullets since January, 1974, to 22 security officers and 14 civilians.

Lebanon Gets Tough Over Kidnapping Crisis

BEIRUT (Reuter) — Lebanese security forces have been ordered to crack down on a wave of kidnapping no matter what bloodshed may result, Interior Minister Camille Chamoun said today.

Chamoun made his statement amid reports that more than 100 people were kidnapped Wednesday in the factional violence gripping Beirut. The kidnappings raised fears of renewed fighting despite a ceasefire that was supposed to take effect last week.

The crackdown on kidnappers was announced after a meeting of the Lebanese-Palestinian coordinating committee, which directs joint operations by the internal security forces and the Palestinian commandos' military police.

Justice Minister Adel Osseiran said the committee also agreed to remove roadblocks manned by left-wing and right-wing gunmen in the southern suburbs of Shiyah and Ain al-Rummaneh, scene of the most bitter fighting.

"If the barricades are removed amicably, that's fine," the minister said. "Otherwise the authorities will remove them by force."

Earlier today, two of Lebanon's leading politicians called for the resignation of President Suleiman Frangieh.

County Council Refuses Grant

BY HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Hastings County council has refused a grant toward renovations of Frankford's Dr. McStuffen Memorial Arena.

The village's community services board had requested the grant toward renovations costing $36,000.

But, council's finance committee reported Wednesday, established county government practice is assist with new construction and artificial ice installation.

Without bowing to this philosophy council would be "flooded with requests" for improvements projects, warned the committee.

Blast Kills 8 At CIL Plant

BELOEIL, Que. (CP) — Canadian Industries Ltd. (CIL) officials say a special inquiry involving federal, provincial and company experts will be established to determine the cause of a massive explosion that killed eight workers and sent seven other to hospital Wednesday.

CIL works manager Allan MacKinnon said all manufacturing of explosives in the rest of the plant site, 15 miles east of Montreal, will be terminated until results of the inquiry are known.

The explosion occurred shortly before 8 p.m. EDT and could be heard for miles. Scattered debris for thousands of feet and shattered windows as far as four miles away.

Dead are Gerard Beauregard, Pierre Bernier, Alain Bedard, Pierre Fournier, Jean Ouellette, Edgar Racine and Gerard Carron. The name of an eight victim was withheld pending notification of next-of-kin.

Scores of people were treated for minor cuts and bruises at a special field hospital set up near the scene and area hospitals reported treating others for similar injuries caused by flying glass from shattered windows.

Fire departments from two neighboring communities along with the McMasterville fire department battled the fire for more than three hours before bringing it under control. Their job was hampered by the intense heat from the fire which shot flames 200 feet into the air.

One CIL official, who said he did not wish to be identified, estimated damage at the plant at close to $1 million. Police said estimates of damage to buildings in the shock area of the blast will not be determined for days.

Some nearby homes were shaken by the explosion. Witnesses at the scene said it looked like a major airline disaster as police used dogs to find part of human bodies strewn about in the darkness.

"I've seen pieces of bodies — a hand and a foot — lying in the rubble," said Jacques Tremblay, 24, a former CIL employee.

The explosion occurred in a 2,000-square-foot building, one of many in the square-mile CIL plant. The building was used in the manufacture of an explosive called ammonium nitrate.

"It's one of the new generation of explosives," said CIL spokesman Charles Dunbar.

"It's not as sensitive as nitroglycerine."

Refuses Spain Aircraft Service

MADRID (CP) — Spain's communications with parts of Europe were curtailed today as workers in France, Britain, Denmark and other European countries refused to service airport and trains destined for Spanish points.

The Spanish airline Iberia cancelled its two daily flights to Denmark and its four flights to Italy. Two of the airline's planes which had landed in Brussels Wednesday were immobilized as ground workers there refused to refuel the jets. Flights to London were halted for the second day.

Family of Eight Can't Find Adequate Housing in Belleville

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Fred and Marjorie Thompson, 74 and 69, and their six children have a housing problem.

Any day now the Belleville couple can expect a visit from the county sheriff with an eviction notice from the courts — a step that would be bearable if the family had alternative accommodation.

Living in a condemned 100-year-old home at 178 Cannifton Rd., N., the Thompson family say they have tried every avenue possible for rented accommodation but continue to have no success.

The home is currently owned by the Moira River Conservation Authority which has stated it for demolition to make way for the new ice control dam to be built just north of the College St. Bridge. The scheme is part of the long-range program that will complete the conservation area on both sides of the Moira River.

The conservation authority purchased the home along with five other adjacent bungalows in November, 1974. Except for the Thompson residence the homes were vacated in early summer.

A spokesman for the authority said the family has been living in the home rent-free since the authority purchased the property.

He said the authority has been waiting until all the homes are vacated before a demolition crew will be hired to tear down the buildings. Demolition has not yet been scheduled.

FAMILY 11 ents take 2 and 3 rooms.

Mrs. Thompson claims she has done everything possible to find housing. She said she approached the Ontario Housing Corporation (OHC) about her problem but was told five-bedroom accommodation was unavailable.

Brenda Laughlin, a home visitor with OHC in Belleville, confirmed this and added that the Thompson family was still on OHC files and that proper accommodation becomes available they will be contacted.

However, she said four-, five-, six-, seven- and five-bedroom apartments seldom come up for rental and that a three-bedroom apartment would not meet provincial regulations for a family of eight.

Mrs. Thompson said she has been looking for housing in all parts of Hastings and Prince Edward County and as far away as Napanee. A native of Belleville, she said she could afford as much as $200 a month for rent. Mr. Thompson has been a pensioner since 1964.

She has even contacted former mayor Robin Jeffery and current mayor Ben Corkle for help. But city officials say there is little they can do about the problem. This week Mrs. Thompson sent four of her children to live with an older daughter from a previous marriage.

Mrs. Thompson has sought help from other provincial agencies and the Salvation Army but it appears nothing can be done. She has had her household belongings packed since early summer in anticipation of a move.

The family has even sought the aid of local real estate agents but this has failed too.

Mrs. Thompson doesn't know what her family will do although the family is prepared to leave the home at anytime.

The explosion occurred in a 2,000-square-foot building, one of many in the square-mile CIL plant. The building was used in the manufacture of an explosive called ammonium nitrate.

"It's one of the new generation of explosives," said CIL spokesman Charles Dunbar.

"It's not as sensitive as nitroglycerine."

Bank Robbery Ends In Death of Student

MONTREAL (CP) — Two aborted bank robberies at separate branches of the Bank of Canadienne Nationale ended Wednesday in the death of the two would-be robbers and a six-year-old school boy.

Six-year-old Rouis Sa, held hostage with 15 classmates when their school bus was hijacked by a bank bandit, died after being shot following a police chase through city streets.

Police said a bandit was carrying a bomb, police said.

The bomb, which was described later, consisted of two sticks of dynamite and an electronic detonator.

Police, notified by a alarm system, were waiting for the man when he emerged from the bank. Turning to shoot at police as he fled, the man raced to the bus which was parked in an adjacent school yard.

The bandit, who was also killed in an exchange of fire with police, was identified as Denis Martel, 23.

Police said Martel had been freed from prison three weeks ago, his second release on parole. An earlier parole was cancelled this summer because of Martel's involvement in another holdup.

An autopsy will also be conducted on Martel to determine whether he took his own life or was killed by a police bullet.

Earlier Wednesday, another bandit was killed and two others arrested after a chase from the scene of a bank robbery at another north-end branch of the Banque Canadienne Nationale.

Police arrived at the bank as two armed robbers fled in a car driven by a 16-year-old youth. The bandits, police officers said was stolen, collided min-utes later with a stationary vehicle in a shopping centre parking lot.

One bandit, Steve Lenden, 19, died in the ensuing shootout and 23-year-old Adrian Tremblay was wounded. He was arrested along with the youth who was driving the car, police said.

The stolen money, $4,613, was recovered by police.

In the first robbery attempt a man entered the bank with a bag and a plastic bottle containing a bomb, police said.

The bomb, which was described later, consisted of two sticks of dynamite and an electronic detonator.

Police, notified by a alarm system, were waiting for the man when he emerged from the bank. Turning to shoot at police as he fled, the man raced to the bus which was parked in an adjacent school yard.

County Finances Okay

Hastings County's financial operation have been healthy on balance.

The report of Carl Bateman, county administrator treasurer to county council Wednesday showed all departments in the first six months of the year operating "at or near" anticipated expenditures.

As of June 30 $1,544,000 had been spent — 47 per cent of the total expenditure of $7,566,000.

Mr. Bateman's report said "continued restraint" should assure a sound financial position at the year's end.

HONDA RE-THOUGHT THE AUTOMOBILE AND CAME UP WITH THE FIAT 128
Well Almost

According to Honda, the Civic is "the automobile re-thought". The way we see it, what Honda came up with is sort of a cross between a bigger Austin Mini in its shape and a Fiat 128 in its engineering features.

In Fiat, Honda picked a winner to resemble. The Fiat 128 won eight Car of the Year awards in Europe. And won the Canadian Winter Rally four years straight — something no other car has ever done.

In many ways, Fiat and Honda are remarkably alike. Both have front-wheel drive. A sideways-mounted engine. Independent suspension all round. Power-assisted front wheel disc brakes. And rack and pinion steering. But Honda chose to make the Civic shorter than the Fiat 128. It's also cheaper — by about $174*. And that isn't much when you think of what more you get in Fiat.

Like codles and oodles of space. Both Fiat and Honda have more leg room up front than a Cadillac El Dorado but the 128 also has much more room in the rear — more than any leading small car. And lots of space for luggage — an enormous 13 cu. ft. (Ever seen a Honda trunk or a Honda back seat? Mmmmm.) All this fits in an over-all length only 11½ inches more than a Honda.

The Fiat 128 also give you big performance and safety plus—radial tires (Come to think of it, the extra value of radials costs you a big hunk of $174.) Plus a real honest-to-goodness 128 station wagon, rather than a hatchback. Plus a 4-door model. Plus a snazzy-looking coupe that really turns heads.

To sum up, if what you want in a car is something for two of you to tootle around town in, the Honda is a fine little car. (Then again, so is the Fiat). But if you like to have friends along from time to time — or even bigger kids — it's nice to make them feel more comfortable! And if you take to the highway weekends(or whenever, the Fiat has space for four big pelple and their baggage. In short, it's an all-rounder — a town-and-country car. No doubt about it. The Honda is a trendy little car. But the Fiat 128 is still the champ. Come and take a drive. You'll see.

Murray Township resident Gord Eskew echoed the words of his fellow delegates to council meeting, Wednesday calling for a rejection of the joint arena plan between the village of Brighton, Murray and Brighton Townships. He and his fellow delegates complained about the travelling distance to the arena's location in Brighton from the Northern half of the township. They also recommended the money, $100,000 be used for developments within the township.

Joint Arena Venture Meets Strong Opposition

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

WOOLER — Trenton has continually "put the screws to Murray" a group of residents were told by township officials during a council meeting, Wednesday night.

The 15 ratepayers were at the Murray Township regularly scheduled council meeting to discuss a proposed $400,000 joint arena venture between the villages of Brighton, Murray and Brighton township.

They were told by councilman William Ellis and the town clerk that Trenton had demonstrated they could not be trusted to deal in good faith.

The residents, mostly from the northern portion of the township, unanimously rejected the arena proposal, claiming it was easier for families in their section of Murray to avail themselves of Frankford facilities rather than drive the 15 miles to Brighton proper.

Town officials said the manner in which Trenton dramatically raised their fire coverage rates, doubling its demands to Murray from $15,000 to $30,000 in a single year was an example of the poor attitude of the neighboring municipality.

In addition, officials said anytime Trenton wanted land it annexed it from the township, over the better judgment of Murray council by going to the Ontario Municipal Board.

Members of the delegations questioned council about why arrangements to subsidize a program with Trenton and or Frankford had not been made but council said in such an arrangement, they would have no control over the operations and would eventually have to pay into all neighboring recreation programs.

Councillors told ratepayers, some of whom continually compalined about township services, the joing venture was Murray's last chance to own at least part of an arena operation and have some say in its use.

Under the proposed plan, the village of Brighton would donate the land, services and 50 per cent of the arena cost and would own half of the operation outright. Brighton and Murray Townships would contribute $100,000 each and obtain 25 per cent of the ownership.

Murray officials told the group the arena could be paid off in one lump sum, taking into account a $25,000 grant from the province. Officials said the township might also be eligible for additional funding, up to one third of the remaining $75,000 from Wintario recreational grants.

To assist the cemetery company in meeting its obligations, Picton town council agreed to an annual grant.

Allegation That P.M. Divulged Turner Resignation Before it Became Official

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — Here is the inside story of the recent resignation of Finance Minister John Napier Turner.

It is a strange tale of betrayal involving touches of a compulsion for self-destruction.

Betrayal because what traditionally always has been a matter of trust was broken.

And self-destruction because the resignation left Prime Minister Trudeau's cabinet, in such a shambles.

It happened this way.

John Turner for months had made no secret of his disenchantment with the Trudeau style of government by what the Prime Minister was pleased to call consensus.

Catch was that the Prime Minister always determined the consensus. In a cabinet committee, six of his ministers could want one thing, but if Trudeau wanted something else, that was it: the "consensus," even at six to one.

It was that "consensus" syndrome — the Prime Minister right or wrong against the convictions of all or any of the other members of the cabinet — that compelled Turner to compromise on his June budget. He tried to make the best of it, to paper over the cracks of cabinet split between himself and the few ministers who stood firm with him on the need for restraint and those in the majority, the big spenders responsible for inflation.

Turner in his budget talked half-heartedly — he didn't believe it himself and felt guilty about snowing the taxpayers — of cutting government spending by $1 billion.

He had wanted a $2 billion saving.

But he lost.

And he knew he would go on losing.

He knew, too, that Pierre Trudeau, backed by the Quebec wing which controls the federal Liberals, was leader for as long as he wished, and that he had come to like the pomp, power, prestige and such perks as the $200,000 pool and the two $60,000 armoured Cadillacs.

So, having thought it over for four months, John Turner, on the afternoon of Wednesday, September 10, walked across Parliament Hill from his office in the West Block to Pierre Trudeau's in the East Block.

Behind him he left a draft — and only a draft — of a letter of resignation.

He walked in on the Prime Minister and said he was resigning. Just like that.

Trudeau was astonished and said so.

But quickly, there was no bargaining.

The Prime Minister offered no cabinet alternatives and Turner asked for none.

He was leaving, period.

It was all very cool, even distant.

The Prime Minister thanked him for his past services and wished him well in whatever the future might hold.

At this point there was nothing in writing except that draft of the resignation back in Turner's office.

Now custom, long tradition, would almost dictate that the resignation would not become official until Turner had prepared the formal letter from the draft and had it delivered, by hand, to the Prime Minister.

Only then would the Prime Minister — that evening or perhaps next morning — announce the resignation.

In the interim, those few hours between the Turner-Trudeau interview and the announcement, there might be time for second thoughts.

But here is the rub, the way the insiders tell it.

Trudeau was either so flabbergasted by the deep and distinct hole in which the Turner resignation would leave him — or so relieved to think that his one rival, the only other Liberal with a national following and the chief cabinet representative of English Canada, was leaving — that he phoned the news to his Number One confidante and adviser, Senator Keith Davey.

"Perhaps in Senator Davey he confided — or maybe he was concerned and asked, at a loss, what do we do now?" nobody is saying.

But 10 minutes after Turner returned to his office across Parliament Hill, he was recalled to ask him about the resignation.

It had been leaked — in only minutes and the news could have come only from the Prime Minister's office, through Senator Davey, and relayed to his favorite reporter.

The call was out of the bag. Turner out of the cabinet. Pushed out as he teetered on the edge before he could pull back.

Or that's the way the insiders tell the story now.

It makes Trudeau seem a pretty cold and calculating fish.

Sunday Store Opening

There could be as many reasons advanced for the existence of opening supermarkets on Sunday as there are people who take advantage of it. Or conversely as many reasons for regarding it as another blow to Sunday as the Christian Sabbath and day of rest — a concept which of course has been steadily eroded over the years.

Perhaps there is an argument for Supermarket Sundays as an idea whose time has come — or at least matured to include others besides one such store that has already been open on Sundays for some time, and besides the corner stores.

Of course if their opening were to prove the thin edge of the wedge and to presage, ultimately, escalation of the idea — so that everything is opened up and Sunday becomes just another day's commerce — that would be something else.

Sunday has had enough inroads made into its sanctity and apartness, that further erosion would be as unfortunate as it would mark its virtual end as a day of religious significance and of grace and of rest.

If such a day should come — and we hope it never does — it would be one to mourn as full circle in the secularization of our society.

Minister Now An Independent

Quebec Education Minister Jerome Choquette has resigned over a "fundamental disagreement" with the provincial government's controversial language policy.

The granite-faced Quebecer with the lilting accent is the same Jerome Choquette who came into prominence during the FLQ crisis fiv years ago.

Then Minister of Justice, Choquette shared with Premier Bourassa much of the burden of decisions made in connection with the federal government in those desperate days in Canada's modern history.

He will now sit as an independent which is the mark of a man who says his decision on the education issue stems from his "principles and convictions" and that "one has to live with one's conscience."

Question of Rights

Too often the purpose of public education becomes defeated by an exaggerated and unnecessary example. Case in point being the blind Loyalist College student who was denied entry to a city roller skating program because of his guide dog.

The blind student, John Warren, maintains that his human rights were abused. Of course Mr. Warren has a good point but the city has strong grounds for its decision.

"The more I make an issue of it, the more people will know and be able to accept me and my guide dog," argues Mr. Warren, who raised the point before over more legitimate reasons when he fought and won access to city buses.

By his own admission Mr. Warren was accompanied by several friends for the roller skating evening. Now, no matter how talented the dog may be it is of little use to Mr. Warren during roller skating.

There are many activities, like roller skating, where the guide dog can not function due to physical limitations. Therefore, out or respect for the general public and officials involved the dog should have been left at home. The public does have its rights too.

By making an issue out of this instance Mr. Warren serves only to minimize a worthy fight that needs reasonable public attention. In situations where a guide dog is a matter of personal safety and convenience there is no argument. The public should make every effort to co-operate with handicapped individuals.

If Mr. Warren continues to make an issue of unnecessary examples he will only serve to create more friction in the community and harm his cause.

Forgotten Canadians

Missionaries Held in Vietnam

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

With the Communist takeover of Cambodia, Laos and South Vietnam it seems that the media has forgotten that these countries ever existed. It makes little difference, now that the Americans and the ICC and the ICCS are gone, that there are confirmed reports of wholesale slaughter of the population of Indo-China by their Communist "liberators."

And where, I would like to know, are Norman and Joan Johnson, two Canadian missionaries who were captured last March in a surprise attack on Ban methuot in South Viet Nam?

It seems easier for the media and especially for our Government in Ottawa to forget them and to pay more attention to Russian trawlers somewhere in the Atlantic. Why do we have a Ministry of External Affairs if that arm of government will not make effective representations on behalf of two Canadians who desperately need its help?

Perhaps this is not "news" to you, but with the strength of persuasion that can be exercised by the media, I wonder if it would do any good for it, too, to raise its voice in attempting to motivate an apparently apathetic bureaucracy to get two Canadians back home.

Civil War Threatens Spain As Franco Curbs Dissidents

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Whatever measures General Issimo Francisco Franco may take to liberalize its activities and the growing acceptance of Spain in the world, these have been swept away with the execution of five terrorists for their shooting of Spanish policemen.

Ambassadors have been withdrawn from Madrid by Britain, the Netherlands, the Scandinavian countries, France and West Germany.

This recalls the UN-inspired withdrawal of ambassadors from Madrid in 1946 which started a long Spanish isolation in the world.

Bitter attacks against Spanish diplomatic, trade and tourist offices especially in France have not been this harsh since the early post-war years against Franco as the only remaining pre-war Fascist strongman.

Mexico which has had special reasons to oppose the Franco regime because it has recognized the old Spanish Republican government in exile since 1939, has called for Spain's expulsion from the United Nations.

And inside Spain, the usual run of repressions have worsened as the slight press liberties disappeared again. The so-called moderates in a right-wing cabinet have been silenced by the strongmen of the army and the Falange, still Spain's only party after 36 years of the Franco regime.

The added impetus to such stringent action by the authorities of Basque terrorists were not enough. The country's Portuguese left-wing revolution next door which the Franco authorities are determined to stop not spill over into their country.

In fact some of the strongest mob attacks against Spanish embassies were in Lisbon with the entire Spanish mission being sent home to Madrid for safety.

This is a long way from the intimate Spanish-Portuguese relationship which existed when fellow-strongmen Franco of Spain and the late Dr. Salazar of Portugal were ideological associates in the Iberian Peninsula.

Today in Spain there is more talk than ever about the country being on the brink of events which could move it into another situation like July, 1936, when the Spanish Civil War broke out.

While Franco yet lives and he will be 83 in December, the forces of the right will prevail as they have done through the Basque terrorist crisis.

But when he goes, estimates now are gloomier that Juan Carlos, his appointed candidate for a restored monarchy, will not be able to maintain a holding operation against the floodgates of Basque and Catalan separatism and the parties of the political left who might want to force Spain along a Portuguese-style road to socialism.

And yet whatever government rules in Madrid with the long, tough and resilient chief of state has gone, will have to cope with separatism of a kind which threatens to destroy the unitary Spanish state created by her great kings of the 16th century, Charles and Philip II.

Spanish terrorists have concentrated on attacks against the police of Spain, their particular enemy for the way they have been tortured and brutalized by them.

On the other hand, the terrorists, both those executed and pardoned by General Franco, are committed to a pre-Marxist society which many Spaniards, including one suspects, many Basques in the north, truly abhor.

Unfortunately, Spaniards on both the right and left have no other way to respond, fierce nationalism still being the bane of Spain.

Federal Tax Morass Becoming a 'Nightmare' — Accountant

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Tax loopholes, not many years ago, were the plaything of the wealthy, the fast-buck operators and their professional advisers.

But with each successive federal budget throughout the past half-dozen years, more anomalies and inequities have been introduced that affect the tax position of the typical Canadian salaried taxpayer or family.

"For the ordinary taxpayer, our taxing statute has become a nightmare," says J. J. Vermeer, Toronto tax manager with Thorne Riddel and Co., a national firm of chartered accountants.

In a speech to the recent annual conference of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants, he noted that married couples who own their home jointly are at a distinct disadvantage under the Registered Home Ownership Savings Plan (RHOSP).

But when the house is owned outright by one spouse, the other spouse is eligible to contribute $1,000 a year to a RHOSP and deduct it from income.

Here's an illustration of the loophole in the RHOSP:

In 1975, a husband could give or sell to his wife his interest in the house.

From 1976 to 1985, he makes contributions to an RHOSP to a limit of $10,000. Then in 1986 he uses the tax-free $10,000 to buy the house from his wife.

The following year she starts making annual contributions to an RHOSP. A person qualifying she has income—until she reaches her $10,000 limit in 1996.

At that point she uses her tax-free accumulation of $10,000 to buy half the house from her husband.

If that doesn't appeal to you, here's another RHOSP loophole:

The taxpayer who has no intention of ever buying a home could nevertheless contribute $10,000 to an RHOSP to supplement his Registered Retirement Savings Plan contribution and his pension contributions.

"If at retirement age he purchased a home, moved in for a short time, and then sold it, he could get his RHOSP tax-free since he technically met all the requirements," said Mr. Vermeer.

"The only cost would be the related legal and selling expenses."

There are still other ways to avoid the RHOSP. A person could increase his personal exemption as much as $1,000 by making a gift of that amount to a child who contributes to an RHOSP.

But lets take another loophole, arising from the November, 1974, budget change that enables one spouse to contribute to the other spouse's RHSP.

Typically, they would withdraw from the plan when the husband retires, with the contributions going to the wife (who has a lower income).

"If it is used in this manner, it can provide handsome tax breaks by effectively splitting the retirement income and enabling both spouses to make use of the new $1,000 pension deduction," said Mr. Vermeer.

Without waiting for retirement age, a husband could make a tax-free contribution to an RHSP for his wife, who would immediately withdraw the funds and pay tax at her lower rate.

An astute tax manager could find numerous loopholes of this type—which means that those who do not have access to competent tax advice are not getting all the tax breaks they are entitled to.

These anomalies are the price we pay for the government's often hand-handed approach to redistribution of wealth, and its equally clumsy efforts to close up loopholes—sometimes creating bigger loopholes in the process.

Many Issues Were Sidelined During Provincial Campaign

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Final election notes—the campaign.

In terms of public interest this was the worst campaign in years.

The vital issues of the day were hardly discussed at all.

The NDP was the only party that made an effort to raise and discuss issues, and they were carried handkerchiefs.

It paid no worthwhile attention to inflation and unemployment, the problems of most concern today. Surveys confirm that they are the questions of prime public interest.

The Conservatives and the Liberals, of course, dealt mainly in personalities and politics.

The campaign did bring out some developments such as stronger rent review boards and mortgage interest assistance, but on the broad picture it was pretty well a nothing.

On election night John Robarts was a prisoner of the commentary team on CFTO-TV and gave some interesting, sometimes succinct observations.

One was the fact that Premier Davis had called his election two years too soon.

"That happened to me in 1967," Robarts said, "and I paid the price. I underestimated the people again I would have to lose."

Without an issue, he said, a party couldn't really go on the offensive.

Then there was another remark.

It was noted that Davis had been on the defensive in the campaign, and it was pointed out that the opposition had tried to put Robarts on the defensive.

"Yes," he said, "but I wouldn't take the bait."

When you compare the NDP campaign with the four elections the party ran under Don MacDonald it represents probably the greatest turn-around in our political history.

Former Premier Stephen Lewis spoke witheringly about "personalities" and "scandals" as campaign issues.

In the MacDonald campaign there was very little else.

When there was the prospect of a "scandal" in them leader would practically drool, and he would keep on pounding away even though past experience should have shown him that in Ontario scandals seldom register at the polls.

Cheshire Home Director Urges Transit Study

Cheshire Home director Irene Sansom strongly urges city hall to immediately undertake a survey to unearth the extent of the special transportation needs of the physically handicapped in Belleville.

Calling the handicapped "a forgotten people", the director said council must be made aware of the number of city handicapped and obstacles they face in use of the existing transit system.

In an interview this week, Mrs. Sansom said the survey would provide documentation of the handicapped transit needs in the city. It would allow council to immediately apply for provincial government grants she expects to cover the cost of special vehicles.

"I feel sure these reports will be made legislation," she said. With survey in hand, "council would be ready to ask for funds."

The six residents of the government-funded Cheshire Home have been without specially-equipped vehicles for about 18 months, and only now will they get a hydraulic-lift equipped van to increase their mobility.

Mrs. Sansom said the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund has donated money to allow the home to purchase the vehicle, but it may not be available to other handicapped in Belleville.

"We haven't information on how many people would use the van outside the Cheshire Home and we don't know whether it can be used by other disabled because of the liability and insurance factor," she said.

Stewart Backs Council Stand on Fly Control

Hastings County council last summer refused to support a request for provincial farm subsidies to offset the cost of combatting warble flies—a livestock pest.

It was a diplomatic decision, council discovered Wednesday.

Particularly when it heard Ontario Agriculture Minister William Stewart's tart retort to the suggestion originally circulated as a resolution by Victoria County council.

"For the life of me," wrote Mr. Stewart in his own circular letter, "I can't understand why farmers have to be subsidized for the control of warble flies."

Land Needs Questioned In Second Study Report

COBOURG — For the second time in two days a Northumberland report made public questions Trenton's projected figures quoted in a 1972 study done by the Quinte Planning Board.

The report suggests the Trenton town limit be extended to the Wooler Road, which if agreed to would give the municipality almost 1,100 acres, about the total requested from Murray in both briefs.

The study suggested Trenton might be asked to join Northumberland saying it would strengthen the county. The additional people would proportionately balance the population and probably put to rest the lingering fear that Cobourg and Port Hope would be absorbed by Durham region some time in the future.

The main difference between the two reports is the restructuring committee was more receptive to a Trenton brief asking for additional lands to be annexed from Murray Township, while the task force had asked the municipality to submit more data to support its request for an additional 1,200 acres.

The report said it found that Murray agreed there is a need for land for Trenton's industrial growth but disagreed with the municipalities projected requirements for residential sites saying it was concerned the town would grow at its expense.

Youth Slips, Shotgun Blast Hits His Leg

A 19-year-old Belleville area man is listed in satisfactory condition at Belleville General Hospital today with a flesh wound to his left lower leg following an accidental shooting at his residence late Tuesday.

Police said Smith reportedly heard the family dog barking and went outside to check for prowlers with a loaded .410-gauge shotgun.

He slipped and fell on the sidewalk at the front of the house, causing the gun to discharge and strike him in the leg.

Police said Smith's 15-year-old brother, Tracey, heard the shot, ran outside and immediately applied a tourniquet to the leg. They said they credit Tracey with saving a great loss of blood and possibly his brother's life by the quick action.

Constable Fred Fry investigated the 8.45 p.m. accident. The two brothers were alone at home at the time.

Labor Councils To Meet

Munro Argues High Wages Have Ruined Economic Order

HAMILTON (CP) — Labor Minister John Munro said Wednesday the high level of wage settlements for increasingly militant groups, such as teachers, public servants and police, during the last few years has "disarranged the economic pecking order.

This has in turn touched off a wild leapfrogging contest within the organized work force, as industrial workers try to regain their long-held prominence in the pay scale," he said in a speech to the faculty of economics at McMaster University.

Mr. Munro said it was time other groups recognized the legitimate role of unions in society. Unions were no more or less self-interest than other groups, he said, and labor was not irresponsible, selfish and insensitive to social and economic needs.

Mr. Munro said unions have been constructive institutions without which society would be worse off.

"I am the first to admit that some wage demands are excessive by any standard. But I don't blame the unions. They are simply doing what comes naturally under our present jungle-law system."

Encephalitis Under Control

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) Five encephalitis related deaths now have been confirmed in the Windsor area, but health officials here were optimistic Wednesday that the outbreak of the disease is on the wane.

Dr. Joseph Jones, medical health officer, said he was confident a mosquito-spraying program carried out Saturday, combined with cooler weather, will halt the disease.

But he warned that more cases of encephalitis likely will be reported because the incubation period in humans can take up to two weeks.

Dr. D. R. MacDonald, director of environmental health programs here, said medical authorities are hoping that the spraying will provide an immediate check on the spread of the disease.

So far, 34 cases of encephalitis have been confirmed by Windsor health officials. As well, there have been many suspected and confirmed cases in other areas—Sarnia, St. Catharines and Chatham. Isolated cases also have been reported in the Hamilton area and Toronto.

Meanwhile, Essex County and provincial government officials are investigating complaints from area farmers that the spraying has damaged such late vegetable crops as cabbage, beans, onions, turnips, radishes and spinach.

Dr. MacDonald said the spray will not effect the edibility of any crops but said the crops become spoiled and discolored, making them unattractive to prospective buyers.

Rolling Stones Will Not Disband

LONDON (AP) — The Rolling Stones denied Wednesday a report from Santiago, Chile, that they plan to play a final rock-music concert on Easter Island in the Pacific and then disband.

"It is absolute nonsense," said Leslie Perrin, spokesman for the internationally-known pop group.

"The Stones are not disbanding; they have no plans whatever to play on Easter Island, and they have never heard of the three Americans who are supposed to be arranging a concert for them in Easter Island."

Frank Kagan, Harris Kubsle and William Isaac, described as American promoters, flew into Santiago on Monday on what was said to be a secret 10-day stay to negotiate charter flights with Lan-Chile, which is run by the Chilean government, and which has exclusive landing rights on Easter Island.

Kagan said the Stones had decided to disband after more than 13 years in the spotlight and wanted to give a final spectacular show.

The reports were first denied Tuesday by Peter Rudge, the Stones manager. But in Santiago, Isaac said: "Despite what Peter says, the negotiations are still going on."

The Stones' leader, Mick Jagger, is currently on holiday in Ireland, lead guitarist Keith Richard is at his home in Switzerland and bass guitarist Bill Wyman and drummer Charlie Watts are at their homes in France.

Protests Mercury Poison

TORONTO (CP)—More than 50 persons demonstrated for about two hours in the rain Wednesday at Queen's Park, calling for action in the case of mercury-poisoning in northwestern Ontario.

On Tuesday, about 30 members of the American Indian Movement (AIM) demonstrated. They demanded the resignation of Judd Buchanan, federal Indian affairs minister, and an end to mercury pollution.

The demonstrators Wednesday included members of AIM and representatives of Indians at the Grassy Narrows and Whitedog Indian reserves near Dryden, Ont.

MADRID (AP) — The violence from the extreme left and the extreme right that Spain has seen this week bodes ill for the liberal political reforms that are expected when Generalissimo Francisco Franco dies or retires.

The 83-year-old dictator and his generals are still solidly in control. But the top army commanders have shown in recent speeches that they approve of his designated successor, Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, and the idea of political change.

Diplomatic observers with a knowledge of the country feel that the greatest threat to an orderly evolution lies in the menacing violence of the extremists at each end of the political spectrum.

These observers feel that the continuation of leftist terrorism and the prospect of street fighting between the two extremes might set back for years the movement toward democratic liberalization that Juan Carlos is expected to initiate.

Some observers are convinced that is what both extremes want because both are opposed to liberal democracy.

The leftist terrorism that has spawned the Franco regime's current grave crisis is the work of two groups: the Maoists of the Revolutionary Anti-Fascist and Patriotic Front, or FRAP, who seek to destroy the capitalist system, and the Basque nationalist movement, ETA, which wants independence for the three Basque provinces in northwest Spain.

At the other extreme are such rightist strong-arm youth groups as the Guerrillas of Christ the King and the New Force, who abhor all democratic ideas and want the conservative dictatorship to continue.

There is no evidence of widespread disaffection among lower-ranking officers of the armed forces like those who overthrew the dictatorship in neighboring Portugal last year. But another of the Franco regime's chief strengths—the horror of another bloodbath like the 1936-39 Civil War—is losing its potency.

More than half the 35 million Spanish people are younger than 30, with only hearsay knowledge of the conflict. Many of them say they feel closer to those of their age in other countries than to their elders in Spain.

Significantly, most of the 200,000 people who cheered Franco outside the Royal Palace on Wednesday were older than 40.

The youth of Spain seek greater freedom, better economic opportunity and the chance to live free of the chilling shadow of the Civil War.

Chicago Tribune Fails To Reform English Language

CHICAGO (AP) — Thru is through at the Chicago Tribune and so is the, the newspaper announced in an editorial conceding that it has "not won popular support" for its attempt to reform English speling.

The newspaper says those words and certain others will be retired, joining such former standard Tribune spellings as soldier (for solder), sofomore (for sophomore) and tarif (for tariff).

"Regretfully we concede they (the unorthodox spellings) have not made the grade in spelling class," The Tribune says in an editorial. "When Johnny speled Tribune style, teacher sat him down.... Sanity some day may come to spelling but we do not want to make any more trouble between Johnny and his teacher."

The crusade for simplified spelling goes back to 1934 and Robert McCormick, late publisher of The Tribune. Phantom became fantom, hockey became hocky, crumb became crum, beans became bese, rhyme became rime, island became iland, leather became lether and jazz became jaz.

In 1938 additions were made to the original list of 80 simplified or shortened words, but in 1955 many were eliminated.

A few have survived even this latest reduction. The newspaper said it will leave the "us" off such words as epilog, dialog and synagog. It will also retain spellings such as archeology and cigaret on the grounds that they have come into common use.

50 Collars Displayed

CHEPPENHAM, England (CP) — A unique collection of dog collars dating from the 15th century to 1828 was exhibited in this Wiltshire town. Gordon Wigg, owner of the 40-collar collection, said he values some of the collars at more than £250 ($575) each.

UIC Investigates Over 100 Charges

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — The Unemployment Insurance Commission, as part of a national get-tough policy, is investigating more than 100 charges against seven Mississauga and two Brampton companies, Tony Busserl, UIC district manager, said Wednesday.

Mr. Busserl said the first conviction in the Toronto area was registered this week in a Peel regional court when Unitog of Canada Ltd., Mississauga, was fined $75 under the Unemployment Insurance Commission Act.

He said employers who are slow providing separation slips and records of employment of former employees are liable to be charged. Under the IUC Act, it is mandatory for companies to issue employment records to the employee within five days of termination.

Claims cannot be processed without employment records and there may be weeks of financial distress for the applicants, he said.

Lem Macklem, chief investigator of benefit control, said the charges also include employers not keeping employment records and failing to note social insurance numbers, which makes it possible for a person to collect UIC benefits and work at the same time without being detected through central records in Ottawa.

The get-tough policy values two years of employer education and several complaints from claimants and labor unions, he said.

ALL IN THE FAMILY by Isabel Huggan

You Won't Get Raisin Pie If You Come to Visit Me

Friends of ours from Kingston, with two small children, had been visiting and were ready to leave. It was late and the children were a trifle out of sorts.

"Hey, wait a minute," I said. "I'll put some raisins in a bag for the kids to nibble on the way home."

"Thanks said the parents. "Maybe that'll keep them from wanting to stop for ice cream cones."

I ran to the pantry and quickly emptied half a box of seedless raisins into a little plastic bag. How lucky, I thought to myself, that I keep the pantry well-stocked with provisions. I didn't bother closing the box since the family was already in their car. I just hurried out, passed the bag into the back seat, and waved good-bye, pleased that I'd done a good turn.

Back in the house, straightening up the kitchen, I remembered I hadn't closed the box. Well, I'll just have a few myself. I thought, dipping in for a hearty handful. A great sticky clump of raisins came out together, and I broke off a little lump of them. Without even looking, I popped them in my mouth, savoring the sweetness.

As I was chewing, I had the most peculiar sensation. Something was moving on my thumb.

Raisins don't have feet. I reminded myself. I looked down at the handful of fruit and felt a cold chill of disgust. There, wriggling out of the raisins, was a nasty little brown worm.

It was only about half an inch long, but one of those many-jointed little beasts that always look especially evil. Far worse than the creepy-crawly, however, were the little white specks all over the raisins. Eggs!

I clutched my stomach in momentary nausea, then emptied my hand into the woodstove — where I threw the box, not even looking inside it to investigate further horrors — and was hit by another jolt: Those little children were riding through the night with a bag of wormy raisins. They wouldn't see anything wrong, and would eat them all!

And then, the next thought: If they did discover the worms and eggs, what would my friends think of me? Ah, the shame of it! They'd think I'm the kind of person who keeps moldy, maggoty food!

As I lifted the lid on the stove and watched the cremation of raisin box inhabitants, I wondered if maybe it wouldn't be better if the children just ate the raisins and never found out. After all, those little creatures weren't poisonous or harmful. Just a little natural protein supplement.

Why, then, did it upset me so much?

I'll stare down spiders, wipe out centipedes and scrabble around in the garden with earthworms without getting squeamish. I've eaten, and enjoyed, delicacies such as snails that might be considered just rich relations of my raisin worm. My alarm obviously had less to do with the actual living things and more to do with where I discovered them.

Perhaps because, like other consumers of my generation, I've become so accustomed to plastic-packaged, foil-wrapped, sterile, bug-free food that I can't cope with what is really a normal fact of life: The world is full of bugs and grubs and worms. There are more of them than there are of us.

Not so long ago, it seems, we always checked that an apple had two worm holes, "one where he went in and one where he came out", before we bit in. But nowadays, pesticides have all but eliminated that concern from applegrunchers' minds.

And fruit like raisins that comes in a box, we never suspect of sustaining life, simply because it has gone through several processes before it reaches us. But that may not be a good thing.

In fact, seeing insects thriving may be an indication that food is better for us because pesticides haven't been used.

Nevertheless, it'll be a frosty Friday before I buy raisins again. And, I want you to know, I've now got the most sparkling pantry in town. Everything, I mean everything, is in glass jars.

This way, if there are grubs, I'll be able to see 'em!

Keep Fit with Oriental Dancing

Feeling uptight, stiff, flabby or bored? The solution to all these problems is the same: belly dancing!

Fotene Koudsi, who'll be leading a weekly class in oriental belly dancing at the YMCA beginning October 7, claims that practicing this lively art is a revitalizing experience.

"This kind of dancing is excellent for both mind and body," says Mrs. Koudsi. "It is relaxing and enjoyable, and women who take the classes always have a good time together. Because it requires movement of the entire body, it improves muscle tone and increases flexibility and coordination.

"Really, there's almost no area that doesn't benefit. Shoulders, neck, hands, hips, back and legs all become trimmer and more supple from the exercise. I know it's true myself, because I've stayed exactly the same size as I was when I married, and I have three children.

"I especially recommend oriental dancing to women who've just had children, for getting back into shape. It tightens and strengthens the stomach and abdominal muscles.

Mrs. Koudsi, who first learned oriental dancing as a child in Syria, is concerned about the mistaken impression that many persons have about this ancient art form.

"Oriental dancing is a sensual art, but you must make a distinction between it and exotic dancing that is simply a 'sex dance'. Once it becomes that, it is no longer an art. And any kind of dancing can be done in a sexy way, not only oriental", she adds.

"I think many people get the wrong idea because it's called belly dancing. They've seen cheap versions at carnivals and in movies, and think that's all it is."

In fact, there are 88 different steps, 119 variations and 146 combinations of steps that are done in time to rhythm music.

"How the dance is done depends on the music and the personality of the dancer," explains Mrs. Koudsi. "In Egypt, Syria, Iraq, Iran, Turkey or Greece the steps are always the same, but the dancers use them differently."

The traditional costume — filmy sleeves and trousers on brief bikini-like outfit — leaves the midriff bare so that the skillful muscle movements can be seen. However, blouses, body shirts and leotards are used for dancing lessons.

Mrs. Koudsi, who moved to Trenton with her family last year, lived in Wisconsin for nine years, and gave oriental dancing classes as part of physical education instruction at colleges in that state.

Although her course is nearly full, those interested in this unique way to keep fit should call the YMCA for more information.

Fotone Koudsi shows muscle-toning exercise.

Dionnes Celebrate Anniversary

CORBEIL, Ont. (CP)—On May 28, 1934, an incredulous world received the news that Mrs. Oliva Dionne had given birth to five baby girls, the first time in known medical history that quintuplets had survived birth.

Mr. and Mrs. Dionne, who have been living almost in obscurity in a comfortable brick bungalow just a few hundred yards from the place where the quints were born recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

The birth of the quints still ranks as one of the greatest news stories of all time. For many years, Mr. and Mrs. Dionne and their five daughters—Annette, Cecile, Emilie, Marie and Yvonne — occupied centre stage in world interest.

Mr. Dionne, now 72 and Mrs. Dionne, 68, asked that the anniversary celebration be strictly a family affair. Of the three surviving quintuplets—Annette, Cecile and Yvonne who live in Montreal, were unable to be present.

Emilie died in 1954 and Marie in 1970.

However, the couple celebrated the occasion with their eight other children and their 40 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

The Dionnes' home was festooned with gifts, flowers, telegrams and letters from relatives and close friends. Governor-General Jules Leger and Mrs. Leger sent a telegram of congratulations, as did Premier William Davis and other prominent Canadians.

It was on a Saturday morning in 1925 that Elzire, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Moise Legros, became the bride of Oliva, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Dionne, in a ceremony at the Corbeil Sacred Heart Church.

After a wedding trip to Mechanic, Que., the couple took up residence in the frame farmhouse which, nine years later, was to become known throughout the world.

Born to them before the quints were Ernest, Rose Marie, Theresa, Daniel and Pauline. After the family moved to a big new home across the road now a nursing home for the aged Oliva Jr., Victor and Claude were born.

More Rights Still to Come For Women

OTTAWA (CP) — Although major progress has been made in the last year, Dr. Kaisa Cooke says a number of important areas of women's rights still remain unresolved.

In her annual report as chairman of the Advisory Council on the Status of Women, Dr. Cooke said Monday that the cabinet has been laggard in the area of human rights, inclusion of homemakers in the Canada Pension Plan and resolution of problems related to divorce and division of matrimonial property.

One of the most positive steps in the last year was what she saw as the assured passage of omnibus legislation concerning women.

The legislation would allow women to qualify as a family head under the Immigration Act, remove the need for a woman to declare marital status before voting federally and remove restrictions concerning the period of family benefits would be paid under the Unemployment Insurance Act.

She said a council recommendation now being implemented will give widows and widowers equal survivors' rights under the Canada Pension Plan while mothers will have equal rights with fathers to confer citizenship to their children under the Citizenship Act.

She said the council is following closely a recommendation that the prime minister urge federal departments and agencies by letter to improve the situation in respect of women in their organizations.

Ann Landers

Jackass Boss Will Pay the Price

Dear Ann Landers: What can a secretary do about a boss who is a jerk and is making a jackass out o' himself? He is chasing around with some young girls who works in this office and everyone is laughing at him behind his back.

These two fools have picnic lunches in parks which are public, yet they think nobody sees them. They ride around together during office hours (he drives her home) and they act like the whole world is blind, deaf and dumb.

Last Thursday he told me he was taking off from noon till 4 p.m. to call on an account in a neighboring state. The idiot went with him. When his wife phoned 10 minutes later, I felt like a trailer because I didn't tell her the truth.

Should I face up to my Christian duty and tell him to shape up? Or should I keep my mouth shut?—Secretary To A Nut

Dear Sec: Who anointed you, anyway? Since when is it your Christian duty to tell anyone to shape up? MYOB, Lady. If your boss persists in behaving like a jackass, he'll pay the price. There's no such thing in this life as a free lunch.

Dear Ann Landers: My problem is sort of selfish. Please don't think I'm a rotten kid but I need someone to help me think this through.

Two months ago Dad died of cancer. He and Mom had a great marriage. There are two kids in our family besides me (I'm 15). The youngest is a boy. Mom is 38 but she looks very good for her age.

Last night my kid brother ask-d Mom if she would ever marry again. At first she seemed sad, then said, "You might think this sounds strange but I would like to marry again because I had such a good life with your father. I'd hate to live the rest of my days alone. It would be sort of a put-down to him."

My brother started to cry and said, "Gee, Mom, how could you ever let another man take Dad's place?"

I'm ashamed to admit I felt the same way. If we are wrong will you say something to straighten us out? Thanks. Ann—We Miss Him Awfully

Dear Miss Him: Two months isn't very long. The wounds are still fresh. But they will heal.

And as time goes on you children will want your mother to have a full life. For a woman who has had a happy marriage, it usually means another marriage.

No one will ever be able to take your dad's place, but surely you would be pleased if a kind, considerate man came along and could fill the lonely void in your mother's life. Save this column and read it again one year from now.

Good news:
The '76 Fords are at your Ford Dealer's now!
More good news:
Ford has engineered dramatic increases in fuel economy into all the '76 car lines.

1976 Ford Granada Ghia 4-door
Note: Certain items shown are optional at extra cost.

Good News: The '76 Fords have arrived with features like:
□ New exterior colours
□ New interior trims
□ A new improved ride for Granada
And new options like:
□ Distinctive, tu-tone paint treatments for many models
□ A Squire woodgrain look for Pinto Runabout
□ And for the young at heart, a Stallion Option Package for Pinto, Maverick, Mustang II and the Cobra II option on Mustang II.

More good news: The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA*) has just tested the 1976 cars and the U.S. results for the big 3 auto makers show that Ford Motor Company cars are #1 in fuel economy.

More specifically, 1976 Ford Motor Company cars achieved an average mileage of 20.7 miles per gallon and an improvement of 27% over the 1975's.

These mileage statistics are a sales-weighted combination of EPA city and highway test results, converted to Imperial gallons.

Improvements in fuel economy have been achieved through engineering refinements such as recalibrating engines for better spark timing and carburetion, and lowering the rear axle ratio.

The engines on all Ford car lines have been refined not only for better fuel economy but also for improved driveability in terms of easier starting, better stop and go response and smoother acceleration.

In addition, there are optional engines that run on lower priced regular gasoline that's readily available anywhere.

Find out more about the mileage improvement story and all the other good news on the '76 Fords at your Ford Dealer now.

*U.S. E.P.A. standardized test results (sales-weighted) have been and are being used by automotive manufacturers for fuel-economy statements. Such tests are performed on a dynamometer to simulate city/highway driving.

Don't Be Miserable This Winter

You all know the miseries of dry noses and throats during the winter months. When the humidity drops below 20, it can be real agony for your family. But your rugs and furniture also suffer from the lack of moisture in the air. How many times have you been jolted by static electricity when you walked across your carpet? Have you noticed the fine line cracks that show up in your furniture? All these symptoms of low humidity can be corrected by having Moira-Schuster Fuels, 17 S. Pinnacle St., install a Humidifier on your furnace. The humidity in your home will be completely controlled at the correct level and you and your family won't have to suffer this winter.

Your Eyes Must Last A Lifetime

You own the most wonderfully sensitive and miraculous camera in the world — the human eye. Yes, sight is a miracle of nature's engineering. But unlike man-made cameras, they can never be replaced. They must last a lifetime; there are no spare parts or reserves. That's why these questions are vitally important: How do our eyes work? How can we protect them against the threat of defective vision, or even blindness? You will find some of the answers in this column, prepared by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind as a public service and presented weekly by Trenton Optical and Quinte Optical, 54 Bridge St. E., Belleville.

CP News Roundup

Syncrude Land Now In Dispute

EDMONTON (CP) — Syncrude Canada Ltd. leased its current site at the Athabasca oil sands on the understanding that the provincial government had proper ownership to the land, H. B. Scott, company president, said Wednesday.

He said the company could not comment on the validity of land claims by the Indian Association of Alberta, which plans to take action to gain total control of the oil sands.

Syncrude is a consortium of oil companies building an extraction plant in the oil sands area near Fort McMurray about 275 miles northeast of Edmonton.

Mr. Scott said the company has been working with Indian and Metis associations and the government for several years to develop comprehensive training and hiring programs.

"There are 304 natives working at the Syncrude construction site and both Syncrude and its contractor have hired native people as advisors to assist in employing native people," he said.

Extend Controls

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba government's controls on the wholesale prices of petroleum products will be extended until Nov. 15, Consumer Affairs Minister Ian Turnbull announced Wednesday.

Mr. Turnbull told a news conference the controls—which have effectively frozen prices in the province since Aug. 15—are still needed to guard against discriminatory pricing of petroleum products in various parts of Canada.

Mercury Warning

OTTAWA (CP) — While the Ontario health ministry continues to warn people against eating fish from the Ottawa River until tests for mercury levels are complete, regional government officials say they have no evidence of any potential danger of poisoning.

An Ottawa-Carleton waterworks chemist said Wednesday the last samples taken in the Ottawa River June 24 showed to a billion parts of water.

Disaster Areas

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Ford has declared parts of Michigan a major disaster area as a result of rain storms, high winds and flooding which caused extensive damage, the White House said Wednesday. It said the president's action will permit federal funds to be used in relief and recovery efforts in designated areas of the state.

Man Arrested

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — State police arrested a 21-year-old local man Wednesday in connection with the abduction of a General Motors employee and his family. City police said $45,000 in ransom money was recovered. State police identified the man as Daniel Wirth. Lieut. Calvin Lapien said arrest warrants will be issued for Kenneth Royce, 18, and John Todd Szynwelski, 18, who are being sought.

Ford Vetos Bill

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — President Ford announced Wednesday his veto of a bill that would have increased tobacco price supports and eventually might have raised the price of a pack of cigarettes by a penny.

Charged With Murder

PEMBROKE (CP) — City police Wednesday charged Lola May Sania, 22 with murder punishable by life imprisonment in connection with the death of her one-month-old son, Christopher. The infant died in hospital of a concussion. Police said further details are being withheld pending a further investigation.

Bad Conditions

OTTAWA (CP) — Prisoners at the regional detention centre are saying that a recent series of disturbances there—including one in which $20,000 in damage was done Friday—are caused by bad conditions in the centre.

Lifts Ban

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The Niagara Falls Bridge Commission has lifted a 27-year ban on photographs of the Rainbow Tower Carrillon, it was learned Wednesday. The section of the tower housing the bells had been closed to the public since wartime prime minister Mackenzie King's name was unintentionally left out of a tribute to "our nations' leaders" inscribed on one of the bells. The omission resulted in the dismissal in 1947 of three Canadian members of the commission in an attempt to quell Mr. King's ire.

Brilliant Feat

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada, Canada's nuclear power generating unit, was described by a Toronto engineer Wednesday as a brilliant feat of engineering with numerous defects that require correction.

Coffee Prices Rise

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The price of coffee increased in September for the second time in eight weeks, a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows.

A mid-July frost that wiped out half of Brazil's coffee crop caused Canadian coffee prices to rise in that period by 35 cents a pound. Of 12 cities surveyed, eight reflected the price increase.

George Beatty of General Foods Ltd., Canada's largest coffee processor, said further increases are not expected in the immediate future. "but it depends on world markets."

Mr. Beatty said the substantial rise in coffee prices in the last two weeks of September "might have been due to retailers placing the two price increases on coffee all at once, having used up old stock between the time the first price increase and the second were announced."

Toronto showed the biggest jump at 71 cents—up $1.84 a pound from $1.13.

Supreme Court to Decide On Irving Newspaper Fate

OTTAWA (CP) — A Crown request to appeal a New Brunswick Supreme Court ruling that the Irving newspaper interests do not constitute a monopoly illegality will be decided on by the Supreme Court of Canada next Tuesday.

A motion to have the appeal heard has been presented by the federal justice department and is high on a list of about 40 such motions to be heard by the high court Tuesday and Wednesday.

If the court agrees to hear the appeal, the case probably will be heard sometime in the first half of next year. If it refuses, the New Brunswick Supreme Court ruling will stand.

Four Irving-controlled companies were convicted in 1974 of forming a monopoly, contrary to federal combines laws, through their ownership of all five English-language daily newspapers in New Brunswick. The late Mr. Justice Albany Robichaud fined the companies $150,000 and ordered the Irving interests to sell their two Moncton dailies, The Times and The Transcript.

Ottawa Spends $2.5 Million On Energy Control Campaign

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has launched a $2.5-million campaign to convince Canadians to use less energy.

The program includes a series of newspaper, television and radio advertising aimed at school children, tips on how to conserve heat and even an animated Christmas cartoon to be shown on television.

Brian Kelly of the government's office of energy conservation said Wednesday the aim is to cut energy consumption growth by two per cent this years.

The long-term goal is a 20 per cent reduction in projected energy consumption by 1980 which, the campaign says is possible with modest reductions in energy used in homes, industry and transportation.

The government is spending $170,000 on newspaper advertising, and about $150,000 each on television and radio. Last winter's advertising campaign for energy conservation cost about $700,000 in total.

Mr. Kelly said the cost, about 10 cents per person, will pay off if consumers follow the conservation advice. Better energy consumption habits potentially can save consumers about $20 a person annually, he said.

Lang Opposes Freight Rates

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Otto Lang says he plans to move against rail freight rates that unfairly discourage industrial growth in developing regions of the country.

"I don't think that it should be left only to the railways to determining artificial rates," he decides about development by said.

He added he did not mind their determining rates that reflect costs "but when they start determining rates on other bases, then I think it becomes a matter of national concern."

Mr. Lang said he feels there are distortions in rates but he did not refer to specific cases.

The railways say they charge what the market will bear.

But western premiers have argued that rate-setting should be tied more closely to actual costs and Mr. Lang's remarks seemed to support this view.

Lang said he still see what changes have to be made to the National Transportation Act and rail legislation to ensure these rate distortions are wiped out. He said he also would talk to the railways.

Trudeau Presents Music Awards

OTTAWA (CP) — The first International Music Council Awards were presented Wednesday by Prime Minister Trudeau in honor of violinist Yehudi Menuhin, Indian sitarist Ravi Shankar and the late Russian composer Dmitri Shostakovich.

Mr. Trudeau presented the sculptures in the form of Canadian loons—following a 30-minute solo recital by Mr. Menuhin marking International Music Day. Mr. Menuhin is president of the council.

Gov.-Gen. Jules Leger, Mme. Leger and Mrs. Trudeau attended the concert in the 800-seat theatre of the National Arts Centre.

For his recital, Mr. Menuhin played three unaccompanied works: Two partitas by Johann Sebastian Bach and a word composed for Mr. Menuhin by Harry Somers of Toronto, first performed at the Guelph Spring Festival two years ago.

The awards presented in absentia to Mr. Shankar and posthumously to Mr. Shostakovich were received by national music representatives of their countries attending the 50-nation conference.

Beef Producers Face Cost-price Squeeze

OTTAWA (CP) — A commission studying the marketing of beef and veal said Wednesday it was unlikely to find ways to reduce significantly the cost-price squeeze facing beef producers.

The comment, in a special report on industry problems, said nothing about the possible impact on consumer prices. An said a final report is expected by the end of the year.

The commission said many beef producers find their costs exceed returns from cattle sales. Research and public hearings by the commission showed "a major difference between costs of production and current average selling prices."

Improving the efficiency of the marketing system will not, by itself, close the cost-price gap, the report said. But there was a need to improve the marketing system "to assure the consumer about the quality and grade of beef and its subproducts available at the retail level."

The commission was established in January because of government concern over high retail beef and veal prices and low returns to producers. It is headed by Maxwell Mackenzie.

Proposed Amendment Would Hamper CAS Operations Says Kerr

Provincial legislation may present problems for parents unable to control an unmanageable offspring, Hastings County council was told Wednesday.

It will also pose problems for Children's Aid societies.

The situation stems from an amendment to the Training Schools Act introduced during the spring session of the legislature, said a report from Bruce Kerr, director of the county's Family and Children's Services.

The amendment when enacted will "effectively prevent a parent from bringing his child before the court charged as unmanageable."

No alternatives have "yet been identified," said the Kerr report.

It added: "...one might well wonder what it is that the beleaguered parent of an aggressive teen-ager whose behavior is beyond his ability to control, is supposed to do."

The philosophical intent of the amendment is that no more children will be placed in correctional institutions unless first convicted of an offence for which an adult may be imprisoned, wrote Mr. Kerr.

But already many of Ontario's family court judges have accepted this intent. An alternative is training schools they are using Children Aid societies.

But few societies—including the Hastings County family service have the resources to "cope with these young adults."

Resources are being developed—but at considerable expense.

In recent months the Hastings service has opened two new group homes. At least one, maybe two more will be in operation before the year's end.

"At the moment all of our group care facilities are full to capacity," wrote Mr. Kerr.

Other social trends noted in the report:

—There's a noticeable swing away from traditional forms of child neglect—problems due to poor housing, low income, poor health. But there's a "marked increase" in the number of parents experiencing difficulty in managing their children's behavior. Some 50 per cent of children cared for are 13 years.

*Few children are available for adoption. There still are applications of hopeful couples on file since 1972-73. Children are available for adoption but not in great numbers. There are few infants. Those available include older children, those with mental and physical handicaps, mixed racial origins and some of Asian background available elsewhere in the province.

County Supports Ellis Against Riding Change

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Federal political representation in Hastings County would be beyond an MP's capacity if proposed, new federal constituency boundaries became a reality.

The warning was sounded Wednesday to Hastings County council.

One county councillor bluntly called the change — "ridiculous." Another termed it "cumbersome."

The proposed redistribution of electoral boundaries — integrating most of Hastings into a huge new riding spanning four counties—came under fire as council's support was canvassed against the change.

Criticism was touched off by a request for council backing from Jack Ellis, MP Hastings. His constituency now spans the bulk of Hastings — from Belleville north to Madoc — and council agreed to support his protest.

Changes suggested by the Federal Electoral Boundaries Commission for Ontario would peel off Belleville and neighboring Thurlow and Tyendinaga townships from the rest of Hastings.

They would be incorporated with Prince Edward County into a new riding called Prince Edward.

Sidney Township would be joined into a new Northumberland constituency.

This leaves the remaining 21 townships of Hastings as a centrepiece old Hastings — Frontenac riding reaching from north of Kingston to northwest of Peterborough.

"This riding proposed now — is beyond the capacity of any man to do a representative job," declared Reeve Ritchie Wells, of Marmora — Lake Township. "It's a ridiculous territory."

Reeve Barbara Allen of Tweed said the new boundaries would make a "very cumbersome geographical area." Any move to keep Hastings intact should be supported.

Warden William McCrea agreed and called on council to endorse the premise "that Hastings should be left alone."

Council concurred with Mr. Ellis' bid to retain the unity of Hastings as possible in a single unit — a plea he will make to the boundaries commission when it meets in Belleville Oct. 21.

— In his submission already filed with the commission — and read to council — Mr. Ellis supports the inclusion of Prince Edward in any constituency which "is part of Hastings".

Yet, Hastings, a county for more than 100 years, has close community ties deserving consideration as a unit.

But, if its northern townships must be withdrawn from a new riding, Mr. Ellis also makes a plea for inclusion in more logical constituencies north of Belleville.

He is asking the commission to also include the townships of Rawdon, Huntingdon and Hungerford — an area historically known as South Hastings, which have particularly strong traditional ties with Belleville as the county seat.

Such a boundary line was proposed in 1973 but the proposals of the electoral commission at that time were not processed through parliament.

Window Stolen

City police are investigating the theft of a stained glass window valued at about $200 from a house at 191 Station St. sometime late Wednesday or early today.

Chief Douglas Crosbie said today the window was located on the upstairs floor and there was no visible means of entry.

An auction had been held at the house a few weeks ago and the antique window was an unsold item, he added.

Shocking Display

Gord Campbell (above) of the Electric Utilities Safety Association of Ontario will be at the Public Utilities Commission open house Saturday with a display illustrating how people can accidentally be electrocuted. The PUC administration building and water purification plant will be open from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

PUC Opening Doors To Local Residents

Belleville Public Utilities Commission will truly become public Saturday when its experts will be on hand at the administration building and water purification plant for open house.

"People will be able to see parts of the water and electrical operation they might not otherwise see or understand," manager Neil Britton said Wednesday during a dry-run tour for city council members and officials.

"Visiting the facilities will give people a better understanding of what goes into the costs," said Mr. Britton.

Mayor Ben Corke and ex-mayor Robin Jeffrey, a past commission board member, and about 20 aldermen and city officials showed up for the preview of Saturday's events.

The open house is being held to celebrate construction of the administration centre at 195 College St. W., which opened in November at a cost of about $250,000.

Corke Says Complaints Over Sunday Hours

City hall is not contemplating any immediate action to keep the doors of supermarket chains closed Sunday, Belleville Mayor Ben Corke said Wednesday.

The mayor said no plans are afoot to draft a city bylaw requiring stores to close, but "I do think it will come up for discussion."

His response comes amid a growing controversy over supermarket chain Sunday opening hours across Ontario. The issue came to Belleville last Sunday with the first-ever opening of a major grocery store chain in Belleville.

A and P in the Belleville Plaza was open for business Sunday.

In Toronto, the city executive committee has asked its legal department to investigate drafting a bylaw to end Sunday hours by major food retailers.

Belleville city manager Wilbur Burcell said Wednesday he has heard of no proposed action or request to draft a bylaw.

However, the mayor said that possibility exists that some recommendation to pass a bylaw to force supermarket chains to close may arise.

Mayor Corke said complaints over Sunday hours have been "very modest".

Firemen Pack Up

Three members of Sidney Township Volunteer Fire Department roll up electrical wire used to power smoke ejector during ventilation of attic damaged by fire in residence of Charles Brenay of RR 5, Belleville late Wednesday. Firefighters quickly responded to the 10:28 p.m. alarm and contained the blaze in order keeping damage to the minimum. The six-member Brenay family received accommodation offers from several neighbors.

Hot Pipe Starts Fire

No one was injured and damage was kept to a minimum when fire broke out in the attic of a bungalow owned by Charles Brenay at RR 5, Belleville late Wednesday.

Chief Doug Scott of Sidney Township Volunteer Fire Department said at the scene that the six-member family was watching television and had started a fire in a living room wood-stove prior to the outbreak.

He said the flames went up the stovepipe and started a blaze in wood shavings used for insulation in the attic.

Chief Scott said the slow-burning fire was probably smoldering for about an hour before the family noticed it and called the department at 10:28 p.m.

"This fire department is fast," Mr. Brenay commented. "They were here five minutes after I called them."

Holes were opened through the roof and ceiling and firemen quickly had the blaze contained. There was water and smoke damage in addition to that caused directly by the fire.

Mr. Brenay said at the time that several of his neighbors in Concession Rd. 4 had offered overnight accommodation and he would probably take up the offers.

"That's one thing about the country," he remarked. "The neighbors are fantastic."

Corke Stresses Need for Co-operation Between City and Hastings County

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Report

Need for co-operation between urban Belleville and its rural neighboring municipalities in Hastings County was emphasized Wednesday by Mayor Ben Corke.

City and county "cannot live in two separate vacuums. We share so many common goals, ideals and needs," he told Hastings County councillors.

Mayor Corke said he is "profoundly area-minded" and during the remaining 18 months of his current term of office he looks to "many successful and useful discussions" between both municipal neighbors.

The mayor visited the October session of county council to introduce Adolf Kohler, visiting city manager of Belleville's twin city, Lahr, West Germany, to the city's county counterpart in local government.

But he also seized the opportunity to emphasize good-will to the city's rural neighbors — an attitude, he said that pre-dated his recent appointment as mayor.

"I want to assure you since live become mayor ... I have a real continuing interest in the good relationships that have existed between city and county going back many, many years," Mayor Corke told County Warden William McCrea and his councillors.

85-year-old Man Injured

TRENTON — An 85-year-old man was taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital suffering from a broken leg after being hit by a car Wednesday night.

Trenton Police spokesman said Harry Baker of 41 Carr St. Trenton, wearing dark clothes, partially blind and hard of hearing was crossing Byron St. when he walked into a moving car driven by Burma Tarachand, also of Trenton.

Official Plan Would Detail Land Divisions

Hastings County official plan could have final approval by the year's end.

That's the hope of Felix Browne, reeve of Bangor-Wicklow-MacClure townships and chairman of county council's planning board.

Passage of the plan also is seen as easing a problem that surfaced Wednesday in council — complaints over land division in the county's townships.

The planning board has been patiently steering the official plan through its evolutionary labyrinth for nearly two years — seeking a consensus from public and local and provincial governments since it was first tabled in county council in December, 1973.

The detailed guidebook for future county development patterns now has reached the stage where "we've ratified the whole thing," said Reeve Browne. He made the remarks in an interview after presenting his latest report on the plan's progress to council.

The plan now is back once again with the housing ministry, the source of final approval. Because of some amendments the planning board may well have to make yet another delegation to Queen's Park in Iron out details with the ministry, said Reeve Browne.

"But," he said later "— We're hoping we can have it done and passed by the end of this year."

Meanwhile, county council was told that complaints over current restrictions involving land division applications are creating "grumbling" throughout the county's northern townships, warned Reeve Jack MacKenzie, of Faraday Township.

"It's getting to be quite a serious deal back there," he told fellow councillors.

Ernest Halleman, county administrator-treasurer, agreed that there is criticism "throughout the whole county."

But, he said, the land division committee should not be a target attack. It is only an administrative tribunal which must follow present regulations on land severances as stipulated by county council.

The problem, councillors Halleman indicated, is that there is no widespread process as yet in deal with local variations in land divisions.

Mostly, the solution will be set in train with approval of the official plan. When the plan is finally passed, local municipalities then may introduce their own zoning bylaws.

In turn, these bylaws will permit local committees of adjustment to whom property owners can apply for required minor variances,

County Council Briefs

Senior Homes Full

Both homes for the aged operated by Hastings County—in Belleville and Bancroft—continue to operate at or near capacity.

The report of county council's committee supervising the homes noted Wednesday there has been some difficulty in dealing with the applications at hand.

The committee also noted when applicants have suitable alternate shelter or transfer assets out of their name just prior to admission "we invariably defer or reject the application."

Space at Premium

Space is becoming a premium item at the Hastings County administration building—which also houses court facilities.

As a result, the county should begin to take "a serious look" at its own requirements, Reeve Horace Casey of Thurlow told fellow councillors Wednesday.

The provincial government rents space for administration of justice purposes—an agreement that runs out in 1977.

"The county and some of its agencies could use this entire building to its advantage," said a committee report.

County Joins Program

Hastings County will keep official contact with the study project scrutinizing feasibility of a district arts centre at Loyalist College.

It's a contact county council showed signs of sherring away from some months ago.

And Wednesday, some county councillors still seemed lukewarm about any involvement with the project.

However, a majority decided to name Warden William McCrea as a county representative to the study group — now known as the Quinte Arts Task Force.

Central Project Rejected

There will be no central Ontario Home Renewal Program (OHRP) service in Hastings County.

Instead, individual county municipalities — if interested — will have to administer their own OHRP projects.

This was revealed to county council Wednesday after results of a canvass of local government's interest in an OHRP — the provincial government's program which makes low-cost loans available for home renewal projects to low and moderate income households.

Interest Charges Reduced

Hastings County government in future may snip part of its annual operating expenses.

County council Wednesday passed a bylaw call for payment of the county levy twice a year.

Hitherto, the levy—the share each member municipality pays for county government operations—was paid in one instalment due Dec. 1.

The new bylaw introduces a new due date—July 15.

This means the county treasury will receive more operating funds earlier in the year, thereby reducing the amount of money it has to borrow and pay interest on in the interim.

Airport Gains Support

Hastings County council has added its voice to Quinte district municipalities petitioning for retention of Trenton Airport as a regional community asset.

Earlier this summer district municipal leaders were taken on a demonstration flight by De Havilland Aircraft to the airport — aboard a short-take-off landing (STOL) plane.

Since then Belleville city council and other area local government groups have written various levels of government involved to retain the airport.

Road Work Behind

The seven-week strike of road workers in late spring, caused a pile up of maintenance and construction projects, Hastings County council was told Wednesday.

This resulted "in many operations having to be left out of this year's road program," the council's Roads and Bridges committee reported. Surface treating and weed-spraying — two major maintenance items — won't be done this year, reported the committee.

The Last Bucket

Century Place superintendent Allen Devries and Rigo Forming contractor Joe Quadrini pour the last bucket of concrete topping off the roof of the multi-million dollar complex. An estimated 10,000 tons of concrete have been poured into the five-floor structure — due for completion next spring.

Tiant To Start For Sox

BOSTON (AP) — To the surprise of no one, veteran right-hander Luis Tiant was named Wednesday to start for Boston Red Sox in the opening game Saturday of the American League championship series with the Oakland A's.

However, manager Darrell Johnson pulled a minor surprise in announcing that Reggie Cleveland, 13-8, would start ahead of Rick Wise, 19-12, in the second game Sunday. Wise was picked to start the third game of the best-of-five series in Oakland next Tuesday.

"With their arms, Tiant and Cleveland possibly could pitch twice in the series, but Wise would be able to go only once, even if he started the first game," Johnson said. "In addition, we think Reggie may have an edge with his sinker ball in this park."

The selection of Tiant to open the series was not unexpected. The 35-year-old ace, a 20-game winner in 1972 and 1974, slipped to 18-14 this season as he was plagued by back miseries, but was outstanding in three of his last four starts.

Cleveland, a native of Swift Current, Sask., also finished strong after a slow start. Wise had troubles in the final weeks and gave up 34 homers this season.

Expos Clean House

MONTREAL (CP) — Last Wednesday night as Gene Mauch strolled in a position near second base at Jarry Park, a chorus of boos rose from the crowd.

The fans were showing that they do not appreciate the managing efforts of Mauch, who guided the Expos to an unspectacular fifth-place tie with Chicago Cubs in the National League's East Division.

"The reason I decided to come out here is that I knew a lot of you would get a kick out of it," Mauch told the crowd. "Now, that you've had a kick out of it, I want to introduce to you for the last time . . . this season . . . a bunch of guys you're going to be cheering for a long, long time."

Mauch could have stopped his second sentence with "last time," because he will no longer be introducing Expos players to Montreal baseball fans.

A week after his hostile reception from Montreal's baseball fans, Mauch's career with the seven-year-old Expos is history. Mauch, 49, was fired Wednesday along with all of his coaches—pitching coach Cal McLish, third-base coach Dave Bristol, first-base coach Walt Hriniak, bullpen coach Jerry Zimmerman and part-time batting instructor Duke Snider.

Hriniak will be moved to a position in the Expos' minor-league organization while Snider will continue as a color man on the Expos baseball telecasts on CBC.

"It was the worst thing they could do," said pitcher Steve Renko in an interview from Kansas City. "Gene Mauch is a super man and a super manager. I'll tell you one thing, he never ever put the blame on any of his players.

"I think they fired him to cover up for themselves. Fans booing him? Do they know as much about baseball as Gene Mauch?

"Gene Mauch is one of the finest managers in baseball. What did they expect us to do this year with all the young guys? We won 75 games with them and the most we ever won with experienced players was 79.

"Anyway, I don't mind what I say because I doubt if I'll be there next year."

Mauch won 499 and lost 427 games during his tenure with Montreal. He was hired Sept. 5, 1968, after being fired by Philadelphia Phillies of the National League June 16, 1968. He had been managing in Philadelphia from 1960 after taking over from Eddie Sawyer.

Expos president John McHale said the fans had a bearing on the decision but added that they were not a major factor.

"We must always listen to our fans," he said. "We were convinced they were looking for and wanted a change."

Mauch's wife, Nina Lee, said her husband was not upset.

Yankees Remember

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees announced Wednesday they will perpetuate the memory of Casey Stengel by adding his name to a section of plaques and monuments beyond the centerfield fence in the new Yankee Stadium, which will open next April.

The monuments are for Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Miller Huggins, and the plaques are for Ed Barrow, Jacob Ruppert, Joe DiMaggio, Mickey Mantle and Pope Paul VI.

Stengel, who was manager of the American League Yankees from 1949-1960 and guided them to 10 pennants and seven World Series titles, died of cancer Monday night at the age of 85.

Chris Wins Match

MISSION VIEJO, Calif. (AP) — Women's champion Chris Evert captured her first match Wednesday in the $50,000 Mission Viejo Women's tennis tournament by defeating 16-year-old Lea Antonopolis. The scores were 6-1, 6-1 as Evert dominated the high school junior who had advanced to the second round by beating Wendy Paisch of Australia. Miss Evert drew a bye into the second round and had some trouble with Miss Antonopolis who rushed the net and kept the Wimbledon and U.S. champion moving throughout the two sets.

Snow Knight Comes Through

Marsh, an 8-1 outsider, and Canadian-owned Snow Night, the even-money favorite, won the split divisions of the $113,500 Manhattan Handicap on the grass Wednesday at Belmont Park.

Salt Marsh, ridden by Eddie Maple, scored by 1½ lengths over Drollery in the $58,000 first division. The 8-5-to-5 favorite, London Company, was third.

Snow Knight an entry with Haraka, came from far back to take the $56,500 second division by three-quarters of a length.

Poland, Japan Winners

MONTREAL (CP) — Poland won its fourth game in five starts in the round-robin International Competitions 1975 handball tournament Wednesday night by defeating Denmark 20-24.

In another game, Japan topped the United States 24-14.

Jerzy Klempel scored eight goals to lead Poland's win over the Danes, now 2-1-1 in the competition. Janusz Brzozowski had seven goals for the winners.

Anders Dahl-Nielsen scored 10 goals for Denmark with Flemming Hansen getting seven.

An eight-goal effort by Kenji Fujinaka powered Japan past the Americans. It was the second win for the Japanese against three losses.

Rick Abrahamson scored five goals for the U.S.

Tonight, the U.S., 0-3-1, meets Canada, 0-4, and the Soviet Union, undefeated and untied in four games, takes on Denmark.

CLARENCE CAMPBELL

Seals Remain Question Mark

MONTREAL (CP) — Met Swig appeared optimistic Wednesday that California Seals will be operating in the National Hockey League (NHL) for the 1975-76 season.

"I would say it looks promising," Swig said Wednesday night on the eve of a special NHL board of governors meeting to discuss the situation.

NHL president Clarence Campbell said Tuesday that for the purchase of the franchise from the league. He said Swig's group was short $600,000 of the $1.5 million guaranteed payment due to the league and added that one option open to the board of governors was to "shut down the operation entirely."

The NHL bought the Seals two seasons ago from Charlie O. Finley and has spent about $10 million keeping it afloat.

Two of Swig's potential backers backed out last week because of revised United States tax laws.

It was learned Wednesday the players were told last week not to worry and that things would be straightened out.

The league announced July 28 that Swig had purchased the club and planned to keep the Seals playing in Oakland for the next two seasons while a new arena, with a capacity expected to be between 18,000 and 20,000, is built in the downtown Yerba Buena Centre.

The Seals joined the league when it expanded to 12 from six teams prior to the 1967-68 season. Finley purchased the club for $4.5 million in July, 1970, but sold it to the NHL in 1974.

Maroons In Charge

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — Chatham Maroons scored five goals in the second period to defeat Welland Sabres 7-1 in the Intelligencer Ontario Junior Hockey League game Wednesday.

The Maroons led 1-0 after one period and 4-0 after 40 minutes.

Scott Machenney had a shutout going until 13:31 of the third period when he was beaten by Welland's Wayne King on a power-play goal.

Scott McKenzie led the Maroons with two goals. Single goals went to Dave DeGelas, Tim Schramek, Bert Fournier, Tony Woiluwicz and Joe Campagnola.

Machenney had 26 saves while Welland's Bob Levesque and Rory Bradman had 28 saves.

Action resumes Friday with Hamilton at Guelph, Owen Sound at Welland and Chatham at Niagara Falls.

CONSIDERS BID

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa is studying whether to make a bid to the Canadian Football League to be host to the Grey Cup in 1977 or 1978 in the newly-expanded Lansdowne Board of control voted Tuesday to ask Charles Sim, Lansdowne Park general manager, to begin preliminary work on a bidding package. The last Grey Cup held in Ottawa was in 1967.

Leafs Blank Sabres 6-0

Blues and Penguins Battle It Out

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

You can usually count on a close, spirited battle when National Hockey League rivals Pittsburgh Penguins and St. Louis Blues get together.

Wednesday night was no exception, when the Blues and the Penguins fought to a 4-4 tie. The game was interrupted twice in the second period as both teaches cleared in a free-for-all on the ice.

Referee Bruce Hood handed out 40 minutes in penalties for the one brawl—38 to the Blues and 42 to the Penguins—including Barclay Plager of St. Louis and Pittsburgh's Colin Campbell and Bob Kelly receiving game misconducts.

In all, the Blues were assessed 60 minutes in penalties and the Penguins 48.

In other NHL exhibition matches Wednesday, Montreal Canadiens beat Chicago Black Hawks 6-5, Toronto Maple Leafs blanked Buffalo Sabres 6-0, New York Rangers shut out Boston Bruins 4-0 and New York Islanders tied 1-1 with Atlanta Flames.

Jean Pronovost's goal with nine seconds remaining at Pittsburgh gave the Penguins the tie. Ron Stackhouse, Jacques Lemaire and Bill Hajt had one score Pittsburgh goals. Garry Unger, Wayne Merrick, Floyd Thomson and Burt Wilson scored for the Blues.

The rough game took a tail of one player from each team. St. Louis goalie Gilles Gratton was hit by a slapshot off the stick of Campbell with the game 2-2 in 16 seconds old and had to leave the ice with a bruised shoulder. Penguins' winger Vic Hadfield was roughed up by Bob Gassoff during the second-period brawl and was also unable to resume play.

Goalie Wayne Thomas, acquired in an off-season deal with Montreal, was the star in the Toronto nets, making 32 saves for the shutout at Buffalo. Stan Weir, Claire Alexander, Ian Turnbull, George Ferguson, Blaine Stoughton and Errol Thompson scored for the Leafs.

Buffalo coach Floyd Smith described his team's play as "the worst since I've been here."

Gilles Villemure and Ed Giacomin combined for the shutout against Boston but they had to stop 34 saves while the Rangers pelted Bruins goalie Gilles Gilbert with 37 shots.

Rick Beverley, Wayne Dillon, Jean Ratelle and Steve Vickers scored the New York goals.

Montreal won its second pre-season game in a row over the Hawks at Chicago with Pete Mahovlich, Jacques Lemaire, Yvon Lambert, Jim Roberts, Guy Lapointe and Doug Risebrough scoring Canadiens goals and Michel Larocque providing the goaltending.

Keith Magnusson, Pit Martin and Dennis Hull scored for the Hawks who had Michel Dumas in goal for the first period and Tony Esposito for the last two.

Rookie Richard Mulhern scored for the Flames and Billy Harris tied it up for the Islanders in the game at Atlanta.

Pearson Shatters Record

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — David Pearson shattered his qualifying record Wednesday when he won the pole position for the Hallmark of stock car racing.

Pearson throttled his Wood Brothers Mercury around the 1.5-mile high banked Charlotte Motor Speedway at a speed of 161.791 miles per hour to win $10,400 and the inside front row starting position for Sunday's 16th annual National 500, which carries a purse of $170,415.

Pearson's old mark was 158.769 m.p.h. which he set in time trials for the 1974 National 500. It was Pearson's fourth consecutive pole here, his sixth of the year and the 33rd superspeedway pole of his career.

Dodge driver Dave Marcis, winner of last week's Old Dominion 500, also eclipsed the old pole speed to take the outside front row starting spot with a speed of 159.607 m.p.h. He won $500 for second place.

Three-time Indianapolis 500 winner A. J. Foyt was third in a Ellington-prepared Chevrolet, with a speed of 158.403 m.p.h. Darrell Waltrip, also in a Chevrolet, was fourth at 158.350, and Ford pilot Buddy Baker was fifth at 157.816.

Rounding out the first 10 starting positions for the 500 mile race, and their speeds, were:

Benny Parsons, Chevrolet, 157.733; Cale Yarborough, Chevrolet, 157.591; Bobby Allison, Matador, 157.045; Richard Petty, Dodge, 156.772; Johnny Lannie Ford, Chevrolet, 156.625; and Dick Brooks, Ford, 156.351.

The trials marked the first time in track history that the first 12 starters exceeded 156 m.p.h. "It's hard to believe," Pearson said when informed of this.

Qualifying continues today with 12 more places to be determined in the 40-car field. Twelve more will be decided Friday and the final four Saturday.

ENDS TALKS

NEW YORK (AP) — Madison Square Garden management informed the city and the New York City Off-Track Betting Corp., Wednesday that it is ending all talks on the proposed sale of the sports building. There was a report that investigators were checking on rumors that organized crime was interested in the sale.

Ticats Miss Chance To Pass Argonauts

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Tiger-Cats have fumbled the ball back to Toronto Argonauts in the battle for the Eastern Football Conference's last playoff spot while the injury-riddled Ottawa Rough Riders are back in first place.

The Riders beat the Ticats 16-11 in a game Wednesday night that saw only the defences score touchdowns.

The Ticats, who held a 4-1 half-time lead and could have moved into third place ahead of the Argos with a victory, now will have to sit and watch when Toronto tries to improve its one-point margin in tonight's game against Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

The Argos, whose 3-8 record is little more impressive than Hamilton's 3-6-1, tonight expect to have newcomer Steve Joachim starting at quarterback in an attempt to wake up the sleepy Toronto offence.

The Riders, who now lead the conference by two points over Hamilton, end home to lick their wounds. Injuries have plagued the Ottawa lineup in recent weeks and the latest blow was Wednesday night's loss of defensive back Rod Woodward who broke his left arm on a fourth-quarter kick return play.

Woodward provided evidence of his value to the club when he returned an interception of a Jerry Keeling pass 63 yards for a third-quarter touchdown that put Ottawa ahead for the first time in the game.

It was Woodward's eighth interception this season.

Woodward has also been a key man on the Ottawa offence, holding the ball for field goal and convert kicks by Gerry Organgan.

Organ provided nine of Ottawa's points with two field goals, two singles and a convert and Yvon Blackburn of Chicoutimi, Que. Three young Quebec skiers, Germain Barrette of Canapascal, Daniel Bergeron of Shawinigan and Danny Massicotte of Montreal, will also train with the team in Europe.

On the women's team are Betsy and Susan Clifford of Chelsea, Que., Laurie and Kathy Kreiner of Timmins, Ont., Susan Aslett of Toronto, Joan Wilson of Port Hawkesbury, N.S., Vanita Haining of Calgary, Sarah Satow of Vancouver, Jeanette Zainer of Trail, B.C., and Torla Moser of West Hill, Ont.

While punter Dick Adams added a single late in the final quarter.

Hamilton's only touchdown came when defensive back Lee Clare fell on a fumbled ball in the Ottawa end zone in the third quarter. The two-point convert attempt failed. Kicker Ian Sclater scored a field goal and two singles for the Ticats.

Turnovers were almost a feature of the game with each club losing two of three fumbles while Ottawa pitched off two interceptions and Hamilton one.

One encouraging feature for the Ticats was the work of running back Les Strayhorn who, in his first game with the team, carried the ball 20 times for 119 yards, more than half the club's net offence of 220.

Quarterback Tom Clements directed the Ottawa attack throughout while former Rough Rider Keeling lasted until his third-quarter interception after which he was replaced by rookie Jim McMillan who fumbled the ball away on the next sequence, setting up an Ottawa field goal.

Fans at tonight's Canadian Football League interlocking contest at Toronto will be looking to newcomer Joachim to provide a little more excitement than have predecessor Mike Rae or rookie Bill Bynum.

"Hopefully we can make something happen," said Joachim after Argo coach Bob Jackson announced Wednesday that Joachim would start against the Bombers. "Maybe the team has been a little too conservative in the past. You can't go out there and wait for something to happen. You have to make it happen."

Baseball Innovator, MacPhail Dead

MIAMI (AP) — Larry MacPhail, a baseball innovator who revolutionized the game, will be buried Friday in the small Michigan town of Cass City, where he was born and raised.

MacPhail, who installed the first lights in a major league baseball park, thereby allowing night games, died Wednesday morning in a Miami nursing home. He was 85.

"Larry MacPhail was dynamic, bombastic and smart," said Gabe Paul, president of New York Yankees. "He made many contributions to baseball and I have a special place in my heart and my memories for him.

The first club president to fly his team to all road games and who tapped the Caribbean as a training camps, MacPhail built Cincinnati Reds, Brooklyn Dodgers and the Yankees into pennant winners. He retired from baseball after his 1947 Yankees won the World Series, "I'm finished," he said following the Yanks' victory over the Dodgers. "I promised my wife I'd retire when a team of mine won a World Series.'

MacPhail entered the sport in 1909 when he managed the Columbus, Ohio, Senators of the American Association for $100,000. He rebuilt the teams park, adding lights, and quickly turned the club into a pennant winner. Then he sold it to Barney Breadon of St. Louis Cardinals for a profit.

He then took over Cincinnati Reds in 1933, a last-place team that was in debt. MacPhail installed lights there and got his friend, the late president Franklin D. Roosevelt, to switch them on.

Before long, MacPhail built a winner and the Reds won the National League pennant in 1939 and 1940, just after MacPhail retired from baseball for the first time.

He returned to baseball to do a similar rescue operation on the Dodgers, in Brooklyn's first night game after MacPhail installed lights, Johnny Vander Meer of Cincinnati pitched his second consecutive no-hit game.

But the Dodgers won the National League flag in 1941 and finished second in 1942 before MacPhail left the game once more, this time to join an army unit during the Second World War.

After the war, he purchased the Yankees and returned them to power while introducing Old Timers' Day to Yankee Stadium.

In 1956, when the Braves were still in Milwaukee and the A's in Kansas City, MacPhail proposed a four-division setup for baseball—close to what exists today—with teams in Seattle, Denver, Dallas, Houston, New Orleans, Atlanta, Toronto, Montreal, Mexico City and Havana. He also suggested second teams be located in New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco and either Detroit or Philadelphia.

His survivors include his widow, Jean; two sons, Lee, president of the American League, and William, and two daughters, Jeanne and Marian.

Skiers Set to Train

OTTAWA' (CP)—Snow conditions were reported excellent for Canada's national ski team which leaves today for two weeks of intensive training in Stoden, Austria.

The Canadians will join members of the United States and German teams at the new resort 50 miles west of Innsbruck, site of the 1976 Olympic Games next February.

On the men's team are Dave Irwin of Thunder Bay, Ont., Ken Read, John Hilland, Keith Humfrey and Jim Hunter of Calgary, David Murray of Abbotsford, B.C., Steve Podborski and Robert Safrata of Toronto

Your Mercury dealer has an exciting line-up of 1976 cars—and we're talking about more than style, comfort and ride.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has just tested the 1976 cars and the sales-weighted U.S. results for the big 3 auto makers show that Ford Motor Company cars are #1 in fuel economy.

More specifically, 1976 Ford Motor Company cars achieved an average mileage of 20.7 miles per gallon and an improvement of 27% over the 1975's.

These mileage statistics are a combination of EPA city and highway test results, converted to Imperial gallons.

The engines in the 1976 Mercury carlines have been refined for improved fuel economy and better driveability in terms of easier starting, better stop-and-go response and smoother acceleration.

In addition, there are lower-cost optional engines designed to run on lower-priced regular gasoline that's readily available anywhere.

See your Mercury dealer today.

And discover why ... for 1976 ... the cat's where it's at.

Don't forget to check out all the other impressive winners from Mercury for 1976 ... Capri II from Mercury, the European road car, is a great performer with its standard 2.3 litre OHC 4-cylinder engine, 4-speed manual transmission, power front disc brakes and steel-belted radial tires.

Mercury Montego is the mid-size family car packed with standard equipment and is available with lots of options and new exterior colour choices.

For your personal mid-size luxury car you can't beat the Mercury Cougar with its elegant styling and its optional tutone interior trim combinations. Mercury Meteor is the solid, sensible, value car with lots of room for six, a big deep well trunk, a standard fuel-efficient 351 V8 engine and great interior appointments.

Lincoln Continental offers you luxury that endures with its combination of elegance, prestige and performance ... and Continental lets you really make it "your" car with a host of luxury options.

Continental Mark IV offers new options like AM/FM stereo radio with Quad 8 tape player ... and the new limited edition Designer Series Mark IV's, with colour schemes selected by these famous designers—Givenchy, Pucci, Cartier and Bill Blass.

U.S. EPA standardized test results (sales-weighted) have been and are being used by automotive manufacturers for fuel-economy statements. Such tests are performed on a dynamometer to simulate city/highway driving. Because the average figures cover many engine and transmission combinations and optional equipment, the car you choose may perform differently. Furthermore, the gas mileage you actually get depends on you. Your type of driving. Your driving habits. Road and weather conditions. And how your car is maintained.

*The Bobcat Special MPG 2-Door Sedan, equipped with 2.3 litre engine and 4-speed manual transmission, achieved a rating of 29.8 MPG (city) and 43.2 MPG (highway) in EPA tests.

Coaches Do Their Thing And Do It Their Way

The mother of a high school football player pens a letter in which she suggests that her son is not being taught much about sportsmanship since the team's coaching staff appears to have put too much emphasis on winning.

Apparently the boy in question is not seeing any playing time so, asks the mother, why don't the coaches cut him from the team?

The letterwriter doesn't say whether her son is a junior or senior player, second or first year man.

If the boy is a first-year junior, trying to crack a starting lineup which is loaded with second-year players: it's obvious he's got his work cut out for him.

I'm not making excuses for the coaches.

They call the shots their way, and if they are worth their salt, they won't stand for interference from parents.

Well-meaning parents sometimes don't realize that coaches in any sport have problems enough without the arrangation directed their way from the home front.

The fact the boy is a member of the team tells me the coaches must what him on the roster. He may get plenty of opportunities to show his stuff later.

If he doesn't, he'll still be learning. That is if he's interested and paying attention, he will.

I don't think it would serve any useful purpose to put the letter in print.

Unless I miss my guess, mother feels better already, having let off a little steam regarding her beef in writing. Many times, those who see their observations make the printed word, regret it.

It's a cinch no coach will pay much heed when given unsolicited suggestions on how to run his team.

And certainly the boy won't benefit by seeing his mother's views in print.

If the boy is unhappy with his lot as a football player, the proper thing for him to do is inform the coaches that he'd rather not be a member of the team.

I think it's as simple as that.

But the boy should keep in mind that we all can't be first string. Some of us do make up the supporting cast. And more often than not, a club is only as good as its bench strength.

I hope the young man sticks with it.

I know how he feels. Picked up a few splinters myself while warming the bench.

And with all due respect, mom, you won't help matters by attempting to come to the rescue.

Don Stapley, painter with William Belch Construction Company, puts some finishing touches on the new canteen area at Belleville Memorial Arena. The front portion of the city landmark has been completely remodelled for the benefit of area patrons.

New Look at Memorial

An old dog with some new tricks. Such is the case at Belleville Memorial Arena. When local fans take in the Bobcat games this season they may find themselves somewhat disorganized by the changes that have taken place.

For instance there will no longer be an east entrance at the front of the building, but there will be an east exit. The west entrance will remain the same, but the main entrance has taken on a whole new look.

The main entrance will house two ticket wickets, one on the left and one on the right side just inside the new aluminum-glass doors.

That should help the flow of traffic for any major event. In all, renovations totalled about $40,000 and included a complete change in the premier canteen at the main doors.

"The changes will be a definite asset to the appearance alone," said city arena manager, Robb Burrowes, "the renovations in the canteen will help relieve the congestion which occurs during breaks at major events and overall, the changes will better help us service the arena patrons."

Included in the remodelling was an expansion of the women's washroom with several new touches, such as a larger vanity, added. One may reach the canteen area and women's washroom by taking the east steps. That too will help relieve congestion in the main entrance area.

By the way, if you're checking the score this year don't peer at the clock on the north end of the building. It has been replaced with a more sophisticated electronic timer and scorekeeper on the south wall. The old time system will remain as a back-up.

Everything was expected to be completed by this weekend, but there has been a delay in getting the new doors. Paul M. Wiegand, architect, the consulting firm for the city, informed The Intelligencer that because of a strike in Toronto, the original doororder had to be transferred to a firm in the United States. However, Wiegand suggested that things should only be a week or two behind schedule.

Hellenic Earns Berth in Final

TRENTON — Quinte Hellenic and Quinte Italo-Canadians were in the dark here, Wednesday. And it had nothing to do with their ability as soccer players.

Hellenic advanced to the Belleville Charity Cup final with a defeat of Italo but the game was not decided until a double series of penalty shots had been run off.

Battling the rain and each other, the clubs played 90 minutes of scoreless soccer as neither side could finish scoring opportunities on the greasy pitch at Centennial Park here.

The first five-round series of penalty shots proved nothing when each team connected four times, as darkness fell.

But in the second series, Hellenic got goals from Jeff Ellacott, Bill Lucas, Ted Adams and Chris Georgakopoulos while the best Italo could manage was one score from Larry Woodley.

The win moves Hellenic to the Charity Cup Final with Trenton Citizens Flamed. No date has been announced for the match.

Citizens, forced to bring up player help from the Trenton Minor Soccer Association for Cup games, will need to seek another replacement. Halfback Ron Cannese is out for the season with a broken bone in his left leg.

He was injured during the club's 2-0 upset win Tuesday over Belleville Olympics.

Trojans Create 3-way Tie

Traffic Jam at the Top

A dazzling 106-yard run by halfback John Lowe featured Moira senior Trojans' 22-14 Bay of Quinte High School Football League win over Bayside Red Devils, Wednesday.

Lowe took a pitchout from quarterback Tony Bennett and simply outran every defender in sight.

The Moira halfback was a two touchdown man for High Cooke's Trojans who gained a share of the lead in the standings, equalling the 2-1 records of Quinte Saints and Trenton Tigers.

Roger Sprague counted the other Moira major and added a pair of two-point conversions.

Moira owned a 14-0 lead at the half.

Rick Hodgson's slick running on the quarterback option play accounted for both Red Devils' touchdowns. The losers added a two-point conversion to their total as the club slipped to a 1-2 mark on the season.

Cooke gave special mention to linesmen Dave Stott, John Tomasa and Rob Blatchford and corner linebacker Larry Walsh who were defensive standouts for Trojans.

It wasn't all bad news for Bayside, Wednesday.

Coach Phil Meeks' junior Red Devils scored their first win after two setbacks, turning back Napanee and District Secondary School 23-2 at home.

Halfback Mitch Houle looked after the touchdowns and took a pass from quarterback Jamie Kennedy for a two-point conversion. Scott Jones had the other Bayside major.

Joe Jordan and Greg Garrett rounded out the winners' attack. Jordan was good for two points on a conversion and Garrett booted a single.

Bayside gave up a safety touch to account for Napanee's two points.

Defensive end Steve Peckitt and middle linebacker Bob Cole put in solid efforts for Red Devils.

Births

HYNNE — Roger and Frieda are pleased to announce the arrival of their daughter Lisa Erica, 10 lbs. 4oz. on Thursday, September 19th, at Belleville General Hospital. Many thanks to Dr. O'Boyle Kelly, Dr. Murray and nurses on 5th floor.

In Memoriam

BENNETT, John — In loving remembrance of a dear son and father who died one year ago, September 19, 1971.
My heart is sore, my sorrow is deep, My years trials and troubles past, My silence he suffered in patience he bore,
The God called him home to suffer no more.
—Sadly missed by Gail and Debbie.

BENNETT, John — In loving remembrance of a dear son and father who died one year ago.
Side by side on his last farewell,
He said goodbye to none,
The heavenly gates were opened,
A loving voice said "Come",
I often sit and think of you,
And wonder how you spend,
I wonder why you had to die,
Without a chance to say goodbye.
Though out of sight, you're ever still Missed, loved, still mine.
Sad is the heart that is in memory,
Until the end of time.
—Sadly missed by Mom and Dad and son Jason.

Groucho Marx Retains Humor Even at 85

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Did you know that I'll be 85 years old on Oct. 27. Isn't that amazing?"

Of course, Groucho, and it's cause for celebration that Groucho Marx is alive and fairly well and living in accustomed style in the Santa Monica Estates.

The birthday will be observed Oct. 12 with a star-filled luncheon in his honor by the Friends of the Library at the University of Southern California.

"I've written six books, and I never finished public school," he comments wonderingly. Curiously, his immense contributions to American humor have never been rewarded with an honorary degree from any university. Bob Hope has 31.

A visit with Groucho is always a delight, and he was in good form at a pre-birthday chat at his home.

In some ways he exhibits his simple years. No more has he the quick wit. His jokes are deliberate, his frame stooped. The words don't come with the same rattling speed—nor as astonishingly.

But he is still Groucho.

"I no longer smoke, drink or make love," he remarked, explosive delivery. "I guess my organs five years ago, figuring that I was too old to smoke."

"Not drinking hasn't bothered me; I was only a smoker anyway. As far as making love, age took care of that."

He sat down in a hearty lunch accompanied by apple cider (?) read in the New York Times and that it was good for old people".

As he lifted the chicken breast, he mused: "My mother was a lousy cook. My father was a great cook. But he was a lousy tailor."

Groucho had a coughing spell and his ever-present Erin Fleming asked if he had taken his cough medicine. "Yes," he replied.

Miss Fleming, an attractive brunette with a sharp mind, has been guardian of the Marx legend in the New York Times, she watches his health, makes deals for books, merchandise licensing, TV revenue, etc., collecting a 15-per-cent fee as manager.

Her only complaint is that she would like to get married, and Groucho keeps scaring off her potential suitors.

"My guix show went on Channel 9 for a 13-week extentisment, and now it's the most popular program on an independent station," Groucho remarked proudly. Indeed, re-runs of the 1951-1961 You Bet Your Life series has caused a new wave of Grouchomania.

Even though the films are in black-and-white, the Marxian dialogue retains its color, and You Bet Your Life now is appearing on 44 channels, including one seen in Toronto.

Groucho himself has been watching the reruns every night and the afternoon showings as well. He claims to remember each of the shows, and he compliments on how he could have improved his performance.

Refusing to live in the past, Groucho spends time with such admirers as Bill Cosby, Marvin Hamlisch, Jack Nicholson and Bud Cort, the latter a current houseguest. But there is no mistaking Groucho's sense of loss as he walks down a hallway gallery and points to photos of Al Jolson, Jack Benny, Edward G. Robinson, Harry Ruby, and especially his late brother Gummo "a wonderful man."

Groucho talked of meeting another old friend, Charlie Chaplin, when Chaplin was here for his honorary Oscar last year.

"You know the advice he gave me? He said, 'Keep going.'"

"No, he said, 'Keep warm,' Erin corrected.

"So what's the difference?" Groucho responded.

Classical Background Shows in New Album

WINNIPEG (CP) — Robbie McDougall is a big, tall man with long shiny reddish-brown hair that hangs past his shoulders.

The first thing you notice, the most arresting thing about him, is his clear brown eyes which rivet your gaze and hold your attention, accounting the quiet, confident way that he walks and talks.

Robbie McDougall makes music. He is a writer, composer, arranger and an exciting piano player.

Robbie grew up close to the church, entered a private parochial school at the age of six and credits his music teacher with much of the success of his early formal training and subsequent Toronto Conservatory of Music studies.

He later became involved in rock 'n' roll-playing the organ for his brother's group, besides being a choir director and church organist.

He played a few great sets several years ago in a Winnipeg nightspot. The manager approached him offering a six-month booking and he began to play regularly. Then he acquired a manager, and all the other trappings of a new star including a contract to record for CBC. The first album, entitled Robbie McDougall, was recorded in Toronto in 1971.

"I had just fantastic people to work with," he said. "Some members of the Toronto Symphony, the Brass Brass and a lot of other session players. What made me feel best was that they really seemed to get into the music. Nine of the 10 songs on the album are my own work. The other piece is the theme music from the movie The Rowdyman.

The album received a monumental amount of airplay throughout North America and one of the songs, The Theme, hit high on the Canadian charts.

Following the album, release Robbie played with Joe Feliciano and Sonny and Cher. He gave a performance for the Royal Family and entertained Prime Minister Trudeau. However the role that was being created for him as a kind of Canadian Liberace didn't sit well.

"It just wasn't my place," he said. "I was being boxed into situations that I just didn't want to deal with. I guess you could say that I backed away from it, but on the other hand there were a lot of good things in it too. I did a lot of travelling, met some great people and learned a lot about myself and what I really want to do.

When he made the decision to stop playing the club circuit across Canada he settled down in Winnipeg to work on some of his ambitions.

He recently released a recording on his own label called Melody for Mary. The music that has obviously been Robbie McDougall's imagination made up the three-act, three-hour opera, the highlight ground, religious training and love of challenge.

Quebec Artists Recall Paris Tour

MONTREAL (CP) — When the 1969 Began, Quebec entered what seemed to be known as the "quiet revolution."

As the decade ended, what might be called Quebec "revolution tumultueuse," or noisy revolution began when the duo of Robert Charlebois and Louise Forestier was formed.

In the spring of 1969, Charlebois and Forestier, along with their band Jazz Libre de Quebec, sang their hit rock-ballad Lindberg at the Olympia Theatre in Paris.

Lindberg with its electronic sounds, including that of an electric violin, was a departure from the romantic ballads evoking rural images which audiences in France as well as Canada had come to think of as the music of Quebec.

The Parisian audience was not prepared for the screaming, eccentrically-coiffured Quebecois who sang songs such as Lindberg, CFR Blues and Joe Finger Ledoux in "joual," an acute Quebec slang is known.

"A middle-class woman held her ears and other members of a big audience seemed slightly stunned last night at a youthful group of rocking Quebecers let loose with weird sounds from a music hall stage," wrote correspondent Cy Fox of The Canadian Press.

Their Paris debut lasted only two of a scheduled three weeks. Charlebois and Forestier never went their separate ways. Charlebois even wrote a song in which he vowed never to return to Paris.

Today the music of Quebec rock singers and groups still has considerable exotic in France, but it has gained a measure of acceptance.

Robert Charlebois has gone into "retirement" for a time. "He got his head together," as the saying goes.

Louise Forestier, now 32, says she can laugh when she looks back on the Olympia fiasco.

The petite black-haired singer, who dressed as a Canadian Indian princess in Paris, screams less now when she performs, favoring songs rooted in Quebec folklore over the music, space-age numbers she sang with Charlebois.

Recently she starred in two large outdoor concerts in Quebec, singing to crowds of 20,000 and more.

At the last of Quebec City's August song festival, the "chant d'ecol," was well received by spectators numbering 28,000.

In June she sang in Montreal's Mount Royal Park during festivities marking Quebec's national holiday, St. Jean Baptiste Day, at what came to be dubbed Woodstock-Quebec.

Wearing blue jeans and a denim vest over a white blouse for an interview, Miss Forestier, said that before these two outdoor concerts she "was not able to manage big audiences—I used to hate it very much."

Before this summer, she said, her experience with large audiences was that "the last thing they tripped on was the music."

She credits improved technology, in part, for this change but she also perceives a desire by people to relate to one another, a desire for a sense of belonging.

"(Mayor) Drapeau wants to make Montreal a convention city . . . He is driving people to 'dortoirs (bedrooms for people who work) where nobody speaks."

Montreal is not the good place it once was because of demolition of hunting units and their replacement with new office buildings, hotels and high-rise apartment buildings, she said.

The 1-million turn-out at St. Jean Baptiste Day celebrations indicated to her that "human feeling" among the populace has not been killed.

Singing before a large group of spectators still has drawbacks though, she said.

"You don't know if they like you until the end of the show."

Opera On Tour

TORONTO (CP) — The opera Lodis Riel, by Harry Somers and Mavor Moore, was revived Saturday by the Canadian Opera Company in a production that brought cheers for baritone Richard Turyn in the title role.

The opera, first performed here in 1967 and repeated the following year, was revived this year as a showcase for Canadian talent for the international music festival now meeting here.

The production will be taken to Washington for a one-night stand Oct. 23 as part of Canada's contribution to the Bicentennial.

Turgeon, who has sung with the Canadian Opera Company since 1962, had an international career before he became a star in Canada through his portrayal of Riel.

The opera tells the story of the leader of the Metis rebellions of 1869 and 1884, who declared himself head of a provisional government of Manitoba and was hanged in Regina in 1885.

Though Turgeon has many moving scenes among the 18 songs which go to the three-act, three-hour opera, the highlight ground, religious training and love of challenge.

Japanese Gangsters Convert Toy Guns

TOKYO (AP)—Japanese gangsters are converting toy and model guns into deadly weapons to arm themselves in this country where controls are so strict a "Saturday Night Special" means only a weekend TV show. . The National Police Agency reported that gangsters since the end of the Second World War, a chaotic era in which gangsters obtained guns stolen from American armed forces depots or from the defunct Imperial Japanese Army. Now smuggling has been cut to a negligible level, police believe

As a result, the nation's estimated 110,000 active gangsters have sought any firearm available, ranging from antique, muzzle-loading flintlock pistols to the converted model or toy guns. Many of the latter are relatively elaborate, precision products aimed more at the market of the gun hobbyist, rather than the usual children's toy.

Regulations provide that barrels of model guns be filled to make them more difficult to change into a weapon that will fire.

"But we used materials too soft to resist drilling, which the gangsters are doing," one police spokesman said. "Now we are going to change the rules on this, and from this fall barrels must be stuffed with a special, extra-hard metal."

A National Police Agency spokesman noted that the gun —introduced into Japan by a shipwrecked Portuguese in 1543 —never has been a popular weapon for the civilian population in this country. He contrasted the situation with that in the U.S. and some other countries.

"It is entirely different here," he said. "We rarely hear of a complaint, and so we feel that it is a citizen's right to arm himself."

Japanese police carry revolvers but rarely fire them. When they do, police chiefs promptly explain to the public how and why it was considered proper and necessary to use guns against such case.

Police have been cracking down on gun-smuggling operations by gangsters since the end of the Second World War, a chaotic era in which gangsters obtained guns stolen from American armed forces depots or from the defunct Imperial Japanese Army. Now smuggling has been cut to a negligible level, police believe

Recession Hurt Caribbean Tourism

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados, (Reuter)—When the North American economy coughed last year, most Caribbean tourism countries, as expected, caught cold.

Hoteliers told stories of having to close down temporarily or drastically cut staff.

Some gift shops opened all day without selling one curio. Small shops also felt the pinch and hotel workers, among their main clients, had no tips to spend.

But now, as economic experts forecast a slow-down of inflation and an end to the recession that hit North America, the Caribbean tourist industry is gearing itself for increased business.

The advent of low-cost charter travel will mean jet loads of tourists flying in the Caribbean sunspots this winter.

At a Caribbean Tourist Association conference here, regional governments were urged to plow more money into advertising and promotion to try to double returns in the next five years.

While the recession is generally blamed for the bad patch which most tourist businesses have gone through, it is not the only factor.

In Jamaica, for instance where 16 hotels are temporarily closing in the plush Ocho Rios sort of Montego Bay, hoteliers blame overbuilding of accommodation for visitors.

The Jamaica Hotel Association said that although tourist figures grew, hotel bookings declined by 8.3 per cent during the first three months of this year, mainly because the number of hotel rooms increased from just over 8,000 to 10,000.

The Caribbean's principal tourist areas, including Curacao, Cayman Islands, Puerto Rico, the American Virgin Islands and Barbados, all registered drops in the number of visitors for the first part of the year.

Curacao showed a 10-per-cent drop while Puerto Rico Islands slumped six per cent, Puerto Rico 7.1 per cent, the U.S. Virgin Islands nine per cent and Barbados 4.9 per cent.

Hoteliers and other tourist officials still are optimistic, however, that with the advent of one-stop tour charters from North American and the lucrative European market, the region can make up lost ground.

Council all the tourist officials who met here said they were eagerly looking forward to the tour charters, but warned that many projects controlled these years should the local industry.

Barbados Minister of Tourism Peter Morris said the charter operations contained a defect in that Barbados would attract about 75 per cent of the region's small hotels. Tour operators planning the charters must assure that groups of 40 visitors stay at one hotel, he said.

This was expected to hurt small hotels of 20 rooms or less.

Proximity to TV Still Critical

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will you settle this one. Is it dangerous for a child to sit close to a television set for long periods of time, I mean to the eyes? I hear every now and then about radiation, and it concerns me.
—Mrs. T.Y.

It's difficult to be specific about this. My rule of thumb is that a five-foot distance is prudent.

I say this because there are many old TV sets still around in use. These may or may not present radiation problems. It's just wise to take the minimum precautions. That applies to adults as well as to children, incidentally, and to new sets as well as old.

I know of no definitive studies made on the subject. I spend a lot of time chasing my grandchildren back from the tube when they visit us. You would be wise to do the same.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: For as long as I can remember I've had trouble digesting certain foods. At times I don't have any after-effects. But I have awakened at night with steady pain in the center of the rib area. Very often food comes up as soon as I've eaten.

My doctor tells me I have a non-functioning gall bladder. He didn't seem disturbed or give any suggestions.
—Mrs. D.F.

Pain and digestive disturbance are two classic symptoms of gall bladder trouble, with the pain usually concentrated in the upper right or upper mid-abdomen. Intolerance of certain foods, often fatty foods, is common, but other foods can be involved too. The abdominal pain often occurs at night, and usually following a heavy meal. Belching and gaseous distress and burns can cause similar symptoms.

A non-functioning gall bladder implies a diseased organ — infection or stones or both. With your long history of indigestion it appears that your gall bladder could be the cause.

You can live healthily without that organ, which stores bile but needed for immediate digestion. The liver continues to produce and release bile into the intestinal tract without the gall bladder. You should inquire about possible surgery to have your gall bladder removed. This usually ends the problem.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 60 - years - old. About six months ago my uterus fell. I told my doctor about it but he said it wasn't anything to worry about and that if it should bother me he would have it taken out.

Well, I work in a factory where I have to do a lot of heavy lifting, and then it comes way down. When I get off my feet and rest, it is normal again Could you tell me what I should do about it? — Mrs. E.R.

It is nothing to worry about, true. But didn't your doctor mention the possibility of having a pessary inserted to help keep the uterus in position?

He told you that if it bothered you, he could have the uterus removed. This might be the best answer for you.

Go back and ask him if he thinks a pessary (a rubber or plastic insert) is an answer for you. There's no reason to be miserable over this when there are reasonable options open to you.

South can take away the king of spades and still have an opening bid. Hence, in accordance with the rule of the ace and the king or just common sense, his second bid is a jump to two spades.

North has 13 high-card points and is the equivalent of an ace and king or maybe just an ace and queen above a minimum response. He intends to show for aces and then bid a slam, but first he wants to make sure that South really has a spade suit. Hence he temporizes with a bid of three spades.

South has nothing further to show, so he simply states all of four spades. This doesn't stop North from pushing right into Blackwood and bidding the slam once South shows his three aces.

The slam is a very good one. It might go down with very bad breaks, but the way the cards lie almost any line of play will bring in 12 tricks. In fact, if East gets cute and lets dummy hold the first heart trick, declarer will come with 13.

The answer is that we open the duce of spades. Partner must have a reasonable number of high cards. If he also holds five spades, we may get his spade suit off and running before South can wrap up nine tricks.

Branch Manager Toughest Job in Banking Today

WINNIPEG (CP)—The branch manager has the hardest job in the banking business, says Fred Baines, who started as a $10-a-week junior ledger keeper and held a variety of posts that took him from Vancouver to St. John's, Nfld.

"Managing a branch is the most interesting, the most challenging, and the toughest job in banking," said Mr. Baines, 64, who has just retired as manager of the Bank of Montreal's main Winnipeg branch at Portage Avenue and Main Street.

"You're under the gun all the time, weighing people and making decisions. You're supposed to be a financial expert on everything from local conditions to international finance and monetary exchange.

"But you can never divorce yourself from the routine. Banking, after all, is a service. You're at the command of the customers," said Mr. Baines who entered the banking business in 1927 in Saltcoats, Sask.

The local bank manager, a family friend, offered him a job and he began work two days after graduating from high school. It was the start of a lengthy career interrupted only by service overseas as an army signal corps lieutenant in the Second World War.

Mr. Baines, who was vice-president in Toronto of the bank's central region for four years prior to 1970, is worried about the effects of current economic conditions on the finances of the average bank customer.

"People are genuinely interested in the actions of government in economic policy. Savings in banks are being eroded at the rate of 10 per cent yearly because of inflation. That's like theft of 10 per cent a year.

"People on fixed incomes are taking an awful licking. Indexing doesn't solve anything. It's just speeding up the treadmill because inflation feeds upon itself. When milk prices increase by 25 per cent, for example, people have to find the revenue somewhere to buy that higher-priced milk."

Mr. Baines was a guest recently on an open-line Winnipeg radio show and was asked by two elderly women for advice on how they could protect their money against inflation.

"I couldn't give them an answer, except to say to look for an investment that returns 10 per cent. That's the rate of inflation. But then the average wage earner has to pay 30 to 40 per cent tax on his income.

"I told the ladies the most recent Canada Savings Bond series was about the safest bet. There's some relief, though, in the recent tax changes enabling the deduction of $1,000 in interest."

In his more than 48 years in banking, Mr. Baines has noted a big change in people's philosophy on whether to spend or save, which he says is both a cause and an effect of inflation.

"The major pool of savings in our bank was built up over the years. The savings aren't coming from younger generations. They don't appear inclined to set up systematic savings."

Mr. Baines came to the bank's main Winnipeg branch in 1932 as a junior teller, at an annual salary of $750, and lived in quarters above the bank provided for bachelor employees. The accommodation, with meals included, cost $25 a month.

Howe Festival Features Nova Scotia's Prosperity

HALIFAX (CP)—The Joseph Howe Festival commemorates more than the great advocate of free press and responsible government.

It also honors Nova Scotia's golden age in the 19th century, when a boundless fishery, plentiful lumber and some of the best shipbuilders and sailors in the world appeared to assure it a more prosperous future than any other colony in British North America.

When Joseph Howe said "Brag about your country, boys," he meant Nova Scotia. For Upper Canada, at least in his anti-confederation period, he had less respect.

"It is a fine country, with great natural resources, and may develop into some such nation as Poland or Hungary," he said in 1866. "Hemmed in by icy barriers at the north, and by a powerful nation on the south, shut out from deep-sea navigation for nearly half the year, with two nationalities to reconcile, and no coal, who will predict for her a very brilliant destiny, at least for many years to come?"

The Howe Festival, in its third year this year, runs Oct. 2-11 with most events centred in Halifax.

"The festival isn't just Joe Howe," said festival organizer Marie Nightingale. "It's the times of Joe Howe—the golden era of Nova Scotia when we were leading the way and everyone else followed. This is the time we are trying to revisit."

The festival will start off with a re-enactment, in reverse, of the pony express mail service which sped European news dispatches from ships arriving at Halifax to Digby, where they were put on other ships for the United States. In the days before telegraphs it was the quickest way to send news to North America.

The pony ride, which has become an annual part of the festival, will start, instead of end, at Digby, so that the message carried by the 14 riders can be delivered to the gathering in Halifax which will officially open the festivities.

The theme of this year's festival is "Citizenship and Howe", and it will emphasize Howe's intellectual side. An annual oratorical contest will select a young Joe Howe and high school debaters across the the province. And this year there will be an attempt to create the Mechanics Institute, a debating and lecturing forum Howe created in the 1830s.

The theme of this year's debates will be "Canadian Women—Second Class Citizens?"

The theme would not be out of step with the real Joe Howe's thinking, Mrs. Nightingale said.

"In a speech on the influence of women to the Mechanic Institute in about 1835 he was talking about liberating women, getting them out of the kitchen and getting them involved in the community. This man had such foresight—he could see things that were coming, and I think he was writing the rules."

There will also be a sort of re-enactment of Howe's famous duel, but it will be performed with swords by the Dalhousie Fencing Club instead of with pistols.

The original duel was indicative of Howe's courage and his lack of malice. John C. Halliburton, son of Nova Scotia's chief justice, issued the challenge after deciding Howe had insulted his father. Howe accepted because he believed it would hurt his reform cause if he backed down. Halliburton shot first but missed. Howe fired into the air.

Among other activities during the festival will be a Joe Howe Festival of Sports and a parade.

There is also a theme song, chosen after a province-wide contest for a $2,000 prize. The winner, Let's Sing for Joe Howe, is a catchy tune with a sea shanty rhythm. It was composed by Bob Quinn of Duncan Cove, N.S., former lead singer of the rock group Pepperrice.

TV Conference Studios Run By Post Office

LONDON (CP) — The British Post Office has set up a network of conference studios, linked by closed-circuit television to enable businessmen to hold meetings without travelling out of their city.

The system, called Confravision, was developed and is operated by the post office in five cities.

To cut travelling further, the service is also connected to studios in Sweden and the Netherlands.

Each of the studios in London, Birmingham, Bristol, Manchester and Glasgow is air-conditioned and soundproof and may hold 12 people.

One of the cameras is directed to a display table for charts or documents while the other is aimed at the desk where the participants sit.

The meeting chairman or a secretary operates the simple controls.

The post office devised the system to accommodate the growing need of reducing long journeys and time of businessmen to talk to their colleagues.

Workers Say CIL Held Work 'Pep Talks' Prior to Explosion

BELOEIL, Que. (CP) — Circumstances surrounding an explosion which killed eight persons at the Canadian Industries Ltd. (CIL) plant here are coming to light as some workers begin returning to work today.

A spokesman for the workers' safety committee said Thursday a company official had urged workers to speed up production at the explosives plant, scene of Wednesday's blast which caused more than $1 million damage and left the plant a smouldering ruin.

During a news conference in Montreal, safety committee member Patrick Beckerich said CIL officials held "pep talks" with workers in the explosives plant to encourage increased output of a newly-developed explosive compound which went in production at the beginning of this year.

Mr. Beckerich also said safety measures in the plant, known as shed NI-1, were "unperfect" and added that workers involved in the production were not clearly informed of the volatile nature of the compound—EGMN.

Company officials contradicted the remarks. Alex Quesnevile, plant manager, said "safety was never sacrificed in speed up production at shed NI-1."

"CIL applied the same rigid safety standards in producing the EGMN explosive as we normally apply in making nitroglycerine-based explosives, which are more dangerous," Mr. Quesnevile added.

He said, however, that "it would have been normal policy to encourage the employees to increase their output" during meetings to discuss "quality control, safety and productivity."

Seven other workers were slightly injured in the explosion and were released from hospital Thursday after treatment mainly for cuts.

Meanwhile, production of EGMN has stopped pending inquiries into the cause of the explosion. Provincial and federal government explosives inspectors are to join company experts to investigate the incident while the Chemical Workers' Union local representing CIL workers will also hold its own investigation. The inquiries are expected to last between six and eight weeks, officials said.

The company also expressed "sorrow and shock" at the tragedy, offering "deepest sympathy" to the families of the eight dead workers. Officials announced each family will receive between $10,000 and $20,000 compensation from the company, depending on whether the employees purchased an optional insurance policy.

Church Calls Boycott Against A&P Hours

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

The congregational board of Bridge Street United Church has called for a boycott of the A & P supermarket in Belleville Plaza until the store ends its Sunday opening policy.

Fed Deacons, congregational board chairman said Thursday the board decided to take action this week not only on religious grounds, but as an expression of social conscience.

"The significance of this Sunday opening is that it suggests that the retail business should be carried out on a seven-day basis," he said.

"Once grocery stores do it, then chain stores will open and we'll see a seven-day week."

In response to boycott threat, A & P manager Bert Bell said today, "it's the person's own conscience" as to whether a consumer desires to shop for groceries on Sundays.

"It's simply up to the person himself," he commented. "If they don't like it, they don't come near the place. If they do like it, they come."

Mr. Bell said he has been spoken to by a member of the Bridge St. congregational board who, he said, told him he likes to grocery shop on Sundays after church because he and his wife work all week.

"I still go to church," Mr. Bell added, but in view of the boycott proposal, he might reconsider in future.

The church is the first in Belleville to protest Sunday store hours of A & P, the first major food chain to open its doors Sundays. Food City, just outside the city, has also announced plans to open this Sunday.

Belleville's ministerial association has not yet outlined its position on the Sunday opening question, but is expected to issue a statement late next week.

Board secretary Alan Revill said the church is not trying to turn back the clock with its boycott call, but rather, wants to "minimize the commercialization of Sunday" — traditionally, a day of rest and worship.

"We feel that Sunday is yet a day when the larger stores should be open," he said.

Mr. Revill said employees are entitled to a day off and he feares that they will feel stress working Sundays. Besides, he didn't expect Sunday opening to save the consumer money.

He predicted a growing controversy over Sunday opening, as is now occuring in Toronto, in Belleville.

Parliament May Repeal Law Cutting Sentences

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand said Thursday Parliament probably will be asked to repeal a law that has the potential to reduce prison sentences by about 25 per cent.

Mr. Allmand also indicated that the law on habitual criminals, now seldom used, will be toughened. He was being peppered with questions from reporters about Denis Martel, 33, who abducted a school bus full of children in fleeing a bank robbery in Montreal Wednesday. Martel and one of the children were shot to death during a gun battle with police.

Martel, who had a record going back to 1963, had been released from a federal prison Sept. 9 and would have faced trial this month for an armed robbery last February.

He had been released on "mandatory supervision"—which means he had to see a parole officer regularly—in August, 1974.

A warrant ordering him back to prison was issued after he was granted bail in February, but he wasn't picked up until May. He was imprisoned, but once again remission meant he had to be released Sept. 9.

Statutory remission covers about 25 per cent of a sentence. Earned remission, for good behavior in prison, can bring the total reduction to about one-third.

"We're going to retain earned remission," Mr. Allmand said. "It encourages prisoners to work, to learn something."

Libya Retains U.S. Oil Employees

NEW YORK (AP) — The Libyan government is denying exit to 220 non-Libyan employees of the Occidental Petroleum Corp., including 20 U.S. citizens and their families, the oil company says.

The reported restriction of the expatriate employees is the latest incident in a lengthy dispute between Occidental and the Libyan government over oil-concession agreements.

"Occidental is taking immediate steps to bring notice of this restriction on the exit of American citizens to the appropriate branches of the U.S. government and is exploring other possibilities to have this restriction on the expatriate men, woman and children terminated," the Occidental statement said Thursday.

"Pending an amicable settlement, Occidental is preparing to relocate these expatriate citizens in another country so they may not be held as hostages."

A U.S. state department spokesman said: "We have asked the Libyan government on an urgent basis to clarify what is happening."

Later Thursday, an Occidental spokesman said that the Libyans have agreed to the company's offer for further negotiations to settle the oil dispute and are sending a delegation here next week.

U.S. Removes Arms Embargo to Turkey

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate approved today and sent to the White House legislation lifting the United States arms embargo against Turkey and permitting the sale of $185-million worth of U.S. weapons to that country.

The Senate accepted House of Representatives approval of the sale. It was a victory for President Ford, who had sought for months to end the embargo.

The House gave approval Thursday night. The vote came after it had voted on the issue since the embargo was imposed in February.

Store Hours May Be Legislated by November

TORONTO (CP) — Legislation governing Sunday openings by large retail outlets could be law by mid-November, NDP Leader Stephen Lewis said Thursday.

He said his party will request that legislation be "do away" with Sunday retailing become effective immediately after it passes third reading in the legislature.

Under normal procedure, the bill would not be proclaimed law until several weeks after third reading.

The NDP leader said Solicitor-General George Kerr should send a letter to Lobliaws telling the firm of the government's intention to enact legislation banning Sunday operation by large retail firms.

Gas Here to Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Average consumer price of natural gas in eastern Canada is expected to increase this winter by about 23 per cent as a result of a federal-Alberta price agreement. Under terms of the agreement, the wholesale price of gas delivered to distributors in Toronto will rise 32 per cent to $1.25 from 82 cents a thousand cubic feet.

Belleville May Be Next in Line For Quinte Area Halfway House

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

NAPANEE — The possibility of establishing a halfway house for inmates of the Quinte Regional Detention Centre.

The project would be a local extension of community re-adjustment programs operated at the institution — the provincial detention centre for minor offenders from the Belleville Kingston region, sentenced for up to three months.

It would involve inmates from the Belleville, Trenton and Madoc district, released on temporary absence closer to their home communities, Earl Martin, detention centre superintendent said Thursday.

"The temporary absence system is an integral part of programming and releases inmates to work at outside jobs. The official philosophy is that brightening community outlook may ease any personal re-adjustment problems when detention terms expire.

Persons from the Quinte area sentenced elsewhere in the province also are sent to the centre if they are deemed suitable for participation in its temporary absence program.

The halfway house concept is centred in the community — in fact, the project is called a community resource centre — and also relies on local response.

The detention centre already has one halfway house in operation — Aberdeen House in Kingston.

Opened 18 months ago — and now with 10 inmates in residence — it has proved very satisfactory, said John Jayasuriyah, assistant superintendent of the detention centre.

Aside from providing a supervised community-style residence, the halfway house concept includes various educational programs to assist the individual.

It calls for community response on a broad scale — involving various agencies, individuals and businessmen.

Mr. Jayasuriyah said the possibility of establishing a similar project in Belleville had been under scrutiny for about a year. Prospects of its realization at present seemed very good.

"We see a need for it in that area," added Mr. Martin, superintendent of the detention since it opened in 1971 — replacing county goals in four counties — Hastings, Prince Edward, Frontenac and Lennox and Addington.

Both officials spoke of the Belleville project in an interview during a visit to the detention centre by Hastings County councillors.

Congress Approves Observers in Sinai

WASHINGTON (AP) — The international relations committee of the House of Representatives approved today a resolution to send 200 Americans to the Sinai to monitor the Israeli-Egyptian peace accord.

But the resolution contains a proviso requiring the Americans to be withdrawn immediately if another Arab-Israeli war erupts.

The vote came as State Secretary Henry Kissinger testified before the Senate foreign relations committee and sought quick approval to deploy American monitors.

The House committee's action marked the first congressional vote on the plan worked out by Kissinger to achieve peace in the Middle East.

Other restrictions placed in the House resolution would:

—Permit Congress to order the technicians out if Congress "determines that the safety of such personnel is jeopardized or that continuation of their role is no longer necessary."

—Require President Ford to report at least every six months on the scope of the U.S.

Strikes Threaten Cornwall: Mayor

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — Cornwall Mayor Gerald Parisien says unemployment is becoming one of the city's biggest worries because of strikes and the closing of several industries.

At present, there are five strikes in the city and workers at two companies may strike next week. Two industries have closed, one is to close a department next year, and the regional office of a federal department now located here is to be set up in another community.

About 2,000 workers are affected by the strikes and closures.

Domtar Fine Papers Ltd. has the largest number of employees on strike—1,200 members of the Canadian Paper Workers Union who walked out last Sept. 18 as part of a walkout across Canada in support contract demands.

A day later, a total of about 450 workers went on strike at TCF of Canada Ltd. and Versaille Knitting Co., branches of Courtaulds Canada Ltd. The main issues in the disputes are wages and working conditions.

About 100 employees of MCA Records (Canada) have been on strike for more than two months, demanding higher wages from the manufacturer of musical records and cartridge tapes.

Construction on Plant May Begin Next Week

Full scale construction of Fabricon Manufacturing Ltd. will be underway next week after a $400,000 building permit has been secured from the city.

Brain Holmes, speaking for Cornerstone Engineering Ltd., said Thursday, his firm will apply for the permit this week for the first phase of construction.

The first phase will include the construction of an 80,000-square-foot plant and office building. The entire plant will cover 204,000 square feet.

Cornerstone Engineering Ltd. is responsible for the plant's designs, and on-site management, during construction work.

Mr. Holmes said the first segment will be completed, roofed in and finished inside by January.

"By the time the first phase is completed, the second phase to build the remainder of the 204,000 square foot plant will be underway," he said.

A final figure of the cost of the entire structure was not available. The second phase is scheduled for an April completion.

The firm — now located in Trenton and a subsidiary of an East German company, announced last May it would move to Belleville.

The availability of land and an early construction start date were cited as major reasons for the company's move here.

There plant is one of the city's largest, recent industrial acquisitions and will use sophisticated machinery in the production of wire and cable products.

It is anticipated the firm will employ up to 200 workers after its first year of production here.

The Trenton plant has been in operation since 1967 and presently employs about 140 workers.

Services of the United Way are conveyed to the community through the efforts of organizations and hundreds of volunteers.

If it were not for the vast amount of volunteer help given to the United Way and its agencies, the cost of all services would be much higher. Over 100,000 hours is freely given each year. At only $3.00 per hour this is worth over one quarter of a million dollars to the community.

The United Way was designed to meet social needs within the community. To this end, it conducts a single campaign each autumn to meet the minimum needs of its agencies. The United Way takes the responsibility for the distribution of the money collected and for assessing needs and account of money spent. Authority Plans to Lease Vacant Glen Miller School

FRANKFORD — Two weeks after the executive board announced it would not approve a plan to buy the Glen Miller School, the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority has decided to rent the building, said a spokesman of the agency.

Bill Lawson, secretary treasurer of the LTRCA, said the action was taken at the executive council meeting because the agency is in dire need of more office space.

The authority will lease and renovate the school.

The LTRCA is currently housed in the Frankford Town Hall, but has found it increasingly difficult to manage with this office space as staff size increases.

A permanent office has already been planned for the Procter House, an old home owned by the authority in Brighton, but the building will not be ready to use for several years.

Mr. Lawson said the rented space will provide the agency with the necessary office space until the Procter House renovations have been completed and is ready for permanent occupancy.

It will cost the authority about $1,000 to renovate the Glen Miller School and will be done by LTRCA employees.

The agency plans to move into the school if everything proceeds on schedule, by the beginning of December.

Old Armor Display Popular

PICTON — In days of old when knights were bold they were also short and underweight by today's standards.

Suits of armor on display until Saturday at the Prince Edward County Museum were tailored to Sir Galahads about five feet seven and weighing 135 pounds. One suit of Gothic Armor made by Winkelmaier, a Viennese armorer active from 1900 to 1900 is designed however, for a combatant about six feet tall. It is a copy of a suit made for Archduke Sigismond Von Tirol circa 1480. The suit weighs about 75 pounds and was restored in the 1950's by Prince Edward Museum curator James Gooding.

Also included in the display is a suit of German armor dated circa 1560. It features the Augsberg Armorers Guild on the breastplate.

When knights jousted or went into battle protection for their horses also was important.

A Chamfron, the head protection for horse armor in the 16th century, German 1530, also is exhibited at the county museum.

Several breastplates and helmets are displayed as well as a coat of chain mail from the Canadian War Museum collection.

Many of the pieces in the armor exhibit are on loan from private collectors.

Curator's assistant at the Prince Edward County Museum, Donald MacDermaid, said Thursday that the unique display has proven popular with elementary and secondary school students here. Several group tours have been arranged in conjuction with their studies.

The display opened September 5 and ends this Saturday be noted.

Applefest Planned

BRIGHTON — It is Applefest time this Saturday as village residents gather for the inaugural celebration of what they hope will become an annual affair.

Games, bands, bake sales and apples by the score will be featured during the event which will run from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. as the Main Street business section will be used for display by local apple growers.

The Brighton Legion Pipe Band will be featured throughout the day in celebration sponsored by the Downtown Association.

Driver Faces Two Charges

BRIGHTON — A local man has been charged with impaired driving and driving while his licence was under suspension after a single-vehicle accident sent one person to hospital and caused $1,000 damage, Thursday night, police spokesman said.

John Davis, 56, who had his licence suspended for impaired driving, was driving eastbound on Harbor Street when his car struck a hydro pole, said Brighton Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police.

William Finlan, 50, of Rr 1 Trenton, and the owner of the car and a passenger is in fair condition Trenton in Memorial Hospital.

Looking Up to the Past

The fabled knights of the round table may have been less glamorous than legend claims if the suits of armor displayed at the Prince Edward County Museums are true measures of a man. Most suits were made for men several inches under six feet but Donald MacDermaid Thursday discovered there is at least one knight in the collection tall enough to look up to.

Watch the Birdie

When Prince Edward County museum employee Don MacDermaid started to sort a collection of old-fashioned bonnets for a special display he expected flowers, fruit, veils and velvet but nothing prepared him for the owl. This huge chapeau is a fluff of white feather on off-white plush and dead-centre is the head of a white owl complete with glass eyes.

Defeated Liberals Plan Napanee Riding Office

PICTON — The Prince Edward-Lennox Liberal Association plans to open a riding office in Napanee this month, a step that organizers say could be a provincial "first" as the party has no sitting member here. The recent election was won by Progressive Conservative incumbent John Taylor.

A spokesman for Terry Larstone, president of the riding's Liberal Association, said Thursday that the primary goal of the office is service for persons frustrated by government and "people with red tape problems."

He said that initiative for opening a riding office was sparked by the enthusiasm of workers in the recent election campaign for defeated Liberal candidate Keith MacDonald. Many of the party supporters who worked closely in the MacDonald campaign are involved with plans for a riding office and it will be staffed several days a week by volunteers.

The office will work closely with elected Liberal MPP's Hugh O'Neil of Quinte riding and J. Earl McEwen of Frontenac-Addington riding.

"We know there is a need for this office," said the Liberal association spokesman.

He added that the group also plans a riding office in Prince Edward County.

The Napanee office will be used as a base of activities for the riding association.

Entry Details Sketchy

MADOC — A 20-year-old Tweed man will appear in provincial court here next Tuesday before Judge R.C. Jackson following a bail hearing Thursday on his charge of possession of a weapon dangerous to the public peace.

Gary Joseph Healey of 506 Metcalfe St. was released on his own recognizance. He was charged by Ontario Provincial Police at Madoc in connection with an incident early Thursday at a Stoco home.

Police said a man made an unwarranted entry into the home at 12:40 a.m. but would not release further details of the incident or the kind of weapon involved.

The man was arrested at 4:45 a.m. in Hungerford township, police added. Constable Walter Brown is the investigating officer.

Authority $111,500 Richer

PICTON — Provincial grants totalling $111,500 will be received by the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority for added construction and improvements at the Macaulay Mountain conservation area and the Bloomfield Mill Dam.

The announcement was made this week by James Taylor MPP Prince Edward-Lennox.

A grant of $13,000 has been approved for reforestation and construction of sanitary and water facilities, roads, parking lots and general development at Macaulay Mountain.

The PERCA also will receive $98,500 to cover increased costs of the Bloomfield Mill Dam in Hallowell Township. This dam will maintain a 5.5 acre pond that will provide fire protection for Bloomfield Village, serve community recreational needs and improve local water tables and well levels.

Soviet Publications Present Only Sweetness and Light and Ignore Dark Side

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

A regular arrival on my desk is the well-produced Soviet embassy propaganda magazine called Soviet Panorama renamed from the more familiar Soviet Union Today.

It presents a vast country with only fulfilled workers and professionals, smug self-satisfaction on the accomplishments of the Soviet system, atrocious re-direction of history to suit the Russian cause.

Words like "protest" and "confrontation" will never be found in this glossy monthly puff report on Soviet Communist life.

What offends me most as a journalist and commentator is a free society with a free press are the instruments of history presented in this publication and say for that matter in any release from Russian which discuss historical themes.

The refined taste contained an article called How the Kwantung Army Capitulated, a very little-known and in the West long-forgotten contribution to the war against Japan.

The U.S.S.R. did not declare war against Japan until a few weeks before V-J Day which was Aug. 14, 1945, in spite of the fact that it had been a member of the Big Three over-Fascist alliance of Nazi Germany, Fascist Italy and Imperial Japan, and the Soviet Union had just finished fighting a life-and-death struggle with Germany.

In the Far East, the U.S. had been fighting Japan since the Japanese made attack on Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7, 1941, fighting bitter land battles across hordes of Japanese-occupied islands, establishing the largest fleets and naval-borne air power in history to bomb Japan into submission.

The British too had had their share of hard fighting against the Japanese following the loss of the big naval base in Singapore and all British colonies in South East Asia.

Until almost the very end, Japanese armies threatened to break out of contained fortresses and threaten British India, a threat which was met by the arrival of mixed Anglo-American armies and Chinese armies in most bitter battles with the Japanese in the grim jungles of Burma.

Through all those years of bitter defeats and desperate attack against Japan's far-flung alien empire, the U.S.S.R. remained aloof claiming all her resources were needed to stop the Germans in her own territories and that she could not fight Japan.

But when did they do it? After the massive fire bombraids on Japan's cities of wooden huts which proved the island empire could not be pounded this way indefinitely and after the almost complete destruction of Japan's navy and merchant fleet by U.S. naval surface and submarine action.

And then after the first atom bomb was dropped on Hiroshima and Japan's end was clearly only days away, the gallant and greedy Russians entered the war.

And in this article they make a great case about the sudden surrender of one million of the mass troops in Manchuria called the Kwantung Army.

It had already been cut off from the homeland by bombings and the approaching Americans. What the U.S. wanted without too much effort and cost, was the huge Japanese Asian province of Manchuria whose many efficient Japanese factories were stripped clean and shipped back to a prostrate Russian mother.

Manchuria would become part of the new giant People's Republic of China after 1949 with the Chinese relying on Russian technical aid to install the factories and steel industry the Japanese left behind. And the tiddlet last because Russian aid to Peking was withdrawn in 1960.

In August, 1945, with the war against Japan all but won, the Russians invaded Manchuria grab what was never theirs, something they have developed to a speciality in Eastern Europe since then.

So much for the bunkum history lesson from the Soviet embassy here.

Confrontation et al

"Polarized politics pay."

So said Ottawa correspondent Richard Jackson in a recent column, with a look back at the Ontario election for confirmation, and in particular to an advertisement Ottawa West PC Donald Morrow ran just prior to the vote and which swayed the result in his favor.

"In polarization," says Jackson, "is the political payoff . . . or put another way, polite political pussyfooting 'ppffits.'"

Briefly, Morrow's ad told it like it is with regard to the "neo-socialists and the rampaging bilingualists of Pierre Trudeau . . ." and why consequently Ottawa West's vote should go to him.

It was an example of the power of the Press. By the same token a lack of supppt, as expressed through letters from the public, was part of the reason why the Conservatives lost here in Quinte.

Much of the support through this medium, and via voices persistent and pervasive — in some cases not heard from in months but brought to hear again during the election — was heard in opposition to the PC candidate and the party.

The PC supporters, by contrast, were largely silent. In any event they were not prepared to take up the cudgels in the way their opponents did.

The same tactics of course have been front and centre with regard to a variety of other subjects, to the point that the same regrettably silent majority of which we speak seems zapped or mesmerized by it all, while offering nothing of substance by way of counter views.

A feature of these tactics is close perusal of events and policies of individuals in public life which subsequently are projected before the public in a manner which, through innuendo and insinuations and suggestions of broken promises, casts a person targeted in an embarrassing light.

An observation of columnist Richard Needham comes to mind: "Never, never, remind people of what they said or thought or promised a year ago, a month ago, a week ago. The world has changed since then, so have you; allow them the right to change too."

Debatable perhaps, but a shrewd observation nonetheless. Remember also those words of Voltaire, "I disagree with what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it."

The point to remember is that the balancing factors in our political life, as reflected by all shades of opinion, should not be permitted to go by default.

As it is, there is a lot of truth in the observation of one local student of the political scene. "The apathy of the rank and file," he said, "is beyond my comprehension."

Is anybody listening?

Close to Peak

The fall season is reaching an early peak in Ontario.

The long hot summer dried the sap and recent frosts at night have hastened the process.

One Quinte rural dweller reports he was driving his tractor under a Scotch pine when an unusually large number of the needles fell to the ground. Even the maples, he says, have been wilting to an extent he has never observed before — another indication of the extremes of climate experienced this year.

The conditions, he says, have been bad for trees in general.

For nature lovers at large though, and whatever their degree of savvy as to the impact of climate in these matters, the spectacle remains unparalleled in its mellowness and beauty.

Snow Job!

To Don Porritt, a county social services worker, the novel unemployment solution award of the year for his witty and original idea for Hasting's jobless problem.

Mr. Porritt, a member of the Belleville and District Employment Committee, suggested at a recent meeting the county's snow plows should be parked and the unemployment ranks should be sent out into the winter with snow shovels.

Apart from the temporary satisfaction bestowed on the county's employed the province's health budget would surely suffer . . . dislocated discs . . . bent back muscles . . . weakened hearts . . .

Back to the drawing board, Mr. Porritt.

"Dinner will soon be served—could you all mind tightening your seat belts . . ."

'Non-Nutritional Food' Issue Before Board

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Re Ann Carson's recent column (Education Beat, Sept. 29) above a misunderstanding of the purpose and intent of the Hastings County Board of Education decision to limit non-nutritional food sales.

Any motion had been report and subsequent board action was primarily concerned with in-school sales of 'Junk' foods, particularly those of high sugar content. It is the duty of the board to best serve the interests of the children and community. Encouraging the consumption of foodstuffs which has been shown to cause obesity, dental problems, lowered energy, decreased resistance, etc., one would be highly irresponsible for the board's part.

In-school sales account for the majority of instances to which the board was addressing itself. It would be very difficult and certainly illogical to discourage in-school sales while encouraging out of school sales. The board is concerned with setting recommendations which appear logical. We are not saying that non-nutritional food is not a 'fact of life', as Mr. Carson says, but that it is a fact of life which should not be encouraged and that this board has decided not to be an agent of such encouragement. Surely there are many other items that all of us purchase on a regular basis which will allow perfect fund raising to continue profitably.

Mr. Carson makes the point that food available to trustees and the public during meeting breaks is not entirely within the board's nutritional guidelines. Although a valid point, Mr. Carson would have been encouraged by the actionable change in consuming habits by trustees towards better food following your discussion of condition. Perhaps education works, and perhaps this motion by the board will serve to be educational.

RICHARD A. WILLIAMS,
Trustee, Hastings County Board of Education.

The Lester B. Pearson Peace Park

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Among the many visitors at the Lester B. Pearson Peace Park, this year, some who signed the guest book, made comments.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Andrews, Oshawa, wrote, "God speed the work of peace," "A beautiful tribute to a most loved man." Adele Ferby, Scarborough.

Carmen Masel, Mexico present in Spanish, "Gracias contigo en pace." We are with you in peace. The Baer family from Niagara Falls, "A very pleasant beautiful place."

There were some questions such as "Why do you have so many signs?" Where can one get a drink of water? But for the most part, the comments were favorable.

"Mr. and Mrs. C. Hiles, Belleville, wrote, "This is a good place to meditate." Budle Hare, Kelowna, B.C., "A lovely quiet place."

"This is the strength of a dream coming true," said John Deacon, Ottawa. "In memory of a great man." Mr. and Mrs. Williams, England.

Perhaps the most touching was that of Rev. Donald Irman, Ridgetown, N.Y. "In memory of my friend and brother at Arras and Vimy Ridge."

The peace park is different from other parks and that is why the tourists like it. Most important of all, it gives hope, in a world that is beset by wars and rumors of wars.

Shades of Dickens Era

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Don Porritt of Hastings County Social Service emerges as a no-nonsense sort of bloke.

His remedy for dealing with those unfortunate enough to be either unemployed or on welfare is meritorious of the Dickens era. He says, "Park all the unemployed and give all those on welfare a shovel."

His philosophy, if it characterizes his agency is 50 years out of step with the times.

Perhaps Mr. Porritt would be better employed, if he diverted his talent into curing the situations that create the need for unemployment insurance and welfare in the 20th century.

He should also consider that if it were not for the unfortunate victims of society who are forced to turn to his agency for help his job would not exist. He might then find himself on the end of one of the shovels he so ridiculously wants to put in the hands of others.

Freedom Of Speech

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

William Hockley's criticism of certain Belleville developers in your September 24 paper is not "maligning" by any standard. It is nothing but freedom of speech and the right to dissent, which appears to be at stake here in this community.

As to "downtown development" I think one of the most enlightening endeavors in this area is the restoring of the brick work on the Bank of Nova Scotia building diagonally across from Victory Place and that other grey elephant building of news and weather.

Was Patty Hearst 'Brainwashed' or Genuinely Converted to Activism?

The following is an extract from an article by Frederic A. Mertz in The Christian Science Monitor discussing the issue of possible brainwashing of Patricia Hearst and her activity, and to what extent it represents a defense against the charges which have been laid against her. Reference is also made to the process as perfected by the Chinese and which they term "re-education.

Ahead in the case of Patricia Hearst is the possibility of a historic test involving a fundamental legal and moral issue:

Where does coerced behavior end, and truly voluntary action begin, for persons who may have changed their loyalties and actions while held in captivity? Legally, reports the jury will be asked to decide.

At the heart of the question is a controversial, often misunderstood, potentially powerful, yet stable process known and famous by the Chinese Communists. Under the name of "re-education," a variant of the technique is being used by the new government in South Vietnam, reports the

The Chinese called it "thought reform." Anti - communist Americans called it "brainwashing" as a catchword in the propaganda battles of the Korean war. It quickly inspired a mixture of fear, skepticism, and confusion.

Many Americans were awed by the Hearst case by term "brainwashing," but for American POWs who were combed under pressure while captive and collaborated with their oppressors, it became a difficult defense when taken to task for their conduct in the United States after the Korean war. Several were court-marshaled and imprisoned.

Now Mr. and Mrs. Randolph A. Hearst have revived the "brainwashing" defense by repeatedly citing the experiences of captured POWs in defense of the apparent conversion of their daughter to the "Symbionese Liberation Army."

Some legal observers argue the defense affidavit signed by Hearst, which seeks to argue that "brainwashing" produced in her a "coerced state of mind in criminal law as an acceptable defense.

Yet a successful demonstration that the experience known as "brainwashing" actually changed Miss Hearst's thinking and actions would get by itself meet the legal requirements, interviews with legal authorities and several experts on "brainwashing" suggest.

The reason is that research on those who underwent the experience of "brainwashing" in Korea and China shows that while it may alter a person's attitudes and actions, it does not necessarily produce a state of mind legally recognized as a criminal defense.

Despite years of mystery surrounding "brainwashing," the practice as refined by the Chinese Communists in their political organizing is "basically very simple," one expert.

The initial stages of "brainwashing" involve involuntary confinement or capture. One source suggests that strong guilt feelings increase vulnerability. Family background or personality sometimes may be involved.

In China and other places where "thought reform" has been used, it includes these elements: confinement in a strange new setting, with threats producing anxiety and sometimes fear of death; isolation from family, old friends, and familiar experiences; a total control of communication with the outside world by the captor. All of this continues until a state of doubt, loneliness, and hopelessness results. Then gradually the captive senses that if he adopts the definite dogmatic views constantly pressed upon him by interrogators or in discussion groups, then his captor will begin to treat him warmly. Subtly and gradually, the "jailer" becomes his friend.

District Health Council Draws Cool Reception

Hastings County council took no action last week on participating in a move toward organizing a district health council in the Quinte area.

It filed a request from the Ontario health ministry for participation in a steering committee—a first step to organizing a health council.

A similar appointment also has been delayed twice recently by Belleville city council.

Requests for the appointments came from Donald Sentier, the ministry's eastern Ontario co-ordinator.

Carl Bateman, Hastings administrator-treasurer told county council he believes it is the ministry's intention to establish health councils province-wide.

The councils—which co-ordinate plans of health and associated community agencies and advise the ministry on priorities—already have been organized in several areas of Ontario, he said. Currently all health-care organizations—from hospitals to public health units—negotiate individually with the ministry.

Several councillors indicated their belief the health councils would intrude another level of administration in decision-making.

Warden William McCrea debated the need of such councils. Already elected representatives serve on various health agency boards and are "vulnerable" to voter reactions, he said.

Commented Reeve Ray Sheett of Stirling: "We're governed now by a civil servant for every four people. It keeps on going we're going to have it down to two-for-one."

Reeve Barbara Allen, of Tweed, countered that the design is an attempt by the ministry to decentralize decision - making. Health councils would provide advisory input on a broader base. They would also help avoid duplication of costly-but similar-health treatment programs at different hospitals in the same district.

Reeve Frank Robbins, Limerick Township said he felt such a system would be costly. Local health-care delivery agencies now have the advantage of direct contact with the ministry, he said.

Reeve Ritchie Wells, of Marmora-Lake Township, said he believes formation of a health council would be "just one more level" to "pass along decision-making."

Council Sidesteps Transit Issue

Hastings County council this week wheeled aside from an intimated censure of the federal government for failing to meet campaign election promises on urban transit programs.

A letter from the Canadian Federation of Mayors (CFM-M) and Municipalities noted that Prime Minister Trudeau has promised transit assistance policies during the 1974 federal election. But programs produced to date were "inadequate in view of previous promises," wrote the CFMM.

The CFMM expressed "total dissatisfaction" with the "inadequacies" of federal policy to date. So far, no allowance has been made for deficits of commuter systems.

A suggestion by Reeve Jack Reynolds of Marmora village, that county council concur, with the CFMM was lost.

Reeve Horace Casey, Thurlow Township, suggested the CFMM letter be filed—meaning no action be taken.

"I think the Liberal government as well as everybody else realizes that the municipal transit systems are going broke," he said.

One Local Winner

Phyllis Johnson of Trenton is $2,700 richer this week and the only Quinte resident to win money in the monthly Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund draw.

Winner of the top prize, $10,000, was R. H. Smith of Toronto.

The second prize of $6,000 went to K. Vanness and S. Hutson of Arden, Ont., while the $5,000 third prize was won by K. J. McAlister of Agincourt, Ont.

Gerry LeLievre, who mailed a $3,500 cheque as the purchaser of the fourth ticket drawn by Toronto Dominion bank manager Jack Burgess Tuesday.

Variety Night For UCS

Plans for a musical-variety night now under way for Oct. 24 at Centennial Secondary School will highlight the annual United Way campaign for the month of October. The orchestra will be the Centennial Brass with performing groups the Sweet Adelines, Artist's Association Concert orchestra, The Highland Dancers and the Gold Guys.

Tickets cost $1.50. Any entertainers interested in performing are asked to phone the co-ordinator at 968-8413.

Planners at Work

Senior Cornerstone planner Art Skidmore confers with company head Brian Holmes over details in the Fabricous plant conversion now in progress in Belleville. "I'm only one person in the team that has given the company its success," says Mr. Holmes.

Baiting Becoming Major Problem

Illegal baiting of ducks has turned out to be a major cause of charges pending against hunters in the Tweed forestry district.

A majority of charges pending against hunters following opening-day checks of shooting areas by conservation officials and police involve use of grain to lure ducks close to hunters.

Similar problems were voiced by wildlife officials for other parts of the Quinte district following last Saturday's opening of duck hunting season.

Of 16 charges involving infractions of wildlife regulations discovered opening day, 11 alleged hunters were found shooting over baited areas, said Dave Atkinson, natural resources ministry wildlife officer at Tweed.

The baited areas discovered likely represent "only very few" of the real total since the situation is recognized as a "real problem," he said.

Similar views were evoked earlier this week from a conservation officer in the ministry's neighboring Napanee district.

Pilots Test Skill

Along with regular activities the members of the CFB Trenton Flying Club are devoting time to preparations for a club sponsored spot landing contest being held at the air base Saturday, Oct. 18.

The object of the exercise is for an entry to land an aircraft closest to a special mark on the runway.

Twenty-five entries with three aircraft in operation will be flying for trophies for competitions for commercial pilots, private pilots, solo students and pre-solo students.

Building Barometer Of City's Growth

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Industrial construction is the most precise and sensitive barometer of the community's growth, says Brian Holmes, director of Cornerstone Builders Ltd.

The team that works with Mr. Holmes out of cramped quarters on the Redneersville Road has been riding on the crest of Quinte industrial growth since the company formed in 1970.

But, says Mr. Holmes, the city administration must continue to "consciously decide whether or not to sustain the growth and be aggressive in bringing new industry into Belleville."

There are many communities with similar land and service resources and the capability to house new industry, but "it is communities such as Belleville who work to get the new industry that are the breaking point for companies choosing one location over another," he said.

As a rough indicator of the success of Belleville's industrial policy, Cornerstone alone completed nine projects in 1974 valued at $1.7 million. This year, including Century Place, the firm is building $4.3 million in commercial and industrial projects.

"Growth will continue if the city wants it to," said Mr. Holmes whose company is the largest builder of its kind in the area.

As it stands, the city's future looks very good "as industrial expansion is a physical indicator of what the economy of the community will be like in six months to a year," he said.

"Professionals who view the market, decide to build in an area when they know what the economic future holds," said Mr. Holmes. "When the hole is dug and block is to be laid, the barometer is pointing to healthier economy for the community."

This year alone, Cornerstone staff are guiding the construction of two commercial developments, a medical centre, two industries and Century Place — the multi-million-dollar downtown commercial and retail centre.

Low Profit Successful

Five years ago Brian Holmes had a "cushy" job working for Dominion Bridge as the Ontario construction manager.

He left the position and now five years later has parlayed his engineering and management skills into a multi-million dollar business — Cornerstone Builders Ltd.

At the time he was 28 years old, married and without a building contract in sight.

When the books were complete for his first year of business, Cornerstone had completed $250,000 in building value and the total has been increasing ever since.

This year the firm stepped in as part owner and builder of the $3.5 million Century Place project and has five other projects on the move.

The secret behind the company's success has been "high volume, low mark up," says Mr. Holmes — sounding more like a chain store merchant than a large-scale builder.

"We'd rather make a little on a large number of projects than a lot on one or two," he said.

Update Sought

An updated insurance appraisal will be obtained for all buildings at Belleville General Hospital, the BGH Board of Governors learned recently. The last insurance appraisal was dated prior to the completion of Hastings Block. Ald. Paul Bussell of the board's finance and audit committee suggested investigation of a new type of insurance whereby insurance coverage amount is automatically increased in accordance with the rate of inflation.

Parsons Refused Bail

OTTAWA (CP) — Under the tightest security precautions ever seen in an Ottawa courtroom, Claude Parsons of Ottawa was refused bail Thursday and ordered kept in custody charged in connection with the abduction, rape and murder of a 10-year-old girl.

Conviction on the murder charge is punishable by life imprisonment.

The accused was guarded by 11 policemen as he entered the Ontario Supreme Court, following several death threats on his life.

Treat as 'Leper'

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress, representing about two million Canadian trade union members, Thursday asked the federal government to treat the Franco regime in Spain as an "international leper." The congress was protesting the execution last Saturday of five opponents of the Franco government.

Oppose Strike

WINNIPEG (CP) — Employees in the editorial and advertising departments of the Winnipeg Free Press voted Thursday against giving The Newspaper Guild authority to call a strike. The guild was certified in 1973 as the bargaining agent for approximately 150 employees in the two departments. No agreement has been reached to achieve the guild's first contract with the company.

Denies Request

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — Provincial court Judge J. P. Kelly denied Thursday a request for a judicial recount by Liberal candidate Clare Morrison, defeated in Durham North riding in the Sept. 18 provincial election.

Battle of Sexes

OTTAWA (CP) — Lt.-Col. Marion Gay, newly appointed director of women personnel for the Canadian Armed Forces, says society still is not ready "to send women off to the front lines (in war) and face the possibility of them returning minus an arm or a leg." Admitting women to combat trades is as unacceptable to some people as opening trades like aircraft and electronic engineering was at one time, she said Wednesday. 012

Reserves Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — The finance department reported Thursday that official reserves increased by $25.3 million during September to $5.318 billion from $5.191 billion at the end of August.

Holdings of U.S. dollars increased by $66 million to $3.1 billion.

Public Failure

TORONTO (CP) — Public failure to act on its own to ease inflationary pressures will force the federal government to impose some kind of formula to alleviate the country's economic problems, Postmaster General Bryce Mackasey said Thursday.

Ottawa is still trying to convince business and labor to agree on a voluntary restraint plan, Mr. Mackasey said in a luncheon speech to the Empire Club of Canada. But wage and price controls have not been ruled out if pugnacious tactics do not bring a consensus, he told reporters later.

Passenger Service Improved

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Otto Lang and transport department officials hold out some hope for dedicated rail travellers that passenger train service will be improved.

The new transport minister indicated in an interview this week that he intends to at least keep the passenger system functioning.

Transport department policy officials said in interviews that the question of buying new rail equipment will have to go to cabinet this fall.

Garth Campbell, a CNR vice-president, said this week that 50 cars will have to be dropped next year because of deterioration—about 15 per cent of the passenger car fleet.

U.S. Border TV Stations May Be Restricted: Juneau

MONTREAL (CP) — The government may impose tighter controls over the powerful influence of United States television in Canada and grant disgruntled telephone users a louder voice in dealing with Bell Canada Ltd., says Communications Minister Pierre Juneau.

In future, Canadians probably will see fewer programs from U.S. border television stations as the reorganized Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) takes action to shield domestic broadcasters from growing foreign competition, Mr. Juneau said Thursday.

Ontario and Quebec telephone users with grievances against Bell Canada can expect a better chance to make their protests when the CRTC assumes control over telephone rates, the newly-appointed minister said.

Mr. Juneau, 32, was interviewed in a campaign office in the working-class east Montreal riding of Hochelaga where he is seeking the seat of former communications minister Gerard Pelletier in a byelection Oct. 14.

The new minister quit a 10-year public service career Aug. 29, joined the Liberal party and moved into the cabinet from his post as CRTC chairman.

He said solutions to the conflict between broadcasters and cable television operators probably will result in "reducing some American influence but not keeping Americans off" domestic television screens.

Mr. Juneau said the CRTC could work towards more extensive deletions of competing foreign programming and could even institute a rule banning all duplication of programs. He said the commission may consider following the example of the U.S. broadcast licensing agency and require that programs available locally cannot be carried by cable from distant television stations "on the same day or even in the same week."

Ottawa Will Control Malpractice Claims

OTTAWA (CP) — The malpractice situation in Canada will not be allowed to deteriorate to the level of the United States, Health Minister Marc Lalonde said in an interview Thursday.

Because of multi-million dollar settlements against doctors, insurance companies in several U.S. states have refused to insure doctors against malpractice. To protest, the doctors have gone on strike.

"Either the federal or provincial government will step in if the situation seems to be bad," Mr. Lalonde said.

He said that malpractice settlements in Canada are low compared to those in the U.S. and he said he felt it was not a problem in Canada.

Too Much Alcohol, Not Enough Money: Two of the Reasons for Marital Violence

By ISABEL HUGGAN

This is the first of a two-part series on wife-beating.

How many women in Belleville are married to men who beat them?

The answer to that question is difficult to find, for most wives try to hide their suffering. Unable to bear the shame of letting family, neighbors, police or clergy know how badly they are treated, these women don't seek help outside their homes.

However, there are indications that more women are turning for assistance to agencies in the city, and from these statistics it is clear that Belleville reflects the trend in other communities: wife-beating is an increasing problem.

Since January, 1975, Belleville police have been called to 242 family investigations, and 242 domestic disputes in which actual physical conflict takes place; compared to 224 calls in both categories during the same time last year.

Dorothy Howell, Justice of the peace and court administrator for Provincial Family Court, estimates that about sees two women each week, often with bruises still evident, whose husbands have abused them.

Scott Orfald, head of family services for the Children's Aid Society, says that in the course of a year he sees "perhaps 12 women who've been beaten", usually in connection with the husband's maltreatment of children.

Although there are more cases of abuse reported from lower socio-economic areas, according to Inspector Ralph Blatchford of the Belleville Police Department, that pattern is changing.

"We're seeing more middle and higher income families involved in violent argument," he says. "They don't know how to handle it, and so they call us for help."

What causes a dispute between husband and wife that becomes so severe that police are notified?

"Alcohol," says Inspector Blatchford.

"Alcohol," echoes Mrs. Howell, and "Alcohol," says Norm Slater, social worker at the Belleville General Hospital Mental Health Clinic. They all agree that in 75 per cent of the quarrels, one or both of the marriage partners have been drinking.

The other prime reason, they say, is finances. Fighting about money is becoming a more common phenomenon than ever before.

"More families are living far above their means nowadays," says Inspector Blatchford.

"And all through my police experience, I've noted that when that happens, there's trouble," he adds.

Another reason for the growing number of wife assault cases, suggests Mr. Slater, is that women themselves are becoming more aggressive. This may be due to the emotional climate produced by the women's liberation movement, in which women are being encouraged to stick up for themselves.

"I've seen many cases where a woman has been passive for as many as ten years, before she's become depressed because her needs aren't being met," says Mr. Slater. "If she begins to express her anger and resentment, and the husband isn't used to it, he responds by fighting back because his whole identity is threatened.

"It's in this kind of frustration situation, where violence can result, because there's history of verbal fighting. Men strike out because they don't know what else to do."

There is no one type of man who becomes a wife-beater, according to Mr. Slater. But in his experience, men who treat their wives aggressively "are not generally violent", he says.

"Often, it's the type of man who has a hard time dealing with being put down, who carries around smouldering hostility inside while he's at work. Then he lets all his feelings out when he gets home, when his wife comes at him with some problem that is just the final straw."

And what kind of woman is likely to be physically abused by her husband?

A number of the women that Inspector Blatchford has seen are wives who have become "martyrs", bearing up under conditions that grow steadily worse.

"Wives seldom leave the first time their husbands hit them," he says. "And often they should leave sooner than they do. By the time they call us, the conflict is so bad they need to escape the whole situation."

How can a woman escape from a husband who harms her? Tomorrow, a look at some of the solutions to the problem.

Kids String Along Happily In Knotty Macrame Class

The Grades 5 and 6 classroom at Douglas R. Atkins public School was the scene of quiet concentration Thursday as students bent over their knotty problems. Whenever one of them appeared to be at the end of his rope, one of four teachers was available to help get things tied up.

And by the end of the afternoon session, there were freshly-made macrame necklaces on the desks, the product of Helen Smith's instruction.

Mrs. Smith, a kindergarten teacher at Sir John A. Macdonald Public School, has been doing macrame for three years, and has taught many classes at her school. She agreed to visit the classroom of co - teachers Jim Ling and Patty Clapp to get their students started on the craft, as part of a new art program at Douglas R. Atkens Public School.

"I usually do owls," said Mrs. Smith, "but in one afternoon there's time to teach only one kind and its variations. Since the owl takes two different kinds of knots, we worked at making an abstract pattern necklace so that the children could finish it by the end of the day."

Mr. Ling and Mrs. Clapp agree that for those who want further macrame instruction, classes may be held during noonhour time. They hope, in future weeks, to go on to puppetry and perhaps to ceramics, crafts that increase manual skills and give the children a wider range of interest.

The students, most of whom quickly caught on to the rope-knotting skills of macrame, are enthusiastic about the program. During the afternoon, as they sat with properties round their knees or their clip-boards in order to do their knotting, there wasn't a bored, daydreaming or unhappy child in the room.

Special Dinner Celebrates Three IODE Anniversaries

A dinner at the Belleville Shrine Club was held Thursday evening to celebrate three Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire anniversaries: the 75th anniversary of the IODE in Canada, the 60th anniversary of the Argyll Chapter and the 60th anniversary of the St. Julien Chapter, in Belleville.

Guest speaker at the occasion was National IODE President, Joan Adams of Toronto. A descendant of Susannah Moodie, Mrs. Adams visited Moodie cottage and the Susannah Moodie Library at Glanmore House during her stay in Belleville.

Also attending the district dinner were Mayor Ben Corke, who brought greetings from the city, and Rev. Maurice McLeod, who said grace before dinner.

Chapters from Norwood, Campbellford, Madoc, Stirling and Picton were represented, as well as four provincial councillors: including Loreen Ellis of Belleville's St. Julien Chapter.

Displays of handmade crafts were set on side tables in the dining room, along with charts, pictures and letters of congratulation. There was also a Fine Nursing station display, supported by St. Julien members.

Joan Birkenshaw, regent of Argyll Chapter and Stella Smith of that chapter were presented with 25-year pins by Mrs. Adams, and Gerry Carseallen of St. Julien Chapter received a life membership.

Beaten Wives Often Suffer Silently

By SETH MYDANS
Associated Press Writer

Wife-beating, a social problem more common than rape but seldom publicized, is beginning to arouse the indignation of the women's liberation movement.

Until recently, even feminists ignored the issue. The police, the courts and most social agencies have given it little attention. There are no country-wide statistics but regional statistics are beginning to be publicized, primarily by groups of women.

Any generalization has to be partly guesswork, but wife-beating affects at least three times as many women as the rape victim, said Ann Jones, a women's-lib activist in San Francisco who is writing a book on the subject. Some FBI statistics seem to support her statement. In New York State, for example, 4,763 rape cases were reported to police in 1973, while 14,000 wife-abuse cases were taken to family court.

"It's usually something people keep very quiet and suffer with," said Enid Kelpik, the New York co-ordinator of the National Organization of Women's (NOW) marriage and divorce committee.

One woman, in a hospital with a fractured skull, said a doctor tried to persuade her to report her beating as a fall downstairs. "He's remorseful-go back to him," she said the doctor told her. And she did, only too ready to believe again.

"It's fear," said another woman. "Your belly's full of it. It usually happens at night when there's no place to go. I used to take the baby carriage out at night and walk the streets to get away."

Both battered women live in Somerville, Mass. They are members of a recently formed group of Somerville wives who share the common experience of husbands who beat them. Their organization, called Respond, is trying to open a refuge where the women can go when their men become violent.

"What we need is a place for a woman to get away, to bring her kids and stay for a while with other women who understand her problem," said Mrs. Jean Luce, a leader of Respond.

There are 17 such refuges in Britain and three in Canada, but none yet in the United States.

Nevertheless, wife-beating is becoming a public issue.

Early this year, NOW began to discuss the problem. At its June meeting, wife-beating will be on the agenda of a national NOW conference, scheduled for October in Philadelphia.

This summer in San Francisco, the California legislature is holding its first hearings on wife beating. And in a handful of cities—including Seattle, New York and Philadelphia—women have formed organizations similar to Somerville's Respond because they feel the courts, the police and the social agencies have failed them.

Mrs. Kelpik said she recently witnessed wife beating on a television show and later recounted a score of calls from women who have been beaten. The callers included the wives of "an important official in a very large and influential bank, the head of the surgical department of a large hospital, a psychiatrist and a lawyer."

Mrs. Kelpik and others in the women's movement offer statistics like these in support of their claim that wife-beating is a major social problem:

—In Boston, police receive 10 wife-beating reports a day.

—Sixty per cent of the police calls at night in Atlanta are for domestic disturbances, many of them wife-beating cases.

—One out of eight of the 19,500 murders in the nation in 1973 involved a spouse killing a spouse, said the FBI.

—In Pasadena, Calif., a police department spokesman said, "There's quite a bit of it here, but we don't have anybody expert in the area."

—"It's a hidden problem," said Allan Rogers, director of the Massachusetts Law Reform Institute. "Many people don't consider this a serious thing. They say every man has the right to beat his wife once in a while."

One family service agency serving the Boston area reported that it has encountered a few cases of husband-beating as well.

"They're not common, but we've had them," a spokesman said.

Ann Landers

Let the Telephone Ring One Minute

Dear Ann Landers: I am not a person given to foul language but I just used one of the dirtiest four-letter words I ever heard in my life

I was on the front porch and the phone rang. I ran to get it and twisted my ankle. Even though the phone rang only four times, there was no one on the other end when I picked up the receiver. That's what I used the dirty word.

Why don't people realize the phone rings every six seconds? When they hang up after allowing the party only 24 seconds to drop whatever he is doing and get to the phone.

If a person happens to be in the basement or the attic, he can't make it in time. Please inform your readers to let the phone ring at least 10 times before they hang up. That's only one minute, and anyone can certainly wait that long for someone to answer the door if they called in person, wouldn't they?—Limping in Iowa.

Dear Iowa: It's hard to believe that if a person wants to use a phone to ring 10 times he is investing only one minute. But it's true. So how about counting to 10 from now on, folks? You can save some twisted ankles, stubbed toes, and eliminate a lot of profanity. You'll also complete more calls, which, after all, is the idea.;

Dear Ann Landers: I realize you can't print every letter but this one is very important to me.

Is it possible for a person who takes an anti-dep essant drug to change from an individual of integrity and high principles to just the opposite? Someone very close to me has undergone a terrific personality change and I wonder if this could be the reason.—Bewildered in Ashville

Dear B.: Drugs can indeed create radical personality alterations. Generally, however, anti-depressants relieve anxiety, make the individual more cheerful and gregarious, and less introspective. Since you seriously concerned, I suggest you discuss this question with your doctor and cite specific examples of the individual's behavioral change.

Dear Ann Landers: Our 11-year-old son has asthma. His mother is afraid to let him take part in athletics because she says it tires him out and makes him wheeze. Ron has been asthmatic since he was 2. The allergist says we shouldn't pay so much attention to his physical complaints because he uses them to get out of doing unpleasant chores.

My brother's son who is 16 also has asthma, but he seems to be handling it better than our boy. His parents let him do just about anything he enjoys and he seems none the worse for it. Can you give us a little guidance, please?—Mom, Ann Arbor

Dear Mom and Pop: Approximately one out of every seven children who attend school has respiratory problems and some sort of allergy. Asthma is the most common cause for school absences among children.

Asthmatic youngsters should not partake in strenuous physical activity. The best sport for the asthmatic child is swimming. Golf, baseball, ping pong and bowling are also good. Football, basketball and track are too taxing and should be "off limits."

The psychosomatic aspects of this illness are often a potent factor. In my opinion, most asthmatic children could profit from counselling. Ask your physicians what he thinks about this.

Anglican Clergyman Moves To Mission in High Arctic

HALIFAX (CP) — The Seegeller family have packed up and headed north again.

For 23 years in Nova Scotia, Rev. Harold Seegmiller had accepted an invitation to become Canadian-born Anglican clergyman to work in the church's Diocese of the Arctic. The immediate destination for Mr. and Mrs. Seegmiller was Fort Simpson on the Mackenzie River, about 900 miles north of Edmonton, where they are to stay for two years before pushing on to the High Arctic, to Pangnirtung on Baffin Island.

At Fort Simpson Mr. Seegmiller is to work primarily among the Indians and conduct his services in the first church to be built west of Winnipeg.

Later, at Pangnirtung, he is to become head of the diocese's theological college where Eskimos are trained to become priests of the Anglican Church of Canada.

In an interview before he left, last month, Mr. Seegmiller was enthusiastic about the next five years of his ministry.

"There is something about the North," said the 56-year-old cleric, who interrupted life at Moose Factory in Northern Ontario in 1958 to bring a son to Nova Scotia for medical treatment.

"Everybody who has ever spent some time there would like to go back," he said of the northlands, where he previously taught at a school for Indians.

"It's hard to describe it. It's a different way of life . . . quiet."

Divorce Lawyers Criticized: Too Expensive, Too Rushed

TORONTO (CP) — The Open Parent Families Association of Canada says a survey of its members in Ontario and Quebec shows most are critical of divorce lawyers.

The association, whose 3,000 members are divorced, separated or widowed parents, said Wednesday that 8 per cent of those surveyed said their lawyers did not appear to know family law.

The survey also says the average cost of a divorce in Toronto is $950, compared with $750 in Montreal and $500 in other Quebec and Ontario communities.

John R. Jennings, a Toronto family lawyer, said in an interview that the results were "pretty frightening," and that "the great majority of divorce actions are uncontested, so that $950 is very high for an average expense."

Kenneth Jarvis, secretary of the Law Society of Upper Canada, said he will discuss results with association president Michael Kenny of Toronto and do everything possible to correct any abuses.

The 1,800 respondents also said they thought their lawyers were too rushed, careless about keeping appointments, non-aggressive toward opponents and reluctant to estimate a fee in advance. More than 70 per cent said the lawyers gave no advice on alternatives to divorce or counselling through social agencies.

The association said it has started a file for new members on lawyers who have treated clients well.

Schools Turn to Music As Teaching Aid

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Youngsters returning to school this fall are just as likely to be reciting lines de-re-mis as their ABCs.

Music has been so integrated into American school programs that it is used for finding concepts ranging from the alphabet to geography, from calculus and geometry to social studies and history; from science to music, English composition and linguistics.

About 83 per cent of the nation's elementary schools have music programs involving nearly 63 per cent of the students, according to a survey made by the American Music Conference (AMC) here.

In the high school level, about 41 per cent of the students are either taking a music course or are involved in some musical activity this year.

Activities offered include bands, orchestras, choirs, choruses, jazz ensembles, madrigal groups, symphonic field trips, instrumental clinics, exchange concerts with other schools, all-city orchestras and music leadership.

School guitar instruction is increasing fastest, followed by piano, band and orchestra programs, according to the AMC. Recorders, harps, ukuleles and electronic music are also growing in popularity.

A combination lecture-recital presentation has been developed to teach history using some popular hits since the 1950s along, such as Buffalo Gal, Yankee Doodle, Sweet Adeline from Pike, Home on the Range, and a chronological order with a lecture in between.

In other academic areas, language arts classes use music most frequently, the AMC says. Students are writing stories, poems, lyric poems and operas and setting them to music, often with the use of tape recorders and synthesizers.

Synthesizers also aid in teaching the science of sound by breaking down and distinguishing high and low pitches.

Teachers are employing such songs as The World is as Round as a Ball to teach geography; The Alphabet Song to present language, and counting songs to augment mathematics studies.

In Cheyenne, Wyo., music helps first graders to become bilingual. The teacher says that music "boosts the tongue" and makes enunciation easier. Songs, dances and visual aids are utilized in teaching Spanish and English.

Another advantage of music in this program is that the lyric of a song combine short words from both languages into a story. These song-stories help keep the child's interest while the flow and repetition of the melodic line aid memorization.

Most basic music courses include rhythms and learning to sing in tune and to harmonize.

One program features the life and work of a composer each month with a book to read about him, a tape to listen to, recordings of his music and a worksheet to complete.

Canadian Mothers 'Freer' Than American?

OTTAWA (CP) — Middle-class American mothers are freer than their American counterparts says a pilot study by a psychologist at the University of British Columbia.

"Women in both countries find their children demanding but women in the U.S. are expected to control their frustration and temper while Canadian women feel freer about letting their feelings be known," says Tannis M. Williams.

Writing in the September issue of Canada's Mental Health, Mr. Williams says a random survey of female Seattle and Vancouver university graduates showed Canadian women are:

—Encouraged more to have their own interests and less to focus on the family, which leaves them less frustrated than American women;

—More secure as parents because their children are allowed to be more independent whereas American families put great stress on togetherness.

Mr. Williams said his survey showed American children "frannier" their mothers, but Canadian children are more firmly disciplined.

He said child-rearing has more status in Canada than in the U.S. and many American mothers are confused because they are told children should be the focus of their lives but child-rearing has low status.

Mr. Williams said the independence of Canadian mothers means many more are either teaching or attending university part-time and that universities must change their day-care policies.

He called for more flexible day-care hours, increased day-care facilities near university centres and improved maternity leave policy for women teachers.

For the pilot study Mr. Williams sent questionnaires to a random sample of alumnae of a sorority at the University of British Columbia and the University of Washington.

The average age of the women surveyed was 40, the average family income was $30,000 a year, and nearly 90 per cent of both groups considered themselves middle class.

Canada Mental Health is a magazine published by the federal health department.

Few Women Reach the Top At University

TORONTO (CP) — Few women are in high-ranking positions at Ontario universities, says a report on the status of women prepared by a research associate for the Council of Ontario Universities.

L. C. Payton says there were fewer women than men teaching on a full-time basis in a study of teaching staff in Ontario universities during the 1973-74 academic year, and in most cases, women's average salaries were 25 per cent below comparable salaries for men.

The report says 28 per cent of men were full professors, 34 per cent associate professors, 31 per cent assistant professors and seven per cent were lecturers. Of women, seven per cent were full professors, 34 per cent associate professors, 41 per cent assistant professors and 26 per cent lecturers.

Male teachers had higher academic qualifications, which may be a factor in the difference in average salary, the report says.

The report concludes it is unlikely the ratio of women at the teaching staff level will increase greatly in the next few years.

In another report, University of Guelph researchers found fewer women applied for faculty jobs during the 1974-75 term and women dropped out of higher education at a higher ratio than men.

The report said there were 158 female applicants for advertised positions at Guelph last term compared to 2,484 male applicants.

The study also said women applying to enter the university have higher academic qualifications (Grade 13) than men, but once enrolled, drop out of the bachelor of arts program at a higher ratio.

Few women apply for graduate work at the master level and even fewer apply for the doctoral degree, the study found.

Salary discrepancies were found at every level of the professional group. Starting salaries for women lecturers, for example, were found to be lower than those of men, when individuals seemed to have the same academic qualifications.

Iron Pill Overdose Can Kill Children

OTTAWA (CP) — Although most parents lock away potentially poisonous medicines, they think nothing of leaving a bottle of candy-like chewable vitamins containing iron on the kitchen table, a local poison expert said in an interview Tuesday.

Dr. Celia Vieta warned that some bottles contain enough elemental iron to kill seven children.

Dr. Vieta said about 400 to 500 milligrams of elemental iron can be fatal for a child and some bottles contain up to 3,000 milligrams.

In the last year 81 children have been admitted to Ottawa's children's hospital suffering iron poisoning from vitamin pills.

The hazard of these vitamins is not new—Dr. Vieta originally wrote an article about the danger in 1974. In it she asked the government to look into making child-proof containers mandatory for the vitamins and to make manufacturers clearly state the amount of iron present in each container.

Dr. Vieta said labels on the bottles give no warning of the amount of elemental iron in each tablet—essential in treating iron poisoning.

A spokesman for the federal health protection branch said Tuesday the problem has been studied and proposals will be put forward in November.

Thief Leaves Trail

An injured, unknown thief left a bloody trail to mark his theft of a stereo component valued at $180 from Wilson Car Centre Ltd. at 128 Front St. in Belleville early today.

City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said a police officer on patrol discovered the break-in at 4:35 a.m. and a trail of blood across Front St. to the Park Theatre for between a 30-75-foot distance.

He said entry was gained by smashing two window panes and lower blinds for a damage estimate of $20. The stereo was found secure at a 1:30 a.m. Check.

Truck Full of Posies

Bob Bosma, of the Belleville Parks Department, worked Thursday to fill a truck with flowers. Unfortunately, the jumbo bouquet of marigolds wasn't a romantic gesture by some imaginative Belleville Romeo — it was just the usual city clean-up of flower beds before winter.

Rescue Squad Considering 'Jaws of Life' Instrument

CORBYVILLE — In its effort to become the third rescue service in Ontario to possess a $5,500 jaws-equipped tool to free trapped accident victims, the Quinte Rescue Squad will have the instrument demonstrated for its members at the fire hall here Saturday.

Capt. Bob Pearce of the Thurlow Township Volunteer Fire Department, of which the squad is an integral part, said Thursday there are only two such tools at Thunder Bay and one at St. Catharines so far in the province.

He said the squad recently began a drive to raise money towards the purchase price of the implement to replace usage of a current cutting torch system which is slower and presents some danger to both rescuer and victim.

The implement is called a Hurst Rescue Tool after the name of its manufacturer, Hurst Performance Co. in Warminster, Pa., and is distributed in Canada by Pierre Thibault Canada Ltd. in Pierreville, Que.

It has been nicknamed the "jaws of life" due to its quick operation of ripping open jammed-closed vehicles involved in traffic accidents.

Capt. Pearce said the distributing company will demonstrate the jaws to the squad with the use of two wrecked cars which have had their doors jammed and never opened.

"They want two cars — one to demonstrate the tool on and one for us to try the tool on ourselves," he said.

The demonstration will occur behind the fire hall at 1:30 p.m.

City Gets First Word On Status of Plan

The city has received its first official word on the provincial government's opinion of the Belleville official plan.

The plan was completed and sent to Toronto for government approval over a year ago.

Quinte Planning Board director Bert Kenny said Thursday the province has written to the city manager "highly complimenting the city" on the quality of the plan.

Mr. Kenny said the letter — a composite of comments made by all government departments which viewed the plan — is 16 pages long but straightforward. "It shouldn't take long — a week or two — to respond to the queries in the letter," said Mr. Kenny.

Planning board staff have been instructed to begin drafting some answers to the letter. A meeting is expected to be called by the city manager enabling staff and city officials to compose a finished response to the province.

Stereo Stolen

City police are investigating the theft of a stereo component set, four speakers, three records and two tapes valued at about $400 from the residence of Victoria Drum at 3-113 A East Dundas St. sometime between 12:45 — 2:45 p.m. Thursday.

Tractors Compete

A tractor-pull is to be held Saturday at Shannonville fair grounds from 1 to about 4:30 p.m. Organizers of the event; former Dave Craig of RR 1 Belleville and machine dealer Harvey Putman of Canifton say it's one of the first to be held in south Hastings. Competitors will be drawn from range from seven horse power garden tractors to the seven power fuel tractors.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following call for assistance during a 24-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today.

Thursday, Oct. 2, 6:39 p.m. — smoke investigation at Encore Hard at 222 Front St., nothing found.

At the Centre

Hastings County councillors Thursday visited the Quinte Regional Detention Centre at Napanee where they viewed modern concepts of incarceration. Among facilities is a library where Earl Martin (right) centre superintendent, explains programs to councillors headed by Warden William McCrea.

Other Chains Watching

Food City to Open Sunday

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

A war between supermarket chains for the shopper's food dollar doesn't help anyone, says Food City Ontario sales general manager Harry Guest, but his company is still prepared to enter the Sunday store hours fray in Belleville.

In response to the Sunday hours of A & P in the Belleville Plaza, the Food City store just outside the city will open this Sunday.

"It's not that we want to," said Mr. Guest from Toronto Thursday, "We're being forced to. We can't afford to let anyone get the jump on us."

Food City is the second major food chain in the Belleville area to open its doors Sunday. In so doing, it enters what appears is an ever widening number of stores across Ontario that are opening Sundays.

In this city, it is still unclear where the current trend will lead. According to A & P store manager Floyd Hill, the Belleville Plaza store will remain open indefinitely.

And to close the store, Mr. Bell said, it would take more than just a city bylaw. "You can't control it with a city bylaw. Food City isn't in Belleville and they can do whatever they want."

Provincial legislation setting out uniform store hours is required, he said.

Neither Dominion Stores in the Plaza[illegible] nor the Miracle Food Mart in Quinte Mall said they plan to open this Sunday. But Loblaws, which up to now has been reluctant to move into Sunday hours said it is now contemplating such action. It will not be open this Sunday however.

Loblaws president William Sherman said Thursday that the company's "patience is running out" with the unfair advantages other supermarkets take with Sunday store hours.

He said Loblaws had not planned to open its single Belleville store because it follows the policy of not triggering Sunday hours in cities where other supermarket chains have no stores open.

When told of the Food City and A & P hours, Mr. Sherman said his company might reconsider its position in Belleville.

He said earlier this week Loblaws will open about 30 stores province-wide unless the provincial government stops Sunday shopping. Thursday, he said it is "up to the province to set the rules and make them equitable."

Ontario enforces the federal Lord's Day Act which prohibits all stores, except neighborhood and jug milk, from opening Sundays. Solicitor General George Kerr said this week the government plans to introduce tough legislation on Sunday opening later this fall.

However, with Sunday hours, says Miracle Mart manager Bob McGall, "all you're doing is spreading your business around." His experience has shown him that Sunday hours attract shoppers from Thursdays and Fridays.

"Simple mathematics says it doesn't pay," Mr. McGall said. The business is the same, but ever head increases, with the company having to pay employees double-time and guarantee at least six hours work.

Dominion Stores division manager Russell Netherton said Thursday company plans are to wait "till things cool out."

"We're not so sure if the public (specifically in Belleville) will support Sunday opening," Mr. Netherton said. "We don't like opening Sunday and we'll only do it to hold our share of the market."

Belleville OPP Report One Death on Roads

Ontario Provincial Police enjoyed a lucky summer this year at the Belleville detachment.

A look at the OPP report for July-August shows only one fatality recorded out of 150 motor vehicle collisions investigated.

That one person killed was a passenger in a car accident in July involving the only fatal collision for the two months.

Out of 41 personal injury collisions, 104 persons were injured. There were 75 reportable collisions involving property damage and 14 non-reportable ones.

Under Criminal Code statistics, there were eight thefts over $200 investigated and 47 thefts under $200 checked into by officers. There were 24 cases of breaking and entering and 49 various other code offences.

Total property stolen was valued at $2,009.13 while police recovered $2,338.56 worth of stolen good . There were also 95 offences against provincial statutes excluding traffic.

Corke Wants Faster Action From Provincial Government

The provincial government's unwillingness to act more quickly came under strong attack from Belleville Mayor Ben Corke Thursday.

Mayor Corke, during an open discussion session of the Quinte Planning Board, told board member and Quinte MPP Hugh O'Neil, "some branches of the provincial government are unnecessarily slow in answering letter and taking action.

"My greatest single concern is the lack of decision making so with most matters left for ministerial approval which takes at least 12 weeks," he said.

Mayor Corke, addressing his comments to the new member for the riding, said speedier approvals of projects would stimulate the construction industry and in turn relieve unemployment.

"I hope you'll share my concern," he said to Mr. O'Neil. "We are experiencing longer than reasonable delays."

Mr. O'Neil responded to the mayor's comments saying that he wants to be informed of any undue holdup in getting provincial review.

"If I don't get any action from the civil servants, I'll take it directly to the minister in charge," said Mr. O'Neil.

"If I don't get action there, I'll take the problem to the house," he said. "One of my pet projects is to reduce the amount of red tape."

Mr. O'Neil told the board he has asked to serve on parliamentary committees dealing with housing and planning and asked that all agendas and minutes of the local planning meeting be forwarded to him.

Prince of Wales School Planning First Reunion

By SUSAN McCONNELL
Staff Reporter

Initial plans now under way for the first reunion of the former staff and students of Prince of Wales School include four days of dinners, teas and celebrations as well as a paper-back publication of the names of the more than 1,000 people involved.

The reunion, scheduled for July 1 to 4 next year, will not mark any special anniversary. It's planned, says former principal Ken Bird because of popular demand.

Mr. Bird, principal from 1928 to 1952, a member of the school's executive and the reunion committee, said a small fee will be charged for the four-day festivity to cover most of the expenses.

Before the school building was erected in 1924, the site was a union school section, says Mr. Bird. He said the students purchased their education from the City of Belleville under an agreement that dated back to 1877. The first accommodation for students was the present day College Hill United Church.

The school, named after a member of the royal family like most institutions at that time, was originally four rooms. Since then, 19 additions have been added.

Prince of Wales, now with more than 400 students, has accommodations for kindergarten to Grade 8 students.

Any former students and staff interested in attending the reunion are asked to contact secretary of the committee Margaret Orr at 962-4228.

More That 1,000

Ken Bird, principal of Prince of Wales School from 1928 to 1952, is busy planning a school reunion for next year of more than 1,000 past students and teachers. The July reunion will take place over four days and a list of participants is being prepared.

Councillors Get First-hand Look at Penal Reform

NAPANEE — Hastings County council Thursday went behind closed doors — probably by the most securely closed doors they'd known.

It had nothing to do with deep, dark political secrecy.

But, when the councillors emerged — from the Quinte Regional Detention Centre here — they'd had a brightening glimpse of modern correctional services in Ontario.

After hearing from centre officials — and inspecting facilities — they discovered that, these days, locks and walls do not a prison make.

Modern concepts of detention include more than merely keeping an individual in security. And more than than even stimulating his interest — with recreation, and educational programs — in a centre supervised by highly — professional staff.

Rehabilitation is also an essential element and a key program at the centre is its temporary absence system, said officials.

The concept recognizes that most individuals have to return to home and community after incarceration, said Earl Martin, Jayasuriyah, the centre's deputy superintendent.

The program permits inmates to work at outside jobs — and maintain their community and family ties, he said.

The taxpayers also benefit. Men with jobs pay up to $5 a day room and board at the detention centre from their wages, the councillors were told by Earl Martin, its superintendent.

Mr. Jayasuriyah said in 1974 there were 548 inmates allowed temporary absence. He estimated the revenue their payments generated at the centre was approximately $24,000.

Persons from the Quinte area who are sentenced elsewhere in the province also are sent to the Napanee centre if they are deemed suitable for participation in the temporary absence program. Among other benefits, this also may reduce the risk of family breakups by making possible regular visits by relatives.

For some veteran councillors the tour of the centre was particularly revealing. They could contrast what they saw with recollections of what the detention centre replaced — the grim old Hastings County jail-which had been a council responsibility for 138 years.

It was torn down after the province assumed responsibility for local detention centres for minor offenders and the regional institution here — the first in the province — opened in 1971.

The visit was part of the day's schedule as council took its annual tour of the area — a traditional event of its fall session.

Later, they also visited Ontario Hydro's new Lennox Generating Station at Bath and the Campbell Soup Co. mushroom factory at Wellington.

OPP Droving Instead of Driving

The number of stray livestock which wander onto highways is on the increase at this time of year causing Ontario Provincial Police officers "to spend more time droving than driving," says Constable Don Kuzyk, community services officer for the Belleville detachment of the provincial police.

Constable Kuzyk notes that he warns owners of cattle, horses, swine, sheep or goats that they must not allow their animals to run at large.

"By keeping such animals fenced in, the owner can prevent an injury for a passing motorist, loss of the animal or an appearance in court," he comments.

A's Relief Crew A Big Factor

BOSTON (AP) — Oakland A's have experience and ace reliever Rollie Fingers on their side as they move toward a possible fourth consecutive World Series baseball title Saturday when they meet the ambitious Boston Red Sox in the opening game of the American League playoffs.

"We're going to have to jump out and get them early," Boston scout Frank Malzone said. "Their pitching is keyed to seven innings because they know they've got that guy in the bullpen."

On the basis of 1975 regular-season figures, the As and Red Sox rate even. Oakland had a 98-64 record in winning the West title. Boston had a 95-65 mark in capturing the East.

However, the A's have to be given the edge because of their post-season experience. The only newcomer in the starting lineup will be second baseman Phil Garner, who took over with the retirement of Dick Green after the World Series last fall. Garner hit .346 this year and, despite some flashy fielding, committed 36 errors.

There's no question that manager Alvin Dark has strong hitters with Reggie Jackson, Gene Tenace, Joe Rudi, Bert Campaneris, Sal Bando, Bill North and Claudell Washington.

The only chink in the A's armyears to be in starting pitching. Ken Holtzman, 19-14, and Vida Blue, 23-11, are the only big winners, and both are southpaws. Holtzman is scheduled to open the series in Boston Saturday and Blue is slated to go Sunday.

Stan Bahnsen, 10-13, and Dick Bosman, 11-6, figure as Oakland's other starters. They both throw right-handed.

However, what the A's lack in starting pitchers they more than make up for with a strong bullpen led by Fingers. In 75 relief appearances this year he had a 10-8 record, 24 saves and a 2.98 earned-run average.

Behind Fingers in the relief corps are right-hander Jim Todd and left-hander Paul Lindblad.

The Red Sox split 6-6 during the regular season with the A's, losing three games by one run and two by two.

The Red Sox, bidding for their first pennant since 1967, combined old reliables, rookie sensations Fred Lynn and Jim Rice, and comebacks in winning the East crown.

Lynn led the team with a .331 average. He hit 21 homers, drove in 105 runs and scored 103. He set a rookie record with 47 doubles.

Rice complemented Lynn with a .301 average, 22 homers, 102 RBI and 92 runs scored. But he suffered a broken hand when hit by a pitch Sept. 21 and is lost for the year.

In an effort to compensate for the loss of Rice, the Red Sox will move veteran slugger Carl Yastrzemski, .268 after a late slump caused by shoulder trouble, to left and put Cecil Cooper at first base. Cooper hit .311 with 14 homers, mainly as the designated hitter, this year.

Catcher Carlton Fisk is back again after a serious knee injury and a broken wrist. Fisk came back strong in late June, hitting .321 with 10 homers and 32 RBI.

Other hitting threats on the Red Sox include veteran third baseman Rico Petrocelli, right fielder Dwight Evans and second baseman Denny Doyle.

Luis Tiant, 18-14, will be the opening game pitcher. Reggie Jackson, 13-9, was superb in the final two months, earning the second-game pitching assignment over Rick Wise, 19-13, and Cleveland, a native of Camden, N.J., will become the first Canadian pitcher to start either a playoff or World Series game.

Also available, either as starters or relievers, are southpaw Reggie Morel, 14-3, Bill Lee, 17-9, and Dick Pole, 4-6. Right-hander Dick Drago, 5-2 with 15 saves, is rated the top reliever.

Haunted by Islanders' Captain

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It's not even the regular season yet and Eddie Westfall is back to haunt Pittsburgh Penguins.

The veteran New York Islanders winger scored two goals Thursday night to lead the Islanders to a 3-3 win over the Penguins and maintain his hex on the National Hockey League earn.

Last season, it was Westfall's goal in the seventh game of the quarter-final playoffs that advanced the Islanders into the semi-finals and left Pittsburgh—which had held a 3-0 lead in the series—out of further post-season play.

The loss left the Peshains with a 3-3-3 record in pre-season play while the Islanders are 3-3-

In other NHL exhibition games Thursday night, Buffalo Sabres downed New York Rangers 6-4, Chicago Black Hawks defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 3-1, St. Louis Blues beat Washington Capitals 6-3 and Los Angeles Kings beat Vancouver Canucks 6-2.

In the World Hockey Association, Minnesota Fighting Saints beat New England Whalers 5-4, San Diego Mariners defeated Denver Spurs 5-1 and Edmonton Oilers downed Calgary Cowboys 5-2.

Brian Trottier scored the winning Islanders goal at 12:06 of the final period. Jean Ratelle and Ron Schock replied for Pittsburgh.

Rick Middleton scored three goals in a losing cause for the Rangers as centre Don Luce scored a goal and assisted on two others to pace the Sabres. Morris Titanic, Josh Guevremont and Jim Lorentz scored the other Buffalo goals, while Derek Sanderson scored the Rangers' other goal.

Centre Bobby Sheehan scored two first-period goals to lead Sheehan, who dropped back to the NHL after playing with Edmonton of the WHA last season, scored the first two goals of the game on Toronto goaltender Gord McTaggart.

Ivan McKenney scored the other Chicago goal and defenceman Jim McKenny scored Toronto's only goal on a third-period power play.

Mitch Bachen scored two goals in the Blues' victory over Washington before 4,224 fans at Landover, Md. Chuck Lefley, Red Berenson, Jerry Butler and Wayne Merrick scored the other St. Louis goals.

Ace Bailey, Jack Egers and Nelson Pyatt scored for Washington, which now has a 4-4-1 record at the end of its pre-season schedule.

Tom Williams' power-play goal at 16:32 of the third period gave Los Angeles Kings the win over Vancouver in the game played at Victoria. Bob Berry, Vic Venasky, Gene Carr, Butch Goring and Don Kozak also scored for the Kings. Pierre Bordeleau led the Canucks with a pair of goals and other scores were added by rookie Rick Blight, Dennis Ververgaert, and Rod Talley.

Third-period goals by Rick Smith and John McKenzie helped Minnesota Fighting Saints beat New England. Curt Brackenbury, Wayne Connelly and Cleveland Antonelli, on the other Saints goals.

Bob Gladstone, Wayne Carleton, Larry Pleau and Rosaire Paiement scored for New England.

Pitching Is Second Fiddle to Power

CINCINNATI (AP) — Joe Morgan, the chief generator of excitement for Cincinnati's co-rushing Reds, shivered in the chill of wind-whipped Riverfront Stadium Thursday and paid warm respect to Pittsburgh Pirates.

"Pittsburgh will hit you to death if they can," said Morgan as the Reds rehearsed for Saturday's opening game of the National League playoffs. "We can't give them an out or the next thing you know they have seven straight hits."

"We have to guard against getting one or two outs than letting down, he said.

PETE ROSE

Morgan agrees that power will play a more dominant role than pitching, but he thinks Cincinnati's speed could prove a pivotal factor.

He feels Cincinnati's speed gives the Reds an extra dimension over the Pirates.

"Close games favor the Reds because we can steal on them," said Morgan, that of the Big Red Machine attack since his arrival from Houston four years ago, and leading candidate for the league's Most Valuable Player award.

The Reds, who finished the season with a flourish by winning 10 of their last 11 games, stole 198 bases in 304 attempts during the season, a percentage of .805. Pittsburgh had 49 in 7 tries.

"People say these two teams are so similar on offence," Morgan said. "I don't agree. We both do things different ways. The Reds get a lot of people on base with walks and steal more. We can beat people in so many ways."

The best-of-five series opens at Cincinnati with left-handers Don Gullett, 15-4 for Cincinnati, and Jerry Reuss, 18-11 for Pittsburgh, the starting pitchers. Both games in Cincinnati are scheduled for 4 p.m. starting times, a fact that causes considerable consternation with hitters and fielders.

The Pirates arrive today for a workout in the tricky shadows and glaring sun that torment the players.

Morgan says the late afternoon scheduling time could have a hand in the outcome.

"A lot is going to depend on the shadows," said Morgan, who hit .327 this year.

Team-mate Pete Rose agrees. "The sun is murder here and we are going to have to follow the pitches real close," said the Cincinnati third baseman who had his troubles with Pirate pitching this year. A .317 hitter for the year, Rose had a paltry .217 mark against Pittsburgh's lefty-dominated staff.

The last time the two clubs squared off in post-season play was 1973, with Cincinnati winning three games to two. The winning run was scored by George Foster, who slammed home from third on Bob Moose's wild pitch.

The two clubs spilled some blood in a free-for-all brawl a year ago, but Morgan says: "We still all talk to each other.

Who Will Replace Mauch?

MONTREAL (CP) — The floteating game has started about who will replace Gene Mauch as manager of Montreal Expos of baseball's National League.

"We want someone who thinks along the lines of the people we've created," said Expos team president John McHale, who announced the firing of Mauch and his coaching staff Wednesday. "Clubs that win do that way."

"It's difficult to draw the specifications because nobody's going to fill all of them. He'll have to have enthusiasm, patience and knowledge of the game.

One man being mentioned is Karl Kuehl, manager of Memphis Blues, the Expos class AAA farm club in the International League. Others are Larry Doby, a minor-league batting instructor, and Tom Lasorda, third base coach with Los Angeles Dodgers.

Kuehl, 38, a manager in Montreal's farm system since 1972, believes he is ready to make the jump to the majors.

"I think I'm as capable as a lot of people managing up there. I want to manage in the big leagues and of course I hadn't given the Most-east thing any thought."

Of the 25 players the Expos took into the final month of the season, 15 played for Kuehl either at Quebec in the Eastern League or in Memphis.

Doby, who joined the Montreal organization in 1968, left the Expos after the 1973 season to be first-base coach with Cleveland Indians of the American League. He says he's "definitely interested" in the job.

Lasorda, who once pitched for Most-east Royals of the International League, has expressed a desire to return to Montreal and could be in line for the opportunity presented itself.

Sabres' Carriere Traded for Richard

ATLANTA (AP) — Left-winger Jacques Richard was traded Thursday to Buffalo Sabres by Atlanta Flames in a National Hockey League transaction.

In the exchange, announced by Atlanta general manager Cliff Fletcher, the Flames received defenceman Larry Carriere and the Sabres' first-round draft choice next summer.

Richard, 5-11, 175 pounds, was the Flames' first amateur draft choice in their first season, and scored 27 goals two years ago.

He suffered a broken cheekbone and an elbow injury last season, and scored only 17 goals and 29 points in 63 games.

"Jacques did not have a good year last year, and injuries had a lot to do with it," Fletcher said. "He didn't have a great training camp this season, although he never has looked great in training camp."

Carriere, 23, who is six-foot one and weighs 195 pounds, will add muscle and aggressiveness to the Atlanta defence, Fletcher said.

Buffalo general manager Punch Imlach said: "Richard is a great skater and we hope he can fulfil his promise with the Sabres."

Richard had 71 goals and 160 points in his final junior year with Quebec Remparts. Carriere played for Loyola University in Montreal and joined the Sabres mid-way in the 1973-74 season.

Canada plays its final game of the tournament tonight against Australia.

Soviets Down Denmark

MONTREAL CP — The Soviet Union defeated Denmark 25-20 Thursday night to round out a perfect 5-0 won-lost record in the six-country International Competitions 1975 team handball tournament, while Canada and the United States tied 20-20.

Poland, ranked fourth in the world among men's teams, took second place with a 4-1 mark behind the fifth-ranked Soviets. Denmark was third at 2-3-1. Japan finished at 2-4 while the U.S. had three losses and two ties, and Canada finished last at 0-4-1.

This is the year of the Cats. Or at least this is the year the Cats grown back his claws. The Cats spent six games sharpening their claws in pre-season action. During that time they outscored the opposition 33-21 and won all six games. All those wins came about despite the fact the Cats were shorstaffed because of injury, illness and suspensions.

Tuesday the local club opened their regular Metro Junior hockey season and ripped through Whitby Young Brulins 9-2. Tonight the Cats take on Kingston Voyagurs in a 9 p.m. encounter. They'll have something to prove through the match. That they won't be squeaking into the playoffs in the final few games of the year and neither will they be bowing out of the playoffs in the final few game of the year and neither will they be bowing out of the playoffs in the first round as they did last year.

Of course, things were much different during the 1974-75 campaign.

The two greatest differences this year are in age and attitude. Average age of the club is just under 18. Last season the Cat's average age was close to 20.

With the low average age of the cbu bhis season, even if they don't go all the way, they still have about three years with the same nucleus to try again.

Attitude is the prime reason for the about face of the Cats' showing. There is a tremendous air of co-operation among the players. For example: Each month the club plans a little get together to discuss ideas and differences.

The Belleville Bobcats are new team, with a new approach. And so far, they've been a brand new Belleville Junior B club in the win-loss column.

SLICES — A few weeks ago the Belleville Lions Club put together a walkathon with the money raised to go to the Canadian Special, Olympics Fund.

Well, the walk took place, despite a day of miserable weather, and the limited participants raised close to $5,300. The Lions decided they would try again.

This Saturday walkers are going to take another crack at the 10 mile hike. If things go according to plan and the weatherman is good to them, the local club hopes to raise in the vicinity of $15,000.

To do that though, more walkers have to get out. If you're interested in getting a little exercise on Saturday, pick up a sponsorsheet at McDonald's Family Restaurant on North Front Street.

Belleville Minor Hockey Association all-star teams have a full slate of games this weekend beginning at 12:30 p.m. Saturday afternoon.

The McDonald stems are first in line with a game against Trenton. The Towers Food-City major atoms meet Trenton at 1:30 p.m. and the Dixie Lee Peewees and Bellins major pewwees take on Kingston with games at 2:30 p.m. and 4 p.m., respectively. Mepinoy-Malines bantams play Trenton at 5:30 p.m. and the Kinsmen major bantams round out Saturday's card with a match against Trenton at 7 p.m.

This is how you make a hero sandwich. Take one Centennial Charger back, Paul Hipkin, put one Centre Hastings defender underneath him, Joe Brooks, and put another one over top of him. Earl McKnight, Hipkin might not have been a big hero, but his power drives certainly helped Centennial to a 12-8 win over Madoc in the Bay of Quinte Secondary School Football League game Thursday. One thing is for sure though, he is definitly getting sandwiched on this play.

Seniors and Juniors Earn Wins

Chargers Double Their Pleasure

The Centennial Charger scored an upset victory in the senior division of Bay of Quinte High School Football League Thursday against the Centre Hastings Centurians of Madoc. In a game played at Centennial, the home squad took their first victory in three starts with the 12-8 win over Madoc.

There was no question as to a Charger Junior victory. The Centennial crew romped to a convincing 44-6 pictory over Prince Edward Collegiate in Picton.

After trailing from the first series of plays, Centennial seniors scored the winning touchdown on a four yard drive through the middle by running back Rob Scully late in the contest. The chargers were set up on the play by a poor punt and a penalty.

The winners did have some anxious moments in the final three minutes of play as the Centurians took control of the ball at their own side of the centre line and marched downfield With 20 seconds left the drive ended on the Centennial 12 yard line.

Rob DeJong, quarterback of the Centennial club and a defensive safety, destroyed any hopes that the Centre Hastings guard had of winning when he picked off a pass from Scot Simpson, Centurians' quarterback. Centennial had only to kill the clock.

Strong, bitter-cold winds hampered the play throughout the game and confined the attack of both clubs, for the most part, to the ground.

The only touchdown of the first half of play came in the very early going after the Centurions elected to receive the football. Harley Williamson provided the thrust for the better part of the ground gain that set up a one yard, TD sneak by Simpson.

V.J. Singh was impressive despite the loss by Centre Hastings and his powerful punting twice scored single points to round out the scoring in the first half and the game for his club The half ended 8-0.

The home team got on the scoreboard in the third period. With the visitors pressing downfield for a touchdown, a ball was popped loose into the waiting arms of linebacker Doug Fraser. Senior an opening on the left side Fraser made a dash of 50 yards to put Centennial within two points of the Centurions' setting the stage for the final drive by CSS.

It was the first victory of the season for the Chargers and the second consecutive loss for the Madoc club after winning their opener against the Trenton Tigers.

Three Charger juniors shared in the majority of the scoring at Picton. Both running backs, Terry Thompson and John Royer, scored two touchdowns each and flanker Mike Curley caught passes in the end for a pair of majors and one two point conversion. Quarterback Ron Ferguson connected on two other two point conversion passes to Jim Wickenoyer (and scored one himself to round out the attack for Centennial. Picton's scorer was unavailable.

The win puts Centennial in a tie for first place in the Bay of Quinte Junior Division.

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — "I don't have that much longer to play this game, so I kind of figured I'd better play as much and as well as I can while I can," Gene Littler said.

And that, the 45-year-old veteran said, is the reason he's enjoying the best season of his 20-year career.

"There've been years I've won more tournaments but, from a financial standpoint, this is far and away my best year," said the slightly-built Littler, winner of three titles and $175,000 already this season.

"I think the reason is that I'm paying more attention to the game," he said Thursday after his seven-under-par 65 had tied Chuck Courtney for the first-round lead in the $175,000 Kaiser International open golf tournament.

Littler and Courtney shared a one-stroke advantage over 24-year-old rookie Bobby Wadkins, who shot a 66. Larry Nelson was next with a 67 and defending champion Johnny Miller, George Cadle, Marty Fleckman, Gibby Gilbert and Mike Hill for eight three.

Littler, Wadkins, Brewer and Cadle played the 6,835-yard north course at the Silverado Country Club course, the longer and tougher of the two, par-72 layouts being used for the first two rounds of this late-season event. The other leaders played the 6,610-yard south course. They'll switch courses for today's second round.

Courtney broke out of a season-long slump with a strong, 11-under-par performance in last week's Sahara Invitational.

He made his round with a front nine 30, five under par. He flipped two little wedge shots within five feet of the cup, came within two feet of making a hole-in-one on the seventh and on the ninth reached the par five in two and holed a 12-footer for a birdie.

were at 68.

George Knudson of Toronto shot a 71 and Ben Kern of Toronto a 74.

Pre-tourney favorite Jack Nicklaus matched par 72. Lee Trevino had a 70 and British Open king Tom Watson blew to a 77.

Beaird Gives Bombers Split with Argos

TORONTO (CP) — Rookie running back Steve Beaird is turning out to be Chuck Ealey's best friend in the Winnipeg Blue Bombers backfield.

Ealey, left-handed, Beaird always seems to be there to take up the slack, as he did Thursday night in leading a Winnipeg rally for a 21-21 tie against Toronto Argonauts in a Canadian Football League interlocking game.

A week ago in Winnipeg, quarterback Ealey had difficulty passing in stormy weather and Beaird took over the bulk of the offensive load, running 146 yards on 24 carries and scoring three touchdowns in a 34-32 Winnipeg win over Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Ealey's passing faltered again Thursday and Beaird was there to supply a ground gain of 125 yards on 17 carries while scoring two touchdowns as the Bombers rallied from a 21-7 half-time deficit.

Two field goals, a single and a convert by kicker Bernie Ruoff accounted for the other points in the rally.

Beaird, who chose the Blue Bombers over the National Football League St. Louis Cardinals because he enjoys "playing football, not watching it from the bench," also scored the Bombers' first touchdown in the second quarter when he combined with Ealey on a 59-yard pass-and-run play.

It was one of only three passes completed by Ealey in the first half and he was replaced by Ralph Brock in the second half.

Brock was fortunate to call a draw play just at the same time Argo defence called a blitz and, when Brock handed off to Beaird, the Winnipeg runner found an open path up the middle, going 51 yards for the third-quarter touchdown.

"It was very lucky," said Brock. "I'm just glad it happened that I called the draw play that time."

The Bombers could have won the game at that point with a two-point convert but decided instead to play safe and settled for the tie with Ruoff's one-point kick.

Despite having to settle for the tie, the Argonauts had some cause for rejoicing after new quarterback Steve Joachim led the team to three touchdowns in the first half—the first time the Toronto offense has scored that many touchdowns in any game this season.

Joachim's three major drives ended with a three-yard touchdown run by Dick Morlat, a three-yard touchdown pass to Dave Hadden and a 15-yard touchdown pass to Horton, all in the second quarter. Zenon Andriuszhyn pevvided the converts.

Joachim, cut three weeks ago by the NFL Baltimore Colts after little training camp work, had not played a game since last fall when he was still at Temple University.

"He didn't throw the ball nearly as well in the second half but you have to consider that this was his first full game since last fall," said Argo coach Russ Jackson.

Zenon Andriuszhyn converted all three touchdowns in the Argonauts' 21-21 Canadian Football League tie Thursday night with Winnipeg Blue Bombers to move within four points of Gerry Organ for the Eastern Football Conference scoring lead.

Organ took the lead for the first time this season when he picked up nine points in leading Ottawa to a 16-11 win over Hamilton in an EFC game Wednesday night.

CJHL Underway Tonight

OTTAWA (CP) — The Central Junior A Hockey League opens its 1975-76 season on two fronts tonight and the six-team circuit hopes it will maintain its status as one of the strongest second-level junior leagues in Canada.

The league has been represented in the Centennial Cup finals twice in the last three years and last year Smiths Falls Bears reached the eastern final.

Junior A teams play for the Centennial Cup while major junior league teams, the top level, aim for the Memorial Cup.

Nine points separated the first four clubs at the end of last season and indications are the rare might be as tight this year.

Nepean Raiders play Gloucester Rangers in one of the opening weekend games. Lumberkings are in Smiths Falls to meet the defending champion Bears.

Neil MacDonald, an Ottawa businessman, is the new league president replacing Ken Wark, who resigned to take a Canadian Forces posting in the United States.

Brockville Warriors have a new owner, Walter Jewell of Philadelphia. He hired Don Dexter, who coached the team four years ago, to guide the club.

Sam McConnehy is the new Pembroke coach, replacing Mac MacLean, who joined Kitchener Rangers of the Ontario Major Junior Hockey League. Don Simpson is the new general manager.

Coach Glen McKenny is back behind the bench in Smiths Falls, trying to take his team to a third league championship. But he has only three players left from last year. Doug Gibson is the new general manager.

NHL Says Seals Will Be There

MONTREAL (CP) — Much to the relief of the players and the National Hockey League, California Seals will begin the 1975-76 NHL season next Wednesday.

The league announced Thursday after a day-long board of governors meeting that the Seals will open their 80-game schedule in Atlanta against the Flames Wednesday night under the ownership of a San Francisco group headed by Mel Swig.

"In recent days, there have been published reports that Mr. Swig would not complete arrangements to purchase the team and further that the franchise might be moved to another city," NHL president Clarence Campbell said.

"Neither report is true. Mr. Swig is completing his arrangements to purchase the team."

However, the board of governors has a meeting scheduled for New York on Monday to further examine the Seals situation.

"We are anxious about the thing," Dave Gardner, a centre with the team, said a few hours before the announcement by the league. "We want to know if we are going to have a team or not.

"It's been depressing to a lot of guys. Ever since the end of last year, they told us not to worry."

Swig did not attend the afternoon session of the board meeting, but in a prepared statement issued after the meeting, he said:

"It is unfortunate negative rumors occur in transactions such as this. We will be in Oakland and I can assure you we will have an eager, well-prepared team to open the season in Atlanta Wednesday."

Swig plans to keep the Seals in Oakland for two seasons, playing at the 12,500-seat Oakland-Alameda Coliseum, until construction is completed on a larger arena in San Francisco.

California entered the NHL in the 1967-68 expansion that doubled the league's size to 12 teams.

The franchise was sold to Charles O. Finley for $4.5 million in July, 1970, but failing health and disappointments on the ice and at the box office prompted Finley to sell the club to the league for $6.5 million in 1974.

The sale to Swig was originally announced July 28. There had been some question whether Swig would go through with his intended purchase of the team after running into difficulty with a San Francisco redevelopment group.

OMHA Wants Coaches To Exercise More Control

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Minor Hockey Association will ask its coaches to exercise more control over their players in an attempt to cut down on "silly" penalties, OMHA president Jim Kinkley said Thursday.

Kinkley said he will tell the 900 delegates at the association's annual meeting here next weekend that the league will crack down on offending coaches, suspending them if necessary.

Last year, in an effort to reduce the number of penalties in OMHA games, the association brought in a rule limiting the number of accumulated penalties a team to 26 minutes a game for peewee and under and 36 minutes for bantam and up.

Any coach whose team accumulated more than the allowed number of penalty minutes was automatically suspended for the next league game.

Kinkley said many coaches tried to circumvent the accumulated penalty rule "by falsifying or attempting to falsify the game sheets where match penalties were involved."

He said some coaches sat in the stands behind the team and let the manager or trainer normally coach the game and sign the sheets so that he, and not the coach, picked up the suspension.

"This has got to stop," Kinkley said. "We (the OMHA executive) must get through to these people before they carry these undesirable and totally-unjustifiable acts.

"We must improve the situation at once, and I for my part, serve notice that I will deal harshly with those team officials who take their responsibilities so lightly."

WHA Considering Case

TORONTO (CP) — The World Hockey Association's position on New England Whalers' signing of 17-year-old Gord Roberts will be announced in two or three days, WHA chairman Ben Hatskin said Thursday.

League trustees held closed meetings Monday and Tuesday in Chicago to consider the Roberts case and league vice-president Eud Poile said a decision has been made but that its announcement was being left to Hatskin.

Roberts, who played junior hockey last season with Victoria Cougars of the Western Canada Hockey League, was signed by the Whalers contrary to the WHA's agreement with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association that players under 20 years of age would not be offered pro contracts.

MacDonald Hints Inflation Measures

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Finance Minister Donald MacDonald presented to cabinet Thursday proposals for fighting with inflation, but declined to say what the proposals are.

He said he is worried about unemployment insurance payments, which are 43 year next higher to the end of July than for the same period a year ago.

Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey warned that if the inflation continues and public restraint is not forthcoming a formula may be needed to hold prices and wages down.

In other economic developments Thursday:

—William Hopper, assistant deputy minister for energy development, said a new report on Canada's oil and natural gas potential, to be released next spring, will be disappointing "relative to what was thought to be there even 2½ years go."

—Congratulations Minister Pierre Juneau said he was disturbed by Bell Canadas recent action in curtailing new telephone installations and other customer services after being refused the full rate increase it requested.

START ACTION

—A third leader court challenge to Saskatchewan's potash legislation began as 10 potash companies initiated action in Queen's Bench against the province's pre-rationing fees claiming the fees amount to an unconstitutional levy.

—Brascan Ltd. said it has terminated discussions with Ashland Oil Inc. on the possible acquisition of Ashland Oil Canada Ltd. of Calgary after Ashland rejected an offer of $13.25 (U.S.) a share for all common shares of Ashland Canada.

—Ford Motor Co. of Canada announced a surprise mass-limited price of $3,305 for its 1976 Ford Pinto Pony MPG model, claiming it is the lowest priced of any North American-made car sold in Canada.

—Simpsons-Sears Ltd. said shareholders had approved an increase in the company's capital to permit the issue of rights to holders of Class A, B and C shares to raise approximately $58 million.

Alberta's Patients Pick Up Medical Tab

EDMONTON (CP) — A long-standing dispute between the Alberta Medical Association (AMA) and the provincial government threatens to give patients in the province a new financial burden by 1976.

Patients have been left in the middle of a dispute between the medical organization and the Progressive Conservative government over the size of increases to be granted in the agreement between the AMA and the Alberta Health Care Insurance Commission.

Doctors are threatening to pull out of the medical insurance program and bill patients directly unless the government accedes to a 35.8-per-cent increase.

Gordon Miniely, provincial minister of hospitals and medical care, says the government will not move from the eight per-cent increase it proposed after more than three months of negotiations.

"This is the time for restraint in public spending," said Mr. Miniely. "I don't think we can treat the medical profession differently."

The AMA, which represents 2,600 doctors, agreed at its recent convention in Calgary that patients would have to pay for medical care and then bill the health care plan for the portion covered by the government.

MADE SCAPEGOATS

Dr. B. K. A. Weir of Edmonton, recently-elected president of the AMA, said doctors feel they are being singled out as scapegoats in the fight against inflation.

Dr. Bob Clark, AMA executive, said medical care costs have not risen rapidly or disproportionately.

Payments to physicians increased by an average 5.2 per cent a year from 1970 through 1974, he said.

Dr. Clark also said he doubts the government will prevent physicians from billing patients directly at rates set by the association because the government would hesitate to interfere with the doctor-patient relationship.

Dr. Ron Wenzel of Edmonton, A M A negotiating-committee chairman, said the proposed increase is close to that given earlier this year to most hospital workers in the province. He said fee-schedule increases have fallen far behind increases in other sectors, failing to keep pace with inflationary staff salaries and office expenses.

Village Found

PICKERING, Ont. (CP) — A second Huron Indian village, thought to be one of the oldest ever discovered, has been found near this town northeast of Metropolitan Toronto, it was announced Thursday.

Artifacts found at the village indicate it may date back to the 13th century and pre-date by about 50 years a nearby Huron village found last summer, a spokesman for an archeological team said.

Arkin Now Prefers Directing

NEW YORK (AP)—"Acting still eats me up a lot," says Alan Arkin, Broadway Tony winner and double Hollywood Oscar nominee.

He enjoys directing much more, as accidentally discovered while responsible for his current Mike Stern activity.

"I've got less insecurities about directing than acting," asserts the amiable self-analyst. "Maybe it's because I have more at stake emotionally as a performer. I've been at it longer."

He has, however, no intention of giving up first love totally for second affection. The Arkin range of interests includes also such literary as songs and books for the very young, keeping up on just about turning out an occasional dish of Ethiopian Dore Westie, his culinary children specialty.

The Soft Touch, described as a comedy about a young whose biggest problem is going to bed alone nightly, is the project now engaging Arkin.

"I wasn't wild about the script when I first read it a year and a half ago," he recalls. Then the play, written by Neil Cuthbertson, a 23-year-old English major, was the 1974 American College Theatre Festival New York University; Arkin attended a student performance "gradingly, and had one of the funniest nights of my life."

Arkin, born 40 years ago in Brooklyn, raised around Los Angeles and abruptly bounced from Bennington College for marrying a co-ed without the dean's blessing, progressed into theatre after folk music travels with guitar.

Two Midwest troupes of satiric young improvisers, the Compass and Second City groups, enabled him to whet a flair for topically irreverent humor. He arrived in New York with the latter company in 1961.

Enter Laughing, based on Carl Reiner's novel about a brash showbiz upstart, catapulted Arkin to overnight star billing two years later and a Tony. The show's leading lady, Barbara Dana, became his second Mrs. Arkin after his college romance ended in divorce.

Since evolving into a director, he has done several showcase productions with her and is slated next spring to supervise a revival of their concept of Maxwell Anderson's Joan of Lorraine for the Hartman Repertory Theatre's institutional season at Stamford, Conn.

Arkin has also promised "probably" to act for the new organization, since runs are to be limited to three weeks.

"I haven't really been on stage since Law on Broadway in 1965.

One reason has been the steady round of film assignments. His first movie, The Russians Are Coming, the Russians Are Coming got him an Oscar nomination. Another nomination followed The Heart Is a Lonely Hunter. Other movies have included Wait Until Dark, Pop, Catch 22 and Little Murders, which he also directed.

"I liked half of the films," he appraises, "but the roles were all fine. I've passed up a lot of stage parts and I don't regret any. A couple of other film parts. I'm sorry I turned down."

Arkin has penned several books for youngsters, and with his wife and his three sons recorded albums "to give kids the idea music doesn't belong just to adults and has to be studied for 20 years."

Slim and whimsical, Arkin maintains an attitude of skeptical detachment about his career and the dubious delights of greater fame.

"Once that becomes an issue, you never have enough," he says. The family keeps no scrapbooks.

"I've always lived in dread of feeding off my past," Arkin explains. "I'm sorry for people who live with their scrapbooks."

Kain Says Nureyev Aid to Her Career

NEW YORK (CP)—The mind is like a big eye in Canadian ballerina Keren Kain, a sort of mental looking glass that helps keep her on her toes.

Admittedly her own worst critic, she will sit up half the night after a performance, letting her mind walk through the ballet paces.

"You go home after a performance and you start remembering all those thousands of things that weren't ... maybe you did it a little better in rehearsal," says the young dancer who has been called one of the most talented ballerinas in the Western world.

"In your mind's eye, you can see the way you wanted to perform but it didn't happen like that. It could have been nerves or just miscalculation or you just didn't get your co-ordination right. So you sit there half the night and think about it. It's really hard."

As one of the principal dancers of the National Ballet of Canada, she shot up the ladder in the last two years to a point where she has achieved an international reputation.

Rudolf Nureyev helped pave the way when he joined the company as guest artist three years ago and picked her from the leading role of Aurora in his own production of The Sleeping Beauty.

Miss Kain, 24-year-old Hamilton-born daughter of an electrical engineer, believes she wouldn't have been selected for the role so early in her career without Nureyev's prodding. In the last year, her guest appearances with Nureyev took her to three continents as they danced with other companies.

Miss Kain makes it clear that her debt to Nureyev transcends many levels.

"Rudolf is so good to me, giving me these opportunities, that I don't want to let him down or myself," she said in an interview.

After the National Ballet completed its recent New York season at the Met, Nureyev called the company's five principal dancers first-rate and said they would be acceptable in any company in the world.

But the Russian dancer had an extra superlative or two for Miss Kain during the final night's Sleeping Beauty, when she was Aurora once more and he the prince.

"I don't find her talents exceptional," Nureyev said. "And if she had more performances like that, greatness is ahead of her, you know."

The New York season was barely over when Nureyev returned to his home base in London. Miss Kain went to France and the company began another tour of Canada.

Keren will rehearse for a month in Marseille before going to Paris to dance with Petit's own ballet company, doing his production of Carmen and Coppelia.

She said Nureyev has also asked her to dance in Paris in February.

This year, Miss Kain toured Australia with Nureyev and the London Festival Ballet and then appeared with Dame Margot Fontyn and Nureyev for two weeks at the Kennedy Centre in Washington.

She did six Sleeping Beauties in Australia—two each in Melbourne, Adelaide and Sydney. In Washington, she danced Le Corsaire Pas de Deux with Nureyev and the dramatic role of Camilla in Jose Limon's The Moor's Pavane.

In 1974, Miss Kain travelled to Europe with Nureyev and they danced with the Vienna state Opera Ballet.

South Africans Get TV

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — South Africans will be switching on television sets for the first time next January—and their reaction "to the world is likely to provide some fascinating data for modern sociologists.

The belated introduction of a full-time television service—South Africa is the last developed country to do so—will give scientists the opportunity to study the effects of TV from the grass-roots stage.

Many South Africans fear television may lead to a degeneration of moral standards. They say there is solid evidence from overseas that it is harmful, and the country's radio stations and newspapers have been quick to report its dangers.

Too much violence and sex on television is plaguing other nations, they say, not to mention the anti-social effect it has by keeping people in their homes glued to the screen for hours on end.

To monitor these effects, particularly on children, the South African Human Sciences Research Council has set up a special experimental project in association with the Rand Afrikaans University and University of Stellenbosch.

"We are interested in television's possible effect on people's attitudes and opinions, the effect on stereotypes concerning other people and their effect on the other mass media," said Dr. P. J. Conradie, a senior research officer on the project.

"We will also be watching for possible changes in the way people utilize their leisure hours and their motives in doing so."

Even before last May, when the first test programs started in South Africa, the research project was busy gathering as much information as possible about the conditions prevailing before the introduction of television.

South Africa's many different language and population groups have been involved in the data gathering in samples of 3,000 people at a time.

"Using these results as baseline data, we hope it will be possible to draw more meaningful conclusions later," he said Dr. Conradie.

"Say, for example, we find that after a few years those children with television at home tend to act in a certain way. Knowing how widespread this behavior was before television came into the picture should help to put the reported changes into better perspective.

"What is needed is not speculation but rather scientific research. Criticism based on isolated incidents is unfortunate since it can detract from the real value that television may have," said Dr. Conradie.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Sat., Oct. 4

Aries (March 21-April 19) Someone whose co-operation you need is still undecided as to whether to help you at this time. More convincing by you is required.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Soon you will find yourself involved in a new hobby or project. You may begin to lay the foundations for it today.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) There'll be more to a social encounter today than first meets the eye. An interesting relationship with an unusual person could exist.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You will now begin to make some changes you've been thinking about that will affect your family, too.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Plans you're formulating should be given adequate time to jell. Don't get off to a poor start by being too impulsive.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Financial situations will be tricky today, so manage them with caution. You will come out on top if you're prudent.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Your best interests won't be served if you let yourself be swayed by one whose aims aren't in accord with yours. Choose your companions wisely.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Persons whom you treat compassionately today will not too soon forget. In time, and in their own way, you'll be repaid.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Use the soft-sell today with friends. Gentle persuasion will chalk up points that could never won by coming on heavy.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19) Don't be impatient if reward or praise you due you is slow in coming. Your accomplishments will not go unnoticed much longer.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You could talk yourself out of a good idea today if you lay it on too strongly. Express your thoughts out only on persons who can evaluate them.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) A chain of events will lead up to an opportunity that will be materially rewarding. It will come more from the efforts of another.

Severe Constipation Requires Attention

By G. C. THORSTEDT, MD

Dear Dr. Thorstedt: I have a severe constipation. You say not to use laxatives frequently, but this is the only method I can use to get rid of the accumulation. Bowel movements are very painful. I exercise lots and eat a fairly well-balanced diet.

Prune juice just gives me gas. After a bit of gas, I do get some relief. I tried walking eight days, still no action without a laxative. I am 25-year-old, 5 feet 2 inches, weighing 115 pounds. I've had to go to hospital for impaction.

My husband gives me brewer's yeast. I tried drinking a lot of water. This has been going on for most of my life. — Mrs. D.M.

Yours is what I would classify as a "true constipation," one requiring some careful attention. If you are not already under a physician's care for your problem, you should be. I would have to assume, since you have had to be hospitalized for impaction, that you are getting attention for it.

You should have a complete examination of your digestive tract, including x-rays of your colon to determine if there is any structural defect, such as a "kinking." Yeast can encourage the defecation reflex.

Nerves can be involved. After nearly a lifetime of constipation, this might well be a factor now if it wasn't in the beginning.

Nervous persons often do not allow sufficient time for natural bowel action. They may, for example, arise in the morning, eat a breakfast, then launch into activity without allowing a natural defecation urge to assert itself. A morning bowel movement can be an important first step toward regularity.

A stool softening medication might help you. You don't mention having used one. A new drug is available that is dioctyl sodium sulfosuccinate. It is marketed under several brands.

But it would seem that nothing short of this is very complete examination of your entire digestive system is going to start you on the road to recovery from this terribly annoying situation.

Dear Dr. Thorstedt: I am worried about my sister. She is 40 and is a doctor to lose weight, and he is giving her thyroid tablets. I'm afraid it will harm her heart, which I understand it can do. I would like your opinion. — Mrs. M.P.

I can't render an opinion because too much information is lacking. True, hypothyroidism usually does not require a large dose of medication to correct it. If she was getting a toxic dose, however, she would be very nervous, have a tremor, a fast pulse, gain weight, and be pretty irritable.

Taking thyroid as a weight reduction measure is not good practice unless there is definite evidence of low thyroid function. Her doctor presumably has established this and is probably seeing her regularly. So why not let him handle the advice?

Dear Dr. Thorstedt: Can certain drugs cause canker sores? Mrs. E.M.

A food allergy is the commonest source of this. However some drugs (tetracycline is one) can cause disturbance of the mucous membranes of the mouth.

Greed works inevitable ruin

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

"Greed is a terrible thing," soliloquized the bridge philosopher. "I remember some thirty odd years ago when I was first playing Blackwood, I got into some bad luck cost me a team match.

"I sat South and after North bumped in diamonds and rebid the suit. I went into Blackwood and found that he held three aces, but not one missing king.

"A little thought convinced me that he must hold seven diamonds. So I counted two spades, three hearts, seven diamonds and a club and bid seven notrump. It was quite a shock to find that the ace and king would produce only one spade trick. Still, things weren't hopeless. Hearts may break. Or there would be a heart-club squeeze if one defender held the heart stopper and both club stoppers. Or the defence might slip. None of these things happened and I had to go one down.

"Then, to make the whole thing doubly bad, the other table in the match sitting North and South were bidding some silly mixture of nonsense and got all the way to three notrump. We hadn't bought the line of the seven diamonds. Any slam would have won the match for us.

Ask the Jacobys

A Winnipeg reader wants to know if there were life members before there were master points.

The answer is a resounding yes and no. The original master concept, was to give winners and high finishers in a few major events master points. Then some one thought of "master points." A schedule was adopted; points were awarded retroactively for previous events and 10 original life masters were established. That was 40 years ago and they were a hardy bunch. Eight including Oswald and Jacoby are still alive and playing bridge.

Win at Bridge

Invents Canadian History Games

TORONTO (CP)—Creating games for youngsters from Grade 1 up is not all fun and games as an 18-year-old University of Toronto student found out this summer.

Peter Webber of Toronto headed a $8,000 Opportunities for Youth project involving 10 games about Canadian history. He said the basic idea behind the project was to make the games on the market which could be used in schools or at home to focus on Canadian history.

"There's a lot of games about American history but very few about Canadian history," he said.

Mr Webber and three other teen-agers spent part of their summer researching history books to find suitable subjects. Long hours were spent on the mechanics of the games along with repeated testings looking for faults.

The Battle of Landy's Lane was chosen as the strategy game because the last skirmish between Canada and the United States near Queenston was won by the Canadians, he said.

The battle was fairly balanced and allows players to reflect a different outcome than that recorded in the history books. The object of the game is not to recreate history but to make the battle as the player sees it.

The game contains simplified geography of the area, charts and rules and is best played by two people or teams.

Research produced the dice game, the Canadian Pacific Hall, in which players move along a route and act according to cards picked up. This game is intended to simulate the problems encountered during the construction from 1881 to 1885 of the railroad.

Proceeds from the project will go to a non-profit organization.

Production Program Still Survives

NOGALES, Ariz. (AP) — An program designed to bolster the economy in the area along the border between the United States and Mexico is surviving simple attacks caused by inflation and recession in both countries.

The idea behind the program is to combine Mexican labor with U.S. technology and capital. The products range from pocket calculators to baseball gloves.

U.S. business provides the equipment, technology and management for manufacturing processes which require more labor than labor. The actual work is done in Mexico. The Mexican government cut red taps to make it possible to take equipment, raw materials and components south of the border duty-free.

Once the products are assembled, they are brought to the United States. The company has to pay duty only on the amount of value added in Mexico.

Dr. Jerry Ladman, an economist at Arizona State University in Tempe who specializes in Mexican economics, said manufacturing was promoted by the Mexican government "as a means of trying to boost the economy of border communities."

U.S. labor unions have complained that the U.S. government has helped Mexican steel jobs which belong to American workers.

But Ladman and several U.S. businessmen contacted with the program don't believe the Mexican-made products have hurt U.S. labor.

If a company couldn't go across the border and do this, it couldn't produce the product in many cases," says Ladman. "Or it would produce it in Taiwan or some place where the money wouldn't get done in the U.S. to the economy."

Responses by U.S. business had been enthusiastic until the beginning of the recent economic downturn in 1973-74, said Ladman.

By 1973, the twin-plant concept had spawned 85 plants in Matamoros, across the border from Calexico, Calif. An estimated 55,000 workers were employed in 13 border town participating in the program. Two major participants are the sister cities of Nogales, Ariz., population 13,000, and Nogales, Mex., with 150,000 residents.

Sabetski Confident

IIHF Picture Still Fogged

TORONTO (CP) — The International Ice Hockey Federation's membership recruiting drive in Canada has met with a lukewarm reception but the federation president is still confident Canada will be back in the world championship tournament in 1977.

IIHF president Gunther Sabetski of West Germany arrived here Thursday and announced that he has found support among officials of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, conditional support from the World Hockey Association, but little support from the National Hockey League.

Sabetski told a news conference following meetings with WHA officials that the IIHF wants to do everything possible to bring Canada back into the world championship competition.

Since 1969 when it pulled out of the world tournament, Canada has refused to send a team because it couldn't send its best players—the NHL and WHA professionals.

"Always they said 'we will come again to the world championship if we can bring our best team.' Now it is on the side of the Canadian ice hockey federation to fulfill the promise."

Sabetski was referring to the IIHF decision at its last congress to allow professionals to participate in the world championships. The international body also recommended Canada be allowed back into the Group A tournament, providing other Group A countries agreed.

"But all players must be in good standing with our federation," said Sabetski. "They must be under the control of a member of our federation. In Canada that means the CAHA."

In addition, Sabetski said, the NHL and WHA have been invited to join the IIHF as associate members, giving them the right to attend federation meetings but without voting privileges.

He said WHA chairman Ben Hatskin had pledged to help field a Canadian team and said the league would likely take advantage of the associate membership but this would still have to be approved by the league members.

He said NHL president Clarence Campbell had also said he would submit the membership issue to the league owners but Campbell had said he foresees problems in the NHL becoming an associate of the IIHF. He said Campbell also objected to the fact the NHL would still have to use the CAHA as a bargaining agent in international dealings.

Sabetski said he planned to meet today with Alan Eagleson, executive-director of the NHL Players Association.

A major stumbling block still in the way of Canadian professionals joining a Canadian national team is the timing of the world championships and Sabetski said Thursday the IIHF is prepared to make adjustments up to a point.

He said the dates of the world championship, now set for April 5-20 might be moved back to start April 20 to allow more Canadian pros to play, but not any later. He said this might not allow some players involved in late NHL and WHA playoffs to join the Canadian team but the majority of North American pros would be finished by then.

He said European soccer finals and warm weather rule out a later date for the hockey championship.

The IIHF looks forward to having Canada in the 1977 championship, said Sabetski. Gordon Juckes, CAHA executive director, explained that there are too many details to work out in time for Canada to enter the 1976 championships in Poland.

Hawk coach Paul Emms pulled goaltender Kevin Walton with 70 seconds left and former Marlboro Ron Wilson scored 13 seconds later with the Hawks' net vacant.

But with time running out the Marlboros forced a faceoff in the St. Catharines end and Doug Feasby and John Anderson set up Smrke with the game-winning goal.

Bernie Johnston had two Toronto goals and Feasy one. Tim Sheridan got the other St. Catharines goals.

CIA Action Group Planned Removal of Foreign Leaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — The CIA established a small "executive action" group in the early 1960s authorized to develop plans for removing foreign leaders from office by means that included assassination, officials said Friday.

Senator Frank Church (Dem. Idaho), chairman of the Senate intelligence committee, confirmed the existence of the CIA group Friday, but refused to provide details on its actions until his committee issues a full report on alleged CIA assassination plots, expected sometime this month.

He did say that the group was never used to plot an actual killing of a foreign leader.

A committee staff member said the group apparently "petered out" in 1963. He said it is not known whether late President John F. Kennedy knew of the existence of the group.

Church said the operation of the group was not connected with the CIA's alleged plot in 1961 to poison Cuban Premier Fidel Castro in conjunction with the unsuccessful Bay of Pigs invasion.

A former high CIA official, who declined to be identified, also confirmed the group's existence.

Both the former official and intelligence committee staff member David Aaron identified the head of the group as William Harvey, whose name previously has figured in accounts of CIA plots against Castro.

Harvey, a lawyer in Indianapolis now, has declined comment on his alleged role in assassination plots.

Aaron said the term executive action referred to any plan designed "to remove unfriendly or undesirable men of influence in a foreign state."

"Assassination is one way to remove them," he said. "A coup is another, shipping him off to the Riviera is another."

It remained unclear where in the Kennedy administration the request for executive action planning originated or when it was made.

The first public hint of the group's existence came in the prepared text of a speech Senator Walter Mondale was scheduled to give Friday at Denison College in Granville, Ohio.

In that speech, Mondale, a Minnesota Democrat and a member of the intelligence committee, said that both Richard Helms, a former CIA director, and Richard Bissell, former head of the CIA's clandestine operations, "have claimed that they had higher level authorizations for setting up and running an institutionalized assassination capability within the CIA called executive action."

Neither Helms, U.S. ambassador to Iran now, nor Bissell, a business consultant in Hartford, Conn., could be reached for comment.

Inferno Destroys B.C. Grain Tower

Harry Mulhall

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP) — Three government agencies plan investigations into an explosion and fire Friday which resulted in the death of one man and injuries to 18 others at a grain elevator tower on Burrard Inlet.

The provincial fire marshal's branch, the accident prevention branch of the federal labor department and the North Vancouver city fire department's prevention branch said they will attempt to find out what caused the multi-million-dollar inferno which occurred when massive explosions ripped apart a 400-foot tower.

Burrard Terminals Ltd., owned by James Richardson and Sons Ltd. of Winnipeg, will also carry out its own investigation, along with Local 333 of the Grain Workers Union.

The explosions were followed by a fierce blaze which turned the elevator into a white-hot torch for two hours before being brought under control by land and sea firefighters from three municipalities.

Edward Hooper of North Vancouver, a grain weighman working on the top floor who apparently helped two colleagues escape, was reported missing and presumed dead.

The injured workers were taken to a North Vancouver hospital and eight of the more seriously injured were transferred to the intensive care and burn units of nearby Vancouver General Hospital.

Three of the injured were listed in critical condition.

One of the injured was treated in North Vancouver and released. A fireman cut his wrist on a broken window and also was treated and released.

Mike Kinney, 25, an employee for 1½ years with the Canadian grain commission, said his ground-floor office next to the elevator where the fire apparently started, exploded.

"The force knocked me back and then a sheet of flames came by here," he said in a hospital interview, putting his hand out several feet from his head.

"After the first explosion the flames rolled out like a wave. My boss got blown right by me in a sheet of flame.

"I jumped up from the desk and was getting ready to jump out the window when the second blast came and knocked me through."

Mr. Kinney said he twisted his leg. He said he made his way to hospital and was later released.

A witness said Mr. Hooper was one of several men who tried to put out a small fire in a conveyer belt just before the explosion.

The fire presumably ignited the explosive grain dust in the elevator.

Witnesses said some of the injured had the clothes burned from their backs as they fled.

Electrician Barney Chapman, who escaped injury because he was in an adjacent storage shed getting equipment, said he heard two explosions in quick succession.

"There was a fire in the conveyor belt at the top floor where it brings up grain to be weighed," said Mr. Chapman. "Some of the men were fighting it with extinguishers . . . it must have started by friction.

Candu Sale Close

TOKYO (Reuter) — Canada and South Korea are in the final stage of talks on a bilateral safeguard agreement to permit the sale of a Canadian nuclear reactor to South Korean utilities, Canadian Science Minister C. M. (Bud) Drury said today.

South Korea signed financial arrangements for the sale of the Candu water power reactor with Canada's Export Development Corp. in May.

Drury, here for a four-day visit, said the agreement is an essential condition of purchase but "the problem now is getting the right kind of words."

He expects the agreement to be signed in the near future after nine months of negotiations.

He also told a news conference that two Japanese power utilities, the Tokyo Electric Power Co. and the Kansai Electric Power Co., are interested in the Canadian heavy water reactor.

A Trip Cancelled

The Kohlers — ending Canadian holiday — are guests of former mayor Robin Jeffrey who had arranged their plane trip with airport's Jim Marker.

Mystery Memoirs May Provide Detail

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The memoir of a kidnapper, found by federal investigators Friday in the last hideout of Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA) members Bill and Emily Harris, may tell the inside story of the Feb. 4, 1974 kidnapping of Patty Hearst.

"My life really changed a year ago. On Feb. 4, I proved to myself and we all proved to each other that we were guerrillas," begins the 24-page typed manuscript. Officials say they are not sure who wrote it.

The FBI indicated, however, that the document is only one of several original literary efforts left behind by captured SLA members.

There was no indication of whether Miss Hearst might be the author of any of the manuscripts.

The sworn affidavit saying Miss Hearst was neither willingly joined the SLA was presented to U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter in an effort to win Miss Hearst release on bail. She faces trial on federal bank robbery charges here and in Los Angeles on assault and kidnapping charges.

Psychiatrists are scheduled to report Tuesday whether Miss Hearst is competent to stand trial on dirty cross-examination on the affidavit.

Canada May Join Russia In Space

TOKYO (Reuter) — Canadian Science Minister C. M. (Bud) Drury said today that Canadian and Soviet space officials have discussed the possibility of space co-operation between the countries.

Drury, on a four-day visit to Japan, told a news conference that "very tentative" discussions took place about five weeks ago with Soviet officials accompanying Russian cosmonauts visiting Canada.

He said, however, that the possibility "is still in the rather distant future."

The minister is to visit the Japanese Space Centre at Tanegashima in southern Japan before leaving for Hong Kong Monday.

He said Canada has considerable interest in satellites for communications and studying earth resources, and has developed sophisticated space vehicles and components for those purposes.

"But we haven't got and don't intend to have any launching facilities," the minister said.

So far, Canada has been using United States rockets for launching its space vehicles, but now Japan is entering this field.

"I would like to have a look at the prospects for co-operation with them for launching prospects," Drury said.

Irish Volunteer Group Outlawed by Britain

BELFAST (Reuter) — The British government today outlawed the Ulster Volunteer Force (UVF) after the Protestant para-military organization admitted responsibility for shootings and bombings that killed 12 persons Thursday.

The force's assault was directed against Roman Catholic targets across the British-ruled country, but the dead included four force men blown up by their own bomb.

A statement today by Merlyn Rees, state secretary for Northern Ireland, said:

"After the indiscriminate killings for which they have admitted responsibility it has become abundantly clear that the UVF is still wedded to violence including the murder of innocent civilians."

The group was a banned organization until April, 1974, when Rees legalized it, saying there were indications it had forsaken violence for political activity.

Today he said:

"Their activities are an affront against society and in conscience they no longer have the right to be treated as members of a legitimate organization."

The UVF said its offensive was a warning to the Roman Catholic-based Irish Republican Army (IRA) not to renew its campaign of violence in Northern Ireland.

The IRA statement also said that the current policy of "detente" between the British government and the IRA is totally unacceptable to the majority of Protestant loyalists.

The two other Protestant groups on the outlawed list are the Red Hand Commando and the Ulster Freedom Fighters.

In violence Friday night, 15 persons were injured by a bomb that shattered a bar in Londonderry and a man was shot in the shoulder at Dunmurry, near Belfast.

IRA Hold Hostage Until Friends Freed

LIMERICK, Ireland (AP) — Police were searching today for a Dutch industrialist kidnapped by Irish gunmen who threatened to execute their hostage at 8 a.m. local time Sunday unless three Irish Republican Army (IRA) guerrillas are released from prison.

The government refused to deal with the terrorists, saying that to do so would be an "abdication of government responsibility which would undermine the security of the state and lead to the placing of additional life in danger."

Police believe the kidnappers, who abducted Dr. Tiede Herrema, 32, as he drove to work Friday morning, are part of an extremist Irish fringe group beyond the control of the IRA Provisional wing. The Provisionals have denied any involvement in the kidnapping.

Police sources said authorities are seeking a 26-year-old Provisional IRA officer believed married to Rose Dugdale, one of the prisoners named in the terrorists' demands.

Accommodation 'Crucial'

City Surveys Resources For Summer Games

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Data that could decide whether Belleville's 1978 centennial year will see the city as the centre of a major Ontario sports event now is trickling back to local recreation officials.

The event is the Ontario Games, involving athletes from around the province — meeting ever a long weekend in a multi-plicity of events.

The information now filtering into the office of recreation director Clifford Belch has nothing to do with sports facilities.

Mr. Belch doesn't doubt the ability of area community resources to cope with such a kingsize program.

What has to be assessed is a secondary — but crucial — capability: Accommodation.

There are both winter and summer games.

The winter event is a smaller program, hence fewer participants. But, its summer counterpart runs to a roster of events that could ultimately involve up to 2,600 athletes.

Therefore, the significance of Mr. Belch's current assignment. He's surveying hotel and motel operators in the Quinte area to define what accommodation facilities would be available by 1978.

It's the latest outcome of discussions with the province's culture and recreation ministry — overall co-ordinator of the games.

In recent years the community has successfully absorbed a succession of single sports tournaments — including soccer, hockey and lawn bowling. This indicates local competence to hosts to be co-ordinated for the combination of events that make up the Ontario Games, says Mr. Belch.

"There is no question of handling the games," he says. "I think the expertise is in the Quinte area. The over-riding factor is how are you going to house the athletes."

Resolution of the question is basic to any ministry decision on a games site, city council recently was told by Ald. George Zegouras, recreation-arena committee chairman.

Exploration of obtaining the games for Belleville's centennial year was initiated following a suggestion last January by former mayor Robin Jeffrey.

The committee has asked Mr. Belch to report on the district's accommodation capacity by Oct. 21, Ald. Zegouras told council.

Since then, the recreation director has sent out questionnaires to about 30 area hotel-motel operators.

Now, he says, replies are returning at the rate of two or three a day.

Mr. Belch also is sounding out the availability of recreation facilities — including Sir James Whitney school for the deaf, its dormitory space, and other area education authorities about cafeteria resources for catering.

Basing the accommodation assessment on the summer games reveals the capability for meeting maximum demand.

But winter conditions are also a factor in southern Ontario where the climate can turn milder than in the province's northern regions.

Winter games include such events as skiing and speed-skating which depend on reliable outdoor conditions, said Mr. Belch.

Seeking the Details

Latest data from accommodation survey is given Belleville recreation director Clifford Belch by secretary Rita Becker. The statistics being gathered are vital. They show if Quinte area resources can house athletes as city officials ponder possibility of seeking Ontario Games for 1978 centennial.

New Machine Speeds Collection of Taxes

TRENTON — Ratepayers beware. Trenton is getting a new tax collector that will be keeping a closer watch on overdue payments, beginning in January, 1976.

A Swede Date register has been acquired by the town and finance director Brian Fagan says he hopes this will improve the municipality's collection percentage.

"The new machine not only records and gives receipts but it also makes a computer tape print out of all the taxes and interest collected," he said in an interview Friday.

"This will allow the city to send a statement to the computer bank monthly and in return will be provided with up-to-date account records," said Mr. Fagan.

Currently, the municipality's office workers have to go over the records individually to see who has paid their taxes and who is delinquent.

"Not only will this speed up time spent at the counter when ratepayers come to pay their taxes but it will save a lot of manual computing by the clerks," Mr. Fagan said.

Trenton has the fourth highest rate of collection in Hastings area, nine per cent uncollected, with Deseronto by comparison, unable to collect almost 30 per cent of its taxes. (The figures were based on 1974 returns.).

The town hopes to improve its collection record to 95 per cent with the help of the new system and machine.

"Most of the people who are delinquent pay within the Christmas requirements of the town can seize and sell their land for the taxes," Mr. Fagan said. "The town charges one per cent interest per month for overdue payments and this is cheaper than the rates people in light money situation get from the bank."

He said most of the delinquent accounts are paid before they come up for collection.

Motorists More Aware Of Car Maintenance Say Area Servicemen

Today's car owner is becoming more cost conscious and the day of the automotive maintenance rip-off artist is dying, say Belleville car servicemen.

Increased prices of new cars and overall shortage of money are forcing motorists to keep their cars longer and become more conscious of maintenance needs.

"People are beginning to realize their money is running low. They are becoming more business conscious when considering car servicing," said Frank Stevens, manager of King Transmission, 391 Front St.

"Everyone is shopping a lot before they are brought in," said Mr. Stevens.

Mechanics, he said, are no longer being considered "grease monkeys". They are now considered technicians and the days of the "jack of all trades or boys" about 10 to 12 years ago are gone.

"They were always offering bargains on car repairs. There are no bargains."

Mike Bolton, manager of Cottman Transmission, 327 Front St., said motorists are now getting repairs made to cars that a few years ago they would have "junked".

Don Gourley, manager of Goodyear Tire Sales and Service, 4 Bridge St. W., said "People aren't dealing as much as they were".

He said more and more motorists are buying radial tires for cars that are two or three years old. Customers, he said, don't usually invest in longer-lasting radial tires unless they plan to keep the car for three years.

Dick Lloyd, manager of Universal Centre, 30 Dundas St. W., said most of major repairs they make are for car owners planning to keep their cars rather than trade.

"The average driver is smarter today than ever before. He knows what he wants when he comes into a place."

Volunteers Respond

PICTON — Enrolment in the St. John's Ambulance here has more than 50. Following an emergency meeting held this week.

A total of 13 new members were recruited during the recent meeting held at Benson Park Hall.

Superintendent of the Prince Edward County St. John's Unit, Guy Sarault says all new members will receive a first aid course offered through weekly lessons.

A canvass is planned in October to raise funds to meet the Prince Edward unit.

Mr. Sarault said equipment must be upgraded and uniforms must be purchased for members.

No Priorities Breed Confusion

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

The Hastings County Board of Education will ask the ministry of education this fall asking for nearly $20 million to fulfill its requirements over the next three years.

It's the annual capital forecast and and task which becomes increasingly more frustrating for school board officials.

If the board received half of these funds it would indeed be doing well. Normally, the board has applied for these funds based on a priority list. This is due to strict spending limitations placed on boards over the past six years.

The board director Eric Runacres has intimated he thinks there is disparity across the province when it comes to handing out funds. However, he stopped short of saying that Hastings County is not getting its share of the funds.

The board did decide this fall to take a different approach to asking for money from the ministry—instead of listing its capital forecast projects in priority the board has simply supplied the ministry with its over-all objectives.

By this method the board is hoping the ministry will take the responsibility of saying yes or no to projects, whether it be new buildings, renovations and repairs or new educational programs.

This year the board will not be able to take the board's capital forecast and draw a cut-off line when the money runs short.

This may be an innovative approach to board funding but one that may ultimately backfire if the board and the people it serves.

The first thing the ministry will decide is who is in line of a firm direction from the Hastings County Board of Education that someone will have to make a choice and finally form a priority list — no matter how much anyone dislikes them.

The board argues that the ministry is not giving enough to the taxpayers of Hastings County why it has cut certain projects. It is ridiculous, who needs an excuse or reason when the money ruptures out?

If the ministry doesn't come back and ask for a priority list then the system will dispen. Someone in Toronto will be making decisions that should have been done at the local level. Only the individual boards can comprehend and evaluate their own needs.

Budgets and spending limitations are a fact of life and one that the board is more than aware of . If the local board is upset with the funding procedures it should make formal protest to Toronto.

Trenton Tax Collector Al Weaver, left, shows Town Treasurer Brian Fagan the new machine that will speed up service for residents paying taxes at the municipal offices. Mr. Fagan said the machine will provide the town with a computer readout tape that will allow the municipality to monitor overdue accounts every month instead of the current annual review.

Ellis in North to View Exploration for Resources

There are cooler greetings in Ottawa, Ellis, MP Hastings, on his latest parliamentary assignment.

The reason: He's in Canada's northern territories.

Mr. Ellis today is in Yellowknife, one of the stopovers on a resources assessment tour of northern Canada and Alaska by the Commons national resources and public works committee.

The nine-day trip takes the 18-member, all-party committee on an inspection of remote oil and natural gas exploration sites around the Arctic region.

One purpose of the trip is to provide the committee with on-the-spot insights into what's involved with a giant resource project on which one day it expects to evaluate for parliament the proposed Mackenzie Valley pipeline.

The committee left Edmonton Friday for its first stopover at Yellowknife. Sunday, it leaves for Inuvik, near the mouth of the MacKenzie River. Its itinerary after that takes it into such isolated areas as King Christian Island in the Arctic Ocean, and Resolute Bay.

Enroute it will view exploration and research projects, proposed pipeline routes and gather details from officials of various companies engaged in tapping northern energy resources.

Mr. Ellis said he views the trip as vital to any committee decisions on future legislation involving northern resources including the Mackenzie Valley pipeline proposal.

Any legislation on such programs has to be scrutinized in committee — in fact Mr. Ellis said he sees it as "one of our major forthcoming responsibilities."

"We're going to be asked to make such decisions in the next year or two," he said. "And I'm not looking forward to making those decisions without knowing a little more about what is involved."

An on-the-spot inspection is the only way of "getting to know first hand what's going on," said Mr. Ellis.

Gardening Column

Experts Differ On Theories

By ROSS HAWTHORNE

As you may be aware, a course in indoor light gardening started last Tuesday evening at Loyalist College, which is representative of a phenomenon that had its modest start about ten years ago — primarily in the major metropolitan areas. Whether it's the pressure-cooker lifestyle or the gardening limitations imposed by the big city lots, for some reason, city people began to turn in droves to gardening under lights indoors.

Libraries can't keep indoor light gardening books in stock. Lectures on the subject are booked, as soon as they are announced. New businesses, devoted solely to the manufacture of indoor light gardening units, have sprung up and are thriving. And fluorescent tube manufacturers have found a whole new market for so-named "growth tubes", fluorescent tubes that are claimed to have spectral properties that are particularly beneficial to indoor plant propagation, claims that should be treated with healthy degree of scepticism.

For if there is one axiomatic truth in indoor gardening, it is the fact that there's a great deal yet to be learned about the growing of plant materials under lights. And the more you read, the more this fact becomes evident.

Experts are constantly contradicting other experts. Claims are continually being counter-claimed. Light engineers are always ready to point out the things that cannot be done. But people are going ahead and doing them with tremendous success. For example: At one time a friend of mine was advised that a light set up where several hundred violet leaves were being used to propagate new plants, could never be moved to other violets and bring them into flower. Now, it's a good thing he didn't have this information over the previous months, because in its ignorance, he'd already used that same set up to mature hundreds of new violet plantlets into mature, bloom-loaded plants.

The whole point of this diatribe is this. If you want to get into indoor light gardening — do it. But in the process, don't ask too many "experts" how to do it, or you may become too discouraged to try. Instead, talk to the people who are doing it, because they in fact are the real experts in terms of indoor light gardening on a domestic scale. What is really what you are interested in.

Now make no mistake. Great strides are being made in crop propagation under lights at such institutions as Guelph University. But in terms of foliage and flowering plants, the propagation from seed of annuals, perennials and vegetables on a limited bases, it's the amateurs who are leading the way.

You can enter the world of indoor light gardening with as little equipment as an old table top, a fluorescent fixture, some seed or cuttings, a rooting or seeding medium and some containers that will hold the medium and allow for drainage. And progress to a room garden a whole room converted with shelving, fluorescents and means for controlling temperature and humidity.

But no matter the scale of your participation, the reason for getting into indoor light gardening are viable, no matter whether you live in an apartment or on a 200-acre farm. And we'll get into some of these reasons next week.

Lack of Action Hurting Town

BY JERRY BROWN

It is time for Trenton to start making decisions about the future and not leave all the planning to studies and reports being prepared by and for other counties and municipalities.

In the light of the continual questioning of projected population fulfilment in reports prepared by the Quinte Planning Board (QPB) it seems incredible council has not authorized or at least explored the possibility of hiring an independent consultant to prepare a concrete development plan for the municipality.

Trenton seems to be like a young person at a crossroads being tempted by the bright light of Belleville on the east and the west, clear smell of Murry Township farmland on the west.

Should it decide to throw its lot in with Belleville it is time for council and all Trentonians to assume some responsibility and get involved in Quinte area planning.

If not, who can we turn to when the town is suffering at the expense of other municipalities? Is it fair to cry about the glorious opportunities Belleville seems to be getting, or the great development strides in industry and residential growth without looking first at ourselves and wondering where we have gone wrong.

It seems council, and the rest of the town, is content to sit back and wait for neighboring areas to magically develop and drag Trenton along with them.

The only problem with such a stagnant planning program is, while everyone else is making great leaps forward, and surroundling areas are growing stronger, all Trenton will be left with is the seeds or remnants for the fruits of the other municipalities' labors.

Fair Grounds Need Protection

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — The open door policy at Picton fairgrounds is an engraved invitation for vandals and hot-rodders to do their thing without interference by police and public.

The mansion-style iron gates swung back at the entrance to the fair-grounds pack as much punch as a Doberman with dentures. They are never closed leaving the property open to the public at all times.

The proof of such folly has been well documented during the month of September.

Shortly after the Prince Edward County fair the County Centre was entered and a number of hockey sweaters taken. The Picton Public Utilities commission barn at the fairgrounds also was entered and a number of tools stolen.

Then there was the mini-blaze that broke out when vandals set fire to two large ropes that bar vehicles from the track where harness horses are trained.

Last weekend the canteen at the County Centre was the target for thieves who took $70 worth of candy.

Fortunately, most of the vandalism on the fairgrounds has not been too serious and the police have been prompt in solving break-ins and thefts.

Unfortunately, the Prince Edward Agricultural Society and Prince Edward County council are blinded shrouting off the incident apparently convinced that nothing really bad can happen.

Such complacency is inexcusable and this "do nothing" approach is courting disaster.

The fair board, Prince Edward County council and any other groups involved should review the open door aspect of the fairgrounds with an eye to curbing vandalism and preventing real disaster.

In few other communities are facilities such as the county fairgrounds left open unsupervised year around to the whims of the public. All public property should be used but there is a distinct line between using a site and offering it as a playing ground for vandals and stunt drivers.

Student Farm Visit

Part-time farmer Murray Campbell, of Rednersville Road, shows Grade 2 students a hen during their visit to his farm this week at RR 1 Carrying Place. About 30 students of Sir Winston Churchill school had a tour of apple orchards. Principal Don Morton (in background) accompanied student on the outing.

Part-time Farmer Enjoys Experimenting with Crops

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

REDNERSVILL E — At Campbell and Sons making a hobby out of the fruits of their labors is a family affair.

Apples are their primary farm crop but they grow anything from corn to squash, keep bees and have a rooster determined to wake the family every morning at 3:30 a.m.

Although Murray Campbell has a full-time job, he spends the rest of his time on the 80-acre farm straddling Rednerville Road, RR 1 Carrying Place.

He doesn't describe his haven as a working farm, or a hobby farm, but as a roadside market.

"If you don't like people you can forget about this type of operation,' said Mr. Campbell, who moved from Toronto seven years ago knowing nothing about apple trees and less about farming.

His wife, June, mans the roadside stand during the week. On weekends cars line both sides of the road as visitors stop to buy fruit and vegetables or pick their own.

Sons Colin, 17, and Stuart, 13, aren't paid for work on the farm. During the summer and on weekends they pack the family car and sell produce at the Belleville and Trenton markets.

This year, the brothers were growing their own field of pumpkins.

"We've got some things no one else in the area grows."

Few farmers grow spaghetti squash,a vegetable fairly new to the area, said Mrs. Campbell. After being boiled for an hour it is served just like spaghetti.

Mr. Campbell said that because he does not make a living from the farm he has the opportunity to experiment.

His half-acre plot of grapes is probably largest in the county, just as an experiment.

The department of agriculture, said Mr. Campbell, "maintains its not a grape growing area." He's determined to prove them wrong.

Vines planted three years ago are doing "excellent" and he expects a crop for wine-making next year.

They also have about a dozen bee hives. The bees help pollinate the apple trees.

"I'm not a bee keeper. I just bought some bees at an auction one day. They're fascinating little bugs."

As well as helping the trees Mr. Campbell said they sell all the honey they produce. They've had the bees about three years.

"You have to have some confidence with them. I get them upset and get stung through my sting-proof gloves.'

Reminder of a Heritage of Military Service That Remains Relevant Today

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

There was old-fashioned military pageantry in Toronto the other evening, traditional uniforms, the bright red splash of regimental mess kits, the spectrum of color on them from the miniature medals and decorations of warriors old and new.

The event was a private and formal mess dinner at the Royal Canadian Military Institute in that city, what that distinguished club of excellent Mess Dinners.

The speaker in his white mess jacket with a full panoply of rainbow-hued miniatures, was Maj. Gen. Bruce Legge, the big man in charge of the Canadian Armed Forces Reserves. And he was talking quietly and convincingly to the members of his club, both regular veteran and the young commanding officers of the reserve units, about the need for our reserve forces.

The reserve unit commanders came from Ottawa, Toronto Sound, Barrie, the Ottawa Valley, the Ingersoll-Stratford strand.

They came to mix congenially, young officers and old, with a common devotion to a military role for Canadians in this anti-military and indifferent time.

But this was not a "trumpet and drum" affair, for thirty past wars or rattle the sabre in anticipation of new ones. But as Gen. Legge reminded them in his dinner address, they remain an important element in Canadian society, with special and essential roels in our past demand they have a wider role in our present.

With our armed forces, permanent as well as reserve, the quiet-spoken Legge admitted the Canadian concept of an officer in uniform has been faulted, like so many other Canadian institutions, by our odious comparisons with the very different American experience.

The public's concept of a Canadian officer in uniform is more often conditioned by the mass publicity given to a Lieut. Calley, the ex-American officer still in trouble for his alleged role in the massacre of 100 Vietnamese peasants at Mallai in 1968.

This kind of thing was and is not in the Canadian military experience by our time, Legge said, the Canadian public refuse to accept the traditional one of Canadians who devote time and talents to reserve forces training for an event like 1914 and 1939 when Canada twice became a belligerent for legitimate and honorable motives.

In a way what Gen. Legge is struggling against, in the "new" event, a formal military dinner in an ex-officers' club was a "period piece" in modern post-Anglo-Saxon Canada.

What might have been happening in Toronto that same late September evening in the nearby Ukrainian or Polish cultural centres, at the Sikh Temple or the Legion Branch Club, has more reference to more Canadian reality. It was than a plea we show more respect and regard for the Canadian who still serves in his country's uniform.

But even if the major thrust of Canadian life today is taking place in these other depositories of our national life, they flourish and add to the Canadian mosaic because others had made a personal sacrifice in uniform to preserve the nation the old and the new Canada.

Gen. Legge's plea for a larger place for the reserves and the presence at this dinner of so many reserve representatives of historic militia units, formed then that Canadian society's new boys, were reminders of a heritage of service and devotion to country which had gone before.

Society and Progress

What today is called "quality of life" may not be found in its entirety in the life of the big city, but in the ultimate isn't it what you are used to that counts?

Some people in big cities reach a point when "enough's enough" and they find a pad somewhere in the country and there they farm, or collect antiques, or some such thing. Others may find a change of this sort too great . . . they are unhappy with the great outdoors and the silence and the isolation. They miss the city.

And there are those who do make it, the more so when it is forced upon them — such as the ex-TBM engineer whose small farm was expropriated in the wake of the great Pickering airport hassle and now lives in Madoc where he makes a good living building custom furniture.

That, from a recent Globe and Mail story about the disruption that entered people's lives as a result of the government's initial moves to establish a new airport in the Pickering area.

The abandonment of the Pickering project is known to most by now, although not before much physical damage had been done — by way of home demolition — and what is worse, psychological trauma engendered in those home dwellers who were affected.

This among people whose "quality of life" possibly had achieved a balance better than most — exclusive in the city combined with home in the pleasant rural communities in the Toronto hinterland.

Not much need for anyone living there to contemplate moving elsewhere. But then the Pickering thing developed and lives were abruptly changed. Although those who fought the project, under the banner of "People or Planes," won the battle, it left many scars.

The man living in Madoc is quoted as saying he now becomes enraged when talking about government. And a POP official says "there are families who have gone through absolute agony . . . people found their lives being destroyed around them." There's a woman who has had to see a psychiatrist, and her 14-year-old son who also experienced upset.

Of course there are always the adventurers and the vagabonds and those who make a life of wanderlust. For most though, we are creatures of habit. Disrupt the cycle and it can spell trouble. Quality of life? It's largely what you're used to.

Search for a Home

The plight of a Cannifton Road family of eight and their fruitless search for accommodation is a sad tale, but one without villains.

Certainly not the Moira River Conservation Authority, who have given Fred and Marjorie Thompson rent-free accommodation since their dwelling and five adjacent ones were purchased last November.

All the houses, except for the Thompson home, have been vacated since early summer as the Conservation Authority plans to demolish them to make way for the new ice control dam north of the College St. bridge.

The Thompsons and their six children have explored every avenue from the Ontario Housing Corporation to city real estate listings in an unsuccessful effort to relocate.

But, as an OHC spokesman said, you just don't find many four and five-bedroom apartments coming up for rent these days.

The Thompsons have been caught between progress and the trend towards small families, and it appears nothing short of a palace will put a roof over their heads.

Never Too Late!

Fatherhood at the age of 74, which has been the experience of retired Calgary hydro worker Bill Carpenter, is a good effort but not unique.

There was the sprightly Montrealer we read of a few years ago whose age was cited as 83 when he was said to have a daughter of 21.

Some celebrities are among fathers of advanced years — such as Bing Crosby and Cary Grant, both of whom are 71. Crosby's family by his second wife, actress Kathryn Grant, is growing up, but Cary Grant (no relation) became a father when he was past 60. His then wife, actress Dyan Cannon, gave birth to a daughter.

Liberals Face Leadership Void

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — The Liberals are not whistling Dixie when they look to Ottawa, and particularly John Turner, to bail them out.

The provincial Liberals are in a rut, and a spot that appears worse the more you look at it.

Robert Nixon has resigned. This was received well by most people who felt that the party had gone as far as it would ever go under the Nixon leadership.

But now the question is whether it will do as well without him as it would have with him.

Under his continuing leadership, it might at least have held the line.

But with the present political circumstances, nobody can say with any certainty just what may be likely to happen.

The key problem is that an election can arrive at any time. Presumably it won't be until after the party has been able to name a new leader.

But then it could come at practically a moment's notice. It certainly is expected within a year.

And this means there will be very little time to try and build up the image of a new leader.

Unless a widely-known figure such as Turner can be turned up, such a building will be necessary.

And it would appear that the opportunity for it simply won't be there.

If a member of the present caucus should win the honor, it is true he will have some scope to display his talents in the house.

But this probably will be a very limited opening.

The key confrontation in the house, particularly in the media, will be between Stephen Lewis and Premier Davis.

Unless he has considerable ingenuity, a Liberal leader will run a poor third in the reporting. It is this reporting which will be all-important to him.

If Turner (and this is most unlikely) or another federal man should go for the job and win it, they also would be on the spot.

It is unlikely that a new man from outside the house could win a seat before an election.

And that would mean he is in the almost impossible position of trying to lead from the outside.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

A special gathering will be held in the St. Thomas Parish House this Sunday to honor Mrs. Robinson and the Rev. W. J. Robinson who has been named rector of St. John's Church, Ottawa. He is succeeded by Canon A.S. McConnell, of Trenton.

In Trenton at the last council meeting it was suggested that the town purchase for park and recreational purposes all land between Bay Street and the Trent River and the Bay of Quinte, more familiarly known as the old Gilmour Homestead yard. The land has been acquired by a mining company which proposed to erect a concentrator on it.

Arab Oil Cartel is Still Flexing Its Muscles

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The world oil market has been in turbulent headlines again. As usual, the news is bad.

—A 10 per cent increase in the world price has been agreed upon by the Arab-dominated producers' cartel, thus dashing hopes that the monopoly might be falling apart.

—The level of exploration for badly needed new oil and gas reserves in Canada is not rising and may even be declining.

—Canada's so-called national oil policy, nearly two years old, appears to have accomplished little or nothing in the direction of self-sufficiency in oil.

Taken together, they point to a wretched outlook for Canadians who depend upon petroleum-based energy—which, in the final analysis, includes almost all of us.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), after maintaining a fixed price of $10.46 (U.S.) per barrel throughout the first nine months of this year, increased it to $11.51 at the beginning of this month.

The cartel's members have been self-righteous about their "restraint" in selling a smaller volume of oil this year and—because of inflation—getting less for it in real terms.

But even before the latest increase, the price of Middle Eastern oil was more than 10 times the actual cost to the monopoly suppliers.

This monthly increase will inevitably the misery of international recession—especially in the poorer countries of the world—that resulted from the 1973 oil-price explosion.

It will also be an obstacle to recovery from that recession, and put a damper on any possible revival of world trade.

And, as with past price increases dictated by the monopoly, the Oct. 1 increase will help to accelerate inflation out of proportion to its 10 per cent size.

Example: Another cartel, the Montreal-based International Air Transport Association, let it be known that airfares may go up 32 per cent as a direct result of the OPEC action.

Since fuel accounts for about 25 per cent of the typical scheduled airline's operating costs, a fare increase of three per cent—six for transpacific routes—is legitimately blamed on the OPEC price increase. But it is not just that.

The industrialized oil-consuming countries have been surprisingly complacent about OPEC's latest price-gouging—although there may be little that they can do when confronted with a cartel that has shown its ability to set any price, no matter how preposterous.

Canada, too, has been showing little sense of urgency about the future of oil supply and price.

What has been displayed, instead, is a short-sighted reliance upon Canada's known but diminishing reserves, and upon our ability to offset the higher cost of OPEC oil in Eastern Canada with a higher export tax on Western Canadian crude.

Exploration and development are being curtailed by major oil companies, especially those with heavy marketing commitments in Eastern Canada where their selling prices have been frozen for three months.

As a result, the Canadian industry is being more negligent of its geophysicists and skilled technicians.

That loss will be felt sorely when Canada's oil industry eventually sets up its search for new oil and gas—as it must.

For now, however, the industry remains almost immobilized by conflicting federal and provincial jurisdictional pressures, and the absence of an effective national oil policy.

Children's Responsibility For Their Own Safety

Ottawa Journal

The community's horror at the abduction and murder of 10-year-old Patricia Seesink is heightened by the realization that this was a random sort of crime that could have happened to anybody's child. No matter how many precautions are taken against recurrence, the overwhelming feeling is one of helplessness. Against the psychotic mentality, there are only minimum defences.

Every parent, the schools, every agency that can possibly help reduce the chances of such crimes occurring must of course do their utmost. But parents can't always be with their children when they might be in danger; the school can't keep track of every child at all times. Protection of children ultimately falls to the children themselves.

Children find it as hard as adults to live every moment as if danger were present. Our society does not operate on fear. Unless there is a sudden change in the social climate this will continue for the foreseeable future to be a country in which trust rather than suspicion dominates.

In the aftermath of these horrible crimes, the tendency is to emphasize vengeance, and nowhere more than among the inmates of jails. But it would more usefully be a time to emphasize prevention. Our society is woefully weak in recognizing potentially dangerous criminals before they have done their worst. One of the reasons why rehabilitation has achieved only modest success in the Canadian penal system is that most of these attempts come far too late in the life of the criminal. There can never be a perfect preventive justice system — some people will be criminals regardless — but the odds against random horrors could be improved.

LETTERS

In Defence of Hunting

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I would like to comment on two articles, one by M. Sprackett (Sept. 20) and the other by the Montreal Gazette (Sept. 23).

Mr. Sprackett objects to hunting, that's fine. I do not. I enjoy hunting whether or not the hunt is successful. I enjoy getting away from civilization too much to heed the "civilities" on Mother Nature. I don't take any hostilities with me when I go hunting.

I am not attempting to put meat on my table, either meat that I have hunted, or meat that I have bought from a store. I don't like soybeans, in any form.

So, Mr. Sprackett, if you do not wish to hunt, that is your business, but I do not need your conscience to be my guide.

If you enjoy birdwatching or animal photography, you are, in reality, hunting. You are attempting, unarmed, in its native habitat, trying to get a "trophy", either by numerical count of a certain species or a photograph. Both you are putting your best against the animal to succeed. I don't like hunting birdwatchers, by the way, either.

Support conservation and buy a hunting license, nearly all conservation programs have been started by hunters and are supported by hunters, both directly and indirectly.

Also, I would like to comment on The Gazette article titled "The Shadow of the Assassin in the U.S." This article tends to blame hunters and other firearm owners for the trouble in the U.S. today.

However, if the author would care to look across the road to the UK and Ireland, where owning a firearm is not a common thing, there are "assassinations" URKA and IRA, murders as a result of bombings going on all the time.

Just last year, 18 of my memory serves me correct, Princess Anne and her husband escaped injury during an armed kidnap attempt that was foiled by her driver and her security guard. That happened in London, England, where one needs several permits to own a firearm legally and most people do not own firearms. These incidents are happening in countries where the general public does not own firearms, so don't use the excuse that the main reason it is happening in the U.S. is because the general public owns firearms.

Put the blame where it belongs. That many law abiders who are more worried about protecting criminal's rights than they are about the victim's and future victim's safety. Jaywalkers who make you feel criminal if you discipline your children, much much worse than rudeness and leniency towards criminals and the people who commit vandalism upwards.

These people should be dealt with successfully hamstrung the police and the only time we turn to the police is when we are the actual victim.

So don't put the blame on the legitimate citizen who owns a firearm for a firearm is only a tool, it does not have a mind.

Blame, also the radical who uses all our rights and liberties to his advantage while he puts his jailhouse lawyer at ease.

Remember, that once in order to vote you had to produce a weapon, because only free men could possess weapons and only a free man could vote. The right to possess weapons is and always will be the foundation on which all other rights stand. Destroy the foundation and you destroy the building, no matter how well it is constructed.

Every country that has had gun controls has experienced either a rise in violent crimes, or a tightening of other controls over the press and other media, or lastly, a one party state.

Election Post-Mortem

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

In reference to a Belleville Resident, Sept. 20 I assure the writer that the Liberals in Belleville feel as you do, as the results of the recent Federal Mrs. Jeffrey was a graceful lady and she is more than I can say for you.

As for Mr. Hockley, if it were not for people like him we would not know what went on behind the scenes. He may be outspoken but at least he's interested in the welfare of all our fair city's citizens.

There are many ways in which a woman can be helpful to the community, but no one can do two jobs at once and do them well, one has to be neglected. I'm sure many people in our city would not care to see Mr. Hockley go back to England, as we have ten pots here too you know, and he's a courage of our convictions to sign our name.

No Amount of Legislation Can Make Christians Kind or Good

By
DR. GORDON C. SMYTH

One day an individual said to Jesus, "Teacher, bid my brother divide the inheritance with me." It was natural for a plaintiff to bring his case to a religious leader. The Mosaic code embraced without distinction criminal, civil, religious and moral affairs.

This confusion was a weakness of Judaism that Jesus sought constantly to correct. Statutes may be a restraint upon people, so as to make them law-abiding citizens. However, no amount of legislation can make them kind or generous or good.

In this instance, Jesus said to the plaintiff, "Man, who made me a judge or divider over you?" And he told the listening multitude that there would have been no dispute had it not been for covetousness about which they should beware.

Indeed, Jesus was moved to deliver a parable (Luke 12:15-21). A prosperous farmer set about building larger barns. His one ambition was to reach the position where he could say to himself, "You have ample goods laid up for many years; take your ease, eat, drink, be merry."

But the man died before his ambition was realized. Jesus pronounced over him one stinging word, "Fool." But he added, "So is he who lays up treasure for himself, and is not rich toward God."

It is not what we have but what we do with what we have that reveals our nature. People can be just as greedy being poor as though they were wealthy. Christian stewardship was defined by John Wesley in these terms, "Make all you can; save all you can; GIVE all you can."

In this regard, the poorest reader of my column, likely to be canvassed for his church this autumn, is almost bound to be better off than, let us say, the average woman in Ethiopia, who, were she about to have a baby, would probably have to travel three days on a donkey's back before she could get medical aid. Some other readers may also need a reminder. It is found in an ancient proverb, "Money is like sea water; the more you drink, the thirstier you become."

Yes, and there is wisdom in the story of the Scottish shepherd who lay dying. His tearful daughter, sensing that the end was near, said, "Father, shall I go for the minister?" "No, lassie," the old man managed in reply, "I don't need the minister. I thatched my roof when the weather was fine."

I have an idea that he had lived by a creed of which his Master would approve, "He has showed you, O man, what is good; and what does the Lord require of you but to do justice, and to love kindness; and to walk humbly with your God" (Micah 6:8)

Baha'i Faith Develops World Consciousness

EDMONTON (CP) — They believe in the unity of mankind, the equality of men and women of all races and that God's word has been revealed in each period of history through a messenger or individual, including Abraham, Moses, Krishna, Buddha, Zoroaster, Christ and Mohammed.

Ruth and Glen Eyford are members of the Baha'i faith.

"One of the things that attracted me to Baha'i and still seems unique, is that it is developing a world consciousness," Mr. Eyford, director of the division of community development in graduate studies at University of Alberta, said in an interview.

"It means getting away from regional religions, regional differences, and provides the standards from which a world civilization can be based."

The first obligation of a Baha'i is to recognize Baha'u'llah, founder of the religion, as the most recent in a succession of divine messengers.

Son of a Persian nobleman, Baha'u'llah founded the religion in the mid-1800s. His teachings were carried on by his eldest son, 'Abdu'l-Baha, who was followed by his grandson, Shoghi Effendi.

Today, the Baha'i International Community consists of communities in 335 countries and territories, representing more than 1,000 tribes and ethnic groups.

There is no clergy in the Baha'i faith, and administration through elected bodies at the local, national and international levels. Highest of these is the International House of Justice established in 1963 which exercises legislative powers on matters not expressly revealed in the Baha'i scriptures.

The dominant principles of the religion, which stresses the unity of mankind, include independent investigation of truth, the essential harmony of science and religion, recognition of the divine foundation of all religions, universal compulsory education, peace based on a world federation of nations and elimination of prejudice.

Baha'i members pray every day, take active roles in the various assemblies and are willing to teach, but never force their beliefs on other people. At the beginning of each Baha'i month of 19 days, they meet for feasting, discussion and general business.

Sunset Seen Twice

French Jet Breaks Transatlantic Record

MONTREAL (CP)—Flying the supersonic Concorde out of London, you're almost half way to Nova Scotia before the bubbles get into the first glass of champagne.

As a bonus, travellers get a second sunset.

Or, as one less poetic passenger on Concorde's record dash to Ottawa Friday night put it: "It's the same old sunset we saw before we left London—we're just seeing it for the second time."

Whatever, Just as Air France chief pilot Andre Turcat announces that the cluster of lights below is Halifax, a blaze of flame-red and purple across the horizon gives passengers a novel sunset doubleheader.

But, as the Concorde then throttles back in observance of Canada's ban on supersonic flight, the sun barrels on out of sight again, toward the Pacific.

Concorde's twice-the-speed-of-sound flight to the East Coast took two hours, 31 minutes, compared with two hours, 19 minutes set several weeks ago by a British-built Concorde on a test flight to Gander, Nfld. Total time for the London-Ottawa hop was three hours, 43 minutes—about half the usual flying time for ordinary aircraft.

This French-assembled craft, making the first Concorde flight to Central Canada, stopped overnight in Ottawa before making a scheduled grand entrance today at the official opening of Montreal's Mirabel International Airport.

A majority of the 34 passengers aboard were British and French government officials and technicians, veterans of Concorde travel who take pretty ho-hum altitude to flying 1,250 miles an hour.

But the few novices aboard were ecstatic. One lady, clutching souvenir gifts, good-naturedly told reporters: "If you don't write a good report on Concorde you need your heads examined."

But for all the outward glamour of this needle-nosed, slim-line technical masterpiece as it slices through the air with the velocity of a bullet leaving a rifle muzzle, inside this Concorde has the rather tatty atmosphere of a workshop. Only one-third of this 204-foot length has been finished as a passenger cabin.

The rest is a maze of wires and dials, where three non-crew technicians pace back and forth, stantly taking readings from instruments bearing such intriguing labels as "air bleed control," "angle of incidence nose probe" and "secondary nozzle."

Most newcomers to Concorde travel expressed surprise that the interior noise level seemed only slightly greater than that of conventional planes. But they were disappointed by its narrow width, permitting only two seats on each side of the aisle.

This flight was the latest in a long series of test and promotional flights since France and Britain decided to co-operate in Concorde project 13 years ago.

Cable TV Interested In Commons Coverage

OTTAWA (CP) When and if Parliament approves plans to televise its own proceedings, nearly half the population may be able to watch the Commons every moment it is in session.

When serious studies began on the subject last year, the government thought in terms of profiting videotapes or live pictures and sound to the major networks and radio stations which could use what they wanted. Coverage would be spotty.

But now the cablevision operators have become interested in parliamentary coverage and discussions have reached the stage where there is serious talk of establishing a link of various cable operations and clearing a channel for Parliament.

This would bring all parliamentary debates to the fast-growing list of cablevision subscribers which already total seven million.

And the other television and broadcasting outlets would still have access to the electronic facilities, either for live coverage or later newscasts.

Parliament still has to approve a resolution authorizing experimental live coverage of the Commons. But this is expected in the next few months. After that, say officials in the Privy Council office, it will take from 18 months to two years to install the necessary equipment. The cost is estimated at $3 million.

The proposal to televise House proceedings has the general support of all four parties, although some individual MPs have reservations. Television coverage now is limited to the formal opening of Parliament when Canadians can watch the Governor-General read the throne speech.

Privy Council President Mitchell Sharp has said it is "incredious" that television cannot carry at least the 40-minute daily question period—usually the liveliest event in the House.

A group within Mr. Sharp's office has been working on problems surrounding a television Commons since the minister introduced the resolution a year ago.

But it was only recently that the enthusiasm of cablevision operators indicated that the entire proceedings of the Commons would be made available to the public.

Catch Down

HALIFAX (CP)—Low water levels and high temperatures have combined to cut the annual salmon catch in Nova Scotia by as much as 30 per cent compared to a year earlier.

Many streams have been closed because the drought-like weather in recent months has dried up streams and made the salmon too easy to catch.

Murray Family Offers Top BP Service

Harvey Murray is BP Canada bulk agent at 3 South Front Street in Belleville.

There's a popular father-and-son team working out of an office at 3 South Front Street. And the combination of youth and experience is going to bring prompt, efficient service to BP Canada's customers in the Belleville area.

Harvey Murray is no stranger to area residents. He's been in the oil business practically since he left his father's farm back in 1948 and was Belleville's first Esso dealer, a service station operator, then a truck agent and now a bulk agent, a job that makes him responsible for storing and distributing BP products.

Harvey's appointment last year as bulk agent, required him to move into the agency office where from behind his desk he deals with a variety of paperwork but most important seeing that deliveries are made on schedule.

That's where his son David helps immeasurably. Although he has been a full-time employee for a year, David had two years experience as his father's part-time assistant.

From his dad, David has learned the importance of making sure his customers receive the products they want before they're needed.

"We keep ahead of our work by servicing customers long before their fuel supply reaches the empty mark," said Harvey. "We haven't had a bad winter for awhile, but I never want to see my customers caught in a situation where they're out of fuel and we can't reach them. Deliveries to the Murrays' customers are made in one of two tank trucks that carry between 1,650 and 1,850 gallons of fuel. Besides delivering fuel and stove oil, the Murrays carry diesel fuel, gasoline, motor oil and grease, brake fluid, snowmobile oil and anti-freeze.

"Now that winter's coming people will be needing some of these products and they should keep them in mind. I find many people don't realize we can provide them with anti-freeze or snowmobile oil. They think they have to get them at a chain store. What seems to surprise them most is that we sell at comparable prices."

Harvey's customers include the Ontario School for the Deaf as well as residential and farm families, factories such as East Quinte Pre-Cast Concrete and commercial establishments such as the Sun Valley Motel.

"While we're delivering well over a million gallons of fuel now, I'd like to expand the business even more. I think the delivery of fuel is very important and I'd like to canvas the area and let people know I'll guarantee good service if they want an alternative."

The area he covers is bounded by Marysville in the east, Trenton in the west, Bonarlaw in the north and Mountainview in the south.

The summer months also gave Harvey a chance to spend more time with his wife, Doreen as well as doing some fishing and hunting, two activities he's had to limit in the past. "Our hours may be 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. through the week and half days on Saturdays, but really we're on 24-hour call.

"When I was a truck agent and working alone, I never wanted to be far from home in case I was needed, so I never really got involved in any community groups or hobbies."

However, Harvey did find time to become a member of the local Elks Club recently, and has helped sponsor minor sports teams.

Now, with a sports-minded son working for the agency, there might be a future "Murray" team in Belleville's roster of little leagues. One thing is for sure, Harvey plans to keep providing top service. He's just hired Frank Brady, formerly a buyer with Eaton's in Toronto for 30 years, who is effectively managing the office. While Harvey will be overseeing everything in the office, having Frank around will give him a chance to still make a few deliveries.

Mob Justice Rules Rio de Janeiro

RIO DE JANEIRO, (Reuter)—Crowds in Rio de Janeiro suburbs are turning more and more frequently to mob justice, lynching robbers they think they have caught red-handed.

In recent weeks mobs, sometimes 500-strong, rallying to the cry of "stop thief," have killed four people and seriously injured several more, using everything from blows, kicks, stones to iron bars and firearms.

Police, themselves under criticism, on charges of being trigger-happy, have had to intervene several times to save victims from the wrath of an angry, surging throng.

Even more disturbing, the families of some of those killed say that the dead were innocent workers lynched in error.

Public prosecutors have so far been able to identify only three lynchers and admit the virtual impossibility of bringing charges in view of the large numbers of people involved.

Sociologists blame the deficiencies of an understaffed police force in the working-class suburbs for the present outbreak.

"The present outbreak is an explosion of anger by the population which has lost confidence in the authorities," Dom Adriano Hipolito, Roman Catholic bishop of the suburb of Nova Iguacu, said.

"Faced with the apparent inefficiency of civilized justice, people have resorted to the law of the jungle," one sociologist said.

But some of the killings are more reminiscent of blood sport.

Luiz Carlos Faria, nicknamed Carola, and a youth, Honorio Da Silva Filho, both armed, broke into a warehouse that had already been burglarized four times and tried to make off with about $200, according to the warehouse's owner.

Three people later arrested for participating in the lynching said: "As soon as the alarm was given, a real multitude, about 500 people appeared as if from nowhere and gave pursuit, shouting 'kill, lynch, let's really kill them.'"

Honorio was shot in the back but saved from lynching by two policemen.

But Carola hid in some wooded undergrowth. As if they were smoking out a fox, the mob immediately set fire to the bushes.

As he tried to escape, and although he had thrown his revolver away, the crowd surrounded him and beat and kicked him to death.

In another case the owner of a food warehouse, which had also been burglarized before, woke up just after midnight to hear noises. Seeing two men in the warehouse, he called for help from his neighbors.

A group rushed in and one of the alleged robbers, Jose Carlos Pereria Nunes, 19, fell dead with 10 bullet wounds.

The second man, Pedro Paulo Soares, 24, ran out of the warehouse pursued by 100 people shouting "stop thief."

Somebody shot him in the leg and he fell. He was dragged back to the warehouse. When police finally arrived he was dying—kicked, stabbed and clubbed with pieces of wood.

Bishop Hipolito says the lynchings are "an irrational act resulting from a series of factors, among them the material deficiencies of the police force to maintain order."

Seventh Day School Prospers in Nebraska

SHELTON, Neb. (AP)—In an area of teen-age casiness and freedom from authority, 160 students at Platte Valley Academy in this south-central Nebraska community respond to rigid discipline.

They are students of a Sabbath-keeping school operated by Nebraska's Seventh Day Adventists.

The school prospers. Last year it graduated a class of 49, the largest in the school's history.

In recent years, two new silos have been built for the school farm. Four buildings were added for staff members along with an industrial education building, a girls' dormitory, a church school and a nearly completed $325,000 auditoriumgymnasium.

Not all students are church members but all are required to attend Friday vespers and Sabbath worship.

"The religious section is just part of the over-all package here," said principal Earl Adams. "Any students who enrolls must accept it all."

A daily round of classes, work, study, religious exercises and recreation extends from 6:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.

Sugarless Recipes Still Taste Sweet

If you can't or don't want to use sugar, can you still enjoy sweet things?

Diabetics who must not use sugar or honey or other sweeteners can now enjoy jams made at home by using low-methoxyl pectin in conjunction with calcium salts. Artificial sweeteners can be added.

For information about low methoxyl pectin, write Walnut Acres, Penns Creek, Pennsylvania, 17862.

For those who'd like to make jam or jelly without sugar, honey can be substituted. The experts, however, warn that you should be prepared to accept the fact that there will be an altered flavor: even the mildest honey will add its own special taste to jam. Moreover, jam is more difficult to make with honey and is more likely to be runny than firm. If you're prepared to accept these factors and determined to avoid white sugar, here's how to do it:

First, avoid cooked-down recipes which forsake commercial pectin. The long rolling and high heat does nasty things to the taste of honey.

Here are recipes to put away for next season or try now:

Lemon Honey Jelly
¾ cup lemon juice
2 ½ cups honey
½ cup liquid fruit pectin

Combine lemon juice and honey. Bring to a full rolling boil. Add pectin, stir vigorously and boil about two minutes. Pour into hot, sterilized glasses. Cover with paraffin to seal. This makes about six glasses of jelly.

Strawberry Jam
4¼ cups prepared fruit
one package powdered fruit pectin
seven cups mild honey

Hull and crush strawberries to produce 4¼ cups. Add powdered pectin to fruit. Mix well. Place over high heat. Bring to a full boil, stirring constantly. At once, pour and stir in honey. Bring to a full rolling boil. Boil hard two minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Alternately skim and skim for five minutes to cool slightly and keep fruit from floating. Ladle quickly into prepared glasses. Cover jam at once with ¼ inch of hot paraffin. Makes 11 six-ounce glasses.

Honey Orange Marmalade three medium sized oranges one cup water
1 ¾ cups honey
six tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup liquid pectin

Run oranges through food chopper, using fine knife. Measure to be sure there is 1¾ cups crushed oranges. Add water. Bring to boil and simmer 15 minutes. Add honey and simmer 30 minutes. Add lemon juice to the liquid pectin. Bring to full rolling boil and boil 30 seconds. Remove from fire. Skim and stir five minutes. Pour into sterilized glasses and paraffin.

What Can Beaten Wives Do?

(Second in a two-part series on wife-beating.)

What can a woman do if she is beaten by her husband?

In Belleville, there are several channels of assistance open to her, and most of them are interconnecting. In other words, no matter where the woman turns, she'll be directed to the best possible source of help for her particular problem.

In the early stages of a troubled marriage — which experts all emphasize is the time to act, before rifts widen irreparably — women often phone Telecare. The 24-hour telephone service is staffed by volunteers who not only listen to problems, but also suggest individuals or agencies that might be helpful to callers.

Telecare does not give solutions," comments Director Peter Potstra. "Instead, we encourage callers to find their own methods. In the end, it's up to the individual."

The first suggestion made by Telecare is that the women — and their husbands — seek counselling from clergymen.

Although many families do not have a relationship with a priest, minister or rabbi to whom they can go, there are many clergymen in the city who specialize in counselling inside their congregations. Rev. Dave Murphy of St. Columba Presbyterian Church is one of them.

Rev. Murphy, who received his degree in counselling from St. Paul's University in Ottawa, says that the couples he sees are trying to sort things out before the marriage has completely deteriorated. The men and women he counsels are referred by doctors, other ministers, United Community Services and other local agencies.

"Women are usually the ones who initiate counselling," he says, "and if there's a partner who refuses to come, it is most often the husband."

Norm Slater, social worker in the Belleville General Hospital Mental Health Clinic, is another counsellor to whom women are sent.

"I deal with questions like 'who has a right to do what to whom' and I come out strongly against physical violence," says Mr. Slater. "While I'm counselling a couple where wife assault has taken place, I must have the husband's promise that he refrain from any aggressive acts. In this kind of case, all weapons such as guns or knives must be out of the house before I'll start treatment. And if alcohol is involved, they must promise to moderate their drinking habits."

Women whose marriages are "impossible", and who are in actual physical danger, have recourse to the Salvation Army's services. Captain Bob Sloss says that if contacted, his organization can provide temporary accommodation in Belleville for a woman who wants to get away from her husband.

"We can also arrange for the woman to go to a Salvation Army home in Toronto as a stop-gap measure until she can find a place to go," he says.

A telephone call to the Belleville Police will result in immediate assistance in an emergency, and further help in laying charges against the husband if the wife wishes to do so.

"Most of our calls are at night, and by the morning, charges are seldom laid," says Inspector Blatchford. "Most women forgive and forget, and make the best of it. But if a woman does decide to carry through, we hold her in the right direction, to family counselling and legal aid.

If a wife is fearful that her husband may try to harm her further in retaliation for laying assault charges, a family court order can be obtained prohibiting the husband from coming near her. Because enforcing an individuals free movement is such a serious matter, the court goes into in-depth counselling under oath before it does this.

If a woman has been beaten, she should see a doctor as soon as possible, and if she leaves her home, she should contact a lawyer immediately — the Family Court provides legal aid for those who need it. Regardless of what she administrator, is a source of information for women who are unsure of what to do.

"I can explain the various categories of the Dependent Wives and Children Act," says Mr. Jewell. "Under this act a husband can be charged with assault, cruelty, failure to provide or desertion — and desertion can take place without his leaving the house.

"Under Section 168 of the Criminal Code, a husband can be charged with rendering the home an unfit place for children, which can include drunkenness.

"But whether or not a case ever gets as far as court, there is always something I can do here for women who are at the end of their tether. I'll make appointments or whatever needs to be done, but they never leave this office without getting some help."

Mrs. Howell agrees with Inspector Blatchford that one of the difficulties for workers in this area is that so many wives "change their minds" having once been the instrument of charging their husbands.

Mrs. Howell says a lot of people to a lot of trouble when they charge and then withdraw. She says, that although she admits to occasional exasperation, she stresses that reconciliation is the goal of the courts rather than separation. Nevertheless, family breakdown is increasing.

Although there is good professional help available in the city, Belleville has no kind of emergency housing for women (and children) who do not have friends or family with whom they can live if they leave home. A centre, where counselling and comfort is available, is the aim of many of the workers who deal with broken families in which wives need special support.

Ruth Howell, of the Central Volunteer Bureau, suggests that such a venture could be staffed by volunteers, who would be trained to deal with family crises.

Norm Slater is another who sees the need for such a centre, and has hopes that the community will respond to this need.

"We need preventitive measures to protect potential victims of violence," says Mr. Slater. "Emergency housing would be one way of doing that."

Drive under an arch of autumn colors on Hastings County 22

Third Annual Autumn Tour: Fall Color Close to Home

By ISABEL HUGGAN

Our tour this year goes west of the city, starting at the point where Wallbridge-Loyalist Road and Moira Street West intersect. Turn right (north) on Wallbridge-Loyalist at the CNR railway crossing, and drive to the first road on your left, Hastings County 22, less than half a mile from the intersection.

This paved road passes by barns and farmhouses set close to the road, gifted with flower gardens still bright with marigolds and zinnias. As the road winds along, you'll begin to feel you've left the city far behind.

After three miles, tall elms on either side of the road arch overhead in an elegant way, leading you to an intersection where you turn right. There's an old schoolhouse, built in 1879, on the northwest corner of this junction, from which point the road is gravel-surfaced.

About a mile and half up this road, as it curves to the left, you'll come on a rise, with a pretty hill ahead, appearing out of golden trees. To your right there's a hill covered with vibrant sumac and dark green cedar, an attractive composition for photographs.

Just a little further on, there are more hills ahead ablaze with autumn color. Half a mile later, as you make a right turn on a gravel road that takes you up a slight hill, you'll come out on an open stretch that affords an excellent view of the countryside. You'll probably want to pull off to the side and take a few moments to look over the distant rolling hills that are mottled with copper and bronze and gold.

Within half a mile the road is touched on either side by the trees and shrubs of swampy bush, bordered by bullrushes and pretty grasses. It's a nice feeling, as you drive along, feeling a little sheltered by the colored leaves before you come out on an open road that cuts through plowed fields.

You'll have gone exactly eight miles from the railway crossing when you arrive at a T-junction, where you should turn right. Continue on this road past more farms and one or two especially interesting old houses.

After a little more than a mile, on your left you'll see a deserted little house and empty concrete silo that might make good foreground material for photographs, since there are colorful hills rolling away behind them. There are Michaelmas daisies

Our fall tour this year stays close to home for a couple of reasons: Unless you're able to go north of Highway 7, the colors are not spectacular. However, a tour going up to Haliburton and Maynooth, where the scarlets and crimsons are remarkable this year, would be too far afield for most readers.

Secondly, in the interest of economy, we've kept the entire excursion under 20 miles so that, for one gallon of gas, any family can get out and enjoy some new scenery.)

This Is Spaghetti?

Have you ever gone to the farmers' fields to pick your pasta? Jane Campbell of Campbell and Sons farm on Redneersville Road, RR 1 Carrying Place, shows a spaghetti squash to Don Morton. Mrs. Campbell says that although few farmers in the area grow the squash, some is available locally. After being boiled for an hour the squash is opened, the seeds removed and served with spaghetti sauce. Those who know say it duplicates spaghetti beautifully!

Buchanan — White

St. Mark's United Church was the setting for the September 5 wedding of Linda Margaret White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James White and Harold Leslie Buchanan, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Buchanan.

Rev. Jack Morrison performed the service.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of sheer over sharkskin, with a high mandarin collar, long sheer sleeves and an attached train. Guipure lace accented the sleeves and bodice. A two-tier waist-length veil cascaded fell from a juliette cap of lace and pearls. Her flowers were orange silk roses.

The bride's sister, Sherry Lynn White, was maid of honor in a gown of orange and yellow silk overlay over green underlay. The groom's sister Shirley Buchanan was bridesmaid in a similar silk gown with a yellow underlay. and Mrs. David Ross, the bride's cousin, was flower girl in a silk gown with green underlay, and like the other attendants made gold and orange straw flowers.

Steven Smith was ring bearer.

Rob Matthews was the groom's best man and Donald Buchanan was usher.

A reception at the Sun Valley Motor Hotel followed.

After their trip east, the newly-married couple have made their home at 36 Burton Street.

Black Hair Styles: Braids, Waves, Curls

The "Black is Beautiful" revplution has meant a new interest in hair styles for black women. Many are turning to their African heritage for historic braiding techniques, while others are incorporating current "natural" trends in styles fashioned to especially suit their hair color and texture.

Intricate Braiding

Salome Bey Matthews, singeractress, wears her hair braided in circle patterns with a dramatic top knot. The style, created for her at Azan's Beauty World in Toronto, goes back to early Babylonian time (2000 to 1500 B.C) when it was mostly worn by black women. Traditional hairdo enhances African dress. Sex Hormones Used To End Depression

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Using a method that was tried and discarded decades ago, psychologists say they are successfully using sex hormones to treat acute chronic depression.

Dr. Donald Broverman and Dr. William Vogel of Worcester State Hospital previously reported decreased depression with few adverse side-effects in women treated with large doses of the female hormone estrogen. They now have begun hormone treatment with dep ensed men using the male hormone testosterone.

"So far the results with males look quite good, but so far we've treated just seven or eight patients," Vogel said.

"We are reluctant to say the results are as definite as reported with women beause we've treated so few men, but we have been encouraged enough to believe it's wise to continue with men."

Broverman says he and his colleagues are succeeding where others failed because the new treatment uses far greater doses of sex hormones than previously. The large doses are used to overcome what the researchers discovered to be hormonal resistance in the body. WON'T LSE IT

"Simply giving a hormone doesn't mean everyone's body will use it," Broverman said.

He said the treatments work by inhibiting the production of an enzyme called monoamine oxidase (MAO), which is found in higher-than-normal levels in both male and female depressed persons and is known to restrict another enzyme that stimulates nerve action.

In females, when natural estrogen is blocked in the body during the menstrual cycle, MAO concentration goes down. And when MAO is up and estrogen is lower before menstruation, normal women sometime complain of nervousness, fatigue and mild depression, Broverman said.

The researchers say they use natural hormones extracted from animals and these have not been linked with any serious side-effects.

Boys' Rating Scale Is Crude and Cruel

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 16-year-old girl who has always considered herself fairly sensible. But something is getting to me and I need to know how to deal with it.

The boys in our school have devised a rating system for girls that goes from one to 10. The "Teneers" are the great-looking gals—size round curved, cute personalities and quick with the savvy answers. The "Fivers" are the so-so ones who appeal to about 50 per cent of the guys. Now when a girl passes, the guys yell out the number they rate her by.

It so happens I am either a Two or a Three. Although I try to laugh it off it hurts my feelings. What can I do about being put down this way?—Victim Of The Rating Game

Dear V.: Develop a sudden hearing loss and go merrily on your way. Most of those creeps would get a zero if the girls devised a rating scale for them.

Dear Ann Landers: Every now and then some reader asks you for a rerun of a favorite column. Will you do me the kindness of printing once again the enclosed which appeared on Oct. 25, 1971? I know at least three people who could profit from it today.

Thanks, Blue Eyes.—Willie From Teresale

Dear Willie: Here it is and I hope whoever needs it gets the message.

PRAYER OF A REALIST

Lord, Thou knowest I am growing older.

Keep me from becoming talkative and possessed with the idea that I must express myself on every subject.

Release me from the craving to straighten out everyone's affairs.

Keep me from the recital of endless detail. Give me wings to get to the point.

Seal my lips when I am inclined to tell of my aches and pains. They are increasing with the years and my love to speak of them grows sweeter as time goes by.

Teach me the glorious lesson that occasionally I may be wrong. Make me thoughtful but not nosy, helpful but not bossy. With my vast store of wisdom and experience, it does seem a pity not to use it all. But Thou knowest, Lord, that I want a few friends at the end.

Standard Will Be Set For Processed Meats

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal health department said Thursday a survey of processed meats during the last six months "shows a remarkably fine record from a health point of view."

The department is conducting a survey with the objective of establishing microbiological standard for the products.

[illegible] of 2,950 tests have been completed with 435 of them [illegible] bacteria and wieners—the most popular consumer products in the group.

Without drawing any conclusion regarding safety limits in the preliminary report, the department said some of the tested packaged meats had a bacteria count of 130 million per gram when shipped. A count this high would indicate the product was near spoilage.

The report said 52 per cent of the products tested had a bacteria count well below the most usually associated with spoilage of such products.

It said steadily increasing bacteria counts in the products is normal, in fact necessary for proper maturation.

A total of 8,000 tests is planned in the survey.

Tragedy By Fire Can Strike Out At Anyone . . . Anytime! Be Aware!

Fire prevention is not a one man job. Your local fire department is trained to handle fires when they occur . . but it's everybody's job to stop fires before they start! We must all be aware of the rules for fire safety . . . practice them.

Most fires can be prevented, just by using some common sense. Keep attics, basements, and other storage areas free from clutter. Have all electrical equipment and wiring checked regularly. Put out all cigarettes and campfires completely. Let's all work to make this a fire-safe community.

FIRE IS DEADLY!

Careless, unthinking, haphazard habits can become a way of life that can be dangerous. Practice good fire-safe habits all year. Here's a checklist that you could call "Preventive Medicine":

Practice Fire-Safe Habits All-Year

- Do not smoke in bed, or while watching TV when you are tired.
- Check appliances for proper & safe wiring.
- Keep matches out of reach of small children.
- Clean Up — remove rags, trash, papers, in and around the home.
- Pre-plan an easy escape exit from your home and know how to call your fire department.

Lions Take Second Run at Walk-a-thon

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

About 1,000 persons were expected to walk today in the continuation of Belleville Lions Club walk-a-thon.

The first attempt made Sept. 20 was virtually washed out by heavy rains and only about 150 persons turned out to walk the wet 10-mile course.

"A lot of people thought it was cancelled and quite a few people didn't show up," Gord Monk, Lions Club fund-raising committee chairman said Friday.

About $3,200 was raised in the first walk. Mr. Monk said he did not wish to estimate how much money would be raised today's walk but said 6,000 pledge sheets have been circulated by walkers.

The Sept. 28 walk was to be held by Lions Clubs across Canada in an attempt to raise money for Canadian Olympic athletes in training. Half the money raised is kept by the local clubs.

The Belleville club, said Mr. Monk, is going to use its share of walk-a-thon money to send local children to the retarded children's special Olympics to be held next year in Alberta.

The walk began about 8.30 a.m. from William R. Kirk School. Walkers follow Bridge Street to Sidney Street to Concession 4 of Sidney Township. Refreshments were to be available at Sidney Township offices and walkers will return south along Wallbridge Loyalist Road to Moira Street West and back to the school along Palmer Rd.

Preparing for Walkers

Gord Monk (right) chairman of fund-raising committee of Belleville Lions Club and vice-president Jim Parkhurst get ready early today at William R. Kirk School for the arrival of those taking part in today's walk-a-thon. The first two walkers left about 7:45 a.m. Half the money raised in the walk goes to pay for training of Canadian Olympic athletes.

Crosswalks On Agenda

City council will be asked next week to permit parking meter charges on Wednesday afternoons.

The request, from the city's Parking Authority, is among items listed for decision by council when it meets Monday.

The authority is recommending an amendment to the city's parking bylaw.

Also back for council scrutiny is an issue that has sparked sporadic debate for several years — pedestrian crosswalks. Council is being asked to consider making crosswalks legal at two intersections on Pinnacle St. — Campbell and Market streets.

Other measures before council include a bylaw covering a $170,000 debenture issue funding improvements by Belleville Utilities Commission to street-lighting and electrical distribution systems.

Trenton PUC Imposes Levy on New Building

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Less than a week after Trenton town council decided against levying an additional tax on new subdivisions and developments the Public Utilities Commission (PUC) has announced it is going to charge all new buildings in Trenton up to $300 per unit to help pay for new facilities.

Councilman Peter De Groot said Friday he did not know if the charge is legal under the Ontario Municipal Boards bylaws and added he thinks developers will probably take the issue to court to contest the tax.

The commission's announcement met with immediate opposition from some council members and representatives of the building industry, who have claimed it will stifle development in Trenton.

The announcement was made in the form of an advertisement in Friday's paper and said each new single family home, whether in a new subdivision or established area, would be charged $300, all other dwellings, such as apartments, $250 per unit and commercial property six cents per square foot with a minimum charge of $100.

Mayor Robert Patrick said Friday he, and other commission members, James MacDonald and Barry Box are totally in favor of the plan which will help offset rising capital costs incurred through expansion of the water facilities.

Councilman De Groot, however, said he is against the charge but that council had no control over the activities of the PUC. Mr. De Groot said council was approached by the PUC during a closed meeting last Monday and asked to act as a collection agent for the commission but was told the PUC should look after its own business.

"It seems like the PUC doesn't want any new houses built in Trenton," said Trenton Planning, a local lawyer and subdivider.

Mr. Fleming said the new charge is ridiculous and amounted to double taxation as the PUC floated debentures to pay for the water facilities expansions and these were already being repaid with ratepayers tax money.

The PUC recently raised its rates for electricity and while Mr. Fleming said this was partially justified because they are being charged more by Ontario Hydro, for power, the new charge is just excessary.

Doug Manlow, manager of the PUC said, the decision to impose the new levy was made to help take some of the burden off present town residents.

Parked Car Hit, Driver Flees Scene of Crash

MARMORA — Ontario Provincial Police at Madoc are seeking the owner of a brown, 1969 Plymouth car which was found abandoned following a two-car collision in this village late Friday.

Police said today the deserted vehicle had collided with a car owned by Russell Mitchell of 64 Forsythe St., parked in front of the Mitchell residence. The moving car fled the scene.

Police said the car was discovered at 1.45 a.m. today, just over two hours after the accident, on Concession Rd. 14 in Rawdon Township and identified through a paint match-up. Damage to the two vehicles was estimated at $1,800.

Lifetime of Talent

Belleville's Jimmy Corradi displays a form on the piano which has not escaped him in his senior years at special variety night at Holloway St. United Church Friday. Notable admirer is Stephen Warkentin (right), a 12-year-old city trumpeter who shows potential to be among the best. At back are Betty Watson, piano accompanist and Jack Green, Stephen's music teacher. They delighted almost 200 city senior citizens.

Senior Citizens Treated To Night of Entertainment

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

When Brian Greenwood of Kingston drove to Belleville Friday for a cornet lesson with well-known city music instructor Jack Green, he did not know he would give an impromptu variety night performance playing a difficult trumpet solo.

But Brian astounded between 175-200 senior citizens at Holloway St. United Church with his unrehearsed interpretation of the second movement from Hayden's Trumpet Concerto.

The surprise appearance was part of a special variety night held for Belleville senior citizens by the church's Pioneer Club, an organization composed of 20 couples.

Brian, son of Brig. and Mrs. Victor Greenwood, former commanding officers at the Salvation Army's Belleville corps, did not even have a chance to change from his school clothes before attending.

"I was in the rooting section of a football game before I came here," he said afterwards.

Brian also played Londonderry Air and was accompanied in both pieces on piano by Betty Watson, who had stepped in cold as well.

Mr. Green presented another of his pupils, 12-year-old trumpeter Stephen Warkentin of Belleville, who played Alleluja by Mozart and Bless This House.

Stephen "has talent galore," said Mr. Green. "It's a pleasure to work with him."

Stephen won a gold medal in the 15-year-old group, second prize in the 18-year-old and under group and another second in open competition, all at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto in August. He has been playing for six years.

Other performances included Belleville's Mr. Music Man, Jimmy Corradi, a veteran senior citizen who keeps his age a secret but shows he can still make a piano sing with the best of them.

Mary Vandervoort of Belleville produced laughs with her report on a wife's first attendance at a baseball game, Ross Adams of Consecon led singsongs of old favorites and cornice John Oram sprinkled the evening with jokes.

Hasty Pees To Reunite

About 300 persons are expected to participate in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental 12th annual reunion to be held at Belleville Armory Thanksgiving weekend.

Past regiment members from as far away as the Maritimes and California are expected to attend.

Registration is at 10 a.m. Saturday with a dance to be held starting at 9 p.m. in the armory.

A general meeting will be held at 10 a.m. Sunday with a parade around the armory block about noon. A banquet will be held at Belleville Royal Canadian Legion about 2 p.m. with an open house at the armory at 4 p.m.

On Oct. 4, 1945, the Second World War regiment returned from Europe and was disbanded at Belleville armory.

Kohlers End Visit

After a busy week of being made welcome, two special community guests take their leave of Belleville this weekend.

Adolf Kohler, city manager of Lahr — Belleville's twin municipality in West Germany — and his wife, Elsei, are preparing to leave for home.

The Kohlers decided to end a Canadian holiday with an informal visit to the city starting last weekend.

But while the visit was unofficial it was active. Their arrival resulted in a round of receptions — reciprocal gestures prompted by personal friendships and the community hospitality shown the two sister cities to the Belleville area.

One outstanding event of their stay, however, never got off the ground Friday. A flight aboard a private aircraft had been arranged for them by former mayor Robin Jeffrey with whom the Kohlers have stayed in recent days. But the trip — to give them an aerial perspective of the district was foiled by winds gusting around 30 miles an hour at Belleville's airport.

The Jeffrey family are to take the Kohlers to view Niagara Falls Sunday, after which the couple will return home from Toronto Monday.

Thief Cleans Up

At least one Belleville thief plans to clean up his act.

Belleville police are looking for two vacuum cleaners worth about $400 stolen from a car parked at the rear of 327 North Front St., about 1 p.m. Friday.

Entry to the vehicle, owned by Gary Sheppard of Stirling, was gained by forcing the vent window open, said police.

Five Hurt in Mishap

TRENTON — Five people were injured Friday night in a two-car accident on Dundas St. East of here.

Police said Michael Jones, 18, Kingston, was entering traffic on Dundas Street from a parking lot when he was in collision with an eastbound vehicle driven by Brian MacKinnish, 42, Trenton.

Police said the Jones vehicle then entered a Dominion Store parking lot and hit three pedestrians, all members of the same family.

Treated and released at Trenton Memorial Hospital were Marie Gravelle, 25, of Hull, Que., and Lisette, 31, and Charlie Gravelle, 17, both from Trenton.

Jones, 19, Kingston, a passenger in the Jones vehicle and Kenneth Pruff, a passenger in the MacKinnish car were also treated and released.

Police estimate damage to the MacKinnish vehicle at $1,200 and $1,500 to the Jones car.

Most Don't Mind Students Selling Chocolate Bars

Most schools in Belleville have been or are in the midst of their annual chocolate bar sales campaign wherein the students go door-to-door to raise money for various school activities.

The campaign has been such an institution for years that it borders on the traditional.

But recently, the Hastings County Board of Education questioned the morality of students selling what it considers non-nutritional food and suggested to the schools that they ban these sales. The board stopped short of an out-and-out order.

In an informal survey The Intelligencer asked local residents whether students should be allowed to sell the bars and most respondents indicated the board had inflated the issue.

GREG BROWNING

Greg Browning of the Conventional Barber Shop of Front St. in Belleville says if the board feels the sales should stop, it should replace the amount that would be raised.

"The kids should be allowed to (sell) unless the board provides the material things the kids require."

Saying the board blew the issue out of proportion, he adds, "(they students) won't do any more damage than the stores do."

DAVE JONAH

Dave Jonah, owner of Front St. restaurant, says sales provide a financial education for students. "It gives the kids a chance to handle money — to have a little responsibility," he says.

"It's stupid, really," he comments on the board's action.

He says he advocates the freedom-of-choice approach. "If I don't want a chocolate bar, I won't buy it," he says.

RICHARD KULBACH

Richard Kulbach, owner of Adanac Used Books at 402 Front St. in Belleville, says a change to another product might be the answer.

"It's a guaranteed way for the students to make money. However, a more nutritional product would be more beneficial to the customers and cut down the board's concern on the quality of the material and the product itself."

He also noted the problem. "It's a toss-up."

DOROTHY POWELL

Dorothy Powell of Bleecker Ave. in Belleville says, "as far as nutritional value, people are not going to buy them and eat them all day. They're going to eat their meals."

But she says such fund-raising might be more credible "if they (students) were earning the money" and suggests alternatives such as "running errands for older people."

She says she has five of her own children sell chocolate bars.

RICK ROLUF

Rick Rolof, of Rolof's Music and Sound Centre, 277 Front St., in Belleville, notes that students raise money for worthwhile purposes through their sales while in stores, the bars are sold for profit.

"If they (consumers) don't buy them from the students, they'll buy them from somebody else."

He says he also thinks the board blew the issue out of proportion and adds he thinks the sales are all right.

MARCELLA SVOBODA

Marcella Svoboda of RR 7, Belleville — says, "I think the nutrition thing is out of proportion" and questions "why they (trustees) waste time arguing over such an inconsequential thing."

My son ate a chocolate bar and I don't think it hurt him. I would have given them (students) the money without the chocolate bar.

If, on the other hand, people wouldn't give a dollar without a bar, then . . . sell them."

Bonnar's Boys Bounce Voyageurs 9-3

The Belleville Bobcats, sparked by the three goal performance of rookie Tony Meagher, scored a convincing 9-3 victory over the Kingston Township Voyageurs in their home opener, Friday night. The Cats made it their second win in as many starts in Metro Junior B League so far this season.

Meagher always hustling "made every goal that he scored," according to jubilant coach Meehan Bonnar after the win. Meagher, in the two games to date, has brought his goal scoring total to five and appears headed for a very productive first season with the locals.

However it was not Meagher alone, as the entire team came through with a good effort to outskate their opponents. "They're playing just the way I want them to, and when they're working I think they can beat any team in the league," added Bonnar at the conclusion of the game.

In special opening ceremonies, Mayor Ben Ostrom and alderman George Zagouras were on hand to take a special face off to get the season underway.

Red luck plagued the visitors right from the opening face off. With only eight seconds elapsed, Kingston starting goaltender, Steve Dine, was struck in the forehead on a deflection and was helped from the ice, He didn't return.

At the conclusion of the first period it appeared as though the home ice opener for the C's would be a close checking "not too exciting game." Such was not the case, though as things started to get hot for both teams and when the smoke cleared the referee had handed out a total of 123 minutes in penalties, with the visitors picking up 71 of them.

Shots on goal indicated that the Cats style of play, although not obvious at all times, is a winning one. Throughout, Belleville outshot the Voyageurs by 46-19. With the defence standing up at the blue line and the wingers coming back to handle the opposing forwards, Kingston had trouble retaining composure.

Working very effectively on penalty killing, Belleville outscored the opposition by 4-1 margin. "The goals they scored on us were sloppy ones, but when they get that far ahead . . ." noted Bonnar.

Grant Geegan tallied the game's nicest goal in the early stages of the second period when, set up by Meagher, he made a move on the Kingston defencemen and, after being knocked down, still managed to get the shot away, beating a surprised Kingston goalie.

The close checking style of play took its toll on the players as patience were very thin early in the middle frame.

Each club dished out some very hard body checks and, before the evening was over, two fighting majors and numerous roughing and high sticking penalties were awarded to each of the clubs.

Geegan picked up a pair of goals and added two assists while other goals went to Paul Tilley, who displayed some of the best moves seen on the Memorial ice surface in a while, Dave Lewis, Mike Crawford and Bob Thompson each added single to hand out the scoring for Belleville.

Jeff Merrill went the distance for the local club in net and although he faced 19 shots over the course of the evening looked very sharp when the play was in his end. Bonnar explained "that it's hard for a goalie when he is not being tested in the game."

Belleville's next game will be this Friday, in Belleville when the Markham Royals will be in town for a 9 p.m. encounter. It will be the first look at the Markham club this season for Belleville.

SHOTS ON GOAL

Belleville — 19 19 8 — 46
Kingston — 19 — 19

Wayne Calberry, Bobcat captain, backhands a rebound in Friday's home opener for the Belleville Metro Junior B club. This shot was one of 46 that Kingston Voyageur netminder Rick Leadbeater attempted to stop. Despite the number of saves the visitors goalie made, Belleville still popped nine goals behind to win their second consecutive game in regular season play and their eighth straight including pre-season contests.

Saints Slow Getting Started But No Questions in End

Quinte Junior Saints came up with another awesome offensive display Friday to down Centre Hastings Secondary School Centurions 35-12 in Madoc.

The Saints took a full quarter before they really got rolling, but when they did it was all over for the home squad.

"Our defence was a little slow getting started," said head coach, Barry Turpin, "at first it looked as though whoever got the ball was sure to score."

The Cooper Hockey Coaches Clinic, says that five times quickly and see if you haven't a mouthful. But if you attend you're sure to have more than just a mouthful.

Again this year the Cooper Clinic will be visiting Belleville for benefit of local coaches. Instructor Bill Hayward will be on hand to demonstrate the hockey alphabet to these interested.

The clinic includes everything from A to Z as if you're considering attending be prepared to work. If gets underway at Dick Ellis Ring at 4 a.m. Sunday morning.

For four straight hours you'll be on the ice learning new exercises, power skating drills, conditioning drills and the proper way to conduct a practice, not to mention complete analysis of the fundamental skills.

OMHA Stands Firm

Gretzky and Brighton's Rorabeck Appeal Refused

TORONTO (CP) — Wayne Gretzky, 14, of Brantford, Ont., and Brian Rorabeck, 13, of Brighton, Ont., were told again Friday night they may not play for Toronto Young Nationals.

The executive of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association (OMHA) rejected appeals from the youngsters against an earlier OMHA ruling refusing their releases from their local teams to play for the Nationals' baseball team of the Metropolitan Toronto Hockey League.

Lawyer William Pearce, who represented the players at the hearing, said the OMHA had based its decision on a Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA) rule which does not apply.

Pearce said OMHA argued that a player must reside with his parents or guardians when a change of residence takes place in order to qualify for a release. The boys moved to Toronto to a legal guardian's residence.

The lawyer said that rule applies only to transfers between branches—the provincial or regional associations—right up the CAHA.

He argued that another CAHA rule had been met, namely that a player is released when the release form is signed by his team's president and secretary. Both boys had properly-signed release cards.

OMHA president Jim Kinkley said the OMHA was sticking to a rule that a boy may play only in the community in which his parents reside "to try to prevent wholesale movement of boys of minor age for the basis of hockey."

Pearce, who said he believed the OMHA had made up its mind before it heard the appeal, said the parents had not decided whether to take the matter to court.

Joe Kane, lawyer for the Ontario Minor Hockey Association, said an interview Friday that he does not believe the OMHA has a case. The OMHA is affiliated with the OHA.

"I think the OMHA is penetrating into an area that belongs to the parents," Kane said. "I think the courts would make mincemeat of the residency rule."

Loyalist Earns Tie

Zippers Win Again

Mary Ellen Graham dropped in 21 points to lead the Quinte Zippers to a 31-24 victory in Bay of Quinte Secondary School Basketball League action Thursday. The win was the second straight for the Quinte girls.

Joan Meagher was next on the Quinte list with 11 points and Trish Tuttle added seven.

Quinte marched downfield for a major early in the contest, but the Centurions bounced right back on their first set of downs and scored. Ken Revoy got the Saints initial TD and Rob Goodfellow converted.

Kelly Welch, Centre Hastings' speedster, replied to make the score 7-6.

The home club scored again in the first quarter to pull in front 12-7, but that lead was wiped out early in the second period when Quinte quarterback, Goodfellow romped into the end zone. Paul Banchopoulos capped off the go ahead touchdown with a two-point conversion.

From there it was down hill Quinte. Revoy romped to his second TD and Goodfellow converted to give Quinte a 22-12 half time lead.

The big Saints' back crossed the goal line again in the third quarter and Banchopoulos found the end zone once in the fourth quarter to give Quinte a 24-12 lead. Goodfellow booted his third convert of the game to put the Saints ahead 35-12.

Unemployment Lines a Little Longer

Local Players Struck by Side Effects of Pro Expansion

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

In 1967 when the National Hockey League doubled in size to 12 teams there were a good many groans from hockey fans across North America. However, there were a good many hockey players beaming over the extra chances of making the big time.

The NHL continued to expand until now it is 18 clubs strong. Besides the premier league there is also the World Hockey Association. While its esteem in the eyes of many rocky bobolers is much less than that of the NHL, it too is regarded as the big time by the players.

Four years ago, when the WHA made its debut, the groans grew louder, but the smiles of players grew brighter and increased in number. The World Association is currently 14 teams deep and plans to increase that total.

With 32 major professional teams around, a lot of hockey players have a good shot at making the big time.

However, while the leave expanding, teams found themselves paying more money for their players. The fringe players got a chance to play somewhere so they were happy, but the average players bounced from team to team until they got as much money as they possibly could and the good players — Orr, Hull and Howe — demanded exorbitant rates for their services.

Owners found themselves with big bills for the players they had and no money to spend on the development of players yet to come.

The fat cats had to cut expenses somewhere so they chose to chop in the farms.

Jobs were opening up at tremendous rates in the major leagues, but were disappearing in the minor leagues.

Farm systems that took years to establish and develop began to disappear over night. Even whole leagues, like the Western Hockey League, which in the past produced the likes of Pat Stapleton, Johnny Bower, Babe Pratt and Glenn Hall, folded like tents in a hurricane.

Move jobs in the big leagues now means there are a lot fewer available to those who don't make the cut with the number one club.

"The owners just don't have enough money to go around," says Steve Rexe, a 28-year-old goalie who was, until this season, the property of the Los Angeles Kings.

Rexe is just one of several players who have had to return to Belleville because of the job shortage. Brian Couchlin, a member of the St. Louis Blues chain, and Meehan Bonnar, formerly property of the Detroit Red Wings were all caught in the pinch. Larry Mavety, a defenceman with the Toronto Toros and Chicago Cougars of the WHA was also affected, to a lesser degree, by the tight employment situation.

Rexe is probably the most prominent of the three Belleville semi-pro players to find himself squeezed out of the game. Last season he played with Springfield, the American Hockey League champions, and did some backup work for Rogatien Vachon, the LA Kings starting netminder.

"We won the Calder Cup last year," said Rexe, "that's probably the closest thing to a semi-pro to the Stanley Cup."

Rexe wasn't alone in his exodus.

"Twelve of us were forced out of Springfield," he said.

The Kings owners, because of the money that was being dished out to players on the main team, were forced to withdraw their support in Springfield, LA now operates, in co-operation with Kansas City Scouts, a single farm team in Port Wentia, Texas.

However, Rexe isn't as concerned as he might be with the move.

"The Kings are a top notch organization," he said, "they made me an excellent cash settlement."

He was offered jobs elsewhere, but felt he should take a year off to assess the situation and take time to decide just what lies ahead for him and his family.

LARRY MAVETY

Meehan Bonnar, now the coach of the Belleville Bobcats, was right on top of the situation last year. He was player rep in Detroit Red Wing's Syracuse franchise.

"The management just let everyone know they were more or less on their own," said the 28-year-old winger. Bonnar saw some action with the Wings while playing in their farm club in Richmond.

Last year though, he suffered a severe injury to his shoulder and was demobilized. His doctor has now informed him that the injury will make it impossible for him to play again.

The injury may have been a blessing in disguise. Bonnar intends to go to arbitration with the Wings to see about a permanent disability pension. Otherwise he may have had to join the ranks of semi-pro players on the unemployment list.

Bonnar has suggested, as has Larry Mavety, that major professional clubs may attempt to operate with a large taxi squad as do the teams in the National Football League.

"I can't see the situation really getting any better," said Bonnar, "not with the salaries players are receiving."

Both Rexe and Bonnar feel the safest way for hockey prodigies to avoid the unemployment line after a three or four year stint in the big time is to combine their hockey careers with post-secondary education.

"That way there'll always be something to fall back on," explained Bonnar, "and teams are turning more and more to the college level at draft times so a youngster is bound to get a look at if he's got the talent."

Mavety, because of his major professional experience was the least affected by the cut back in jobs. When the Toros didn't pick up his contract right at the beginning of the season, he elected to look elsewhere.

The 23-year-old defenceman felt that with the number of less expensive rookies in camp the higher priced veterans weren't as secure as in previous years. And he was right.

The Toros just signed defenceman Jim Dorey last week. That meant management must have been looking carefully at the cheaper priced rookies trying to "get their break in the big league."

Mavety had a couple of offers from teams but is the most serious about joining the ranks of the World Association's latest entry, the Denver Spurs.

Because of age, he is naturally looking for security and the hours may be the best to offer it. After all, while he played for Denver during its days in the Western Hockey League he was twice selected to the all-star team. If anybody realizes his value as a strong defensive defenceman with major professional experience and an excellent portfolio it has to be the Spurs.

"Every team in the NHL and the WHA is cutting back and their farm systems," said Mavety, "most of them are sharing farm clubs."

For instance, Buffalo and Pittsburgh (NHL) are sharing the cost of supporting the Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League, New York Rangers and St. Louis Blues (NHL) are picking up the tab for the Providence Reds, also of the AHL, and Denver Houston and Phoenix (WHA) have joined financially in their support of a farm team in Tucson of the Central Hockey Association.

He and Rexe share both optimism and realism.

"Things will level off again," said Mavety. "Just as they have with the big salary dilemma."

Rexe summed up, "It appears that hockey systems run in cycles. For the next few years I think senior hockey guys will become a great deal, just as it did in the late fifties. These hockey players are going to want to play somewhere and senior is about the only door left open to them."

Both he and Coughlin are playing for the Kingston Comets in the Ontario Senior A Loop.

"It's just a matter of time," added Rexe.

Sabres Lose Again

Playing Flyers Almost A Waste of Time

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Sabres might be excused for simply mailing the points to the Spectrum the next time they're scheduled to visit Philadelphia Flyers.

Putting in an appearance at Philadelphia seems to be little more than a formality for the Sabres who haven't won in the Pennsylvania city since they joined the National Hockey League for the 1970-71 season.

They extended their winless string to 30 games Friday night when they dropped a 4-1 decision to the Flyers in an NHL exhibition game. On two occasions, they pulled the goalies together and managed a tie.

In Friday's other NHL exhibitions, New York Rangers defeated Providence Reds of the American Hockey League 7-3, Vancouver Canucks downed Los Angeles Kings 6-3, Atlanta Flames whipped St. Louis Blues 5-2, Boston Bruins defeated Montreal Canadiens 4-2, California Seals dropped Salt Lake Golden Eagles of the Central Hockey League 5-1 and New York Rangers defeated Providence Reds of the American Hockey League 7-3.

In World Hockey Association exhibition games, Cleveland Crusaders defeated Quebec Nordiques 7-5 and Phoenix Roadrunners topped Denver Spurs 5-3.

Derek Sanderson scored three goals and assisted on a fourth for the Rangers, who got single goals from Bill Collins, Rick Middleton, Pat Hickey and Brad Park.

Power-play goals in the first period by Bill Barber and Robs Lonsberry gave the Flyers a 2-0 lead. Bob Sirois and Don Saleski added second-period goals for Philadelphia before Sabres' Danny Luce and Wayne Stephenson's shutout bid.

John Gould scored two goals and assisted on a third by Ron Sedlmayer for the Canucks. Pierre Bordeleau, Ab Demarco and Dennis Ververgaert were the other Vancouver scorers. Los Angeles got goals from Gene Carr, Butch Goring and Bob Murdoch.

Hilliard Graves scored three times for the Flames at Atlanta, who improved their record to 3-3-3.

Andre Savard scored two goals and goaltender Dave Reece stopped 29 shots for the Bruins.

Bobby Schmautz and Dave Forbes got the other Boston goals. Jacques Lemaire and Murray Wilson were the other Montreal scorers.

At Salt Lake City, Bob Murdoch's two goals helped the Seals beat their top farm team. Bob Stewart, Al Macadam and Rick Hampton were California's other scorers while Charlie Simmer scored for Salt Lake.

Former Toronto Maple Leaf farmhand Lyle Moffat scored three times for the Crusaders at Kent, Ohio. Al McDonough, Gerry Pinder, Jim Dorey and Danny Grues had the other Cleveland goals.

At Tucson, Ariz., Bill Hall and Gene Peacosh scored second-period goals to bring the Roadrunners from behind to beat the Spurs.

Grant Named Captain

DETROIT (CP) — Left winger Danny Grant, who scored 36 goals for Detroit Red Wings last season, has been named captain of the National Hockey League team.

Grant, 30-year-old native of Fredericton, was selected to the position following a club meeting on Thursday. He replaces Marcel Dionne who was traded earlier this year to Los Angeles Kings.

Grant, who started his NHL career with Montreal Canadiens before he was traded to Minnesota North Stars, joined the Wings in a trade August, 1974, for Henry Boucha. Grant, NHL rookie of the year in 1968-69 season when he was with the North Stars, has scored 229 goals in regular-season play.

Bowman Wants Lower Goals Against

By GLENN COLE
The Canadian Press

Scotty Bowman of Montreal Canadiens wants his team to cut down its goals-against average. Doug Barkley of Detroit Red Wings still needs defensive help and Don Cherry of Boston Bruins hopes they can get along without Bobby Orr for a while.

The 1975-76 National Hockey League season—its 58th—gets under way Tuesday with Philadelphia Penguins and Washington Capitals meeting in Landover, Md., in a clash between two North Division teams.

Montreal, Detroit and Los Angeles Kings—the other members of the division—open their schedules Wednesday. Boston, a member of the Adams Division, has its opening game Thursday.

Buffalo Sabres, Toronto Maple Leafs and California Seals also belong to the Adams group which, with the Norris Division, forms the Prince of Wales Conference of the 18-team league.

The Canadiens have made few major changes from last season's Norris Division-winning club. Gone are captain Henri Richard, forward Guy Lafleur and goaltender Father Bowman is trying to cut down on our goals against," said Bowman. "Dryden wasnt here two years ago and that's why our goal against ballooned from 184 to 240 before dropping to 225 last year."

The Kings made a major deal during the summer in hopes of strengthening their second-place finish last year, acquiring centre Marcel Dionne from Detroit Red Wings in five-player deal.

But one of three players the Kings sent to the Wings, defenseman Terry Harper, launched a suit against the Kings. His lawyer, Phil Kelly, wants a restraining order to prevent the trade.

Wings coach Doug Barkley has hopes that Red Wings will get another defenseman from the Kings soon. The Red Wings are short on defence last year—336 goals against, though their offence was good, led by Dionne with 47 goals and 74 assists and forward Marian Stastny, Danny Grant, a 50-goal man.

The Penguins, who finished ahead of the fourth-place Detroit, have a tough defence led by Dave Burrows and sharpshooting forwards in Vic Hadfield, Syl Apps, Jean Pronovost and Rick Kehoe. Goaltending is a question mark with Michel Plasse, a Montreal carded sharing with Gary Inness, a former University of Toronto star.

Buffalo, which finished with 113 points, still has the French Connection line of Gilbert Perreault, Rick Martin and Rene Robert, which had 131 goals last season. And Danny Gare, Craig Ramsay and Don Luce, who formed a solid defensive trio, are back. But forward Rick Dudley has gone to Cincinnati Stingers of the World Hockey Association.

The Bruins hope to get better goaltending from Gilles Gilbert, a factor in Boston's early exit from the playoffs last season. Orr will be not at issue for the least October following surgery to remove calcium deposits from his knee.

The Maple Leafs dumped centres Norm Ullman and Dave Keon and right-winger Eddie Shack and seem to be depending on rear team captain Darryl Sittler, who had 36 goals and 44 assists. The acquisition of Thomas from Montreal should alleviate inconsistent goaltending.

The Seals will open the season next Wednesday against the Flames in Atlanta and there is some optimism on the club. Last season, the league's third-worst record last year. Two promising rookies have been acquired—Dennis Maruk from London Knights and Ralph Klassen from Saskatoon Blades.

Mel Swig is the club's owner but his purchase has not yet been completed. If complications develop and he cannot complete the purchase, the league has said it will not operate the club as it had since buying it from Charles O. Finley in February, 1974.

Flyers Appear to Be Best Bet

By GLENN COLE
The Canadian Press

There will be few, if any, new bodies this National Hockey League season wearing the bright orange, black and white colors of Philadelphia Flyers, defending Stanley Cup champions.

The Flyers, who finished first last year in the tight Patrick Division race ahead of New York Rangers, New York Islanders and Atlanta Flames, made one minor change during the off-season, dealing Bill Clement to Washington Capitals for the chance to draft first in the annual amateur selections. The Flyers took centre Mel Bridgman, who scored 66 goals and 41 assists for Victoria Cougars of the Western Canada Hockey League last season.

Like the Patrick section, the Smythe Division had a close race last season with Vancouver Canucks emerging first just ahead of St. Louis Blues and Chicago Black Hawks. Minnesota North Stars and the expansion Kansas City Scouts.

"We're in the toughest division in the league," noted Flyers coach Fred Shero. "We're no better than any other team and we are going to have to work hard to win the division."

The Flyers finished with the best record in the league last season—51 wins, 18 losses and 11 ties for 113 points. The Rangers and Islanders each had 88 points while Atlanta finished out of the playoffs with 83.

The leaders on the Flyers—goaltender Bernie Parent and captain Bobby Clarke—are back this season and for the most part, Parent, who shed 15 pounds during the summer, has been showing mid-season form in exhibition play.

However, Parent pulled a muscle in practice Thursday and probably will not play until the Flyers season-opener against Washington in Philadelphia.

Wayne Stephenson, who once played with the now-defunct Canadian national team, will again serve as the Flyers' No. 2 goaltender.

Veteran Ted Harris, now coach of the North Stars, is the only defenseman not returning from last year's club, which means Larry Goodenough and Tom Bladon will see more action.

There was some speculation the Flyers would try to dump volatile left winger Dave Schultz from the team but Schultz, who set a league record with 472 penalty minutes, is back along with Don Saleski, also rumored to be on the trading block.

Clarke, the Flyers' top scorer with 29 goals and 89 assists for 116 points, will again have Reggie Leach, a 42-goal man, as his left winger. Rick MacLeish, who had 34 goals, and Bill Barber, a 34-goal man, are the other top Philadelphia snipers.

The acquisition of goaltender John Davidson and defenceman Larry Sacharuk from St. Louis Blues are expected to help the Rangers, as are the additions of centre Wayne Dillon and winger Pat Hickey, who jumped to New York from Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association.

Steve Vickers, a 41-goal man, Jean Ratelle and Rod Gilbert, who each had 36 goals, are also back as well as sophomore Rick Middleton, who scored 22 goals in 67 games in his first season and was a top rookie candidate before breaking his right leg.

Red Sawyer, the new Rangers coach, hopes his club will be able to tighten up defensively, while Al Arbour, coach of the crosstown rival Islanders, wants to show more offense.

The Islanders captured the imagination of hockey fans as they knocked off the Rangers and Pittsburgh Penguins before bowing to the Flyers in a tough seven-game semi-final last spring. The Islanders finished 3rd 3-0 in games to both Pittsburgh and Philadelphia before rallying to force the series to the limit.

The Islanders must get big efforts from defencemen Denis Potvin and forwards Billy Harris, Clark Gillies and Bob Nystrom if they hope to continue last year's strong showing. One major addition is defenceman Pat Price, who jumped from Calgary Cowboys of the WHA.

Some fans are wondering if goaltenders Glenn Resch and Gerry Desjardins can come through with the type of season they had in 1974-75 when they combined for a 2.78 goals-against average, third best in the league.

"If we get off to a bad start, the fans will think last year was just a fluke," said Resch.

The Flames, one of the dull clubs last year, received an early blow when Eric Vail, last season's rookie-of-the-year, suffered a shoulder injury that will keep him out of action for six weeks.

Vail scored 30 goals last season for the Flames with Curt Bennett adding 31 and Tom Lysiak 25 to round out their top scoring threats.

Dan Bouchard and Phil Myre give Atlanta a solid goaltending duo and the Flames feel they have helped their defence with the drafting of Richard Mulhern from Cherbourg University of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League and the signing of Larry Carriere from Buffalo Sabres for left winger Jacques Richard.

The Canucks, who finished with 86 points, the lowest of the four divisional winners, are going for size this year.

"We definitely won't have as many small guys as we have had in the past," said Canucks coach Phil Maloney, who led Vancouver to its first playoff berth since joining the league in 1970.

The Blues, who finished two points behind the Canucks, went into the playoffs on a shoe-string, acquiring Bert Wilson, Ted Irvine and Jerry Butler from the Rangers in the deal that sent Davidson to New York. The Blues still have Bragger brothers—Bob and Barclay—as well as Bob Gassoff on defence to help up the opposition.

Goaltending could be a problem, depending on the consistency of Gilles Gratton, who jumped from WHA Toros, and veteran Eddie Johnston.

The Black Hawks will have a new clock in Chicago Stadium this season, but that may be the best thing new about the aging Black Hawks. Chicago acquired left winger Joey Johnston in a deal that sent Jim Pappin to California Seals and Pappin has decided not to report to the Seals.

Hookies Bob Murray and Dave Hull, both with Dallas of the Central League last year, could be starting defencemen this season for Chicago with veteran Keith Magnuson being displaced.

The North Stars failed to sign first-round draft pick Bryan Maxwell from Medicine Hat Tigers of the Western Canada Hockey League and thus will have few new faces on the club that struggled to a fourth-place finish last season.

Bill Goldsworthy had 37 goals to lead the North Stars offensively and he will be returning to try to spark the attack, but he has little in the way of a supporting cast. Minnesota gave up 341 goals last season, second worst in the league, and it does not appear the defence has improved.

Kansas City, who finished with 41 points, 12 behind Minnesota, will have some substanial changes but could give the North Stars a battle for fourth spot.

Dark the Force Behind A's Constant Success

BOSTON (AP) — There is an unspoken, almost invisible hand that holds Oakland A's together and Reggie Jackson gives much of the credit for it to manager Alvin Dark.

The A's, who opened the best-of-five playoff for baseball's American League pennant Tuesday against Boston Red Sox, had a statistically unimpressive season.

"Listen, if we started the season and went the whole year so more than one game in front or one game behind, we'd have had six 300 hitters and four 20-game winners," said Jackson.

"It's the bottom line that counts. We won and Alvin deserve a lot of the credit for that."

Jackson believes the manager's style has rubbed off on the A's after two seasons.

"Alvin taught us how to handle ourselves as men and grownups," said Jackson. "His beliefs have carried over to the players. He's made us better men and that made us better players."

Dark is a deeply religious man and Jackson says the manager's approach to life has influenced the team.

"He's not a crusader," said Jackson. "He's just a good man.

"You look at him and watch his way of life and day-to-day and eventually you decide, 'Hey, that looks pretty good. Maybe I should pull my myself after him.'

"That's what Jackson has done. "He's made me a Christian. I said the A's sluggin' right fielder.

"He tries to live his life the right way for everybody involved in it, every day."

Jackson's relationship with owner Charles O. Finley has not always been a warm one. One day, Reggie went to Dark about the problem.

"The manager had an answer and read a passage from the scriptures to Jackson.

"It said, no matter who your master is, obey what he says," recalled Jackson. "If he does you wrong and you know it, the Lord will know it, too.

"Don't talk back or be rude. Just take it. What it amounts to is that you should obey the man you work for."

And has that worked for Jackson with Finley?

"I just stay away from him now," the slugger said.

The A's are appearing in the playoffs for the fifth consecutive year while Boston is making its first appearance in the post-season showdown for the pennant.

But Boston manager Darrell Johnson doesn't buy the theory that Oakland's experience will give the West champions an edge.

"Experience doesn't win or lose ball games," said Johnson. "Base hits do. And base hits will decide who wins this series."

Johnson said the Red Sox heard the same thing about how important experience would be in the closing stages of the East championship race.

"Yeah, they said that when Baltimore was chasing us," he said. "Not many games have more experience than Paul Blair, Brooks Robinson, Mark Belanger and those guys. And we beat them, didn't we?"

Johnson had righthanders Luis Tiant and Reggie Cleveland, a native of Swift Current, Sask., set for the first two games at Fenway Park. Rick Wise is Boston's probable pitcher for the third game Tuesday in Oakland.

For the A's, lefthanders Ken Holtzman and Vida Blue were set for the first two games with the third game pitching plans not set yet.

REGGIE JACKSON

Pull Plenty Of Punches

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Football League went 47 games this season without any undue violence. That record of tolerance took a beating Sept. 28.

In game 48 at Regina between the host Saskatchewan Roughriders and British Columbia Lions, three players were banished. Game No. 49 at Calgary, featuring the Stampeders and Edmonton Eskimos, saw four players ejected for fighting.

Hurlers Should Be Difference

CINCINNATI (AP) — Joe Morgan remembers the wild pitch that decided the last play-off clash between Pittsburgh Pirates and Cincinnati Reds.

"And I think pitching will probably make the difference this time too," the Cincinnati second baseman said while awaiting the first game of the best-of-five playoff for baseball's National League pennant.

The Reds won the 1972 playoff here when Bob Moose let loose a run-scoring wild pitch in the chaotic last inning of the fifth game.

Scoring by both sides totalled no more than eight runs in any of those 1972 games, and Morgan expects more of the same even though the Pirates topped the league with 138 homers and the Reds finished second with a 121 team batting average.

"Sure, we're both capable of scoring a lot of runs in a hurry," said Morgan, who led the Reds with a .327 batting average.

"But I dont expect that to happen because the pitching in this series is going to be a lot better than most people realize."

Neither team has a pitcher with 20 victories, but there's strength evidenced in the overall team statistics.

Jerry Reuss, starter in today's opener for Pittsburgh, won 18 games to lead a frequently jumbled starting rotation that helped the Pirates to a 3.64 team earned run average, second best in the league.

"There's no question that pitching has been our mainstay this season," said Pirate centre fielder Al Oliver. "Our hitting was nonexistent at times, but pitchers were consistent all the way."

The Reds' Don Gullett missed a third of this season, but he still finished with a 15-2 record, and the Reds' team earned run average was a highly respectable 2.27.

"The thing we have to do is keep the ball in the park," said Fred Norman, who will start Sundays game for the Reds. "That's the way the Pirates could beat us."

The Reds, 6-6 against Pittsburgh in the regular season, won the West Division by a whopping 20 games, and their .607 winning percentage was the best in baseball.

The Pirates stumbled now and then. They won the East by 6½ games with a .571 victory percentage.

Yet the Reds are winners and still non-champions, having gone 36 years without winning a World Series.

"Don't give me that stuff that we don't win the big one," Reds' manager Sparky Anderson protested Friday.

He recalled how the Reds battled back against Oakland in the 1972 World Series, winning two in a row to tie the series at three victories each.

"Then we lost in the seventh game when a ball takes a bad hop and a line drive is misjudged," Anderson said.

The Pirates, meanwhile, have used their bumpers-and-grit style to win a pair of World Series in the past 15 years. They did it in 1960 against the highly favored Yankees and they surprised Baltimore Orioles in the 1971 Series.

SIGN ZISK

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Left fielder Richie Zisk of Pittsburgh Pirates, who played the regular season without a contract, has come to terms with the National League baseball club. There were published reports that he signed for about $65,000, but the Pirates did not disclose terms.

Mauch Finally Breaks Silence

MONTREAL (CP) — Gene Mauch, 49, dismissed this week as manager of Montreal Expos, has broken his silence, saying he is "embarrassed and perplexed" by the National League baseball club's decision.

But he said in a telephone interview from his home in California that he has no vindictiveness toward the team that fired him its only manager since joining the league for the 1969 season.

"I'm a bit embarrassed and perplexed," he said. "I know most people don't relate 'embarrassed' with myself or my style, but I am. And I guess I'm perplexed as well.

"From what I've heard, it seems to be a theme that maybe Gary Carter would have hit 320 and had 40 home runs with different handling. And Larry Parrish would have hit 300 with only about eight errors. That's why I say embarrassing. The implications are all there."

Mauch said he retains high opinions of team president John McHale, general manager Jim Fanning and Charles Bronfman, chairman of the board, who have said they were unanimous in the decision that Mauch should be fired after the club's 75-87 record this year.

"Don't read any vindictiveness in that because vindictiveness is my last intention. They've been good to me and my memories of Montreal are all so great that there's no way I could feel vindictive."

Mauch said he talked to two major-league teams after his firing but would not identify them.

"I think you appreciate why I can't tell anyone right now. But there is one offer from each league and that's the way I'll leave it with you for now."

Coaches Dave Bristol, Jerry Zimmerman, Walt Hriniak, Cal McLish and Duke Snider were fired with Mauch. Snider will retain a job as commentator on Expos television broadcasts and a place will be found for Hriniak in the team's minor-league organization.

Who's on Top?

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — But for the state of the economy, Don January would be home in Dallas happily building golf courses all over Texas.

"I've got two courses under contract, but we can't get started until things get a little better," the 43-year-old tour veteran said Friday. "When folks can't build houses, they don't need golf courses."

So, with the downturn in the nation's economy, January—who had left the tour some four years ago—dug his long-unused clubs out of the garage and rejoined the tour at the start of this season.

And, with most of the record gallery of 12,475 concentrating on Jack Nicklaus, Jerry Miller and Lee Trevino, the slow-talking Texan ambled almost unnoticed out of the pack with a course-record eight-under-par 64 that staked him to a one-shot lead in Friday's second round of the $175,000 Kaiser International open golf tournament.

He birdied six of his last seven holes—well after most of the fans had departed—in a late-afternoon charge.

He established a two-round total of 134, 10 under par. He played the tougher north course at the Silverado Country Club in 70 on opening day and set the record on the shorter, easier south course Friday. Only the north course will be used for the last two rounds.

One shot off his pace at 135 was the quartet of Miller, the defending champion, Trevino, Gene Littler and Marty Fleckman, with rookie Bobby Wadkins one more stroke back at 136.

Miller went nine under par with a second-round 67 despite his assertion that "I haven't had better than a mediocre putting round yet."

Trevino came from well back with a 68. Littler shot a 70. Fleckman, who hasn't made expenses since his lone victory in 1967, had a 67. The 24-year-old Wadkins stayed close with a 70.

Nicklaus, winner of the Masters, the PGA and three other titles, stayed in contention with a 67 that left him five strokes off the pace at 139.

George Knudson of Toronto had a 72 for a 143 total. Ben Crenshaw also had a 72, but missed the cut by three strokes with his 145 total.

We miss your smile, we miss to meet it,
And courage to bear the loss
But what it meant to lose you,
No one will ever know.
You made no one a last farewell,
Nor even bid a farewell
You just slipped from where it,
And very, God knows why.
—Ever remembered by Mother, Larry, Lin, Ted, Pam and Jeffrey.

STEPHENS — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather who passed away October 4, 1970.
Remembrance is a golden chain,
It time to break, but all in vain.
To have, to love, and then to part,
Is the sad lot of human kind at best.
The years may come and the years may
But this they wipe out never,
The memory of those happy days,
When we were together forever.
—Lovingly missed by wife Dorothy.

STEPHENS — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather who passed away October 4, 1970.
Some days are long, some days are short,
But though we're parted for a while,
We know we'll meet at last.
Some day we hope to meet you,
Some day we hope to greet you,
We shall meet in a better land,
Never to part again.
—Lovingly remembered by son Doug, daughter-in-law Susan and grandaughter Marcia.

BURSHAW — In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. Lily Burshaw who passed away October 5, 1971.
You left behind an aching heart,
That bleed you most sincere.
Your smile, your laugh, your face,
Forget you, mother, never can.
—Sadly missed by daughter Viola.

BURSHAW — In loving memory of my dear father, Mr. Ernest Burshaw who passed away on Oct. 5, 1971.
No one knows how much I miss her,
No one knows the latter pain
I have suffered since I lost you.
Your smile, your laugh, your face,
Twenty hundred years forgotten,
There is not a day dear mother,
That I do not think of you.
—Ever remembered by daughter Viola, son-in-law George and grandchildren.

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Sometimes it really pays to live dangerously. East's jump to three spades is a good example. Give West a singleton spade and East might have gone down several tricks, while North and South would have had no game.

This time the three-spade bid put South on an almost impossible position. He could double, but he might be giving up a clinch game for a small set or even no set at all. He could try four hearts but that might be the wrong suit. Four and five diamonds seemed to have little to commend them. Finally, South bid three notrump.

West was too smart to double and smart enough to open the three of spades. East's queen was allowed to hold the first trick. He led back the 10 and West unblocked with his king.

South tried and lost the heart finesse and the parade of spades left South down two with the defence still holding the king of diamonds and the ace of clubs. West had hung on to both his hearts, so South could not chuck dummy's ace. Eventually South was down four.

Had East just bid one spade South would have been reached and either made or gone down one depending on the play and defence.

Ask the Jacobys

Our Winnipeg reader wanted to know who the youngest and oldest of the original life masters were.

The oldest was F. Hal Sims who died in 1948. The second oldest was Theodore Lightner now 82 and the youngest Sam Fry, Jr., now 66. Coincidentally, both still play good rubber bridge regularly at New York's Regency Club.

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Hollywood comedian Groucho Marx, Thursday celebrated his 85th birthday at a small family gathering.

Marx will hold another birthday party next Sunday to be attended by his two surviving brothers, Zeppo, 74, and Gummo, 78, as well as show business veterans including Mae West, 83, and George Burns, 79, his agent said.

Other members of the Marx Brothers comedy group, Chico and Harpo, died in 1961 and 1964 respectively.

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Country-western singer Tammy Wynette was admitted to Laramie County Memorial Hospital Thursday where she was reported in satisfactory condition.

A hospital spokesman refused to disclose the cause of her illness, saying that she was admitted for observation and was progressing satisfactorily.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Certainly I love my wives; otherwise I wouldn't have married them," actor Cary Grant said Friday in response to a printed report that his four marriages were lovelessness as far as he was concerned.

"I'm embarrassed," the film star added. "I may have to call up the ladies and apologize." His former wives are Virginia Cherrill, Barbara Hutton, Betsy Drake and Dyan Cannon.

Grant said the misconception arose from a McCall's magazine article which quoted from an autobiographical article he wrote 13 years ago, saying his wives "all left me."

"In each instance, the woman deserved my love, but, honestly, I had none to give."

He remarked: "It would have been very graceless of me to say that I didn't love them when I married them. Of course I did."

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Sun. Oct. 5

Aries (March 21-April 19) You may make some bad decisions today, but second thoughts will reveal your errors. Rectify your mistakes promptly.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) It's not likely you'll be too motivated today to do things for others unless you see something in it for yourself. If there is, that's another story.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) When among friends today be careful not to exaggerate. You could tell a tall tale that might come back to haunt you.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Your judgment is usually quite keen regarding things of a domestic nature, but today you're likely to make some moves that aren't too bright.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You could be a trifle forgetful today. If you have anything important to take care of, make a note of it or ask another to remind you.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be careful you don't spend funds before they're in your bank account. Some cash you're counting on could be delayed.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) There's a strong possibility today that you'll optimistically read more into what others say than they intend. Hide those rose-colored glasses!

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) Keep close tabs on anyone who performs work or service for you today. They could do it incorrectly or overcharge you.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Some responsibilities that should be taken care of early will be left till the last minute. However, you'll get them in under the wire.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be careful today if you're involved in a competitive situation. Those you go up against may be holding more trump cards than you.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) What you say today will be quoted later. Be certain you have all the facts before passing information on.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You could cause expensive complications for yourself today if you get too enmeshed in another's financial problems.

Arthritis Can Be Controlled

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband has had arthritis in his knees and has been given several drugs for it. Now his doctor has prescribed a new medicine which he says has had dramatic results. We finally were able to get the prescription filled and my husband is taking it, but so far has not been able to tell any difference in his knees. The medicine is called Morton. — Mrs. W.K.B.

I am sure the drug to which you refer is ibuprofen Motrin is the trade name.

The drug, according to a report in the Journal of the Medical American Medical Association, MAA) is as effective as aspirin in providing relief from pain of arthritis, and its main advantage seems to be in producing fewer of the side effects some people experienced with aspirin agree with this.

John R. Lewis, Ph.D., the senior cricinist in the AMA's department of drugs reports in the same journal that ibuprofen may be acceptable for use in patients who cannot tolerate aspirin or other antirheumatic drugs. Aspirin has been known to produce gastrointestinal side effects (bleeding) in some people.

The results of studies in the United States and Europe show that ibuprofen relieves pain, decreases morning stiffness, and improves grip strength and the motion of joints in patients with rheumatoid arthritis. It is also helpful in most cases of osteoarthritis.

So, for those who are having trouble with aspirin therapy in arthritis, this drug might be well worth looking into. However, drugs a e not the sole an swer to arthritis.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My blood pressure is on the high side. I have heard that diet water is bad for this condition. Is it true that water softeners do harm. On the other hand, I have been told that hard waters cause kidney stones. Is that's the story? — R.H.S.

Remember first that there are diffe ent degrees of hardness in water, requiring proportionately smaller or larger amounts of sodium in the softening process. There is some data that seem to show elevated blood pressure is more prevalent in soft water areas than in hard water county miles.

But it has also been shown that the amount of sodium (from softeners) consumed each day is rather less than one gets in the amount of solid food consumed. However, if you are on a sodium-rest ricted diet, it might be well to have your water checked to find out how much sodium you are actually getting from your tap. It would be a simple matter to adjust your sodium intake by cutting down on use of table salt or foods high in salt.

You could also arrange to have water used for drinking and cooking bypass the water-softener bed, you could still have the softened water for laundering, etc.

I have no data on the kidney stones-hard water matter. It is possible that highly mineralized water (hard water) could contribute to stone formation in the kidneys, but to my knowledge there is no real evidence that this is t ue.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have heard that it is not considered helpful for a person over 65 to try to give up smoking cold to quit, that these people have done about all the damage they can do, and that quitting can actually be harmful. Do you agree with this theory? J.A.S.

I don't agree with it at all. Quitting at any time can be helpful, although granted, the sooner one gets to quit the less benefit he would receive. No matter how long a person has been beating himself over the head with a hammer, it still is wise to stop, isn't it?

Noted For Honesty

SWANSEA, Wales (CP) — After shopping, Mrs. D. P. Osborne found a £5 ($11.25) note in her purse. She rushed back to shop where she had changed some money and insisted that the clerk must have given it to her in error and gave it back. She told her husband when she returned home, and he said gruff, "I put it in your purse as a surprise."

Launch Exercises

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A nine-day gunnery exercise involving 7,500 men, 7,000 and 100 planes, using the southern tip of San Clemente Island as its target was launched in late August. Anti-aircraft gunnery and missile practice was displaced 20 to 80 miles south of San Diego with a missile exercise off Point Mugu, north of Los Angeles.

Guess Your Way to Success

by ALLEN SPRAGGETT
Toronto Star Syndicate

Toronto Sun Syndicate

Somehow the phrase doesn't ring true — like legless runner or abortighted sharpshooter.

Businessmen are considered the most practical, hard-headed breed in the world and no self-respecting one would be caught mixing with mystic stuff like ESP — right?

Wrong. New and exciting scientific evidence indicates that ESP and business mix very well indeed. In fact, says the evidence, businessmen — if they're successful (an important "if") — tend to be more, not less, "psychic" than other people.

Dr. E. Douglas Dean, a computer sciences professor at Newark College of Engineering, contends that most successful business executives have unwittingly "developed" their way to the top.

He says "potential" because the difference between guesswork and ESP is very difficult to establish. The best way to put it is that if your guesses turn out to be more consistently right than wrong — you've got ESP. Everything without knowing it.

Computer expert Dean's research was done in collaboration with a colleague at Newark College of Engineering, Prof. John Mihalasky.

What the two scientists did over a 10-year period was to give presidents of engineering firms a special ESP test. The test was to measure the executives' ability to foresee the futung.

"It seemed to me" Prof. Dean told me in an interview, "that for a man to run a successful business — say, an engineering firm — he must make decisions today on the basis of conditions that may not apply until six months or even six years in the future.

"Now, we can call the form of ESP which makes predictions possible precognition, or foreknowledge. I wondered if successful businessmen — that, is, executives who had consistently made the right choices and decisions over the years — might not actually be using ESP. We set up our test to find out."

The test consisted of having businessmen choose a five-digit number which was to be generated randomly by a specially programmed computer at some date in the future — five days, five weeks, or five months. By the laws of statistics it was possible to calculate how many correct numbers the businessmen should have come up with by chance alone — by sheer guesswork. Any businessmen who consistently exceeded that number of hits must — it seemed to Prof. Dean — be using ESP, whether he knew it or not.

"The results were exciting beyond our wildest hopes." Dean said. "We found that many engineering executives scored far above chance in guessing the numbers — so far above that they couldn't possibly have been doing it by guesswork alone.

"Furthermore — and this was even more interesting — the presidents who scored highest in ESP were invariably those whose engineering firms were successful. By successful we mean they had at least doubled their profits during the previous five-year period. The presidents of unsuccessful companies scored low on ESP."

Later, when the executives were questioned, the successful ones admitted that they often made their toughest business decisions on the basis of a "gut" reaction rather than by careful logic. One man said: "Sometimes I take a hard decision to bed with me and dream the answer." Others said they just got "a strong feeling" of what they should do.

To dramatize what business ESP can do, Prof. Dean cited the spectacular case of Lawrence Tynan, a New Jersey car dealer.

In the summer of 1971 the car business was deadly slow. People just weren't buying. Tynan's lots were jammed with new cars he could'nt sell.

But when the time came, in June, 1971, for him to normally order new cars Tynan did a thing that astounded even him.

"I ordered five times more new cars than I'd ever ordered before," he says.

Why would a businessman who already had a glut of unsalable cars order hundreds more?

This was sheer madness! It's a business associates thought Lawrence Tynan had flipped. All he could say was that something inside him told him he was right — that somehow he was going to sell all those cars.

Well, Tynan's gut reaction, lucky hunch, or ESP — call it what you like — made him a small fortune.

On August 15, 1971, then President Nixon unexpectedly announced the imposition of a 10 per cent duty on foreign-made cars and the dropping of the seven per cent tax on domestic ones.

Suddenly people were clamoring for American cars — and Lawrence Tynan had them. He sold all his original cars and all the order that had been five times larger than any he'd previously placed.

"That stroke of luck or whatever made me a millionaire," the car dealer says.

"It wasn't luck," insists Prof. Douglas Dean, "it was ESP."

Garrison Attack Leaves 26 Dead

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — In a daring co-ordinated raid, leftist guerrillas attacked a provincial army garrison Sunday in an abortive attempt to steal guns, then fled in a plane hijacked by accomplices, leaving at least 26 dead by official count.

The action began when more than 50 Montonero guerrillas raided an infantry garrison in Formosa, a small provincial capital on the Paraguayan border 575 miles north of here, security sources and the official Telam news agency said.

Soldiers and police repelled the attack in bloody fighting, and the army said at least 13 guerrillas, two army officers and nine soldiers were killed in the battle.

The surviving guerrillas fought their way to the Formosa airport, where they seized the air terminal and held the visiting federal governor, Juan Taparelli, an other officials captive, security source said. Taparelli escaped unharmed during the confusion.

Meanwhile, fellow guerrillas hijacked an aerolinas Argentinas airliner on a domestic flight between Buenos Aires and Corrientes, about 100 miles southwest of Formosa, and forced it to land at the Formosa airport.

They ordered the passengers to leave the twin-jet Boeing 737 and held off soldiers and policemen while some of the guerrillas on the ground got aboard.

The jet's original passengers were not injured. The plane's flight crew remained aboard.

Other guerrillas remained behind to defend the runway as the plane took off, then withdrew toward mountains along the Paraguayan border, security sources said.

The short-range jet headed toward Brazil, officials said, but ran low on fuel. The jet turned back, and made an emergency landing in a field near Rafaela, 290 miles northwest of Buenos Aires, Telam said.

Telam said the Jet's tires blew out on landing and the landing gear sank into the ground when the plane stopped. But none of the occupants was reported hurt.

Before police arrived the guerrillas ran to three waiting cars and drove west toward Cordoba, about 150 miles away, security sources said.

It was the most audacious action by the Montoneros since August, when they bombed a navy destroyer in La Plata and blew up a runway at Tucuman as a transport plane took off. Six soldiers were killed and several were wounded in the runway blast.

More than 20 persons were killed in August raids by the Montoneros and the Marxist People's Revolutionary Army, another guerrilla group, in Cordoba.

Lawyer Predicts No Ban on Sunday Hours

TORONTO (CP) — The head of a legal team drafting a new bill concerning Sunday shopping in Ontario says there will not be a total ban on such shopping.

John Ritchie, head of Solicitor-General George Kerr's special team, said in a weekend interview that the province wants to slacken off Sunday commercial activity but realizes too much regulation would annoy the public.

Gas stations and convenience stores will be allowed to remain open under the new legislation, said Mr. Ritchie.

He said the new law will close stores on the basis of floor space, number of employees and products sold. Stores breaking the new law will run the risk of stiff fines, Mr. Ritchie added.

A Friend in Deed

"The first day of the Fair is mine. It's almost like I was a kid again, running all over the place. If we don't get here on the first day, I'm afraid we'll miss something." Those are the sentiments of Robert Hicks of Dallas as he and his St. Bernard, Sheba, make their opening day tour of the State Fair Friday as they have done for the past four years. Spain's Premier Hesitant To Call State of Emergency

MADRID (AP) — Premier Carlos Arias Navarro called a special cabinet session today following the spectacular bombing deaths of three more civil guards, but a high official predicted the Spanish government will not "overreact" by ordering a state of emergency.

Saying the guerrillas are losing the struggle to bring down the 36-year-old regime, the official said the three new police killings Sunday in the troublesome northern Basque region will not provoke emergency last week in Madrid," he told emergency was declared then. There is a virtual state of war between the terrorists and the government. Retaliation by the terrorists is terrible but we expect it.

"They want to bring on a situation where violence is out of control on both sides," but the terrorists are losing ground and approaching a desperate situation because of the arrests of leaders, lack of funds and inability to gain real popular support among Spain's 35 million people, he added.

The official, who declined to be identified, said the cabinet meeting was mainly to take advantage of a tide of "patriotic fervor" orchestrated in a series of nationwide demonstrations supporting the regime of Gen. Francisco Franco, the 83-year-old chief of state.

The street rallies were called after the regime executed five political terrorists nine days ago for killing policemen. The executions stirred a storm of protest and criticism of Spain across much of Europe, but the Spanish government said it will not back down on its policy of punishing terrorism.

Area Jews, Adventists Oppose Sunday Hours

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Religious denominations in Belleville which celebrate their Sabbaths on Saturdays oppose Sunday openings by major food chain stores as against the Christian faith.

Rabbi Solomon Kadoch of the Beth of Jacob Congregation at 211 Victoria Ave. said Sunday, "what kind of religion do you have when you work on Sunday and not go to worship?"

"According to your religion, the supermarket has to be closed on Sunday," he commented. "How can you expect the Messiah to come when you don't worship him on his day?"

"You should close this market and not work and not do anything," Rabbi Kadoch said.

He pointed out that Jews "choose not to open businesses and not to work" on Saturdays and added that under Islam, the Moslem religion, "they don't do anything on Fridays but go to the mosques and pray."

Elder O. S. Mathews of Seventh Day Adventist Church at 253 West Dundas St. said, "as a Christian community, they should observe Sunday. They should keep it in the spirit the Lord wants."

"Of course, we (Adventists) don't shop on Saturdays," he added.

Should Have Right

TORONTO (CP) — Hospitals should have the right to remove organs from dead people without the consent of the family, Larry Stevenson, director of Canada Medic-Alert, said Sunday. "Hundreds of Canadians, many of them children, are only half alive and others die awaiting body parts," he said in an interview. "Our provincial health ministers should follow the British lead now."

Letter Bomb Kills Man

VANCOUVER (CP) — A man was killed and his wife and eight-year-old son critically injured Sunday when they opened a parcel that contained a bomb. George Chatzisporos was killed by the blast. His wife, Georgia, has lost one arm and may lose a second, while his son, Dean, also suffered severe injuries to one arm. The special delivery parcel, which contained an attache, case holding the bomb, was sent to the Chatzisporos residence. Police said it was designed to explode when opened and the blast was centred in the family's television room. A boarder who lived in the basement escaped injury.

Set Convention Date

TORONTO (CP) — The executive board of the Ontario Liberal party decided Saturday to hold a convention here on Jan. 23 to choose a successor to party leader Robert Nixon. Jeff King, chairman of the board, said Sunday he has received no applications from anti-candidates. Mr. Nixon announced his intention of resigning after his party finished third in the Sept. 18 provincial election.

Lougheed Will Halt Trip

PARIS (Reuter) — Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed will call off his current European tour and return home if Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau summons a meeting of premiers of Canadian provinces to discuss economic problems, a spokesman for Lougheed said Saturday. "Mr. Lougheed will attend the meeting when it is called by Mr. Trudeau even if our trip is not yet completed," the spokesman said. The Alberta mission is due to visit West Germany and Britain before returning home Oct. 13.

Striking Firemen Blamed

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — City officials say they believe striking firefighters are responsible for some of the 217 blazes which have erupted since city firefighters walked off their jobs Friday in a pay dispute. Nearly 800 National Guard troops assisted hundreds of police, public work employes and volunteers in fighting more than 20 fires Sunday night — more than 10 times the number usually reported.

SLA Message Urges Comrades to Kidnap

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A communique signed "Symbionese Liberation Army" and saying that the "SLA lives on" urges terrorists to go on a kidnapping spree among the rich to raise bail money for their imprisoned comrades.

The FBI said there is no way to determine immediately the authenticity of the communique, similar in format to past messages from the SLA and delivered to media in three California cities during the weekend.

The message promises future proof that the SLA remains strong and active, despite a statement by FBI agent Charles Bates after the Sept. 18 arrests of Patricia Hearst, Bill and Emily Harris that all members of the terrorist group were either dead or in custody.

A source close to the investigation said Sunday it is possible that some members of the SLA may be unknown and still at large.

Six SLA members, including leader Donald DeFreeze, were killed in a Los Angeles shootout with police in May, 1974. Members Russell Little and Joseph Remiro were convicted earlier this year of the murder of Oakland School Supt. Marcus Foster.

But the source said about 20 SLA code names were found in one early hideout and "only 11 of the SLA names have been accounted for."

"Six are dead. Two are in prison. Then there's Patty and Emily and Bill Harris."

The new communique said in part:

"The SLA lives on in spirit and military strength and will give proof of this in the future. For now, we call upon the allied units of the people's armies to turn our loss into victory by uniting in a mass effort to make nationwide arrests of the rich. Fascist insects to be released only when bail has been posted for all our comrades with funds from the honey-laden hives of the ruling class."

Miss Hearst, who said in a recent affidavit that she was tortured and brainwashed into joining the SLA after members of the group kidnapped her on Feb. 4, 1974, is being held without bail awaiting trial on a San Francisco bank robbery charge.

Her parents, Catherine and Randolph Hearst, visited her Saturday and Sunday at the San Mateo County jail in Redwood City, Calif.

Hearst, president of the San Francisco Examiner, said as he left the jail Sunday that "It was a visit like the others we've been having: there was talk about family and friends, things like that."

Castro Death Plots Unrelated to Presidents

WASHINGTON (AP) — CIA attempts to kill Premier Fidel Castro of Cuba occurred under three presidents but there is no hard evidence that any president authorized such action, says the chairman of the Senate intelligence committee.

Senator Frank Church (Dem.-Idaho) said Sunday that "plans and attempts" against Castro's life "span the years from the Eisenhower administration through the Kennedy administration, and into the Johnson administration."

Appearing on ABC's Issues and Answers, Church also said: "We have no hard evidence that directly relates this activity to any order that was given by any president."

Church said the attempts against Castro have been confirmed by former CIA director Richard Helms in secret testimony before the intelligence committee.

Although Church has made previous references to CIA plots and attempts against Castro's life, his remarks gave a much wider scope to the agency's involvement in assassination than previously reported.

One Man Dial-a-bottle Service Now Available

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

Stan Owston has added a new dimension to his cartage service: it's called dial-a-bottle.

For a small fee Mr. Owston will deliver liquor, wine or beer to a customer's residence, and he has approval from Belleville City Police and Liquor Control Board of Ontario.

He started the service last week and has had 15 calls since Wednesday.

He expects more business. "A lot of people don't know about it yet," he added.

"I heard about it being done in other cities and decided to give it a try," said Mr. Owston.

"It may work, it may not. It's a gamble," he said.

He charges $1.50 for each delivery depending upon the number of bottles or cases and the distance. All deliveries must be made during normal liquor or beer store hours.

People who don't have a car or don't have the time are those interested in the service, he said.

He said he expects to get orders from persons who normally have to take a taxi to the liquor or beer store.

Extra Day for Prevention

It seems Belleville firefighters have given themselves an extra day to celebrate Fire Prevention Week (Oct. 5-11). When firemen Grant Parks (left) and Ray Ketcheson posted the fire prevention sign on the West Moira St. fire hall Sunday for the first day, they found a painter had mistakenly put on Oct. 6-12. The fire department was to erect a booth today at the Quinte Mall for a week-long display.

Insecticides Greatest Threat Facing Birds Say Naturalists

By TERRY SPRAGUE
Staff Correspondent

NORTHPORT — It's "up with the birds" for two Northport residents. Marie Foster and Ruth Wallbridge, two retired school teachers, have been interested in birds most of their lives and their home here, affectionately dubbed, "Wing-Inn", in recent years has become a haven for myriads of birds.

Currently, preparations are under way for winter bird feeding. Miss Foster estimates she goes through 50 pounds of sunflower seeds and 125 pounds of mixed bird feed during the winter months.

In summer the home is favored by dozens of bird species nesting in the surrounding grass, bushes, trees and nesting boxes.

The two Northport residents are concerned, however, over the disappearance of certain fauna species.

"It's been 30 years," said Miss Foster, "since I've seen a bluebird. At one time they were among our most common birds".

The two Northport residents said they believe insecticides are the greatest threat to the continent's wildlife.

"There are so many species which are nearly extinct", said Miss Wallbridge, who added, destruction of habitat due to urban sprawl is also a contributing factor to the decline.

"Many people do not realize the value of birds because we've never had to exist without them", said Miss Foster.

"Conservation and ecology should definitely continue to be part of the school curriculum and even more emphasized than it is at present" stressed the two naturalists.

Concern for Birds

Marie Foster and Ruth Wallbridge, Northport, discuss the disappearance of several popular species of birds including the eastern bluebird, once a common bird in Ontario. The two Northport residents say they believe Insecticides and loss of habitat to be the cause of the decline in bird population.

Ideal Weather Draws Hundreds to Applefest

BRIGHTON — More than 1,000 participants Saturday enjoyed the crisp autumn weather, games and booths in the town's first annual Applefest.

The main street business district was closed to traffic for six hours as families, couples and children strolled from booth to booth throwing darts, hitting pucks and eating apple pies, apple sauce or munching on caramel and jelly-covered apples.

The Downtown Association, sponsors of the event, said they were not overwhelmed with response of the area apple farmers.

Only one farm, The Pine Springs Farm, out of the six growers invited was represented during the festivities.

"We understand it is harvesting time for the farmers and can appreciate why it was difficult for many to attend but next year we will co-ordinate the Applefest with the local branch of the agriculture department, said Simon Coombs president of the association.

"This will give the growers more say in the project and we hope will eliminate some of the problems that happened this year," he said.

The organizers praised the efforts of the Brighton Lion's Club who provided game booths that lined the street.

Sod-breaking Marks Beginning of Addition

TRENTON — The official sod-turning ceremony for a $1.25 million addition to St. Peter's School was held Sunday, as almost 19 spectators watched under sunny skies.

Hugh O'Neil, MPP for Quinte Riding, was one of the dignitaries present as Austin Scott, chairman of the Hastings-Prince Edward Separate School Board performed the symbolic groundbreaking.

Work on the new building, which will be connected to the old structure by an overhead enclosed bridge, is expected to be completed by next September, said Frank Evans, the school's principal.

The addition will contain an auditorium-gymnasium, which will replace activities room students now use, a home economics room and a library resource centre.

The new structure will enable the school to other additional courses, such as home economics, and industrial arts, which will be housed in the old activities room. It will also include a lunch room and increase the classroom accommodations for the student body of 270 to said Mr. Evans.

"We will now be able to have a kindergarten in Trenton and not have to bus the children to Sacred Heart school in Batawa," he said.

Driver Charged in Hit-and-run

MARMORA — A 31-year-old Campbellford man was charged Sunday with failing to remain at the scene of an accident and careless driving.

Gary Walton was charged in connection with an accident late Friday in which a driver fled after being in collision with a parked car in the village. Damage to the two vehicles was estimated at about $1,800.

Charged with break, enter and theft is Richard Jewell, 19, of RR 1, Cherry Valley.

The restaurant was entered early Friday morning and a small quantity of cigarettes taken.

Apple Corps

Brighton's Royal Canadian Legion band was on hand Saturday to entertain the crowd at the town's first annual Applefest. Robert Semple, drum major for the band, leads the contingent down the main street, which was closed to traffic for the part of the day during the celebration.

Bowl-O-Drome Robbed

PICTON — Town police are investigating the weekend theft of $600 from a coin box at the Bowl-O-Drome on Main St.

Det. George Wright of the Picton police department said the front door of the building was found open at 4 a.m. Sunday by a patrolling policeman. Theft of the money was discovered shortly afterward.

Det. Wright said that there was no sign of forced entry.

Walk-a-thon Nets $2,500

PICTON — Approximately $2,500 was raised Saturday when 83 participants trudged a distance of 20 miles to raise funds for ARC Industries (Adult Rehabilitation Centre) and the Little Learners Nursery School here.

Debbie Heffernan, one of the organizers of the event, said the ninth annual walk-a-thon followed a route which led to Outlet Park, across to West Lake, Mallory Crossroad, Highway 33, and back to Picton.

Students from several Prince Edward County schools participated as well as a number of residents from Prince Edward Heights. Miss Heffernan reported that most of the participants completed the 20-mile walk.

Car Rolls, Driver Hurt

TRENTON — A 19-year old Kingston girl is in Kingston General Hospital in critical condition after an accident on Wooler Road, Saturday night.

Ruth Elliot, is unconscious and being treated for head injuries in intensive care unit at KGH. Brian Mindle, 21, of RR 1 Trenton a passenger in the automobile, was treated and released from Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Miss Elliot was travelling eastbound on Wooler road one half mile north of 401 when her vehicle entered a ditch and rolled several times, said a spokesman for the Brighton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police.

Canada's Wheat Farmers Benefit from Soviet Agricultural Mismanagement

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

There is a stereotype view of the Western Canadian grain farmer in the rest of Canada. He is combining and lobbying Ottawa when he doesn't have enough money coming in to maintain his two late model cars, run his ski chalet at Banff or his summer home in Florida.

There are exceptions to generalizations in that category, let's face it, to keep the stereotype alive. Just as there is enough economic power in the eastern Canadian banking and financial communities to convince prairie farmers that Canada is really controlled from Bay Street in Toronto.

Added to this classic and laughable Canadian argument is the fact that much of the prosperity has come from bumper grain orders with the world's two largest Communist states, the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China.

And given the disastrous shortfall in the Russian grain harvest this year, for most since 1971, Canadian and American grain farmers are holding a bonanza again from the food needs of the Communist world.

Even with all the admitted successes in technology, science and medicine, the Russians have always had difficulties with productivity in the fields and the management of their agriculture.

Much of it has to do with the centralization process in agriculture in the Russian Marxist economy, their chosen system to transplant agricultural machinery up to the competence of such equipment produced in the West and bad state farm management.

Not even the colder weather which the Russian experience above the 49th parallel, like Canadian, should prevent from being can be entirely at fault. Although this year, a warmish winter season meant the winter wheat did not get an essential protective blanket.

In June, an unexpectedly hot month seared the agenda and reduced this summer's yield. These are the vagaries of weather with which our own wheat growing industry is very familiar.

Add all these human and natural crises together and the Soviet Union expects to be about 30 million tons short of its stated requirement of 215 million tons.

Looking back 15 years, it has been the Communist Chinese rather than the Russians who have been the consistently largest purchasers of Canadian food grains. It would be accurate to say that the estimated $5 billion the Chinese have spent in hard currency in Canada for wheat and other food grains since then, has done much to keep Western Canada farming solvent.

The greatest single Canadian salesman of all time could conceivably be Alvin Hamilton who initiated the bumper wheat sales with China in 1959-60, ones which brought in about $1 billion at the time.

Though the Western wheat farmers will benefit financially from Soviet grain shortfalls, this country has so far been spared the immoral and, in effect, criminal profits which have been made in the U.S. by companies, brokers and individual entrepreneurs in the sale of wheat to Russia.

But it is a paradox of the Canadian economic system, and where our old-fashioned free-thinking, politically conservative farmers are concerned, that prosperity wouldn't be theirs if it weren't for those despised grain company salesmen with whom, once again, have to pay the going hard on currency price for Canadian and American wheat.

Economy Is Sound

Despite world recessionary factors that have had their effect on Ontario like everywhere else, the provincial economy is basically sound. And more stable than some.

In 1974 Ontario's exports totalled $12.4 billion, an increase of 13 per cent in dollar terms over the 1973 value. However the provincial share in the nation's total declined from 43 per cent to 38 per cent, much of this being due to the relative decline in exports of crude materials and end products.

In the ten-year period, 1965 to 1974, Ontario exports increased in value by 353 per cent.

These are just a few facts reflecting prosperity here, as presented in the Industry, Trade and Tourism review just issued.

The further proof of this is a section under the heading of "Ontario Business Success Stories" and ranging from the export of horticultural and agricultural products and expertise to the marketing of auto parts overseas.

Locally, the steady growth of Belleville's industrial base, embracing the city's outer environs as well as downtown is part of this overall progress. And healthier than in some countries — Britain for one where the threat of unemployment currently looms large. The Building Industry, according to a young architect writing to relatives here, is badly depressed with very little contemplated in either the private or public sectors once current projects are completed.

In Ontario the lag in house building of course is a worry, as is the frequently recurring evidence of industrial unrest as manifested by strikes. But then, this is an element in society's progress that allows for collective bargaining leading at times to work stoppages. It may not always seem like progress, or even democratic, but it is the way it is under a system that remains the envy of many.

Praise for Hospitals

Canadians receive good hospital care.

There has been ample confirmation of this from patients of Belleville General Hospital for one.

Among those who have expressed their appreciation from time to time have been visitors from the United States.

Appreciation too from the U.S., as expressed at the opening of a new hospital in Rochester recently. Prior to this event members of its staff had visited BGH and according to administrator Philip Rickard, this had helped facilitate the Rochester opening ahead of schedule.

Praise of a similar kind has come the way of Lennox and Addington hospital in Napanee.

The Napanee Beaver quotes from a column by Mark Allen in the Dyden, N.Y. Rural News, citing the prompt and efficient hospital care received in Napanee after his wife had broken a bone in her left leg.

"It's a good feeling to know that you have good neighbors that you can depend on when the need is there, but when this . . . extends beyond national borders it is even more appreciated," Mr. Allen wrote.

LETTERS

When the Hasty Pees Came Marching Home

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

They say a person is getting on when he remembers anniversaries more readily than day-to-day appointments, but for a considerable number of Canadians this morning brought an important anniversary.

Thirty years ago in perfect fall weather Belleville welcomed home the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. For scores of us who did not originate in the Counties and have never lived there, the day is just as memorable as if we had. In rather indefinable ways Belleville has been a special homeown for men from every corner of Ontario and from every province all down the years since good fortune brought us to the Regiment.

I cannot even remember being in Belleville before October 4, 1945. A group of us who had come home a little earlier on hospital ships and weren't up to marching, rode in cars in the parade that moved through cheering crowds from the station to downtown under flags and bunting on that crisp fall morning. We were reunited with the friends we had left in the mud of Italy and in a few hours we had all gone our various ways. But we have been back many times. We will return once again next weekend when the Regiment officially marks the anniversary of what took place 30 years ago today.

On dozens of visits for reunions and regimental occasions, on business or pleasure trips the feeling of identification with the City of Belleville and the Counties has continued to be strong. What a privilege it has been to share the sense of history that wraps itself around any visitor to your city who has had any connection with the Regiment, however brief. One of the most memorable occasions was the ceremony in May, 1964, in which the Regiment was granted the Freedom of the City,"with all rights and privileges pertaining thereto as long as the water of the Bay of Quinte embraces the shores of the City."

That the Regiment is still there in 1975 to march through the streets with colors flying and bayonets fixed is something we owe to our old comrades in Belleville and surrounding communities who have kept priceless traditions alive. In today's apathetic society, with a government continually downgrading our Commonwealth connection, this is accomplishment indeed. For all many Canadians care about their origins and their heritage, the world might have been created in 1959.

A Canadian in 1945 didn't have to prove his national identity. Vincent Massey who was in Canada House in London during the war used to say that you could tell a Canadian soldier by his bearing a block away. In those days Canadian soldiers weren't thinking about separate identity and independence so much as of interdependence. We had a great awareness of the Commonwealth and we were often aware of being a pivotal force in a great international lineup moving forward on the Eighth Army-Fifth Army front in Italy.

Perhaps in many quarters it isn't considered discreet now to talk much about those days in view of the present ethnic mosaic of Canada. But old soldiers think Canadians need reminders of why we have survived. Those of us who had come safe home in 1945 are remembering those who didn't. What would they think of what we have done with the Canada and the world they left us?

An Anglo-Irish Protestant, Parnell bridged the Fenians and parliamentary nationalists. He lost his following after being named co-respondent in a divorce action.

Delinquents Act Needs Updating

Sudbury Star

There is no doubt at all that the Juvenile Delinquents Act passed of 50 years ago needs updating. The Canada of today is a vastly different society from that of the pre-First World War era.

Not that the act has remained untouched in all those years. There have been amendments, changes in practice and some fairly major switches in the way it has been used by provincial jurisdiction.

Federal solicitor-general Warren Allmand is on sound ground generally, however, in proposing a new act to replace one which is archaic in character. That much we can readily agree.

But there's more than modernization in the Allmand proposal; perhaps more than Canadians want in the way of sweeping changes.

It remains for Parliament to debate the legislation when it returns from its continuing vacation and there will doubtless be some second thoughts on the part of the government before this package is presented. At first glance the draft bill is far too soft.

Mr. Allmand fails to recognize the fact that there can be occasions in which young people under 18 are every bit as dangerous and sometimes more vicious than adult offenders. A boy of 14, even younger, can be a bully, a thug, a thief, even a potential killer

Yet the new bill would double the age of criminal responsibility to 14 and make it impossible to charge anyone under it without consent of the provincial attorney-general. It means there would be no criminal charges under any circumstance and charges only with bureaucratic permission between age 14, and 18.

One proposal in the draft bill certainly should attract support in principle, however, is the creation of "youth courts" for the 14 to 18-year-olds. This would be a rather drastic approach from the current juvenile courts but could only work well if sufficient backup service is provided to steer the young offender into more meaningful paths . and only then when there is a real chance of success.

Whether the minister recognizes it or not, Canadian society is becoming more violent as witness the six "muggings" in Sudbury last weekend — and public opinion is not ready to put up with more weakening of its defences.

Someone in Ottawa, surely, should be thinking, too, of the human right of law-abiding

Athletes Get Help From Bank

Montreal Gazette

Canada's under-supported and deserving athletes will benefit from a windfall from the Royal Bank's allocation of an unexpected $200,000 in Olympic lottery winnings. The bank has set a fine example for others in the commercial sector.

Others are not likely to come by the source of largesse so easily, or quickly. The bank got its windfall when a stolen ticket that won half a million was recovered. But the Royal was already a continuous and important supporter of the Junior Olympics, so was only enhancing a reputation that invites emulation.

U.S.-style Investigations into Abuses Could be Useful Here

When it takes a 11 to 15 per cent annual pay increase just to stand still, and when most people feel they are being shortchanged relative to everyone else, and when governments at all levels refuse to provide economic leadership—then something has gone wrong.

That something would be rated differently by different people. To those with incomes that keep well ahead of inflation, the economy may seem to be performing quite satisfactorily.

But in others, society seems sick. The blame, depending upon one's viewpoint, rests with government, or business, or labor, or the older generation, or the younger generation.

Whatever the cause, the way to reform is to induce powerful groups to act as much in the public interest as in their own, says John Crispo, professor of industrial relations in the University of Toronto's faculty of management studies.

And that, in turn, requires that they be genuinely accountable to the public, he argues in his new book, The Public Interest: Who Knows Best? published by McGraw-Hill Ryerson at $12.95.

Canada, especially under its present government, is a more closed society than the United States.

It took a congressional committee in Washington, looking into U.S. corporations' donations to politicians and foreign republics, to disclose how much was being given to Canada's political parties by the Canadian subsidiaries of U.S. firms.

Even most of our royal commissions and similar government-appointed bodies are, not chosen so much for their unsolved impartiality as for their presumed sympathy towards the interests of the government of the day.

Prof. Crispo's proposal is this: Let the public and political governments set up an income and cost review board made up of "competent, diligent, dedicated and non-partisan personnel."

Its job would be to single out the groups that have acquired too much power, decide what could be done to bring them down to size, and raise a public furor until some such action was taken.

The novelty in such a board would be its bridging of federal and provincial jurisdictions. Given the division of powers under our constitution, that's the only way it could operate effectively.

In searching for the faults in the Crispo plan one thinks immediately of the Prices and Incomes Commission, and its Economic Council of Canada.

Good work has been done by both, but it has been all too easy to forget their advice.

But an incomes and cost review board with built-in counselling pressures, federal and provincial, would not be easily ignored.

And if it had the right to turn the full glare of publicity on the abuse of institutional power, an apathetic public might well become aroused sufficiently to insist on healthy, democratic reform while there is still time.

Finding a place to start would be no problem for such a board. Among Prof. Crispo's suggestions:

—The building trades and their potentially discriminating use of the hiring hall and priorities on job assignments.

—The stock exchanges, and the brokers' practice of trading in their own accounts, their families' accounts or dummy accounts.

—The professions that practise self-regulation in secrecy, and now are seeing upon a version of collective bargaining to increase their financial leverage against the public.

City Residents Get Tour of PUC Addition

A steady stream of visitors toured Belleville Public Utilities Commission administration building and water purification plant during Saturday's open house.

By noon, more than 100 persons had been shown through the administration building at 195 College St. W.

This open house was held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in recognition the November opening of the administration centre, a $250,000 addition to the operations and maintenance section.

Manager Neil Britton said preparations for the open house took a great deal of time but; "You can't put a value on the public relations aspect."

Employees showed visitors through each department in the two facilities. Mr. Britton said there was a good turnout of employees to act as tour guides. None were paid for manning Saturday's open house.

Mr. Britton said the open house will not become an annual event but should be held every few years to show people the workings of the commission.

Robert Castle, 22 of 68 Gould St. is listing in satisfactory condition in Trenton Memorial Hospital with a concussion, fracture and bruises.

The two men were passengers in a 1970-model car driven by Roger Leger, 23, of 32 Ferry St. in Trenton which went out of control while westbound on the county road, entered the north ditch, crossed the road and struck a tree and a rock in the south ditch.

Leger was released from hospital Sunday after overnight treatment for minor injuries.

A 25-year-old Belleville man has been charged with rape in connection with an attack on a 51-year-old city woman here late Saturday.

City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie identified the man today as Floyd Johnston of 26 Centre St. He was to appear at a bail hearing at 2 p.m. today.

Chief Crosbie said the victim was treated and released from Belleville General Hospital for cuts and bruises. She received stitches to her lower lip.

He said the woman was taken from the front of 28 Great St. James St. to the rear of 54 Station St. where the offence occurred.

Where Mom Works

A steady stream of people visited facilities during the open house from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Fifteen Show for Walk

Despite summer-like clear weather Saturday, Belleville Lions Club's second attempt at a walk-a-thon was again a washout when only 15 of an estimated 1,000 persons showed up to walk the 10-mile course.

"We can't understand what happened," club fund-raising committee chairman Gord Monk said Sunday.

The walk was scheduled for Saturday after the first attempt on Sept. 20 was washed out by rain.

About $3,200 was raised in the first walk for Canadian Special Olympics for Retarded Children and Canadian athletes in training for 1976 Olympics.

Mr. Monk said he has not as yet determined how much the club raised Saturday. About $500 in pledges is to be collected.

"We spent so much on advertising."

He said he had no explanation for why so few walkers showed up.

Quick Rescue with Jaws

Sunday Shopping Boycott Grows

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Representatives of three other Belleville churches have joined forces with Bridge St. United church in calling for a boycott of supermarkets which operate on Sundays.

During an informal Intelligencer survey Sunday, it was revealed pastors of Calvary Temple at 83 East Dundas St., Centennial First Methodist Church at 135 Avondale Rd. and First Pentecostal Church at 54 North Front St. have urged their congregations to join the boycott.

"We're concerned with family counselling," said Rev. George Shalm of First Pentecostal. "This really affects this thing of family togetherness. There's less opportunity for families to get together."

Rev. Shalm explained if a major chain store worker is forced to work on Sundays and all of his friends have Sundays off, "he's shut out of his own circle of friends."

Rev. Shalm said Sunday business would eventually harm the economy. "Ultimately, it becomes self-defeating," he remarked. "Prices have to go up."

He said he and church directors have discussed possible picketing and defended the church's role in the dispute.

"The church ought to be considered to be concerned in areas that affect family life," he commented.

Rev. Shalm called for government action. "The politicians should be responsible," he said. "It's a matter of law enforcement."

The A and P supermarket in the Belleville Plaza became the first chain to open its doors last week on Sunday and Food City, just outside Belleville, followed suit this weekend.

Calvary Rev. Charles K. Benn said he told his congregation Sunday, "we, as believers and Christians, wouldn't be found patronizing this store (A and P) on a day of rest . . . out of an appreciation of our day of worship which has been handed down over the centuries."

Rev Benn said Calvary's board of deacons is currently petitioning city aldermen and plans a formal representation at a future city council meeting — "a protest of some kind."

Rev. Paul G. Johnston of Centennial Free Methodist stated, "I encourage people not to support the supermarkets who are opening on Sundays."

Quinte Cuisine

Pat Hasselfelt is a busy housewife who devised the following hamburger and rice recipe as a quick and easy meal for an equally busy family. "The children love it," she says. Mrs. Hasselfelt, an active church worker, plays badminton as a hobby.

Hamburger and Rice

one pound hamburger
one medium onion
one tsp. salt
sprinkling of pepper to taste
one large can vegetable soup
one and one-third cup uncooked rice

- Braise onions. Add hamburger and braise, adding salt and pepper. When all browned, add vegetable soup, 1½ can of water, and bring the mixture to a boil. Then turn down heat and simmer while the rice cooks.
- Boil the rice, and then place in sieve and strain, using cold water to separate the grains, then hot water to reheat the rice.
- Place rice on six serving dishes, and pour meat mixture over.
- This makes a fast supper or lunch, with salad and bread is a satisfying meal.

It will be "Canadian Cheese with a foreign flavor".

Mrs. McNeil, convener of the program, arranged an interesting tour for the afternoon. After lunch the members set out. The first stop was the Rose Garden at Corby Park, Belleville. There were many beautiful and unusually colored roses, as well as other flowers, plants and trees.

The women then visited the Museum at Ameliasburgh, a former Church, built in 1868. The displays depict a Village Complex of historical artifacts e.g. an old-time school room, a chapel, a telephone exchange, displays of dishes and glassware, historical pictures and newspaper, a rotating display of figures of horses and various vehicles.

Prepare for a Beautiful Spring!

Dig a little hole and put a Dutch bulb in it. It is almost as simple as that. Actually, to reap a spring harvest of breath-taking beauty, a few little rules should be followed. Most spring blooms include crocus, daffodils, tulips and numerous other beauties that will grace throughout the soil where you planted the bulbs in the Fall.

There's something you can do in the fall to make the winter shorter.

Plant Dutch bulbs. Imagine a crocus peeping out of the snow of February, daffodils swaying in the light breeze of March, the fragrance of hyacinths mingling with the smoke of the last log-fire of the winter season, and the sight of brilliant colored tulips in the spring sun.

Tulips will provide ten weeks of flowers when care is taken to plant bulbs from each of the different classifications. As one class reaches its peak, the next is preparing to burst into full flower.

When selecting tulips, imagine the design of your garden. Tulips in the classic shapes, such as the Triumph Darwin, or Cottage, are well suited for planting in mounds, beds, or borders. Early blooming tulips are more attractive in the rock garden or more casual setting, whereas the fringe-petaled Parrots, the lily-flowered varieties, or the large Darwin Hybrids, are dramatic flowers, and should be where they can be a center of interest.

Hyacinths are flowers with beautiful colors, delightful fragrance, full heads of bloom, and sturdy structure. They are no horticultural secrets about growing easy Dutch hyacinths, and even the novice gardener can be successful with his first attempt.

The earliest of the flowers, with a flowering season extending from late winter to May, is the daffodil (narcissus). They are the most tolerant of plants, being amazingly adaptable, and will grow in almost any situation except dense shade or poorly drained soil. The daffodil requires very little attention, and looks at home with all the flowers of spring.

All of the following bulbs are suited to most Canadian climatic and soil conditions.

Sweet smelling Allium, a glamorous cousin of the onion family, are diverse in form, height and color – but all are gay and decorative. The blooms are usually round, covered with tiny flowers. For plantings, provide a soil cover three times their own depth. They can be planted in borders or in shrubbery and the smaller varieties are ideal for rock gardens.

The Anemone is among the easiest of spring flowers. There are many different kinds of anemones, varying greatly in appearance from the early low-growing species with their delicate rayed flowers, to the large-petaled florists' types. The Anemone blanda has small starry flowers. It is the earliest-blooming of all the beautiful and hardy anemones, flowering in March-April. Cluster them in rock gardens or borders at a depth of about 2".

Chionodoxa or Glory of the Snow produces starry sky-blue flowers with a snowy center in March-April and are very effective planted in groups on lawns, in banks, borders or under shrubbery or deciduous trees. You can plant them 3" deep and about 3" apart – and, as long as they do well, you need not disturb them.

The Crocus has been the biggest "little" bulb favorite ever since it came to Canada via Holland from Greece. The yellow and white species generally flower first; the pure white Snow Bunting may appear as early as March in Eastern Canada or February in warmer parts of British Columbia. There are some six different kinds of early Spring crocuses, ranging from gold to lilac and blue, all coming under the Crocus chrysanthus banner.

Crocuses should be planted 4" deep and 4" apart.

The Galanthus or Snowdrop, with its small, frost white, bell-like flowers lasts for about three weeks in late February. Plant these bulbs 3" deep and 3" apart and let them multiply in the rock garden, underneath light trees and shrubs or along paths.

The Scilla could be mistaken for a bluebell – in fact, the May flowering variety is often called the Spanish Bluebell. But you can, enjoy Scillas right from March, when the 4-6" high Scilla Siberica Spring Beauty comes into flower. Plant them 3" deep and 3" apart in groups so they grow just like wild flowers.

After the decision of what to plant, one must know when, where, and how to plant. All spring-flowering bulbs must be planted in the fall before deep frost hardens the ground. Once the bulbs have been planted, roots begin to form and flowers start to develop even when heavy snows come and the temperature plummets. Planting time ranges from September to November.

In preparing to plant, it is essential that you plant bulbs in soil that drains well. If soil is high in clay content and tends to stay packed, add sand, peat or vermiculite to a depth of 12 to 18 inches. If soil is too sandy, add peat or compost. Since bulbs contain their first season's food supply, a good all-purpose fertilizer is recommended only to foster future growth.

Two approaches to planting may be considered: either dig an area large enough for an entire cluster of bulbs, the easiest method, or dig holes for each bulb.

Plant larger bulbs - tulips, daffodils, hyacinths - at least six inches deep and six inches apart. Plant smaller bulbs - crocus, and muscari - three inches deep and three inches apart. If the soil is sandy, plant an inch or two deeper.

Set each bulb firmly but gently into the soil, pointed ends up, cover with soil, and water thoroughly. The water-ing is most important as the bulbs need this soaking to begin strong, early root formation vital to good spring bloom.

Vanier Institute Changes Its Focus

OTTAWA (CP) — In 1964, members of the Vanier Institute of the Family were appointed by its founder Gov.-Gen. Georges P. Vanier to promote the traditional nuclear family as an ideal.

"We are no longer an elite and we recognize that people are searching for some other forms of lifestyle besides the traditional family," President Susan Zemans of Vancouver said in an interview at the Institute's 11th annual meeting Friday.

"We still carry out the governor-general's intentions but we aren't afraid to keep up with the times," Mrs. Zemans said.

Proof lies in both the theme—Pathways to Familial Society—and atmosphere of the conference, which is charged with debate over changing lifestyles.

"You just can't categorize the family any more although the basic pervasive concept of the family in society is the nuclear family," said executive-director William Dennis.

"Implicit in every one of our statements here is the fact that the nuclear family only applies to some people. It's not necessarily wrong but it doesn't apply to others living in, for example, the extended rural family, broken families with one parent or communes—there are a hundred types," he said.

Eight researchers at the Institute are probing these familial relationships, vaguely defined as any living arrangement between any number of people and not necessarily in a home.

Jacques Gagne, head of the task force asks a dozen questions to explain only one aspect of the institutes study. One of them:

"How do we learn in familial, in non-institutional settings? In our society, for example, we have invented sex education. After 40 hours of reading we are supposed to become good lovers. Is this a good way to learn?"

Andree Michel, a Paris researcher, explained how new family patterns reflect economic and political structures.

"New groupings are not isolated things sprouting from zero. The nuclear family reflects the concept of stereotyped sexual roles at work in all capitalistic countries, and to all of them women are subjected to male dominance," she explained.

Colette Moreax, University of Montreal sociologist, said family patterns change as family functions are reduced or expanded.

"There has been a reduction of functions in Quebec families and we must ask ourselves if we desocializing our children. The schools, media and people in the street now fulfill many functions the family did two decades ago," she said.

Nurses Help Prevent Heart Attack Relapse

WINNIPEG (CP) — A team of nurses at Misericordia General Hospital in Winnipeg is working to help victims of heart attacks stay out of the hospital.

During the last 18 months, Belle Gowriluk and her colleagues in the hospital's intensive care unit have developed a teaching program to help patients avoid relapses.

The program was prompted by a belief that information was being given out haphazardly and no one was making sure that certain treatments and restrictions were fully explained to patients.

"We felt a lot of patients left the hospital not prepared to keep from coming back in," she explained. "By writing our own booklet, we were able to pass on only that information we feel is necessary."

In addition to the booklet given to patients as they leave the hospital, the nurses have prepared a teaching record that helps pinpoint where the patient is in terms of education about heart attacks.

Mrs. Gowriluk says a nurse can tell by a glance at the record just how much information has been given a patient and how ready a patient is to learn more. The chart cuts paperwork to a minimum for overworked nurses.

Both the teaching booklet and record have been approved by the executive of the medical staff at the hospital and have been in use since June.

Final printing and copyrighting of the material is yet to come, and Mrs. Gowriluk says other hospitals in the city may follow Misericordia's lead in hopes of making relapses among heart attack victims less common.

On Her Way To Priesthood

WINNIPEG (CP) — A 53-year-old Winnipeg woman will take another step Monday toward becoming one of the first women Anglican priests in Canada.

Joan Whiting, a full-time lay assistant at St. Luke's Anglican Church, will be ordained a deacon by the Rt. Rev. Barry Valentine, bishop of the diocese of Rupert's Land.

She will be the second woman in the diocese to be ordained a deacon, an order which commonly precedes elevation to the priesthood.

Miss Whiting has a master's degree in economics and was assistant to the treasurer of the Hudson's Bay Co. department store in Winnipeg for 17 years before she switched careers several years ago.

The Anglican Church has accepted the idea of women priests in principle, and the house of bishops is expected to work out the details of the plan at a meeting the end of October.

Revisiting Memories

NEW YORK (AP) — Most widows prefer going on vacation to places where they went with their late husbands, says Beatrice Green, director of Widows Travel Club. "One of their most important possessions is their memories," notes Mrs. Green, "and the widows enjoy going back to places where they had fond memories when they were married."

Achieve Equality

OXFORD, England (CP) — Men and women appear to be achieving academic equality at Oxford University on the evidence of the results of honor school examinations. Although women took 1.6 per cent fewer first-class degrees than men, they took 3.4 per cent more second-class degrees.

Buyers Ripped Off

NEW YORK (AP) — Many people are being "ripped off" by the North American Indian jewelry craze, says Diane Schulz, antique jewelry collector. The jewelry, now in large made in Japan, Mexico and the southwestern United States, she says, adding that sometimes the intent is not to cheat because buyers and sellers do not know enough about jewelry to ask the right questions.

Zip-on Strip!

This dual-purpose fur coat is made of natural Norwegian blue Fox, worked horizontally into a design that suits either long or just-below-the-knee styles. The daytime coat becomes a stunning evening coat with the addition of a zip-on-strip, that can double as a stole or bustle somebody off to the police station," she said.

She said this upsets a neighborhood so much that people become unwilling to report such cases.

Court Needs 'Child Advocate', Says Judge

TORONTO (CP) — A social worker and a family court judge said Wednesday that improper handling of child-abuse cases by some policemen and some courts make many people reluctant to seek legal help for battered children.

They were speaking at a meeting on emergency care sponsored by the Emergency Nurses' Association of Ontario attended by nurses, doctors and ambulance drivers.

Judge George Thomson of Kingston family court said many people will not give evidence in child abuse cases because they feel courts are ineffective and inconvenient.

He said judges are removed from the people appearing before them and sometimes ill-informed, and could benefit from discussions with medical and social workers.

He proposed a child advocate to help judges decide whether to take a child out of the home or arrange help for the family to ensure the home is a safe place for the youngster.

The social worker, Jessie Walters of the Metropolitan Toronto Children's Aid Society, said police at some stations react too zealously to reports of child abuse.

"They tear into the home and act as if we're criminals," she said.

Delay Honeymoon

LEICESTER England (CP) — Because of a misunderstanding, the registrar did not show up for the wedding at a Roman Catholic church and the ceremony had to be postponed. But John Deza and Christine Antkowiak held the wedding reception for their 30 guests anyway but postponed the honeymoon until they were married a week later.

Hotel Hires Bellehops

TORONTO (CP) — Harbour Castle Hotel believes it has hired Canada's first female bellhops, Janet Scott, 20, and Anita Pitre, 22. The girls say that some men will not be seen letting a woman carrying their bags in the public lobby, but once in the elevator it's a different story, while others let the girls carry the bags in front of the bell captain but take over the burden when the captain is out of sight.

Ryerson Drops Nude Models

TORONTO (CP)—Inflation has dealt Ryerson Polytechnical Institute's fashion department the cruelest cut of all.

Instead of live nude models, students in this year's Visual Communications I course have to settle for glossy centrefold photographs from Penthouse and Playgirl magazines.

The fashion department is unable to hire nudes since it dropped its fees to $2 from $4 an hour. Budget restrictions forced the move, says a departmental spokesman.

Gail Rutherford, instructor for the first-year course, has tried to compensate by having fully-clothed students posing for each other.

But, as one student puts it: "We need naked bodies."

"It's ridiculous," says another freshman. "Photographs are inadequate because they do not give enough detail on muscle structure or body creases."

Mirabel Creates Housing Boom

MONTREAL (CP) — The new Mirabel International Airport is creating a housing boom in the nearby community of St. Eustache, a provincial task force on housing announced during the weekend.

In its latest report, the task force predicts St. Eustache's population could swell to 60,000 from its present 18,000 by the year 2001.

As part of a major development program, the town has said it is planning to build new homes for various income groups.

The task force is headed by Montreal planning director Guy Legault and is collecting information on several towns in Quebec as part of a full report to be released Dec. 31.

St. Eustache is halfway between Montreal and the new airport, which is 35 miles northwest of the Canadian metropolis.

LCBO Reduces Wine Prices

TORONTO (CP) — The Liquor Control Board of Ontario (LCBO) announced that prices on 23 wines it retails will be adjusted, beginning Monday.

Twenty-nine varieties will be going down by an average of 50 cents a bottle. These include several French and German wines. Twenty-four varieties, consisting of French, German, Italian and Portuguese wines, will go up an average of 15 cents a bottle.

The LCBO said the adjustment reflects the fluctuating

Cindy Nicholas Off To Conquer Suez Canal

By JERRY BROWN
Trenton Bureau Chief

CFB TRENTON — Cindy Nicholas, Canadian marathon swimming star, left for a 35-mile race in Egypt Sunday, but is more concerned about winning her private contest and making it home for her high school graduation party.

The 18-year-old Toronto woman, seemingly confident in the manner of most world record holders, said she had not originally intended to compete in the Suez Canal swim when invited last August but changed her mind when she realized she might never have the chance to visit Egypt again.

It was in London, where she returned to accept the award for the longest crossing of the English channel by a woman, that the Egyptian invited her to compete and offered to pay part of her expenses.

The Suez race will not be the first time Miss Nicholas has competed in a marathon against international swimmers.

"Last year when I returned to London for the award there was a team race across the channel and I was supposed to act as an observer," she explained. "One of the members of the multi-national team became ill and I swam in his place."

The Egyptians won that race and there was controversy as to whether it had been in record time, she said.

Interestingly though, the Egyptian time was only 19 minutes faster than Miss Nicholas' record for the crossing and she said the conditions during the team race were better than for her individual swim.

The Egyptians and other middle eastern countries feel the same way about marathon swimming as Canadians do about hockey, she said.

"This race will be sponsored by the Egyptian government and swimmers from all over the world, including the best marathoners will be competing," added Miss Nicholas.

Miss Nicholas has never stopped training since the channel swim and hopes to do well in the meet but said she hasn't really given it much thought.

"I you think about swimming you can't start in daydream and then fall behind in school," she said.

"Maybe the warmer water in the Canal will be a problem," pondered Miss Nicholas.

"I prefer swimming in water about 60 degrees (Fahrenheit) and do my best under those conditions, but whatever the temperature is, all the swimmers will be in the same water".

Miss Nicholas' father, James, a school teacher, has taken time off to be with his daughter and will be on the support boat.

Miss Nicholas, holder of the record time for crossing Lake Ontario, was worried whether she could afford to lose the school time and compete in the event.

"I want to study science in University and I am taking three sciences and three maths this year and I didn't know if I could make up the lost time," said the Grade 13 student in an interview at the base airport. "I decided not to pass up the opportunity but this meant taking my school books with me and studying while I travelled," she said.

Miss Nicholas is accompanied by her father on the two-week trip and will swim in two races, the Egyptian contest and a 22-mile Syrian race in Lebanon on October 19.

Canada's premier marathon swimmer, Cindy Nicholas, discusses her agenda for the next few weeks with her father, James. Both Nicholas will be in the middle east for the next few weeks while Cindy participates in two 25 mile competitions.

Final a Heartbreaker For Thurlow Yardmen

The Belleville Yardmen Thurlow Midgets of the Ontario Minor Baseball Association suffered two heartbreaking defeats in the all-Ontario Championship series on the weekend. In the best-of-three matches the Essex Kennedy Midgets took the decision in two games straight.

The Thurlow club travelled to Essex, near Windsor, on Saturday in the opening game of the series only to be handed a 5-4 loss by the Essex club. In the second, and what proved to be the final game of the series at Plainfield the yardmen suffered a slim 3-1 win in 10 innings.

"Mistakes made the difference and the game's summarized Yardman coach George Ber Sunday. The mistake that killed the locals in the second game came in the form of an over thrown ball from third to first base.

Bader, who scored earlier a run in the third inning managed to contain the Kennedy team until the ninth when they count hall changed a single into a triple for...Mike Taylor ending the game into extra innings.

In the tenth Essex scored the two runs that clinched the Championship for them. Mark Sweet in the top of the inning hit a high fly to the centre field fence which was good enough for a double. Sweet then stole third and was driven in by Al Gagnon's single.

Gagnon also scored from third on a badly thrown ball by Thurlow pitcher Brad Sullivan. Sullivan pitched a total of 17 innings in the two game series and looked very good in Sunday's contest before being relieved.

In the first game of the series, a five run second inning proved to be enough to secure an Essex victory but not before the Yardmen came close to tying the game up in the eighth inning when they scored their fourth run. Scoring for the Thurlow club in Saturday's game were Barry Beer, Paul Bedard, with two and Charles Buckley with a single.

Coach Beer felt, "They (Essex) had to have the run in the ninth, Sunday and they came through with it. They're a good club," summarized the local coach.

Hellenic Nipped

Quinte Hellenic bowed out of Premier Soccer League Dunvegt Cup play at Sir James Whitney School, Sunday but the team gave a good account of itself before dropping a 4-3 decision to Kingston Portuguese.

The game was decided on penalty shots after the clubs failed to score during 90 minutes of regulation time and a 10 minute overtime session.

Goalie Zoltan Vigh, a standout for Hellenic, scored one of his team's goals in the penalty shot showdown. Other Hellenic goals came from Peter Kalmirios and Andy Veniteris.

Edge Melrose 4-3

Latta Captures SHBL Honors

A four run first inning proved to be enough for the Latta entry in the South Hastings Baseball League championship game between Latta and Melrose on Sunday in Camiffton. The 4-3 win for the Latta club ended the championship in the best of seven series 4-3.

It was the third season in a row that the same two teams had made the final series and for Latta it was their second championship in the three years. Dale Bamber and Bob Reid split the pitching duties for the winners. Bamber pitched a total of four and one third innings, allowing three runs on three hits, three walks and two strike outs.

Reid came in to relieve Bamber in the fifth and held the Melrose club at bay through the remaining innings. He did not give up a hit while allowing only one walk. John Pepper and Ted Abrams shared the pitching chores for the losers.

Reg Abrams, of Latta, playing his first game of the season started the four run first inning rally for the winners and managed another single in the seventh.

Latta got seven of their nine hits in the first frame. Following Abrams safe single Shelly walked and Damon Richardson singled. The first run scored on a throwing error from the outfield. Bob Allison's single scored the second run for the winners.

Ted Abrams came in to replace Pepper, who had been singled which was good enough to drive in Latta's final two runs. Pepper came to the plate with Richardson on the game in the second inning.

Melrose scored all their runs in the fourth inning on one hit, two walks and two Latta errors. Reid came in for the final two outs for the winners in that inning. Bamber went back to the mound in the fifth and gave up a hit before Reid returned.

Bamber picked up a pair of singles for Latta with Wayne Harrison and Roger and Barry Ray all adding singles to round out the hitting. Bruce Pascoe led the losers with his double and Larry Pascoe also had a single for Melrose.

Hayward Quite an Instructor

Coaches Swarm Clinic

By TOM GAVEY
Sports Staff

If you've seen one hockey clinic, you've seen them all, some people are apt to say. Well, any of the Belleville minor hockey coaches that were lucky enough to attend the Cooper Hockey Coaches Clinic at the Dick Ellis Rink were liable to put up an argument. The clinic, ranging approximately seven hours Sunday put the coaches through their paces.

The main reason for the success was a man named Bill Hayward, representing Cooper. Hayward was in full command of the day's activities.

As an indication of how good a name the clinic has earned, the numbers increased from 35 coaches in 1974 to 60 coaches in '75. Included with the coaches from the Belleville Minor Hockey Association were coaches from the OMHA (Ontario Minor Hockey Association) all-star teams.

The basic training program included conditioning, shooting, skating and other fine points. It was the first such clinic to be held in Canada this year. Even the girls got in on the act. Wanda Botty worked out and will use her knowledge in the novice division of BMHA.

"This year we have more coaches than ever before, we actually had to turn some back," stated Don McEachern, president of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association.

Both Bob Quinn, of Stephen's Hardware (a co-sponsor of the event), and McEachern were quick to point out that Hayward was the main mover for the clinic's overwhelming success.

Cooper couldn't have sent a much better man to instruct the coaches. Hayward is also an instructor for the Toronto Maple Leafs, Atlanta Flames and the Minnesota North Stars. He arrived Sunday afternoon, after working out with the Leafs the night before, and left the clinic for Atlanta, where he was to help with power skating.

One of the things Hayward stressed was that the goalie was the most important man on a team.

"No one else has a red light on whenever they make a mistake," commented Hayward.

The instructor acknowledged that most coaches tend to treat all players the same.

BILL HAYWARD

That way there are no conflicts. However, a goalie is a special kind of player and must be treated as such. He has particular needs, distinctively varied from those of his teammates, and therefore must be handled differently.

The coaches were well informed when they left the ice. Their attention was kept by Hayward's booming voice developed through his years in the armed forces.

"Don't just one coach learns something from this clinic it'll be worthwhile," said Hayward.

"That coach may spread the word to hundreds of minor players over the years he coaches," he added.

A lecture followed the on-ice instruction and lunch break. During the talk session, Hayward demonstrated the pros and cons of today's equipment and answered any questions which may have arisen from the day's activities.

In all, most coaches left with a whole new perspective of the game of hockey. If you happened to miss this year's clinic, be sure you're alert enough to catch a spot in next year's enrolment.

CSS Blanks Quebec Squads

Centennial senior and junior football teams might be terrible hosts, but they're great on the grid-iron. Saturday the two clubs played exhibition games at Pierrefonds High School, Montreal.

The juniors took to the field first and shutout the visitors 17-0. Both contests were meaningless until their respective second halves of play. The Minor team rallied and was also blanked. They won home on the short end of an 8-0 score.

"There was relatively good hitting throughout the game," noted Centennial junior coach Doug Irwin. Jeff Boyer picked up the first touchdown for the Chargers on a one yard cash across the goal line. The locals drew two points on the conversion attempt with Ron Ferguson passing to Jim Wickemeyer for the extra points.

As so often it does in junior football, the first touchdown made a lot of difference. They didn't give up but their play did slow down a bit," explain a rid the Centennial coach.

Mike Curly and quarterback Ferguson combined on the second and final touchdown by the winners on a play that went 40 yards for the major. Allan Detlor made it across the goal line to add another two points to the score on the conversion attempt.

Kicker Mike O'Shaughnessy rounded out the scoring in the second half with his single into the end zone.

In the senior game, the locals came out on top by a score of 8-0 in a well played, hard fought encounter. Again all of the scoring came in the second half of play. In the first half a superb effort by the Centennial defence kept the visitors not only off the scoreboard, but outside the 25 yard line.

Pierrefonds offence appeared to have a slight advantage in the first half and their defence also put on a good show in trying to stop the attack of the home team. "We play a running game normally, but today we wanted to try to pass the ball. I think my quarterback has got a good arm," said Pierrefonds coach Skip Rochette after the contest.

The Montreal school's senior team, before coming to Centennial, are undefeated in season play and the last, though only exhibition, was their first. The Montreal coach also noted that the age limit for the senior teams in Quebec is 17 and the average on his club is 18.

The only scoring play for the Chargers came in the third quarter when running back Paul Hipkin took a handoff from quarterback Rob Dejong and went through the line and 40 yards for a touchdown. Hipkin also scored the two point conversion taking a pass from Dejong and barreling over the goal line.

The Pierrefonds coach felt: "Centennial are very comparable to the teams we play except for the age difference but the guys get out on the field they forget about it right away."

The visitors, before heading back to Montreal, were treated to a meal courtesy of the Centennial Athletic Association and McDonalds Family Restaurant.

Belleville Yardmen Thurlow Midget Terry Tanner slides into third base only to be called out on a throw from the outfield of the Essex Midgets in the second and what proved to be the final game of the Ontario Minor Baseball Association 'C' championship series in Plainfield on Sunday. Essex won the game by a 3-1 score after winning the first game in Essex on Saturday by a 5-4 margin. Essex third baseman, Jim Armstrong makes the tag on Tanner for the out.

Reds Run Bucs Ragged

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds ran with wind on a gust of a sweep in baseball's National League playoffs, but Sparky Anderson said it is still sky-and-back in the pit of his soccer-ridden stomach.

"They are very capable of annihilating us in three ball games," the Reds manager said after Cincinnati burned up the baserpaths in beating Pittsburgh Pirates 6-1 Sunday.

Nevertheless, the Reds dominated the Pirates in the first two games and the best-of-five series could end Tuesday night in Pittsburgh.

"We are capable of playing this game as well as any team can ever play," admitted the white-haired, Anderson, who prefils milk to appease his stomach lining.

Indeed, the Reds set a championship playoff record with seven stolen bases Sunday with a running display that would have looked more at home on a cinder track or a football field.

They also limited the Pirates to a total of 13 hits in the first two games. Pittsburgh managed only five hits Sunday off Fred Norman and Rawly Eastwick.

"But we are also capable of being very lopsided in ball games, so I'll stay very low with my stomach," said Anderson.

Pirates manager Danny Murtaugh, whose only key is low and inside, was pleased after the last weekend, which included an extra-inning Saturday.

"This is a five-game series," he said. "You don't win a five-game series in two games."

Tony Perez gave the Reds all the runs they needed Sunday when he stroked a first-inning pitch from Jim Rooker over the left-field wall for a two-run homer.

The Reds added four more runs with the help of a rundown in a game that included three stolen bases by Ken Griffey, two by Dave Concepcion and one each by George Foster and Joe Morgan.

That total of seven surpassed the previous playoff record of four in one game, set by New York Mets in 1969.

Morgan, who had three steals Saturday, set a record with four steals in one series. The Reds' two-game total of 10 is also a record.

Both managers absolved Pirates catcher Manny Sanguillen from total blame for the romp on the basepaths, which included a fourth-inning double steal by Concepcion and Griffey.

The Reds added four more runs in the sixth inning on a double steal by Concepcion and Griffey.

The double steal brought a deafening roar from thousands of red-garbed Cincinnati partisans.

A balk by Pirates pitcher Ken Brett brought Griffey home with another run in the sixth after he singled and stole second and third.

In the seventh, Morgan scored the final Cincinnati run. He walked, stole second and came home on a single by Perez.

In Saturday's game, left-hander Don Gullett drove in three runs—one with the first home run of his major league career,—and defied a gale-blitzer for the Reds.

It's 'Goodbye Charlie;' Red Sox in Command

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Red Sox are just one game from baseball's American League pennant, ready to end the hopes of the mighty Oakland A's and owner Charles O. Finley for a fourth consecutive World Series championship.

The Red Sox, who laughed at pressure in outlitting Baltimore Orioles as East Division champs during the regular season, held a 2-0 lead over the A's in their best-of-five playoff for the league pennant and a World Series berth.

The Red Sox, who whipped the A's 7-1 on Luis Tiant's three-hit pitching Saturday, completed a sweep of the two games in Boston with a 6-3 comeback victory Sunday.

Partisan fans serenaded Finley with "Goodbye, Charlie." Now the A's are in a situation where they have to win three in a row as the series moves to Oakland for the third game Tuesday.

Oakland manager Alvin Dark and Boston manager Darrell Johnson agreed that the Red Sox played virtually the same game in rallying to beat the A's in the second meeting.

"Those fellows have done a great job," Dark said. "They just outplayed us today. They did everything you need to do in the game of baseball to win."

Johnson said his team played a game of baseball "as well as it can be played."

"We played the game to perfection," he said. "It's not possible to play any better. The guys did a tremendous job...no defence, everything."

The Red Sox knocked out Vida Blue in a three-run fourth as Boston tied the score 3-3.

Blue returned for the Red Sox with ease in the first two innings. He got out of a jam in the third as the A's pulled the first of their record four double plays.

The A's, who jumped to the lead on Reggie Jackson's two-run homer in the first inning added another run in the fourth. Dick Green drove in the run with a single to shallow right-centre.

Carl Yastrzemski, a 15-year veteran who led Boston to its last pennant in 1967, quickly brought Doyle home, hitting Blue's first pitch into the screen in left-centre.

A double by Carlton Fisk and Fred Lynn's single chased Blue, but the Red Sox got the tying run on a double play grounder. Jim Todd, who replaced Blue on the mound, was lifted after Cecil Cooper led off the fifth with a double. Dark went to his ace reliever earlier than usual, summoning Rollie Fingers.

Fingers got out of the fifth but Yastrzemski's double and Fisk's line single put the Red Sox in front to stay in the sixth. Rico Petrocelli homered in the seventh and Lynn singled across another insurance run in the eighth.

The victory went to Bogelio Moret, who relieved starter Reggie Cleveland. However, it was Dick Drago who did the best pitching job for the Red Sox. The veteran right-hander blanked the A's on two hits for three innings.

Cleveland, a native of Swift Current, Sask., was the first Canadian born pitcher ever to start a game in a playoff. He lasted seven innings and was charged with three runs, all earned, and seven hits.

White Keeps Cool And It Pays Off

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Danny White is only in his second year of professional football, but the young quarterback handles pressure like a veteran for Memphis Southmen.

When his team fell behind 33-30 to Southern California Sun with 1:45 to go in Sunday's game, White took command.

He guided the Southmen the length of the field, overcoming a pair of penalties and finally hitting wide receiver Ed Marshall with a 17-yard pass with 8 seconds left to give the Southmen a 37-33 triumph hand the Southmen season championship for the World Football League's Eastern Division.

"At a time like that the No. 1 thing to do is stay cool," said White. "I reminded myself right that the c was plenty of time left, and there were things I wanted to do at that point."

He mentioned getting up a possible tying field goal, or perhaps getting close enough to try for a touchdown with a "medium-range pass." That's precisely what he did.

Bengals Move To 3-0

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Quarterback Ken Anderson of Cincinnati Bengals is what you might call quiet customer.

With Houston leading 17-7 in the fourth period Sunday, he sat quietly and watched the Oilers eventually gave him the chance he needed to beat the Bengals to a 21-19 victory in a National Football League game.

"The one thing I didn't want to do was panic," said Anderson.

Anderson had hit Lenvil Elliott with a first-quarter 16-yard touchdown pass to open the scoring but Houston led 17-7 before the Cincinnati offence began to roll again late in the third quarter.

He cut Houston's edge to three points 18 seconds into the fourth period with a 16-yard touchdown pass to running back Stan Fritts.

When Houston got the ball, quarterback Dan Pastorini fumbled and a teammate recovered it at the Oilers' 41. That gave Anderson the chance to flip the winning touchdown pass, a six-yarder to Isaac Curtis.

In Sunday's other NFL games, Philadelphia Eagles dropped Washington Redskins 35-10, Buffalo Bills dropped Denver Broncos 38-14, Philadelphia Eagles dropped Cleveland Browns 42-6, New York Jets whipped New England Patriots 30-7, Atlanta Falcons defeated New Orleans Saints 14-7, Miami Dolphins beat Green Bay Packers 31-7, San Francisco 49ers slopped Kansas City Chiefs 26-3, Minnesota Vikings dropped Chicago Bears 29-3, St. Louis Cardinals trimmed New York Giants 20-14, Los Angeles Rams topped Baltimore Colts 24-13 and Oakland Raiders blanked San Diego Chargers 6-0.

Roman Gabriel's touchdown run of one yard and his scoring passes of 62 yards to Harold Carmichael and 27 yards to Charlie Smith carried the previously winless Eagles to their upset victory over the previously unbeaten Redskins.

Buffalo's O.J. Simpson piled up 156 yards and scored a touchdown against Denver. Jim Braxton also went over the 100 yard mark with 102 and scored three touchdowns on runs of three; 19 and four yards.

Pittsburgh quarterbacks Terry Bradshaw and Joe Gilliam combined for three touchdown passes in a 367-yard aerial assault against the Cleveland Browns.

The Jets' Joe Namath threw four touchdown passes, two each to Rich Caster and Jerome Barkum.

The Falcons trimmed New Orleans on a Fuke play when Jim Mitchell scooped up a fumbled pass completion by teammate Ken Burrow and raced 50 yards for a touchdown.

Mercury Morris ran for 125 yards, Don Nottingham added 107 yards and three touchdowns to lead Miami over the Packers.

Quarterback Norm Snead passed to Tom Mitchell for one touchdown, Larry Schreiber ran for one to carry San Francisco past the Chiefs.

Fran Tarkenton connected on three touchdown passes, one to John Gilliam and two to Sid Voigt, as Minnesota broke in front early and polished off the Bears.

Terry Metcalf and Jim Otis scored a touchdown each in the St. Louis victory over the Giants.

Fullback Lawrence McCutcheon ran 25 yards for one touchdown and James Harris passed 21 yards to Ron Jessie for another in a fourth-quarter rally that lifted the Rams past Baltimore.

TONY PEREZ

"Three or four times today, there was no way Manny had a chance," said Anderson.

Pittsburgh's only run came in the fourth when Willie Stargell doubled and scored on an infield out.

However, the Reds extended their lead to 4-1 with two more runs in the fourth, highlighted by a double steal by Concepcion and Griffey.

Niki Lauda Gives Ferrari Victory

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — After 38 laps, Niki Lauda finally got the telephone call he had been waiting for.

"We have won," Ferrari team manager Luca Montezemolo told the aging namesake of the famous car-maker.

Montezemolo, flustered, almost breathless call came minutes after young, Niki Lauda streaked to an easy win in Sunday's Grand Prix of the United States.

The goal had eluded Ferrari since the inception of the American race, but the ultimate victory did not come without controversy.

Lauda's team-mate, Clay Regazzoni, was black-flagged off the course for blocking the progress of eventual second place finisher Emerson Fittipaldi.

The black flag, a rarity in Formula 1 racing, incensed Montezemolo, who watched down race steward Bernie Marsh and threw a punch. Marsh later denied the fight took place, but the incident was recorded by photographers.

About the same time, Teddy Mayer, manager of Fittipaldi's McLaren team, caught up with Montezemolo and started a heated argument.

When race officials threatened to black-flag Regazzoni and drop him to last in the standings, Regazzoni slowed the car.

After Regazzoni made a pit stop for an undisclosed reason early in the race, Fittipaldi said he was being slowed down. "When Reggazoni would go into a turn, the chicane, he would slow down to almost a stop," Fittipaldi explained. "But on the rest of the course, he would speed up and not let me pass, even though he was being flagged aside.

"I went from less than one second behind Lauda to about 12 seconds."

Fittipaldi said it would have been hard to catch the hard-charging Lauda, who this season took the world driving championship away from the Brazilian, even without the blocking tactics.

Lauda denied he knew anything about Reggazoni's efforts in his behalf.

"I'm sorry about Emerson's difficulty," he said. "I was unaware of it, because I did not see him. I thought perhaps he had a mechanical failure."

Lauda's winning speed was 116.10 miles an hour through the almost accident-free 200-mile race at the 3.377-mile Watkins Glen road course.He finished 2.9 seconds in front of Fittipaldi, who also finished second in the season's driver standings.

Fittipaldi's teamemate, Jochen Mass of West Germany, was a distant third, followed by James Hunt of England in a Hesketh, Sweden's Ronnie Peterson in a Lotus and Jody Scheckter of South Africa in a Tyrrell.

Lauda's share of the $350,000 purse will be decided later by the Constructors Association. Part of the purse was attached, pending outcome of a breach-of-contract suit against the community organizers of the Canadian Grand Prix, which was cancelled this year in a dispute over money.

Fourth Title for Miller

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Johnny Miller cruised through brilliant fall weather with a three-under par 69 and scored a front-running, three-stroke victory Sunday in the Kaiser International Open golf tournament.

Miller's 16-under-par 272 total on the 6,828-yard north course at the Silverado Country Club provided him with his fourth victory of the season and 15th of his remarkable young career.

This one came relatively easily. He led all the way in the third round by two or more strokes most of the time.

Perhaps more important, from the standpoint of personal prestige, it enabled Miller to finish ahead of Jack Nicklaus for the first time since Sept. 19, 1974. In 12 meetings since then, Nicklaus had been ahead of Miller nine times and they tied for position in the other three.

Nicklaus, bothered by some rare putting problems, never got in the chase until the very end and really wasn't a major threat. He finished when it was over, and, with a 277 total, was five strokes back and in sixth place alone.

The victory, the first for Miller since his record-setting exploits of the early season, earned $33,000 from the $350,000 purse of $75,000 and lifted him into second place on the money-winning list with $238,118.

Nicklaus, winner of the Masters, PGA and three other titles this year, already has clinched the money title. He picked up $6,300 and pushed his total to $298,149 for the season. Those will be the top finishers unless Nicklaus and Miller, who completed their American schedules for the year.

Rod Curl, bothered by tendonitis in his left wrist for more than a year, had his best tournament of the season as he finished second with a closing 71 and a 275 total and clinched a qualifying exemption for next year.

Lee Trevino made the biggest charge on the warm, sunny day. He birdied the eighth and ninth holes and moved to within a single shot of the lead. but blew it all with a double-bogey six on the 13th.

He wasn't a factor again. Trevino finished with a 69 and a 276 total that tied him with Gene Littler and Marty Fleckman, with his best tournament in years, closed with a 71.

George Knudson of Toronto finished with a 74 for a 280 total and took home $403.

Bombers Trip Als

Brock Makes the Most Of Role as Starter

MONTREAL (CP) — Starting assignments have been few and far between for quarterback Ralph Brock of Winnipeg Blue Bombers this season.

Sunday afternoon Brock made only his third start of the season and came through in fine style as I. guided Winnipeg to a 26-24 win over Montreal Alouettes.

Other running game was efficient, but it was Brock's passing that made the big difference," said Bombers' coach Bud Riley after the game.

Brock completed 14 of 21 passes for 238 yards and two touchdowns — one to wide receiver Tom Scott. Jim Washington got the other Winnipeg touchdown while Bernie Ruoff kicked two field goals, a convert and a single.

Steve Ferrinelli and Phil Price scored Montreal's touchdowns with Don Sweet booting two field goals, two converts and a single.

"This had to be my most satisfying game," Brock said. "I wanted to mix it up a bit. I had confidence in myself throwing the football. We have an excellent running attack, but we can't run all the time."

The win gave the Blue Bombers three of four points on their Eastern swing. Thursday night, Brock came off the bench to guide Winnipeg to a 21-21 tie.

Winnipeg now is 6-5-1 and holds third spot in the tough Western conference while Montreal is 7-5-0, two points behind first-place Ottawa Rough Riders in the East.

"The team managed to get ready in three days," said Riley. "We had two games each day and team meetings every night. They absorbed a lot in those meetings."

The Bombers scored the second time they had possession, moving 96 yards in nine plays. Brock and Scott combined on a 37-yard pass play with Scott, Washington and Tom Lewis Cook on the play.

Ferrinelli scored his touchdown with 90 seconds gone in the second quarter. Four minutes later, Price starred a pass intended for Mark McDonald and scooped 36 yards down the sidelines for a touchdown and Montreal led 14-6, much to the delight of the 29,145 on hand.

Washington got his touchdown with 11:14 gone in the second quarter, capping a drive which started from the Bombers 20. After Don Sweet's single put Montreal ahead 15-12, Brock and Scott combined for a 41-yard touchdown play with 46 seconds to go in the half.

The scoring in the balance of the game was taken care of by the kickers.

"We never really did get going today," said Montreal coach Marv Levy. "And if it hadn't been for our kicking game, we wouldn't have been in the game at all.

"We lost because we did not block and we did not tackle.

"We are going to find a way to strengthen our defense. This is the sole concern right now. We have to strengthen our defence—that's what we have to do to make us a better ball club.

"Over-all, we played a terrible football game. This is my feeling. At the time, I don't want to say angry things about any of my players. When you lose, you shut up and go back to work."

The Alouettes next game is in Toronto against the Argos next Monday while the Blue Bombers next action is against Saskatchewan Roughriders in Winnipeg next Sunday.

WINS HANDICAP

Riders Whip Esks; Stampeders Win

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Edmonton Eskimo kicker Dave Cutler broke a Canadian Football League career record for field goals in a losing cause Sunday against Saskatchewan Roughriders and Bob Baker got his first win as head coach of Calgary Stampeders. Saturday, a 38-13 decision over British Columbia Lions.

Saskatchewan defeated Edmonton 29-18 in Edmonton to set up a game in Regina Oct. 19 that could decide first place in the Western Football Conference.

Edmonton remained in first place, one point ahead of the Roughriders with a game in hand. Winnipeg Blue Bombers tightened their hold on third by defeating the Alouettes 26-21 in in Montreal in the only Canadian Football League interlocking game of the weekend.

Calgary took sole possession of fourth place as the Lions dropped into the basement although Calgary got little help from speedy Willie Burden, who suffered blurred vision after Larry Cameron accidentally stuck a finger in his eye.

Cutler's 47-yard field goal in the first quarter was his 172nd in seven years, topping former Calgary Stampeder Larry Robinson's mark of 171 set in a his year career. Cutler later booted two more field goals and a single.

Saskatchewan broke open the game with three touchdowns in the third quarter after Edmonton took leads of 6-0 and 10-7 in the first two quarters. The big Saskatchewan play was a 62-yard interception of a Tom Wilkinson pass which Lee Benard turned into a touchdown.

In the fourth quarter, Edmonton got a touchdown from Mike Fisk, who returned Terry Bulych's punt 80 yards. Stu Laird made a two-point conversion on a Bruce Lemmerman pass.

The first Roughrider TD came in the second quarter when, trailing 10-6, Tom Cosmo ana hauled in a 19-yard scoring pass from Ron Lancaster.

Lancaster later threw a 30 yard completion to Steve Mancuso, who put the Roughriders ahead to stay just before Bennett's young George Reed added the last Saskatchewan touchdown on a 10-yard rush in the closing minute of the third quarter. Lancaster also converted all the touchdowns.

Baker, who took over when Jim Wood was fired as coach under head coach last month, wasn't happy with the Cowboy defence.

"We had to go to the dark after Burden's injury. I didn't like some of the interceptions we gave up and I was concerned about our defence.

Calgary cornerback Vern Roberson picked off three interceptions Saturday, one of which he took for 62 yards and a touchdown.

Quarterback Joe Pisarcik hit tight end Henry Sovio and wide receiver Tom Forzani for touchdown passes and scored himself on a one-yard sneak.

Karl Douglas called plays in the first quarter, throwing seven yards to wide receiver Glen Scotnik for a major. Cyril McFall converted all five touchdowns and kicked a 40-yard field goal.

B.C.'s only touchdown came on a 42-yard bomb from reserve quarterback Eric Guthrie to running back John Young in the final quarter. Rocky Long returns to Slade Willis in the end zone for a two-point conversion, ruled good because of pass interference. Ivan MacMillan completed the Lions scoring with a 16-yard field goal and a single.

Retirement Shocks Leafs

TORONTO (CP) — "I can't understand it. I don't think anybody is expected to understand it."

That was the reaction from Toronto Maple Leafs general manager Jim Gregory when right winger Ron Ellis surprised the hockey world Saturday by announcing his retirement.

Ellis, 30, had been with the Leafs National Hockey League organization for 15 years—four with the junior Marlboros and 11 with the NHL club.

He had four years remaining on his contract which paid him a reported $100,000 a year.

"It's not a spur-of-the-moment decision," Ellis said.

"I've been thinking about it seriously all summer. I went to training camp as a final test. I worked very hard in camp. But all the hard work did not take my mind off retirement. In fact, it caused me to spend many sleepless nights."

Ellis said he was not unhappy with the Leafs organization, but he was unhappy with the hockey players' lifestyle.

"My wife, Jan, knows what I went through in 10 years of our marriage," said Ellis. "She stuck by me in those times and now it's up to me to do something for her and our children."

The hard-working right winger who scored 276 goals in his 11 NHL seasons was the only Leaf in uniform remaining from the 1966-67 club that had brought the Stanley Cup to Toronto.

When Dave Keon left the club this summer, the team captaincy was turned over to centre Darryl Sittler but Ellis said the fact he was not chosen captain did not enter into his decision.

Exhibition Hockey Roundup

Flyers Top Sabres 6-3

By NEIL CAMPBELL
The Canadian Press

Goaltender Gerry Desjardins and Jacques Sabourin aren't having any more luck with Philadelphia Flyers than they did last year's Stanley Cup finals.

Desjardins, who had his problems against the Flyers last spring, led in the first three shots he faced Sunday night and Philadelphia went on its way to a 6-3 win over Buffalo in a National Hockey League exhibition game.

It was the second loss to the Flyers in three nights for the Sabres, who had a 36-15 edge in shots on goal in the first two period but were trailing 5-3 when rookie Rob Sauve replaced Desjardins at the start of the third period.

Bill Barber scored three times for Philadelphia, which didn't get a shot on goal in the first five minutes. Don Saleski, Gary Dornhoefer and Jim Watson had the Flyers' other goals. Buffalo scorers were Rene Robert, Don Luce and Brian Spencer.

In Sunday's other NHL exhibitions, Toronto Maple Leafs 5, New York Rangers edged New York Islanders 2-1, Minnesota North Stars shaded Joint Toronto Young Nationals.

When the OMHA refused to approve the release, their parents sought legal advice and appealed the decision to the OMHA executive Friday night. It was the executive's decision to turn down the appeal that was endorsed in Saturday's resolution.

Herb Parker, the former OMHA president who introduced the resolution, told the executive he felt sorry for the courts exactly where and what minor hockey is all about.

On Friday night, William Pearce, who represented the parents at the appeal, said they had not decided whether to take the matter to court.

Gretzky and Rorabeck would have lived in Toronto in a legal guardian's residence.

dropped Indianapolis Racers 5-3 and Hampton Gulls of the Southern Hockey League stunned Cincinnati Stingers 7-5.

On Saturday, New England Whalers shaded Quebec Nordiques 5-4, Winnipeg Jets dropped Denver Spurs 8-4 and Edmonton Oilers edged Spokane Jets of the Western International Hockey League 8-6.

A pair of first-period goals by Errol Thompson and a third-period score by Cheryl Sittler gave the Leafs their win. Phil Russell scored for Chicago.

The Leafs suffered a blow Saturday when right winger Ron Ellis, who produced 278 goals in 12 seasons, announced his retirement. The 30-year-old Ellis said he is tired of professional hockey.

Jean Ratelle scored for the Rangers in the second period to break a 1-1 tie in the first meeting between the New York rivals since the expansion Islanders eliminated the established Rangers in last spring's playoffs.

Parent Shelved

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Flyer goalie Bernie Parent was placed in traction Sunday to heal a pinched neck muscle and will miss the Flyers' two remaining National Hockey League pre-season games, the team's physician said.

Dr. John Wolf said Parent's treatment at nearby Abington Hospital should hasten his recovery, and he said the two goalie might be ready for the Flyers' opener next Thursday against Washington Capitals.

Wolf said he didn't know how long Parent would be kept in traction.

OMHA Stands Firm

TORONTO (CP) — An executive decision not to let two peewee-town players switch to a Toronto bantam team was overwhelming support Saturday from the Ontario Minor Hockey Association (OMHA).

Delegates to the 42nd annual meeting of the OMHA supported a resolution endorsing the executive's decision in the case of Wayne Gretzky, 14, of Brantford and Brian Rorabeck, 13, of Brighton.

Gretzky and Rorabeck had been given releases by their local organizations to join Toronto Young Nationals.

In Memoriam

REYNOLDS — In loving memory of our dear father, Bernard Reynolds who passed away October 6th, 1968.
Sweet memories are treasures forever, And your loss we can never forget. We have so many memories, Of you. Dad, we loved so much.
—Lady mislad and always remembered by daughter Ida and family.

BURSHAW — In loving memory of a dear grandmother, Lillian Mae, who passed away four years ago today, October 6th, 1971.
Dear as would time if we could see, Hello Grandma in the same old way, To hear her voice and see her smile, To sit with her and chat awhile, Deep in our hearts her memory is kept.
To love and cherish and never forget, Always loved and lady missed by grandchildren Pat, Gary and Jamie, Kathy, Dave and Peggy.

BURSHAW — In loving memory of a dear mother, Lillian Mae, who passed away four years ago today, October 6th, 1971.
God loved her and the garden, Gently he gathered lovely place, He looked down upon this earth, And saw your tired face, He put His arms around you, And timed you to rest, Your work on earth was beautiful, For he only takes the best, It brings our hearts to lose you, But you are not alone, For part of us went with you, The day God called home your dear mother.
—Lovingly remembered and never forgotten by son Jim and daughter-in-law Ruth.

NOTICE

ONTARIO — Ontario Energy Board

NOTICE OF APPLICATION AND HEARING

TAKE NOTICE that the Board will hold a hearing commencing at 9 a.m. on Monday, the 27th day of October, 1975 at its Hearing Room, 9th Floor, 14 Carlton Street, Toronto, Ontario in respect of an application by Northern and Central Gas Corporation Limited dated the 30th day of September, 1975 (Docket Number E.B.R.O. 314-1-9) for an interim Order to recover the following increases in its cost of gas:

(a) An increase of approximately $1,522,874 in costs for gas purchased from TransCanada PipeLines Limited ("TransCanada") based on 1973 annual deliveries or 1.4c per Mcf on its gas sales for that period made effective April 1, 1975 by National Energy Board Order TG 2-73.

(b) An increase of approximately $2,298,448 based on 1973 annual deliveries or 2.1c per Mcf on its gas sales for that period arising from the renegotiation of Temporary Winter Service and Winter Peaking Service contracts with TransCanada and the filing of those contracts with the National Energy Board.

(c) An increase of approximately $97,401,902 based on 1973 annual deliveries or 89c per Mcf on its gas sales for that period that would result from an order of the National Energy Board approving in full the July 15, 1975 application of TransCanada for an increase in its rates for the sale of gas effective November 1, 1975.

Based on these effective increases, the application, if granted, would result in an increase in the rates to the Applicant's fixed rate customers (residential, commercial and small industrial) of up to $0.95 per thousand cubic feet ("Mcf").

For the Applicant's customers purchasing gas under Special Contract rates whose contract contain a full pass-through cost of gas escalation clause, this application, if granted, would result in increases in the upper and lower limits of the negotiable range of up to $0.95.

The application states that it is Northern's belief that the Implementation of The Petroleum Administration Act will result in a price being set for Northern and Central gas purchases lower that the price which would otherwise come into effect and that Northern's rate request will be amended accordingly when these facts are known.

The Board has made a procedural Order dated the 1st day of October, 1975 in respect of the hearing. Copies of that Order and copies of the application may be obtained from the Secretary, Ontario Energy Board, 9th Floor, 14 Carlton Street, Toronto, Ontario M5B 1K5 or from Northern and Central Gas Corporation Limited, Suite 600, 200 Consumers Road, Willowdale, Ontario M2J 1P9.

If any person notified does not attend at the hearing, the Board may proceed in his absence and he will not be entitled to any further notice in the proceedings.

DATED at Toronto this 1st day of October, 1975.

DENVER (UP) — Art Linkletter, television and radio personality, has filed a damage suit in U.S. district court claiming 120 dairy cows he leased were sold without his permission.

Linkletter is seeking $72,000 as the sale price of the cattle last November by the Fort Collins Production Credit Association and $900 a month back rent which he alleges he was to have received.

Linkletter is also asking for $30,000 in punitive damages.

NEW YORK (AP) — Christine Walenska, Los Angeles-born cellist, says she is the first American musician invited to appear in Cuba under the regime of Fidel Castro. She said Friday she will fly to Havana Sunday to perform in three concerts "and probably some more free ones."

A graduate of the Paris Conservatory, Miss Walenska, who is in her late 20s, was the first American to win first prizes in both cello and chamber music there.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Columbia Broadcasting System and MTM Enterprises are pleased to announce the wedding of Miss Georgette Franklin and Mr. Ted Baxter, at the home of Miss Mary Richards in Minneapolis, Minn.

In an episode of the Mary Tyler Moore show to be aired later this month, Ted Baxter, newscaster without equal, has finally succumbed to matrimony with the faint-voiced but firm-willed Georgette, played by Georgia Engel.

"What I liked about the show is that it is low key," says the unwilling bridegroom, in reality Ted Knight.

It happens more or less by chance, when Ted and Georgette are visiting Mary. He had had a wedding planned for some time, but hasn't got the nerve to use it.

It's all very informal. Lou (Edward Asner) drops by for a drink. Murray (Gavin McLeod) comes in shorts from his kid's Little League game. Sue Ann (Betty White) arrives and immediately starts whipping up hors d'oeuvres. It's all over before Ted realizes what has happened.

"Here is Georgia, who is 32, marrying a 50-year-old man, and it seems convincing. I find that heartening."

Knight has created such an indelible character as the anchor man of the Twin City channel that it is hard to remember he is an actor.

There are a few differences, however, not the least being the fact that Knight already is married and the father of three.

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Country music star Tammy Wynette was released Friday from a Cheyenne hospital and resumed her journey to a concert scheduled for Saturday in Salt Lake City, a spokesman said.

The spokesman declined to say why the 33-year-old singer had been admitted to hospital.

Miss Wynette entered Laramie County Memorial Hospital for observation early Thursday while traveling with a touring group to Salt Lake City from Denver.

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Actor Elliot Gould, 36, was divorced Friday by his second wife, ending a short-lived and occasionally stormy marriage.

Gould was ordered to pay $2,500 a month alimony to his wife Jennifer Bogart, 22, and $700 dollars a month child support for each of their children, Samuel, 3, and Molly, 2.

Last January, Mrs. Gould went to court to get a restraining order to prevent Gould from entering her home, claiming he had cut off her telephone, gas, electricity and water and had threatened her.

The divorce was on grounds of irreconcilable differences.

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — English rock guitarist Eric Clapton was arrested and jailed on a public drunk charge Friday after he dropped two suitcases from the second story of the Tulsa International Airport terminal, police said.

Clapton, 30, was booked into a four-by-six foot drunk tank at the downtown city jail at 6:25 p.m.

City police arrested the performer shortly after he got off a charter flight with his touring band, which was to play Friday and Saturday nights at a local friend's nightclub.

Airport security police said they took Clapton into custody because he appeared intoxicated. They said he dropped the suitcases about 15 feet into the arms of an unidentified friend.

Certain Arthritis Can Effect Eyes

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have just completed a six-week book with iritis. I found out it is utilized to rheumatoid arthritis. Is it possible that I have arthritis elsewhere? I understand it can be arrested but not cured — Mrs. P.W.

You do not have arthritis of the eye, of course, but the condition, associated with rheumatoid arthritis can be reflected in the eyes.

There is, in fact, a condition that is called "rheumatic iritis" which can accompany general arthritis elsewhere in the body.

Iritis (inflammation of the area around the pupil) is usually chronic, and it can recur over a number of years, so you should not be surprised if the condition reappears.

I believe you are referring to arthritis when you ask whether "it" can be arrested but not cured. If so, you are correct. Arthritis can be controlled, but to date we have no method of actually curing it. Generally, then, treatment for your iritis condition would be in controlling underlying condition, the arthritis, if that is present.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A lot of people say you should wait awhile after eating, including my mother. Now people tell me you can swim after you eat. Please tell me which is right. My mother says you can drown if you swim after eating—S.P.

The most common causes of drownings are exhaustion and cramps. Here it is essentially cramps we are talking about. Cramps are caused by a lack of blood supply to the muscles involved. Indigestion, especially after a heavy meal, blood is selectably diverted from arm and leg muscles to the stomach, where it is needed because of increased activity.

Vigorous physical activity following a heavy meal may cause cramps in blood-deprived areas. It's best to wait a half hour or so before after eating for swimming. Persons with circulation problems should be especially careful. Of course, this applies to any exercise. Swimming is emphasized because of the added hazard posed by the water.

Water temperature can also be a factor. Coldness can divert blood supply from the internal organs to the body surface, thus flirting with the chances of abdominal cramps, especially after a full meal.

Dear Readers: Despite all of the efforts over the years, children still die from diseases for which safe and effective vaccines exist.

Measles and tetanus can kill. Polio can cripple. German measles can cause birth defects. Mumps can cause sterility. Fortunately, diphtheria and small pox have been practically eliminated. With appropriate action by parents, the other killers and maimers could suffer the same fate.

So the medical profession is appealing to parents, urging them during this month to review their children's immunizations, and if needed, to start a full program of immunization or to see that their children have boosters.

Your physician or your local public health association can answer questions you may have with regard to immunization schedules.

Designs Requested

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government is inviting designs and proposals for a solar-heated senior citizen apartment building. Three successful proposals will be funded for the preliminary design stage and one will be selected for the final detailed design.

Jim: We answered a question about the perfect safety play a few days ago. How about some articles to illustrate?

Oswald: Here is a classic. It has been appearing in this and other columns for years, but it is still a good one South finds himself in a six notrump and needs six diamond tricks to bring his contract in. The safety play is to lead a diamond and duck completely in dummy after West follows. This guards against finding all four diamonds in the West hand and of course, there are no worries. If diamonds break 3-3 or 2-2.

Jim: "We wrote up a variation of this hand a few years back. We had West make the Machiavellian play of the queen on the first diamond lead, whereupon South relaxed, went after what looked like a sure overtrick by pulling up dummy's ace and wound up in the soup when East showed out."

Oswald: "Everything happens in bridge so we are sure that someone, sometime, somewhere has actually made this sort of play. We must confess that we can't document it."

Locked Doors Still Part of Hospitals

HALIFAX (CP) — Locked doors, bland surroundings, straitjackets, restraints by every name but those treating you — the usual environment for the treatment of mental patients.

In some parts of Canada and the U.S. the scenario still holds true, but there are changes and among them is the growing trend towards use of community facilities for the treatment of the mentally ill.

The new trend is both a recognition by the hospitals of the benefit the program offers patients and a statement of the woeful inadequacies of some mental hospitals.

In spite of the trend there still is a lot of public education that doctors say must accompany the education and treatment of the patient.

"I am becoming more aware of the increasing hostility towards my profession," admitted Dr. Bob Jones, head of the psychiatry department at Victoria General Hospital. "People think we are not only a tool of society, used to rid society of any troublesome people."

He said, to illustrate the point, that he recently received a letter from a former patient who wanted to bring her Grade 12 teacher and the entire class to the hospital to show them "that her experiences with mental health institutions and doctors were not as bizarre as the novel concerning a particular mental hospital."

In spite of the problems that remain to be overcome, both inside and outside the mental hospitals, Dr. Jones was quick to point out that progress is being made.

When he entered practice in 1948 there were 500 patients — they were seated on wooden benches in rows eight feet wide and most of them just sat there for years without much attention being paid to them.

In 1961 there were 330 admissions to the Nova Scotia Hospital for treatment of mental illness. In 1973 there were 3,738 admissions and "the difference is due to the breakdown of the fear of mental illness."

With the swing from treatment to acceptance of the problem there has also been a growing strain on the nation's treatment facilities, as Dr. Jones said.

"Qualified staff for mental institutions is on the decline as well as the number of psychiatry students in medical studies," he said.

"About two-thirds of the students coming out of medical school used to specialize but now it's totally reversed with more doctors going into general practice and there has been a great loss of psychiatric manpower."

The alternative being tested is to help patients as much as possible in sometimes overcrowded hospitals and then allow them to re-enter the community either with their families or in group homes.

The stark treatment programs of the past exist no longer. Some of the problems, however, still linger on.

Mercury Victims' Fates Unknown

TORONTO (CP) — Indians suffering from mercury poisoning will be left in misery and poverty until companies polluting Northwestern Ontario rivers assume responsibility for their fate, a spokesman for a Japanese research team said Saturday.

Victims likely will go through years of court battles and personal hardship before receiving compensation, said Teruo Kawamoto, who has suffered from mercury poisoning, or Minamata disease, since 1955.

The Japanese team is visiting the Grassy Narrows and White Dog reserves while participating in an exchange program which saw Canadian Indians go to Japan last summer to take a first-hand look at effects of mercury poisoning.

Backward Step

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP) — Introduction of the federal government's proposed human rights code would be a backward step for Canadian women, says the chairman of the human rights committee of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women.

Hilda Cryderman of Vernon, B.C., told a meeting of the federation here Saturday that the code states at the outset "all other means of solving a discrimination problem must first be exhausted" before its provisions apply.

Find Lost Boy

BLIND RIVER, Ont. (CP) — Maurice Watton, 3, of Elliot Lake, lost overnight in bush near here, was found late Saturday "in good shape and surprisingly good spirits," provincial police said. A police helicopter located the boy, who was wearing a light jacket in temperatures that were close 40 freezing. Two mongrel dogs belonging to him and his grandmother kept him warm.

Jail Damaged

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP)—Police are investigating at least two explosions and are not certain whether there were other explosions in the downtown area early Sunday, a police spokesman said. He said one explosion was in the parking lot of the police stables and another was at the nearby county jail. A two-foot hold was blown in the roof of the jail. Nobody was injured.

Pipeline Halted

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — Construction on the Montreal-Sarnia crude oil pipeline has been halted in the Martintown area just east of here.

Phil Robertson of Interprovincial Pipeline's Toronto office said he was not fully aware of the reasons for the halt but said it might be because there is still land to be acquired.

Concorde Arrives

MONTREAL (CP) — French Transport Minister Marcel Cavaille, while glowing with pride over Concorde's supersonic debut at Montreal's new Mirabel International airport, conceded Saturday night that the planes access to New York is vital to its future development.

Much depends on the forthcoming United States environmental report, due in a few days, "but I do not feel the statement should be hostile to Concorde," he told a news conference after Concorde made its low-key appearance at Mirabel.

Tighter Gun Laws

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tighter gun laws were recommended during the weekend by a panel discussing gun control.

The panel unanimously agreed Saturday that licensing of all owners and dealers of firearms should be mandatory and penalties should be increased for abuse of firearms legislation.

The panel was organized by Maggie Burtinshaw of Vancouver. Mrs. Burtinshaw's son, Edward, 20, was shot to death last December while working during the night in a department store.

Saturday's panel included the pro-hunting Canadian Wildlife Federation, MP John Reynolds (C — Burnaby — Richmond - Delta), MP Stu Leggatt (NDP— New Westminster), MLA Garde Gardom (SC—Vancouver-Point Grey), and Vancouver Mayor Art Phillips.

20,000 See Mirabel Open Sunday

STE. SCHOLASTIQUE, Que. (CP) — More than 20,000 persons got a first glimpse of Montreal's new Mirabel International Airport, Sunday while thousands more sat tight in a 12-mile traffic tie-up on roads to the airport.

Airport authorities kept the facility open an extra hour to accommodate the crowds while Quebec Provincial Police asked the public to avoid the roads to the airport.

Those fortunate enough to beat the traffic were treated to the sight of the world's largest airport, designed to be completed in the next century.

About 2,500 invited guests had a preview Saturday during opening day ceremonies.

Prime Minister Trudeau, addressing the preview audience, defended the expropriation of 88,000 acres to build the $500-million airport.

"The vast open area surrounding the new Montreal International Airport is not excessive," he told the audience, composed mainly of business- and [illegible]-red journalists.

"I see it, too, as an indication of [illegible] future foresight," he said. "Well-regulated land use and well-planned development guarantee the preservation of the land's natural qualities and its ecological balance, and favors varied uses."

The airport, designed in three phases to be completed in the next century, will never occupy more than 17,000 acres of the 88,000 acres expropriated.

Uninvolved Countries Could Survive Nuclear Devastation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A full-scale nuclear war would devastate the warring countries but distant, uninvolved countries might survive and most of the ill-effects would be gone a quarter century later, says a report by a group of United States scientists.

Nuclear weapons experts have a thorough knowledge of what would happen to a country hit by nuclear weapons in a large-scale war. But there is little knowledge about world-wide, long-term effects upon mankind's survival and life in general.

Scientists attempted to assess the world-wide effects in a National Academy of Sciences report. They studied what would happen to distant countries—particularly those in the Southern Hemisphere where nuclear weapons probably would not strike if the U.S., the Soviet Union and China some day became involved in nuclear war.

Hillcrest Ratepayers May Take Fight to Ontario Ombudsman

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Spokesmen for Hillcrest householders — still chafing from the cost of sanitary sewer installations in their northend neighborhood — now are considering seeking recourse through Ontario's ombudsman.

The move follows disenchantment with response so far to protests through standard official and political channels.

Ken Brooks, president of Hillcrest Ratepayers Association (HRA), says a meeting of his group has been called for Wednesday night to consider appealing to Ombudsman Arthur Maloney.

If approved, Mr. Brooks says the HRA will take affidavits through Hillcrest from disgruntled property owners.

The move follows a reply from the Ontario Municipal Board indicating it is too late for a review of the issue unless the HRA can prove a "denial of natural justice".

"We are right back where we started," said Mr. Brooks. "But this is something we're not going to drop. We're going to keep proceeding with it until we get some action."

The Hillcrest protest flared in June after householders received the first tax bills incorporating local improvement charges for sewer installations.

In some instances, householders reported their residential tax bills had more than tripled.

The Hillcrest situation was compounded by the size of area property frontages — on which local improvement charges are based.

Roots of the problem reached back about 15 years after Hillcrest was annexed into the city. Development was then frozen, leaving property owners in many cases with extended frontages, more extended than in other Belleville neighborhoods.

The HRA first petitioned city hall in June to seek provincial financial relief. Housing Minister Donald Irvine visited the area in June at the request of then mayor Robin Jeffrey.

Mr. Irvine later wrote the HRA promising "help would be forthcoming from "in the near future," said Mr. Brooks. But no reply was received.

"So this is the kind of help you get from a man who is running for provincial election," said Mr. Brooks Monday. "Now he's got his job nailed down again (following the Sept. 18 election) and he couldn't care letter said.

Meanline, the HRA wrote the OMB July 18 on the issue and received a reply dated Sept. 25.

The OMB replied it had authorized the Hillcrest sewer installation in March 1974 — after its details had been formally published in November, 1973.

Construction of that phase of the project has been completed.

Since there were no objections the OMB does not consider a review of its approval "appropriate" unless the HRA can document a claim that "natural justice" was denied, the OMB letr tsenat.

The HRA now is seeking further information from the OMB on what constitutes such a claim.

There is new urgency to settling the issue, said Mr. Brooks.

The Hillcrest sewer installation was in two phases. The second phase — involving the neighborhood south of Byron St. has yet to be started.

While many frontages in that area may not be as extended as those involved in the first construction project, inflation is another factor that will make for high costs, said Mr. Brooks.

Charges for the first project ran to slightly more than $17 on each foot of frontage. Now, he fears, construction south of Byron could result in local improvement costs as high as $20-$25 a foot.

The problem might never have arisen had installation of sewers in Hillcrest come within "a reasonable time" of the neighborhood's annexation, he said.

Taylor Joins Cabinet Amid Major Shuffle

By CP and Staff

Amid a major re-shuffling of the Ontario cabinet, Premier Bill Davis has named Prince Edward — Lennox MPP James Taylor as the new minister of community and social services, replacing Rene Brunelle.

The shake up brings seven new faces into the premier's cabinet and moves eight veteran ministers to different portfolios.

Included in the new cabinet are Metropolitan Toronto MPPs Dr. Bette Stephenson and lawyer Roy McMurtry, both of whom were elected in 1971, 18 for the first time. Not since 1963 have political rookies been given cabinet posts.

Both got important portfolios. Dr. Stephenson becomes minister of labor and Mr. McMurtry, Ontarios new attorney-general.

Other new cabinet members are:

—John Smith (Hamilton Mountain), minister of correctional services;

—Margaret Schreyer (Toronto St. David), minister of government services;

—Dr. Harry Parrott (Oxford), minister of colleges and universities.

—Lorne Henderson (Lambton), minister without portfolio.

In shuffling experienced cabinet members, Mr. Davis concentrated on filling potentially-contentious positions with cabinet veterans who have earned respect from opposition MPPs.

James Auld (Leeds) goes to management board from colleges and universities and will spearhead negotiations expected by the end of the year with the province's sometimes militant civil servants.

John Rhodes (Sault Ste. Marie) has been switched to housing from transportation and communications and will have to deal with rent controls, a hot issue facing the premier's minority government.

Environment Minister William Newman (Durham North) takes over the agriculture post, succeeding William Stewart, who has retired.

Mr. Newman's environment post will be filled by George Kerr Burlington South, solicitor-general in the last cabinet.

Lawyer John MacBeth Toronto Humber, former minister of Labor, becomes provincial secretary for justice and solicitor-general.

Donald Irvine Carleton-Grenville has been moved out of hospitals where he was under heavy criticism from opposition members and becomes provincial secretary for resources development.

James Snow, Oakville switches to transportation and communications from government services.

And the veteran Rene Brunelle Cochrane North, former minister of community and social services, becomes chairman of cabinet board and minister without portfolio.

Among the 10 ministers who retain their old portfolios in the 26-member cabinet are Treasury Darcy McKeough (Chatham-Kent) and Margaret Birch (Scarborough East), provincial secretary for social development.

The addition of Dr. Stephenson and Mrs. Scrivener means the cabinet now contains three women, a first for Ontario.

Others who remain in their old portfolios are Robert Welch, minister of culture and recreation; Edwin Bennett, Minister Thomas Wells, Leo Bernier, minister of natural resources and Claude Bennett, minister of industry and tourism.

Those who have not been moved are: Revenue Minister Arthur Meen, Sidney Handleman, minister of consumer and commercial relations, Health Minister Frank Miller and Energy Minister Dennis Timbrell.

The Koomens car received $2,500 to the driver's side.

Taylor Prepared For Cabinet Job

Prince Edward-Lennox MPP James Taylor says he's prepared for the rigors of the Ontario cabinet post he was offered Monday afternoon.

Mr. Taylor said "I don't see much of my family even as a member."

The Prince Edward-Lennox MPP was one of seven new faces to be introduced into Premier Davis' cabinet today. The new appointments included the shuffle of eight veteran ministers to different portfolios as seen as a major re-shuffle.

"I'm not worried the job will take too much of my time," said Mr. Taylor who takes command at the ministry of community and social services from Rene Brunelle. As a member "my wife doesn't see too much of me now."

Mr. Taylor was sworn in to his new post today.

Congress Considers Massive Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Congress goes to work today on tax-cut proposals, including a $28-billion tax slash put forth by President Ford who called it "the biggest single tax cut in our history."

As the House of Representatives ways and means committee takes up the tax-cut proposals, some Democrats doubt it can meet Ford's request for a $28-billion reduction in government spending to match his proposal, some Democrats said it would be impossible to make the reductions Ford prescribed without cutting into things such as Social Security benefits, veterans' payments and food stamps.

Ford, however, said Monday he will "not hesitate to veto any legislation passed by the Congress which violates the spirit" of his proposed dollar-for-dollar trade-off between tax relief and spending cuts.

"What he's saying is not realistic," said Chairman Brock Adams (Dem. Wash.) of the House budget committee.

However, Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said: "We in the Congress can earn this reduction for the taxpayers by accepting the fact that spending has got to be curtailed. Otherwise, a tax-reduction bill is a candidate for a veto."

Ford said that if his individual spending reductions were enacted, a family of four with income of $14,000 would get a tax reduction of $412, or 27 per cent of its tax bill.

He proposed increasing the personal deduction to $1,000 a person from $750 and increasing the standard deduction, used by those who do not itemize on their tax return, to $2,000 for a single person, $2,500 for a married couple.

Ford also proposed reducing corporate income tax rates to 40 per cent from 48 and making permanent the 10-per-cent investment credit in force for this year. This credit goes to businesses investing in productive equipment.

City Extends Time On Crosswalks Issue

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The crosswalks issue — under an on-and-off survey by city officials for five years — has won another time extension.

City council Monday agreed its traffic committee have another month to iron out more details before producing a recommendation on two problem sites on Pinnacle St.

The extension was won by committee chairman Ald. Jack Ireland. Earlier councillors had heard cautions from a one-man delegation of the threats to pedestrians posed by crossings which they traverse only through courtesy of motorists.

Ray Davidson, Pinn St. resident who addressed council on the issue two weeks ago returned to warn such "courtesy walks" are an "exercise in terror" for many senior citizens.

Belleville still remains without legal crossovers — installations already in operation in smaller district communities, said Mr Davidson.

A summary to council from city manager Wilbur Purcell noted that police reports on Pinnacle St. crossovers — at Campbell and Market streets — date to 1970.

The traffic committee recommended the crossings in 1970 and again in 1972.

On Sept. 15 the committee again recommended council "reconsideration" be given to the installations.

But, Mr. Purcell felt the word "reconsideration" creates a problem. It does not indicate whether or not the principle of crossovers has been established.

Ald. Ireland asked that the issue be returned to the traffic committee for a "short time" — two to four weeks at the maximum? — so it could "have a real look" at the situation.

The interim would also give city engineering officials time to "touch up some details" so a recommendation could be made to council.

In his submission Mr. Davidson also warned about conditions at the Station — Emily — Albion streets crossing.

City Bans Wednesday Free Parking

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A downtown tradition outdated by contemporary social trends has been officially declared redundant.

City council Monday agreed with its Parking Authority that there be no more free parking Wednesday afternoons.

The half-day free parking dates from the time when downtown was the sole centre of retail commerce and could safely set Wednesday for early-closing.

"Now, said Mayor Ben Create, it's no longer "an automatic retailers' holiday" and "many stores open downtown."

He only hoped the authority would allow time for the change to be known before enforcement began.

Ald. Paul Russell posed a post-script also hinges to changing times: "I see no reason why Easter Monday should be exempted." If a new parking bylaw had to be drafted.

LISBON (AP) — Radical soldiers of a rebellious artillery unit rejected President Francisco da Costa Gomes's call for military discipline and said they will use their guns to protect "oppressed classes."

Members of the 1st Light Artillery Regiment (RALLIS), stationed on the outskirts of the capital, a week ago set up a Communist-led crowd of several thousand who soldier climbed on a guardhouse roofto blessing and shouted, "We have voted to be always on the side of the people. Both Drivers Charged In Two-car Mishap

Two drivers have been charged by city police and two passengers were treated and released from Belleville General Hospital (BGH) for minor injuries following a two-car collision at the intersection of College and North Front St.eets early Monday.

Chief ouglas Crosbie identified the drivers today as John D. Chiasson, 43, of 1200 North Park St. in Belleville and Gordon Alfred Trey, 22, of 382 Foster Ave. in Belleville.

He said Chiasson has been charged with making an unsafe left turn and Trey has been charged with disobeying an amber traffic signal and operating a motor vehicle while prohibited from doing so.

A BGH spokesman said the injured persons are Susanne Trey, 22, and her four-year-old son, William.

Chief Crosbie said one car was southbound on North Front St., stopped in the intersection to make an east turn on College St. and received a go-ahead signal from the driver of a large truck facing north.

He said while the car was turning, a northbound vehicle drove past the truck on the right hand side and an almost head-on collision occurred.

He said damage to the Chiasson car was estimated at $1,000 and to the northbound vehicle at $2,500.

Two Hurt In Crash

Two Belleville men are in Belleville General Hospital (BGH) with multiple injuries suffered in a three-car collision on North Front St. in front of Consumer Distributing Co. Ltd. at about noon Monday.

A BGH spokesman said today Jack Koomens, 44, of 11 Southview Ave., one of the drivers involved, is in fair condition with multiple injuries and a concussion.

The spokesman added that Hans Wefers, 58, of 343 Herchimer Ave., a passenger in the Koomens car, is in satisfactory condition with a lacerated scalp, multiple contusions, left shoulder, chest and right hip injuries.

City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said the car driven by Kenneth Edward Bradshaw, 20, of RR 1, Foxboro, was southbound in the curb lane when it changed into the middle lane colliding with a southbound car on the right hand side, driven by Alexander John Beaudrie, (age unavailable) of RR 1, Foxboro.

Chief Crosbie said the Bradshaw car continued on the northbound middle lane where it collided with a car on the driver's side driven by Koomens.

He said damage is estimated at $2,000 to the Koomens vehicle, $1,400 to the Bradshaw car and $300 to the Beaudrie vehicle.

City Approves Sanitary Sewer Bylaw

Belleville has a new sanitary sewer ordinance — after 60 years.

A bylaw approved Monday by city council replaces a measure first passed in 1915

Break-in Foiled

PICTON — A Cherry Valley area man was charged with break, enter and theft early today following a break-in at Teasel's Retail Drug Store here.

Det. George Wright of the Picton police department said Richard Jewell, 19, of RR 1 Cherry Valley was apprehended at the drug store shortly before 12.30 a.m. About $10 was taken from a cash register in addition to three cartons of cigarettes.

governing sewer connections.

The old law placed onus for enforcement on public health authorities. The new bylaw gives the responsibility to city hall, thus bringing regulations in line with modern practices.

Both measures reflect the changes of time.

In 1915 — when problems were more acute — the law gave property owners only one month to connect to sewers when ordered by health officials.

The new bylaw extends that period to nine months. And even after that, if there are extenuating circumstances a property can plead for an extension from city council.

There are other differences: In 1915 a breach of the rules brought a fine up to $50, or a maximum of six months in jail — "with or without hard labor."

The new bylaw sets the maximum fine at $1,000 — with each day of contravention considered a separate offence.

Trenton Requests Study From Planning Board

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Council has formally requested the Quinte Planning Board (QPB) undertake a study to determine if Trenton would benefit more if it joined Northumberland county or retain its ties with Hastings, Alderman F. J. (Pete) Aziz said Monday.

Councilman Aziz said the decision was made at a closed session of council last week and that town clerk Aubrey Sharp was directed to approach the QPB to instruct them to complete the survey.

The QPB is currently paid more than $40,000 by the municipality to provide planning services and this was the reason they were asked to undertake the survey, Councilman Aziz said.

"Council decided to use the QPB because we pay them all that money," Mr. Aziz said. "We decided we did not need a private consultant when the QPB was available for the survey."

Council has been the butt of criticism for many groups recently about its apparent lack of action in taking an active role in planning Trenton's future.

Last week, officials from Northumberland County expressed dissatisfaction with Trenton's handling of the situation and questioned why the municipality has never undertaken its own study of the growth potential of the area.

Another group of town residents were openly critical of the municipality's "wait and see" attitude. The group complained the town should not decide its future plans on the basis of studies being conducted by and for Northumberland County but rather inaugurate its own plan of action.

There has been no definite date set for the completion of the survey which will provide Trenton with the information council feels it needs to make a decision on the town's direction of growth, Councilman Aziz said.

Currently, the town receives most of its services, such as courts and social welfare programs, from its ties with Hastings County, Mr. Aziz said.

In the past council has publicly stated there is a shortage of industrial development land available and the town has presented briefs requesting that almost 1,200 acres be annexed from Murray Township and given to Trenton.

The briefs were presented to the Northumberland Task Force and the Northumberland Restructuring Committee.

The task force has been charged by the provincial government with formulating a population and industrial growth plan for the county over the next 25 years and has not been completely receptive to the Trenton's land request, saying some of the population projection figures used in the brief, were questionable.

The restructuring study has also filed a preliminary report. It agrees with Trenton's request, saying some of the town be given all the land bordering on Murray Township, up to the Wooler Road. The restructuring committee, however, also questioned the population figures in the brief.

The restructuring study has from a 1972 population projection study for the municipality done by the QPB.

Speeding Worries Residents

PICTON — A petition signed by Bridge Street residents concerned by speeding near their homes was presented to town council Monday by former Picton mayor James Bird.

Mr. Bird, who lives on Low Street, told councillors the petition, supported by 38 persons, was circulated following a single car collision on Bridge Street last week. He said that the accident is one of several that has occurred in the neighborhood and parents are concerned for the safety of children on Bridge St.

"There is danger to life and limb," the former mayor asserted.

Bridge Street residents said they want increased radar and police patrols and a study of the road design by the town engineer to determine if it contributes to the problem of frequent accidents there.

Mayor Donald King adjured Mr. Bird that the residents' petition will be taken to the Picton Police Commission for immediate action. He added that he has already contacted police chief Charles Pletcher to request a stepped-up patrol of the area.

Town engineer David Hickman was asked to review the condition of the street and to report back to council.

Power Tactics

New Power Supply Ready By Late 1978 Says Hydro

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Additions to the electrical supply system for Prince Edward County will be operational in the fall of 1978 says Robert Murray, senior right-of-way planning engineer for Ontario Hydro.

Improvements involve construction of a low profile transformer station at Elmbrook, near Picton and 14.5 miles of 230 KV transmission lines between the new station and the Hydro right-of-way connecting the stations at Lennox and Napanee.

At a press conference in Picton Monday, Mr. Murray said the first step in the $9 million project is preparation of orthophotography plans. These plans will clearly indicate present homes, buildings, streams and bit lines as well as the precise location of the new transformer station. Completion of the orthophotography plans is expected by April, 1976.

Mr. Murray said the first actual ground work on the project will be a ground control survey by surveyors working primarily on road allowances.

Property owners will not be contacted about acquisitions of rights-of-way until early summer of 1976. The orthophotography plans will permit land owners to see the exact locations of proposed structures. The acquisition process will be explained on an individual basis to each property owner involved.

Mr. Murray said it is expected the acquisitions will be completed late in 1977.

They will be made under the Expropriations Act for the benefit and protection of property owners.

Construction on the hydro project will start in late 1977.

Mr. Murray noted that in two areas of the program early starts may be made.

A long lead time is required to design and purchase material for the submarine crossing at Long Reach and engineering date probably will be obtained this year.

The excarpment crossing at Green Point also may be studied soon with permission obtained from land owners for soil test and necessary surveys. Similarly, property owners adjacent to the escarpment crossing may soon be asked to permit a survey for a profile of the crossing.

Mr. Murray said Ontario Hydro feels it is important for the public to learn how the additions to Prince Edward's electrical supply system will be implemented.

"It's not going to happen fast," commented Jack Muir of Ontario Hydro's public relations office in Belleville.

He said about 90 property owners must be approached and persons with individual concerns and questions are urged to contact Norm Manning, Regional Public Relations Officer in Belleville or Craig Taylor Community Relations Officer in Toronto.

The Ontario Hydro project received approval from energy in September and is the culmination of six years of study and planning.

Police Using Unmarked Cars

PICTON — Town police are patrolling on weekends in unmarked cars supplied at no charge by a local garage.

Picton mayor Donald King Monday told council two unmarked cars were used on a recent weekend in an effort to curb speeders.

Picton, deputy-reeve Larry Richardson observed that "more could and should be done" by police to crack down on careless drivers.

He referred to "the terrible amount" of lives lost recently in traffic accidents in Prince Edward and said the number of deaths is high for the population of the area.

Court Dates Set

Two 17-year-old Belleville youths will appear separately in provincial court here on charges of break, enter and theft in connection with a break-in at Motorland Chrysler Plymouth Ltd. at 290 North Front St., and a truck accident on Highway 2, four miles east of Belleville, Aug. 17.

Dennis Davis of 188 Station St. will appear for trial Thursday and James Bateman, same address, will appear Oct. 30 to set a date for trial.

Police said someone broke into the car dealership sometime after closing time by smashing a rear window, broke a vending machine, sprayed fire extinguisher contents over automobile parts, smashed a cash register, threw battery acid and oil on the floor, broke an inside door window leading to upstairs offices and ransacked desks.

Police said a 1975-model pickup truck was taken and later involved in an accident.

Gets Grant

Sidney township has doubled its grant to $2,000 to the Batawa Ski Club.

In a report to council Monday, township recreation director Wendy Neale said the increase is in answer to a request from the club for a long-term lease, something the recreation committee did not look upon favorably.

Hospital Plans Lottery To Get Needed Funds

TRENTON — Trenton Memorial Hospital (TMH) plans to celebrate its 25 anniversary, next year, by running a lottery offering almost $10,000 in prizes, Lt.-Col. A. J. Timmins, chairman of the board said Monday.

Speaking to the weekly meeting of the Rotary Club, Mr. Timmins unveiled for the first time, the hospital's plans for the celebration.

Mr. Timmins told the group the celebration theme of teaching people about the hospital and making them aware it was a community organization would be interwoven with various fund-raising activities.

Monies raised would be used for the purchase of needed equipment Col. Timmins said.

If approval is granted from the various levels of government involved, tickets for the lottery will go on sale Jan. 1, with plans being made to hold the draw in late May.

Lottery Plans Announced

Trenton Memorial Hospital will conduct a lottery offering prizes of about $10,000 as part of its fund-raising activities during its year-long 25th anniversary celebration. Plans for the series of events were unveiled for the first time by Lt — Col. A.J. Timmins at the weekly meeting of the Rotary Club, Monday.

The Ironies of History That Brought Emperor of Japan to Washington

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

In a world of fierce regional and national conflicts, brutal civil and terrific terrorism, the long Japanese-American friendship is a reminder that international relations do change for the better, that old and bitter hatreds do fade away.

For those of us who remember the Japanese sneak attack on Pearl Harbor, what the late president Franklin Roosevelt styled for all time as, "the day which will live in infamy," the Japanese death marches of prisoners-of-war, the arrival of Emperor Hirohito in Washington must still seem an incredible event.

Remember it was Japan's super naval strategist, the late Admiral Yamamoto of the late Imperial Japanese Navy who was supposed to have said he would, "make peace in the White House."

Whether he said it or not, he is long gone, shot down over a Pacific island in 1943 by a U.S. Navy pilot who had been briefed already on his travels when the United States broke Japan's secret naval code.

Instead the Japanese emperor vilified by his wartime enemies now Japan's close economic partners, preserved in office as an emperor stripped of his empire after 1945 has come to Washington.

Hirohito is still the symbolic figurehead of his country but also the family name, worldwide renowned marine biologist and a victim of catastrophic events who has come to the United States.

This is what we have come to believe is the real Hirohito. We have been told in other ways and in ways was the real emperor of Japan.

In one of the great paradoxes of post-war history, the decision to keep him in office and not try him along with his former army senior staff officers for war crimes, would make possible the now accepted close relations between Japan and the United States.

Unlike Spain's Generalissimo Francisco Franco who has experienced only world-wide opprobium as a member of the international fascist alliance of the late '30s and early '40s Hirohito is no longer attacked for Japan's role in the Hitler-Mussolini axis.

Last week while he visited Washington, Generalissimo Franco who has never travelled anywhere was embalmed in his country which is made out to be a true enemy of Europe of democratic freedoms.

Perhaps if Spain had gone through fire and sword in the Second World War and France had somehow survived in a formula akin to the one which prevented Hirohito, his contemporaries would change his image.

But then again Hirohito is not apparently was no warrior in spite of the wartime propaganda pictures of him bemedalled and wearing the full dress uniform of Japanese warmander-in-chief, the mortal spirit upon whom no other Japanese mortal could directly look.

Indeed the American-Japanese alliance is now so strong and so long-lasting that even a recall of the Emperor's earlier role seems out-of-place. He has longed in his own simple way to visit Washington, the White House in particular.

And he has fared much better by far than other emperors of past time, defeat the brave but ill-starred late Haile Selassie unseated as Ethiopian ruler neared the end of his days.

The dark dramatic irony of Haile Selassie is that in the '30s he was the world's sharpest critic of the opposition to fascism in the self-same year when Imperial Japan was officially as Emperor was completing its conquest of North China. Such is the unpredictable course of history.

Independents Losing

Hardware store owner Ross White's observations about the days of the small independent being "numbered" has a rather familiar ring.

What's happening to individualism? What's left of the pioneer spirit against the advances of the group, the corporate initiative, the chain?

There was a note of pride and purposefulness in the early days of Belleville's development. It exists today too, but the sense of community spirit, with everyone pulling his weight, was particularly evident in an Intelligencer article back in 1835.

"There are 20 merchants, in the town of Belleville, each conducting an extensive business . . . there are three saddle and harness factories, one watchmaker, two hatters, three cabinetmakers, two chair factories, ten shoemakers, seven tailors, three bakers, three butchers, masons and carpenters, sufficient to carry on the many improvements of the town."

There was much else besides, and it is duly mentioned. It was an exciting time. Wasn't it a period also of some political unrest and military activity? In any event, what emerges from the account is the spirit of personal motivation that prevailed.

We see the same impulses at work today, but the trend seems against the individual, or against the small entrepeneur at least. A Front Street pharmacy closed recently, although its owner joined a contemporary across the street. Mr. White meanwhile notes business has been increasing but costs are up too. When he goes, there will be only two hardware stores left compared with eight 20 years ago.

What will we see 20 years hence? It's an interesting prospect. Some of the signs of the Belleville of tomorrow are in the making — but will there be more or less opportunity for individualism in future?

Immigrants Victims

The controversy that has been swirling around the subject of immigration has taken on some tragic overtones unrelated to any proposals for permitting fewer people to enter this country, and particularly from Asia and the Caribbean. As it is, those already here have troubles enough.

What happened to the Jamaican youth gunned down at a Toronto shopping plaza some weeks ago may or may not have been racist-inspired, but whether it was or not the youth was an innocent victim of an increasingly crime-oriented sector of our society.

Similarly there was the fatal shooting in Toronto — allegedly by a gunman who is believed to have escaped into the United States — of a 22-year-old assistant hotel manager from Sri Lanka. The dead man had been in Canada only about a year or so.

And lastly, the death of a six-year-old boy of Portuguese background in the course of a Montreal police chase and shootout with an armed man.

Once again, Canada's parole system is under fire, for the fugitive in this case was free under its provisions. Because of it, he was free to engage once more in criminal activity — in this case the attempted robbing of a bank, with a busload of youngsters becoming unwilling hostages.

The tragedy is that three New Canadians, all young, are dead because of criminal activity in which they simply happened to be at the wrong place at the wrong time.

Muhammad Ali Still on Top

Remember Cassius Clay?

More than a decade ago, a Belleville resident who at that time was resident overseas recalls the publicity build-up over a big fight of the day. The name of Clay's opponent escapes him but Clay was the big wheel of the boxing world then as he is today.

The only difference is he goes by a different name — Muhammad Ali. The gabby and colorful boxer is hinting though at retirement — but who knows after the rest he clearly needs after his fourth fight in eight months, we might see — and hear — the indefatigable Ali again.

Of course man is mortal. Every so often we read of the passing of some great of years past. We have Jack Nicklaus and Jimmy Connors, Sandra Palmer and Billie Jean King. But their day too must pass, while others take their place.

Among those who have made the most impact though, and whose name will be remembered as long as any, is Muhammad Ali.

Provincial Liberals Left Without a Base As Their Rivals Eye a Pragmatic Course

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Recently, in discussing the Liberals, I noted they would be facing a big handicap in trying to get a new leader known before an election.

But this is not by any means the only problem they are and will be facing.

Probably an even greater one is trying to find a position they can take and with which the public will identify them.

As of now, this looks like an almost impossible task. For the government is identified with the right, the NDP with the left and both spill over into the centre.

The fact is, of course, that in our Ontario politics there really aren't any very hard lines.

Essentially it is more a politics of opportunism than anything else.

The Conservatives are conservative to the extent supporters attracted to the party tend to be a breed that doesn't like to see boats rocked. But the lure of power also makes them very pragmatic and they don't at all mind skirting the edges of socialism.

The NDP, of course, was nurtured as socialist but its pragmatism steered it to demagoguery, and in its appeal to emotion and prejudice it has more and more realized that conservative voters have their prejudices too and that it needs to protect itself from these.

Which means two parties with identical but very loose preferences and with really no clear room between them for a third group.

Actually, of course, the NDP superseded the Liberals by occupying the ground that usually should be theirs.

And so the party is left really without any base, and with an extremely difficult task to try and shape one.

To establish a base it, in effect, has to realize the Conservatives back to the right and the NDP further to the left and clear some space between them.

In the more or less rootless politics of today this is pretty well an impossible task.

And the one avenue that then is left is for one or other of the two more established parties to break down and move a vacuum to be filled.

This means that for practical purposes about all the Liberals can do is try to chip away at both of the other parties and wait for one of them to break. It hardly has time before the next election to do this.

The government of Spain was faced with two revolutions 41 years ago today—in 1934. One was an anarchist rising in the Asturias industrial region and the second was a nationalist declaration of autonomy by Catalonia. Both were quickly put down with heavy casualties. The Fascist Falange movement was founded at this time. By the year's end, the government could not keep control. In general elections, a leftist Popular Front coalition was elected. Violence continued and the stage was set for Franco's eventual takeover.

Subversive Practices Exposed

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

The Intelligencer is to be congratulated on publishing the revealing article, "Class Warfare in Schools?" by Libor J. Zink.

This distinguished member of the House of Commons Press Gallery is gaining wider and wider recognition as one of the world's foremost experts on Soviet planning.

Zink has always laid it all on the line as a fighter against tyrants from either left or right.

When the Germans invaded his native Czechoslovakia, Zink joined a British artillery unit, fighting with such distinction that he was twice decorated for gallantry in action.

When the red Fascists enslaved his homeland, Zink met the oppressors head on at great peril to himself and his relatives, making a daring escape to Canada.

For the past 15 years he has written editorials for the now defunct Toronto Telegram and more lately the rising Toronto Sun.

Over this 15-year period Zink's analyses and forecasts on Communist subversion threaten all free world liberal institutions such as colleges, schools, unions, media, politics and army (Portugal) has been so accurate that more and more letters to the press pay homage to this prophetic author as "the man who is always right."

The passionate exception many teachers take to this man's exposure of Communism and advocacy of free speech is proof of his truth and their ill-concealed sympathies.

UNBRAINWASHED

Sunday Opening Denounced

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

We, the Executive of Bridge Street United Church Congregational Board, would like to express as clearly as possible our concern about the Sunday opening of the A & P here.

Over the past few years we have witnessed a steady attack on the distinctions which have always made Sunday a day of rest and worship. Coincidentally we have seen a rise in violence and lawlessness against which the Church has always stood. We certainly don't wish to imply that the action of one store is the cause of the sad state of affairs but logically certain it is a further step in the wrong direction.

We are asking all our membership to boycott this store for as long as its policy of Sunday opening is in effect. We would urge your readers to take similar action.

A.D. REVILL,
Secretary,
Bridge Street United Church
Congregational Board.

Inflation Is Wreaking Havoc with Returns on Investments

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

With money losing more than 10 per cent of its value every year, are the traditional corporate annual reports of much use to shareholders?

Chartered accountants are becoming concerned about the usefulness of balance sheets that tote up a company's assets and liabilities once a year in dollar figures that ignore the change in the dollar itself.

And when current profits are expressed in inflated dollars, unwary shareholders may be misled about the true rate of return on their investment.

At the same time, accountancy has a long and well guarded reputation for taking the conservative approach. So there's a good deal of resistance in the profession to "tampering" with the time-honored methods in which the accountant presents financial information and the auditor attests to its authenticity.

Marcel Belanger, the newly elected president of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accounts (CICA), spoke recently of a "crisis of confidence" that inflation has brought to accounting.

"One has the impression that there is a widening gap between what the public wants and what accountants and auditors are providing," Mr. Belanger said.

"Some would like to see the current values as the basis of financial statements.

"Others, while accepting historical costs, want to see them indexed in order to take into account changes in the purchasing power of money."

Mr. Belanger asked whether business could logically be asked to pay taxes on profits based on an overstating postulate—historical costs — that two-figure inflation has rendered much less meaningful.

Another association president, Howard Hard of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, notes that the improvement in his industry's earnings in recent years has been more apparent than real.

"It is based largely on using up assets that cannot possibly be replaced or even maintained with the profits generated through traditional depreciation rates and allowed for taxation purposes."

A research committee of the CICA has recommended that the accounting profession adopt a "price level basis" of accounting for inflation.

The proposal, still under consideration by the profession, would adjust the monetary value of assets, depreciation allowance, investment profits and the like, in terms of the inflation rate for the period in question.

Bob Cowan, financial vice-president of Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. in Vancouver, says that if his company's 1974 earnings had been restated on the price level basis, reported earnings would have been about 30 per cent lower, and the return on capital invested would have been about three per cent instead of the reported 8.2 per cent.

Barring an economic miracle, high rates of inflation seem to be here to stay.

That puts it up to the accountants to develop ways of providing financial information for shareholders that realistically recognize the loss of money's purchasing power and the amounts needed for replacement of inventory, plant and equipment—while at the same time retaining and protecting the credibility that the accounting profession has built up from generation to generation.

Sunday Shopping:

Church Spokesmen Views

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Spokesmen for 12 Belleville churches last evening as informal Intelligencer survey Sunday they oppose Sunday openings by major food chain stores even though their churches have yet to take an official stand.

Rev. Stephen Tilley of Belleville Alliance Church at 23 West Moira St. commented, "even if we are all brothers, it (Sunday openings) isn't necessary."

"I think we need a day of rest," he said. "Our society is so busy trying to make a living that we've forgotten how to live."

Rev. Alexander McDowell of Eastminster United Church on East Bridge St. at Hershiner Ave. said his family has patronized A and P in the Belleville Plaza, one of the stores currently open on Sundays, "but we're not going to any longer."

"It (Sunday employment) means an increase in costs which is definitely going to be borne by the consumer," he remarked. "I can't see sound businessmen doing this."

Rev. Fred Knutson of Emmanuel Baptist Church at Rollins Dr. said his family "will boycott the A and P store until a change is made."

He conveyed the contents of a letter from Bridge St. United Church to his congregation Sunday which appealed for other churches to join its boycott announced last week. "I don't know to what degree it will be responded to but I imagine it will," he said.

Wayne Kleinsteuber, student minister at Front Rd. United Church on Highway 2, three miles east of Belleville, said, "I'm not all that hung up on Sunday as a holy day — but as a day of rest."

He said he will speak to his congregation next Sunday on a theme of family togetherness and church worship "when everyone has that one day off."

Sam Gillespie, a member of the board of deacons of Hastings Park Bible Chapel on Harder Dr. said, "we're definitely not in favor of stores being open on Sunday," but added the chapel will not direct its parishioners towards any action.

"It's not a case of handing down a verdict" he noted. "It's each person's own personal criteria."

Rev. J. Clare Kelinge of Holloway St. United Church at 25 Holloway St. said, "I think it's unfortunate."

He explained Sunday employment and overtime pay will create an economic problem. "If stores are going to be open on Sundays, goods are going to be more expensive," he said.

Rev. Donald Himmelman of Lutheran Holy Trinity Church at 518 Victoria Ave. said, "I don't think it will enhance the life of the community."

"Whether it enhances the community or not is not in the minds of businessmen," he commented. "It's not public service but an eye for profit."

Rev. Ron Schindel of Parkdale Baptist Church at 614 Sidney St. said, "the concession, of course, has always been we don't agree with it."

Any form of protest will be left up to individual parishioners, he said. "On things of personal conscience, we leave the decision to them."

Capt. Robert Sloss of the Salvation Army at 188 Victoria Ave. said, "It's been a basic moral understanding on the part of salvationists that Sunday is a holy day."

"It's demoralization," he said of Sunday openings. "Sunday used to be a holy day, then it was a holiday and now it's any day."

Rev. Barney Wood of the Standard Church on Coleman St. said, "I'm not in favor of Sunday shopping. The church isn't as a whole."

Rev. J. C. MacFarlane of Victoria Ave. Baptist Church at 34 Victoria Ave. said, "I don't feel it's necessary for the A and P store to be open."

"I feel very much that the people who work there need at least one day to serve," he commented. "There's six other days to serve the public."

Rev. Fred B. Irish of Wesleyan Methodist Church at 76 Everett St. said Sunday openings are a "money motive."

"It's not just the simple fact of taking people's rights away, but where are we heading for?" he commented. "It's funny how we can get along without it (Sunday shopping) for many years."

Fellowship Opposes New Hours

The newly-formed Belleville Evangelical Fellowship has wasted no time in adding its voice to the growing protest over Sunday openings by major food chains.

Rev. Paul G. Johnston of Ontiminal Free Methodist Church, a fellowship member, said Sunday the group met for the first time last week and voiced "strong opposition to supermarket Sundays" as currently practised by A & P in the Belleville Plaza and Food City just west of the city.

He said nine Belleville ministers "were unanimous in their support for keeping Sunday as a day for rest and worship."

Rev. Johnston read a fellowship statement prepared for the Intelligencer which begins, "business establishments which are remaining open on Sundays for the purpose of monetary gains and fueling competitiveness are in opposition to the content of the Lord's Day Act."

He said the condition of the economy was another ministerial concern. "The increased costs of Sunday openings must be borne by the consumer," the statement said. "Therefore, such action contributes to the inflationary spiral of the economy."

The new group is composed of 11 city ministers who meet for fellowship and to discuss religious concerns. The first president is Robert Dempster of Bethel Chapel and the secretary is Ron Schindel of Parkdale Baptist Church.

Some Churches Silent On Shopping Issue

Some Belleville ministers had no comment Sunday on the issue of Sunday openings by major food chains stores and indicated they were unsure if congregational officials would discuss the issue later.

Robert Dempster of Bethel Chapel at Church and Station Sts. said he has not broached the subject to his parishioners and chapel elder John Semenuk added it "might" be discussed at a general meeting of elders next week.

Rev. Roy E. Vessey of College Hill United Church on North Park St. said, "I'd just as soon not be quoted in the paper on it."

Rev. Henry Katerburg of Maranatha Christian Reformed Church at 72 Orchard Dr. said he has not spoken to his congregation but added the issue is on the agenda of the congregational board meeting today.

And Rev. A. L. Sutherland of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church at Church St. and Victoria Ave. said neither he nor the congregational board have discussed the issue.

Trailers Main Topic

Albert Lennox, of RR 1 Corbyville president of the Travel Trailer Clubs Association of Ontario, addresses the annual meeting held Saturday in Pinkpoint. Almost 40 persons attended the meeting of the associations which represents 33 Ontario trailer clubs.

Three Ministers All Agree Individual Must Decide On Sunday Shopping Issue

Three Belleville ministers say they feel Sunday business by major food chain stores should not be governed by either government legislation or church policy, an informal Intelligencer survey reveals.

Rev. Virgil F. Earle of St. Margaret's on the Hill Anglican Church at 28 Oriole Park Ave. said, "a Christian has to make up his own mind."

When asked if he will speak to his congregation on the issue, he said, "I haven't really made up my mind yet. I'm not certain it's an issue we can take up or not."

Rev. Frank B. Mitchell of Westminster United Church at RR 2, Belleville said, "I don't think it's correct to try to legislate a person into the Kingdom of Heaven."

"It's a person's own affair," he commented. "I think freedom of religion means freedom of religion."

Canon R. B. DeBlois Wright of Christ Anglican Church at Coleman and Catharine Sts. said the Lord's Day Act should apply to all retail outlets, not just supermarkets.

He said corner stores and druggistores operate on Sundays under the guise of selling basic needs but "they're selling other needs which are not basic."

"If we're going to maintain a Christian Sunday it should govern them all," Rev. Wright commented. "I don't think we can make distinctions based on moral grounds."

"An individual has to make a decision based on his own conscience," he added. "Christians are given free will to make that decision."

Cockburn in Court On Robbery Charge

A 19-year-old Kingston area man will appear in provincial court here Oct. 23 for trial on a charge of armed robbery in connection with a holdup at Kelly's Drugs at 411 East Bridge St. Sept. 9.

Douglas Ernie Cockburn of RR 1, Kingston was charged after a man was arrested at the former cement plant on Point Ann Lane following the reported robbery.

Police said an amount of money in excess of $200 was stolen from the store by a man with a nylon stocking over his head and brandishing a .22 calibre revolver.

CP News Roundup

Canada Supports Portugal

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has made an expression of support for the moderate government of Portugal by renewing an offer for economic assistance.

A statement Monday from the external affairs department said the offer was made to Foreign Minister Ernesto Melo Antunes last week by External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen.

A department spokesman said the message reaffirmed Canadian government encouragement of moves that hopefully would lead to a Western-style democracy in Portugal.

The country is in the midst of a power struggle between Communists and socialists.

Worth Little

TORONTO (CP) — Sponsorship documents signed by a Canadian relative, promising to take responsibility for an immigrant, are worth little, immigration officials say. E. J. Fanning, a Toronto immigration official, said in a weekend interview the courts cannot enforce the promise of responsibility, which is not legally binding. The immigration department can only try to get people to abide by the agreement.

Quads Stable

TORONTO (CP) — Nicole Gagnon, 28, gave birth to quadruplets at St. Michael's Hospital early Monday, the second set of quadruplets born to a Toronto couple in a month. The babies — two girls and two boys weighing two pounds, three ounces to two pounds, six ounces — all were in stable condition.

Youth Breaks Back

HULL, Que. (CP) — A 19-year-old Ottawa man suffered a broken back when the hang glider he was flying crashed into a field near Lucerne, Que., 12 miles north of here. Paul Martin is listed in satisfactory condition in hospital in Hull. Hull police said Mr. Martin jumped with his glider off a 700-foot-high cliff Sunday but had trouble with the glider at about 500 feet, lost control and crashed into a field.

Drug Law Relaxed

ROME (Reuter) — Italians will be free to keep and use illegal drugs—but not to buy or receive them—under a bill now going through Parliament. The bill is expected to restore the threat of two years in jail for smoking hashish and will allow Italians to keep small quantities of any drugs, including heroin and LSD—strictly for personal use.

Causes Found

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Two explosions Sunday which caused slight damage to a police van and about $1,000 damage to the roof of the Peterborough County jail were the result of dynamite, police said Monday. No suspects have been apprehended in connection with the explosions, police said.

'You Are What You Wear'

Denim, colorful cottons and unbleached muslin are the media in which Judy Humble expresses herself.

A fine arts graduate of Queen's University, Judy has been sewing cloth since she was a child.

"As a teen-ager it was a useful hobby she says. But now it's become her vocation.

Marty Reynard with his jewelry

"I've got the artistic thing but I like to do something practical with my hands."

Her design-and-sew career began when, after leaving school, she travelled to Spain for an extended visit. She returned with laces and fabrics and began sewing clothes for the Picton boutique she opened with fellow Queen's graduate Marty Reynard.

The boutique, Paradox, now carries a full range of her embroidered jeans, denim patchwork skirts, leather ponchos and jackets in corduroy and Indian cotton and brushed denim.

"It may be an unnatural way to use a university education," Judy says, "but it's a natural outlet for me."

Clothes are important to Judy who believes they make a statement about a person.

"Clothes are a costume — for adults as well as teen-agers. You see middle-aged adults putting on a middle class costume so they'll appear a certain way.

"Clothes even change your behaviour as well as the way people treat you.

"It's how you advertise yourself to people."

In spite of her strong feelings about fashion — or perhaps because of them — Judy believes that no one's clothing should be dictated by trends or social status.

"I think it's sad to see a woman come in and try on an embroidered blouse and not buy it even if she looks really nice in it because she's afraid people will think she's trying to look young."

Judy admits however, that while she dresses 80 per cent for herself, she dresses 20 per cent for other people.

"If I'm going someplace where people would feel insulted if I'm not 'properly' dressed, then I'll dress their way so that I'm not going to offend them."

Judy adds that she believes you can feel comfortable with a person because of the clothes he has on, and that people get to know you through the way you react to their clothes

"I might change clothes three times in a day because I look down at my clothes and realize that I don't want them on me anymore — I don't feel that way any longer."

Her clothes, many of which take several days to embroider, sell for ready-made prices: $12 to $25 for a blouse, $18 to $25 for a skirt and $40 for a dress.

Time to Rescue Plants Now

With the sudden onset of cold weather, gardeners should take time soon to cater to those plants which are susceptible to frost, say Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturists.

"By bringing geraniums, impatiens and nasturtiums indoors before they are hit by frost, you can get several additional months of enjoyment from their colorful blooms," says J. H. Hughes.

The plants should be dug up carefully to avoid damaging root systems, and potted with fertile garden soil, followed by a thorough watering.

Many of these plants are very vegetative and wide-spreading when grown outdoors. Pinching back carefully to a node, where a strong bud can break away and start growing, will provide you with compact, bushy plants better suited for the windowsill.

"For a supply of inexpensive and colorful blooms next spring, take your geranium cuttings before frost," advises R.F. Gomme.

Cut healthy, four-inch-long shoots or cuttings and root them in sand, water, or a prepared rooting medium, leaving most of the leaves on. The cuttings should be taken from the plant cleanly with a sharp knife. Prevent them from wilting by covering with glass jars or plastic to create a moist atmosphere. When the cuttings begin to root, remove the covers gradually. Although they need plenty of light, they should be shaded from the sun.

When they are well rooted, plant the cuttings in small pots, using a mixture of seven parts and three parts organic matter, and two parts sand. Repot the plants when they become root-bound.

Dig up your gladiolus corms for storage just before the first severe frost, "preferably on a warm, sunny day," says D.B. McNeil. Gladiolus leaves should be left on the plants as long as possible. Either cut and clear away the foliage before digging to prevent thrips migrating to the corms, or cut the stems and foliage off about an inch from the corm after digging.

"Cure corms at 80 degrees F (27 C) for two to three weeks to stall fungus diseases," advises the specialist. To control thrips, shake the corms in a paper bag with five per cent carbaryl (Sevin) dust or dusts containing methoxychlor or chlordane.

Nylon stockings, paper bags or flats make excellent storage containers. They should not be piled more than two or three deep in storage and they should be right side up, so "not if young shoots "root before planting, they will grow in the normal direction.

The storage room should be a cool 40 to 50 degrees F (4 to 10 C), well-ventilated, and neither too damp or too dry.

Self-Expression In Silver Jewelry

Marty Reynard is a clinical psychologist. But what he does — and there's an important distinction there — is make silver jewelry.

A Ph.d. from Queen's University, Marty opened a boutique in Picton with Judy Humble about a year ago.

Moved by a family tradition — his mother is a silversmith — and the desire to create quality crafts for his own store, he took up making silver jewelry.

"I had worked with other metals in sculpture," Marty says, but added that he has a special feeling for silver.

"I have an affinity for it — its innately beautiful."

Marty feels that jewelry and clothing are closely linked and that they are important forms of self-expression both for the maker and the wearer.

"It's practically inborn — adornment is an almost biological factor. There are very few people, who, even if they don't wear jewelry themselves, don't appreciate it."

In less than a year, Marty has acquired the equipment and skills to produce bracelets and rings and necklaces and pendants often highlighted with turquoise and abalone or hand-crafted ceramic beads. All the designs are his own.

"By now I have more designs in my head that I can use up."

He adds there is a lifetime of experimenting and learning ahead.

"I get my highs that way," he says.

While he admits that most people are surprised that he has not pursued the career for which he was trained, Marty Reynard doesn't feel there is anything peculiar about his choice of occupation.

"Education wasn't designed to feed into a technology," he says. "And what you are and what you do dont have to be the same thing."

Refusing to be labelled either artist or craftsman, Marty says that he simply makes jewelry.

He says, however, that when he thinks about it at all he feels a strong sense of continuity in making things that people wear.

"It's an art form older than any civilization."

Mr. and Mrs. Terrance Hiddleston

Hiddleston — Brant

The September 6 wedding service, uniting Joanne Jennifer Brant and Terrance Walter Hiddleston in marriage, was conducted in Saint Mary Magdalene Church in Picton by Rev. Robert Stewart.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Brant of Picton and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hiddleston.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white French velvet, which she had hand-sewn herself. It featured a mock-turtle neck and an empire waist, and a matching empire-waisted jacket over the sleeveless bodice, with a Vandyke and a wide collar. The two-tiered six-foot-long veil fell from a rhinestone tiara borrowed from a cousin in England. She carried peach-colored roses and carnations.

The bride's sister Janice Jean Brant was maid of honor in a peach-colored halter dress with a matching empire jacket in peach-colored ostrich feathers. She carried peach and white carnations.

Lorraine Ann Clarke, the groom's sister, was bridesmaid in a gown identical to the maid of honor's.

Tracey Clarke, the groom's niece, was flower girl in a peach-colored long-sleeved empire-waisted gown, carrying a basket of flowers similar to the other attendants. Todd Clarke, the groom's nephew, was ring bearer.

The groom's brother, Thomas Hiddleston, was his best man, and the bride's brothers Steven and Richard Brant were the ushers.

A buffet at the Picton Golf and Country Club followed the service.

After a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Hiddleston have settled in Kingston.

Working Women Earn Less

MONTREAL (CP) — The average woman working for an hourly wage in the Montreal area this year continued to earn 26 per cent less than her male counterpart, the same gap noted last year, a Montreal Board of Trade survey shows.

The average man earns $4.33 an hour, the survey shows, while the average woman gets $3.48, or 90 cents less an hour.

However both men and women are making 14 per cent more than last year, when men were paid $3.84 and women $3.05.

The survey of wages and working conditions, conducted last May by the board, the Chamber of Commerce and the Canadian Manufacturers Association, was based on information collected from 234 firms employing 65,836 hourly-paid employees.

Of the employees studied, 49 per cent were in manufacturing, 16 per cent in service industries, 11 per cent in retailing and one per cent in wholesale. The remainder were not classified.

Twelve per cent of the women surveyed were making less than $2.60, the provincial minimum wage level for adults. Certain categories of service employees may be paid less than minimum wage.

The study found the wage gap between the sexes was greatest at higher pay scales. However, average hourly minimum hiring rates were also lower for women ($2.96) than for men ($3.23). In general, the study showed, both men and women are likely to earn higher starting wages at larger firms.

ROBBY

From Robby's expression you can almost hear him asking: "Why?" It's almost his favorite word for seven-year-old Robby is full of questions.

This appealing youngter is small for his age, looks rather fragile. Actually he's strong and active, indeed hyper-active. Except for weekends and holidays he is on medication to slow him down a bit. His glasses are for farsightedness but he doesn't like wearing them and they are often misplaced.

Robby used to be extremely impulsive, rushing into the road without looking or dashing out of the house half-dressed, but he has now learned to keep himself much better under control.

New in Grade 1, Robby is doing well and likes school. Because he has a perceptual handicap which makes him see things upside down, he will move soon to a special class where there are fewer students and the teacher has extra time for each one. He may continue to need special education.

Though his problem interferes with eye-hand co-ordination, it doesn't at all keep him from doing athletic things. He can ride a two-wheel bike and he loves roller skating. He has tried horseback riding and has learned to swim - using the dog paddle. Like most small boys he likes wagons, cars, trucks and marbles.

Robby likes to be helpful, often joining his foster mother in household chores. He enjoys teasing and is learning how to accept being teased. Most of the time he is cheerful and co-operative, but he has a temper and can be moody when thwarted.

Robby will thrive in an atmosphere of warmth, love and encouragement. He needs a mother and father with lots of energy, lots of patience and the ability to combine firmness with affection.

Other children in the adopting family will be an asset but they should be at least four years older than Robby.

To inquire about adopting Robby, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 3T2. In your letter please tell something of your present family and your way of life.

Business Ignores 'Women's Issue'

TORONTO (CP) — Few Canadian companies appear to be making an effort to involve more women in management, says Frank Laverty of Management Renewal Ltd. of Ottawa.

Mr. Laverty said in an interview that in general, the "women's issue has never been seriously dealt with" by many businesses. He said that his company, however, offers programs to help women enter management.

Although more women are entering training programs, "most of the girls are not particularly interested in management," said Larry Ginn, personnel manager of Canada Safeway Ltd. in Winnipeg.

Peter McCaffrey, manager of special management projects at the Royal Bank of Canada, said results have been extremely good from the 112 women who have participated in an all-female training version of the bank's accelerated management development program set up in 1973.

For final assessment, however, "you have to judge by their actions in due course," he said.

A lack of women in senior management positions in the 7, Eaton Co. Ltd. of Toronto is "perceived as a problem," said William Cheshire, the company's Ontario manager of manpower resources and development. He said a national data study is being conducted to determine what action should be taken.

Courses are available, however, for both men and women who want to enter management.

Teaches Etiquette

WASHINGTON (CP) — Helen Williams teaches etiquette to Washington officials, unfamiliar with diplomatic society manners. Mrs. Williams is a retiree resident of the United States capital, said often Washington moves in mysterious ways.

During her four 3½-hour sessions, costing $100 each, her students learn formal table manners, invitation writing, table setting and seating, how to make introductions and toasts and how to avoid sweaty palms.

Boss's Wife Exploits His Secretary

Dear Ann Landers: Does the boss's wife have the right to come to his office and ask his secretary to type six and seven letters every time she feels like it? Her excuse is, "My handwriting is terrible. I hope you don't mind."

I have a full-work load as it is. Often I eat lunch at my desk and come in half an hour early to get the essentials finished by quitting time.

This brassy woman has never given me so much as a handkerchief for these "small favors." Frankly, I'm fed up but I don't know what to do about it. I love my job, have 15 years seniority and my boss is wonderful. Any advice?—Purple Velvet in Portland.

Dear Purple: Some secretaries enjoy doing special favors for the boss's wife—and gracious wives repay such favors with an occasional gift. But obviously you feel exploited—and I agree you have been.

Simply tell Mr. Wonderful you'd appreciate it if he'd ask his wife to take her correspondence elsewhere because your daily work load is all you can handle. The message to her should come from him, not you.

Dear Ann Landers: I refer respectfully to the letter from the man who could not sign his name in the presence of others and your reply: "You've got one of a kind there, Lady."

Your response was not in keeping with the high standards I have come to expect from your advice, Miss Landers.

The victim of the problem described is not all that rare. Moreover, the man can be helped if he seeks out a psychologist specializing in systematic desensitization. This technique has been widely used, and with great success, for problems of that type. I am also pleased to tell you it doesn't take years of costly psychoanalysis, as a great many people who have been helped will testify.

You owe it to those who read your column and believe in you to get this message across promptly.—Here's Your Second Chance

Dear Friend: My response ("You've got one of a kind there, Lady") was definitely on the beam. I received half a bag of mail from readers who confided that either they or a close relative was similarly afflicted—and it was hell.

After checking on your advice, I feel like handing you my day's pay.

I urge all individuals who have difficulty signing their names while being observed to seek immediate help from a psychologist who specializes in desensitization. It will not work 100 per cent of the time, but I have checked out the procedure and the results have been excellent. It's certainly worth trying.

Human Ashes Lost in Trains

TOKYO (AP) — Large amounts of cash and millions of items as varied as human ashes, fresh fish, umbrellas and precious jewels are lost in trains, stations and other public facilities in Japan every year.

But the losers reclaimed less than half of the equivalent of $25 million in cash and only 14 per cent of five million other items lost and found in 1974, the National Police Agency reported.

"Japanese were losing at least $64,000 in cash and 14,000 other items every single day last year," said Police Capt. Hideo Enomoto of the agency, "and much of the cash and goods were left in trains or at stations."

Tens of millions of Japanese ride on crowded trains to work, and when they jump off, they often leave their belongings behind.

In and around metropolitan Tokyo alone, the Japan National Railway recovered 7,681 watches, 184,809 umbrellas, 5,754 cameras, 38,077 purses and wallets, 164,756 items clothing, on top of cash equivalent to $2.75 million last year.

"Unusual items" reported by the railway included:

Seventy-two sets of artificial teeth, seven containers of human ashes, 22 portable Buddhist shrines, an artificial arm, a head of a clay mannequin, a huge festival drum, costumes of Shinto and Buddhist clergymen, a packet of 40 rings worth $80,000.

On cash losses, police reported, a businessman left a cheque for $180,000, another person lost a bankbook of $60,000, loss of a $21,000 promissory note, and a cab driver picked up the equivalent of $10,000 cash left on his passenger's seat.

The lost cash and items are sent to local police headquarters within a couple of days and kept there for a maximum of six months and 14 days, awaiting claims.

The Tokyo Metropolitan Police Board's lost and found centre is always crowded with an average 430,000 items that occupy three floors of the building. Each item is tagged to show where and when it was found.

A Lake and Thee

Seven-year-old Brent Klassen and his golden setter, Josie, make the most of the warm weather Tuesday as they romp along shoreline of Lake Ontario in Toronto. But the warm weather Toronto-area has been experiencing the last couple of days may well become a thing of the past as cold northwest winds are expected to cause temperatures to drop. (CP Photo)

Federal Researchers Zap White Spruce with Lasers

TORONTO (CP)—For the last six months, six federal forestry scientists have been pouring through a plot of white spruce trees 20 miles south of Ottawa at night, and zapping trees with short bursts of low-intensity laser beams.

The scientists, from the Forest Ecology Research Institute in Ottawa, were testing whether the laser treatment would prompt young trees to flower, or produce seeds, by acting on the trees' pigment system called phytochrome.

Scientists know that phytochrome, which absorbs red light, is involved in the flowering process of many plants. But they do not know exactly how it works nor what role the system plays in the flowering of forest trees like spruce and pine.

New seeds are needed each year in reforestation programs to meet the demand for wood products, but seeds are difficult to obtain because trees take 10 years or more to flower and often do not flower every year.

Scientists hope that if the laser technique works, a cheap and simple way of increasing seed production from high-quality trees may be found.

D. J. Durzan, head of the recently completed study at Kemptville, said the lasers might also enable scientists to synchronize life cycles of groups of trees so they all produce seeds at about the same time.

This would make seed-gathering easier and decrease the cost of collecting them.

Dr. Durzan said it may be possible to treat large numbers of trees with lasers, costing less than $200, mounted in towers or aboard aircraft.

He said the Ottawa team of scientists will not know until next summer whether the laser treatments succeeded in inducing the trees to flower, although there have been some changes in the size and shape of the tree buds which is an encouraging sign.

Dr. Durzan said Australian scientists demonstrated a few years ago that flowering in plants like lettuce and wheat could be controlled by red laser light. The Ottawa researchers decided to see whether the laser method would work with trees.

The researchers were able to get seeds to germinate in the laboratory after exposure to laser light.

The provincial ministry of natural resources then gave the Ottawa team access to a plot of about 900 spruce trees which were treated during two-week periods between mid-April and mid-September.

The trees were given different dosages of low-intensity red laser light at night in order to avoid interference from the red light in sunlight.

If the trees respond to the laser technique, the next step is to treat trees from a tower or aircraft, r. Durzan said.

He said they also hope the laser can be used to control the sexuality of trees. Regions of a tree produce female cones, he said, and other regions male cones, which produce pollen to fertilize the female cones.

He said plant breeders might be able to control these cones and grow superior trees, or the technique may be useful in reducing the amount of pollen where people suffer from respiratory problems.

Demeter's Counsel Says Evidence Not Fairly Reviewed by Judge

TORONTO (CP) — Defence counsel in the trial of Deborah Demeter, the night of July 18, 1973, were "not fairly" reviewed by Mr. Justice Campbell Grant in his charge to the jury which last Dec. 5 found Mrs. Demeter's husband, Peter, guilty of murder, counsel for Mrs. Demeter said Monday.

Appearing before an Ontario Court of Appeal hearing, defence lawyer Edward Greenspan said that a team of defence lawyers put forth a variety of theories to show that someone other than Demeter might have committed or arranged the murder but too little emphasis was given the theories in Mr. Justice Grant's charge to the jury.

Any one of a group of "unsavory characters" known by Mrs. Demeter might have ordered her, Mr. Greenspan said. His argument met with critical comments from the five judges hearing the appeal.

Ontario Chief Justice George Gale defended Mr. Justice Grant and chastised the defence for "not being very clear" in identifying its theories during the trial.

Mr. Greenspan is arguing that his client deserves a new trial on the grounds that the judge of Mr. Justice Grant's charge to the jury and media reports of the case made it impossible for Demeter to receive a fair trial.

Demeter, who was not in court for the appeal, is serving a life sentence in Millhaven penitentiary.

His wife's body was found bludgeoned to death in the garage of the Demeters' Mississauga, Ont., home when her husband and several house guests returned from shopping. The Crown contended at the trial that Demeter had someone kill his wife during his absence.

Chief Justice Gale demanded Mr. G=enspan end "all this speculation" over evidence introduced at the trial and spell out exactly what the trial defence hinged its case on.

Report Cites Circumcision As Medically Unnecessary

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — A group of pediatricians says circumcising baby boys, routinely done in many hospitals, is not essential if good personal hygiene is used and may pose an unnecessary surgical risk.

Their report came in October issue of Pediatrics magazine, published by the American Academy of Pediatrics.

The academy ordered the study after controversy developed over a 1971 report by another committee which said circumcision, without elaboration, that it didn't think there was medical justification for routine circumcision.

China Hints to Moscow As Source of War

PEKING (Reuter) — Seven Communist envoys walked out of Peking's Great Hall of the People Monday night when Vice-Premier Teng Hsiao-ping in a speech alluded to Moscow as "the most dangerous source of war."

It was the first walkout by Russian and East European diplomats from a Peking banquet in three years.

The banquet was in honor of visiting Yugoslav Prime Minister Dragoslav Bijedic.

Soviet Ambassador B. C Tolstikov, was followed from his hall by the envoys of Bulgaria, Hungary, Poland, Czechoslovakia, East Germany and the Mongolian People's Republic.

New Labels Ordered For Insulin

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Food and Drug Administration (FDA) Monday ordered new warning labels on insulin syringes to protect diabetics who mix two different types of the drug.

The labels warn patients not to change the order of mixing prescribed by a doctor, nor the bottle or brand of syringe or needle without first checking with a physician or pharmacist.

The FDA said the "dead space" in certain syringes, particularly in the syringe and needle hubs and the needle shaft, might lead to harmful insulin dosage errors.

"This 'dead space' volume becomes a potential source of error when two different types of insulin are drawn, measured and mixed in the same syringe," the FDA said.

The notice published in the Federal Register said the problems appeared to have been magnified by the recent introduction of U-100 syringes.

The FDA said there is no problem if a patient keeps using a stabilized dose of insulin, with the same technique and syringe.

"Yellow gunk" is passed to Sidney councillors

'Yellow Gunk' Coming from Wells

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Yellow "gunk" instead of drinkable water is being pumped from private wells west of Frankford, one homeowner went to know why the provincial environment ministry could find the source of the contamination.

McKinley White, spokesman for the homeowners, told Sidney Township council Monday repeated water tests by the province "have not come up with a solution."

But residents said they suspect that a Murray Township farmer, who, they said, has spread about 400 tons of corn waste on his fields, is the source of the contamination. All live in Sidney.

Mr. White said he suspects the waste has seeped into the water with the nine private wells tap. He, along with the Pitcher's Sideroad area homeowners, came to council Monday in search of help.

No direct action by council was taken but Reeve Gord Wilman said the township will apply pressure on environment ministry officials to find the pollutant source.

Quinte riding Liberal MPP Hugh O'Neil told the delegation he will await results of another set of water tests, expected this week, before any additional action is considered.

Mr. O'Neil attended Monday's council meeting as one in a series of visits by local bodies prior to moving to Queen's Park to assume his seat, won in Sept. 18 election.

Residents said their water has deteriorated over the past month to a state in which it has a yellowish tint, a bad taste and foul odor.

"We turn on the tap and see yellow gunk come out," said homeowner Adolf Olsansky.

One woman said she drives to Campbellford to her mother's home to take a bath. Clothes are stained and another woman said she is forced to drive to a laundromat to wash clothes.

Mrs. Olsansky is diabetic, said that if the contamination is indeed corn waste, drinking the water could kill her.

Sidney Reeve Wilman said the township could not help homeowners, partly because the wells are private, and partly because the source of the suspected pollutant is in Murray, its western municipal neighbor.

Three Charged in Thefts

Belleville provincial police have charged three young men with break, enter, and theft after a series of five, separate break-ins in the same Oak Hills area storage shed.

Charged with five counts of break, enter and theft are Cecil John Everson, 21, and Stephen Arthur Henwood, 18, both of no fixed address, Mark Edward Beaulieu, 21, has been charged with one count.

Police said the majority of stolen and tools and automobile parts from the shed, owned by Leslie Little of Stirling, was recovered.

The shed is located in a secluded wooded area in the Oak Hills. The thefts occurred between Sept. 23 and Oct. 2.

Council Defers Action On Sunday Store Hours

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

City council Monday steered clear of precipitate involvement in the current controversy over Sunday store openings.

But it has asked for a report on the issue from its city manager.

Before council was a letter from a major city church group which apparently entered the dispute last week.

The congregational board of Bridge St. United Church wrote of its decision calling for a boycott of the A and P store at the eastern Bellevile Plaza — following the store's decision to open on Sunday. Food City was also open last weekend.

A. D. Revill, board secretary, said the church organization hoped city councillors would take "appropriate action" — which "might well include the enactment of a regulatory bylaw."

At Mayor Ben Corke's suggestion council deferred any consideration of the letter for two weeks.

"We haven't really had time to go into the matter of a regulatory bylaw," said the mayor. "I'm suggesting this letter be referred to the next meeting of city council — at which time the city manager will be able to make a report."

In an interview later Mayor Corke said the congregational board's letter had been received only last Friday and he wanted councillors to have an opportunity to consider its request.

He said a municipality passing such an ordinance might also have to consider the situation in neighboring communities — although he believed council could legally pass such regulations.

Mayor Corke recalled the Belleville — along with other municipalities in Ontario — some time ago asked for provincial government a...

"What we're doing is hoping the provincial government will take some action," he said.

The letter came before council 24 hours after Reve. George K. Ward — at his congregational board's request — made an appeal from the pulpit to Bridge St. United Church members.

Rev. Ward said he "appeals to the congregation and urged them to boycott" all supermarkets presently "violating the Lord's Day Alliance Act" — until Sunday business policies are discontinued.

Council Briefs

Reps Finally Suggested

After two postponements, city council has decided on names to suggest as membership of a steering committee which will assist information of a district health council.

Council Monday, recommended four representatives from which the health ministry will choose one for the seven-member steering committee: Mayor Ben Corke, Ald. Meeks, Dr. D.A. Macintosh and Evan Woods, Loyalist College health programs instructor.

Bar Boat Hazard

More than 50 pleasure craft ran aground this year on an underwater bar near the mouth of the Moira River, city council was told Monday.

Council approved a suggestion by its Harbor Improvement Committee that The Belleville Harbor Commission ask federal transport authorities have the underwater threat clearly marked by buoys.

Seniors Get New Homes

Belleville's newest housing project for the elderly may start receiving its first tenants by Dec. 1.

That was the indication Monday from an Ontario Housing Corp. (OHC) official before city council approved its participation in the 83-unit building on Wellington Crese.

Council passed a bylaw entering the standard operating agreement with OHC. Provisions of such agreements include a 7.5 per cent share by a municipality in any annual operating losses.

Salt, Sand Costs Up

Tender prices accepted for winter road control by city council Monday night were:

Salt, $18.45 a ton—compared to $14.44 in 1974.

Sand, $2.25 a ton—compared to $1.80 last winter. Both suppliers are the same—Domtar Chemicals for salt; Charles Demill Construction, Stirling, for sand.

Debenture Issue Approved

A $170,000 debenture issue to fund new Belleville Utilities Commission services was approved by city council Monday.

Council gave two final readings to the bylaw allowing the proposals, council was told Monday, involve a 29-unit project on West Bridge St., east of Sidney St., and a proposed highrise development on the Lemoine St. area south of Bell Blvd.

Rezoning Requests Examined

Rezoning applications involving two proposed apartment projects have been sent by city council to its subordinate planning advisory committee and the Quinte Planning Board.

Centennial Company Delayed

City council has temporarily withheld its consent to the incorporation of the community committee involved with organizing the city's 1978 centennial program.

The group wants to incorporate as Belleville Centennial '78 Inc.—a move which would permit the committee to enter business agreements, sell such centennial-oriented literature and souvenirs.

Ald. George Zegouras questioned why the incorporation was necessary in the first place. He suggested council not make a decision for two weeks.

End of Whistling Costly

Reducing train whistling along the Canadian Pacific track in west Belleville would cost an initial $40,000.

That's the outlay needed to install warning systems at two crossings — Mary and Sidney streets.

Belleville would have to pay $5,000 of that — plus 50 per cent of annual maintenance, city manager Wilbur Purcell reported to city council Monday.

Its summary followed inquiries with the CPR following complaints about the noise City council took no action, merely receiving Mr. Purcell's report.

No Permit, Builder Forced to Halt Work

An apartment development — started without a building permit — remains halted while city council debates the problem it poses.

The situation was brought to council two weeks ago by developer Maurice H. Rollins Construction Ltd.

The Rollins development called for two 11-plex units on the west side of Elgin St. Foundation work was started when it was discovered the rear yards were approximately 19 feet short of the 40 feet required by zoning regulations.

The developer sought a minor variance — and council followed standard procedure by leaving the request to its committee of adjustment.

Mean time, the committee got a report from Quinte Planning Board (QPB) officials.

The QPB said reason for the variance request was due to a stop-work order because the developer failed to first obtain a building permit. A permit, said the report, hadn't been issued primarily because of the reduced rear yards.

This, said the QPB, poses an "interesting" legal question: Could the committee alter zoning requirements to allow a building permit to be issued?

Anyway, said the QPB, a 10-foot deviation from the zoning bylaw could "hardly be considered a minor variance."

It recommended the application for minor variance be denied.

The committee sent the findings back to city council.

Ald. George Zegouras wonderd aloud to have the whole issue tabled for two weeks — and the committee informed to do likewise.

Firearm Discharged

A 26-year-old Belleville man has been remanded to Oct. 30 for trial on a charge of dangerous use of a firearm following his appearance in provincial court here Monday.

Cpl. Wayne Clark and Constable Douglas Crosbie identified the man as Lynn Douglas Stratton of 299 MacDonald Ave. He was arrested early Sunday and released later that day on a promise to appear.

Chief Crosbie said police were called to a Belleville residence at 4:45 a.m. Sunday on an initial disturbance report.

But upon arrival, officers learned that a man sitting in his living room had discharged a 22-calibre rifle into his kitchen, he said.

The incident involved a domestic dispute, Chief Crosbie said. No one was injured.

Rotary Need

Geoff King (right) Rotary Club district governor meets with Belleville club president Neil Britton. Mr. King was guest speaker at a club meeting Monday. He spoke about the international and community need for rotary. Mr. King is governor of an area from Belleville to Port Credit, including Toronto.

Road Subsidies Cut Brings City Protest

City hall is having its problems too, over provincial government subsidies for road programs.

Councillors Monday petitioned the transportation and communications ministry to reconsider a cut in support funds that could conceivably amount to almost $545,000.

Council also discovered the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB) reversed a procedure followed for years by the city and revoked a $104,000 debenture to cover a $104,000 overexpenditure on the West Dundas St. reconstruction project.

The roads subsidy problem arose after council accepted the ministry's initial subsidy allocations earlier this year of $681,000 for construction and maintenance programs, reported city manager Wilbur Purcell.

At that time council also authorized an application for a supplementary allocation of $127,600. But the ministry only approved $25,000. Reduction to city hall's attempts for more supplementary funds "was not encouraging," said Mr. Purcell.

However, the balance of subsidy sought will receive consideration — should provincial budget commitments change.

Forecast costs of city road programs this year will be eligible for $1,260,900 in subsidies — an amount which exceeds the province's overall allocation by $544,900. This could be reduced if property purchases not yet under option are not completed.

The OMB denial of the debenture needed to meet the over cost on West Dundas surprised city officials.

The extra $104,000 was caused by the additional power work and related engineering and work costs. The need for extra was discovered after the contract award.

The city officials, however found a solution to the dilemma.

Mr. Morrell can redistribute costs to be recovered from various other projects to reduce the bill on the West Dundas project.

The over expenditure can be sliced to about $35,000 — and amount which could be allocated from the city's standing road renewal reserve fund, submitted Mr. Purcell.

Council concurred.

Parents Form CHILD To Meet Student Needs

Parents at Queen Victoria Public School are fed up with the old home and school concept.

And to prove their point a group of parents here have formed a new association called CHILD which stands for Citizens Helping Individual Learning Development.

"It's a completely new approach to parent involvement," says Ald. Adelle a CHILD organizer, who said he feels the former home and school association was merely a social gathering. Mr. Lidde's wife Cherie is president of the new group.

CHILD will consist of every parent at the school and will also include teachers and Clare Bupnow and two teacher representatives.

Mr. Liddle said he believes there are some factors facing students today which can't be ignored. He said almost one-third of the student population at Queen Victoria come from single-parent families.

"This is a problem which can't be overlooked and one which affects the learning process," said Mr. Liddle. "parents should be aware of the problems encountered."

Mr. Liddle said the new group will train its members to work in and out of the school. He said it's possible they may become teacher aides or para-professionals.

Mr. Liddle cited an example where parents could become involved in making examinations and relieve this duty from the teacher who could then spend more time with individual students.

Mall Expansion Approved

Belleville's newest major commercial development has received city hall sanction.

City Council Monday night approved the key requirement switching in the procedural mechanism permitting expansion of the northend Quinte Mall to roll toward reality.

It endorsed the recommendation of its subordinate planning advisory committee for rezoning land around the Mall site required for the big project.

The present mall covers 223,000 square feet in retail space. The expansion will add another 125,000.

Johnston Faces Second Charge

No action was taken at a bail hearing here Monday on a charge of rape against Floyd Johnston 25, of 26 Centre St. in Belleville in connection with an attack on a 31-year-old city woman here late Saturday.

However, Johnston was remanded in custody on an additional charge of assault causing bodily harm, in connection with the same incident, a charge which was not originally released by city police.

The charges resulted after the woman was taken from the front of 28 Centre St. James St. to the rear of 54 Station St. where the offence occured.

Firemen Extinguish Blaze

Firemen extinguished a blaze in a two-storey building on Bleecker St. Monday afternoon. The cause of the blaze was not known. Firemen were called to the scene at 1:45 p.m. and left at 2:30 p.m.

Action Urged

Ray Davidson went back to city council again Monday to urge action on legal pedestrian crosswalks. It was his second time at city hall on the issue in two weeks. Council voted to extend the life of a committee investigating the issue.

Gas Leak Forces Evacuation of Several Homes

A city contractor "neglected" to tell the gas company an old curb was being ripped up at Ann and Victoria Sts. and a service line was ruptured, Monday, forcing police to close off Victoria St. and evacuate several homes.

Northern and Central Gas Corp. Ld. supervisor Jack Pearce said the contractor departed from normal practice in not telling his company work was planned where gas lines were located.

"No line location was done," said Mr. Pearce. "We didn't know about it."

The contractor had "neglected" to inform the gas company that work was being done, he said.

A back-hoe opened a 4-inch service line to an individual home shortly after 11 a.m. Monday as it worked to tear up old curbs on the northeast corner of Ann St. New curbs are planned.

The gas company closed the ruptured line within five minutes of receiving the call.

Mr. Pearce said no danger of explosion existed. The gas did not collect in a pocket, since the ditch was open and the gas, lighter than air, was able to dissipate.

The supervisor said the odor of the gas and the loud hissing accompanying the escape of gas made the line-break immediately noticeable by workers.

Service to individual homes is supplied from a two-inch gas line that is located beneath the boulevard on the east side of Ann St.

Northern workers repaired the ruptured line Monday afternoon as well as placing markers to indicate its location along Ann St.

Prospecting?

Northern and Central Gas Corp. Ltd. employee Jeff Mahafy was not prospecting for gas Monday. Instead, he was using a tracing device and assisting gas company serviceman to locate a line at Victoria and Ann street after a contractor ruptured a gas line. The contractor was ripping up old curbs prior to the installation of new curbs.

Anderson Will Take One Game At a Time

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Cincinnati Reds can finish the third title of the decade in baseball's National League tonight and take another step toward the World Series triumph that has eluded them for 35 years.

"World Series? I'll think about that if we get there," Reds' manager Sparky Anderson said as he awaited the third and perhaps last game with Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Reds, who'll pitch Gary Nolan against Pirate rookie John Candelaria, dominated two games in Cincinnati, 8-3 and 6-1.

They pounded the ball at a .346 clip, allowed just 13 Pirate hits, and stole 10 bases in 10 tries. Joe Morgan's four steals and the Reds' team total are already records for a league playoff.

The Pirates, league leaders in home runs, have yet to hit one in the playoffs. They're batting .203 as a team, and none of their pitchers has lasted more than four innings.

GARY NOLAN

"We expect that to change here," manager Danny Murtaugh said Monday from his rocking chair.

Cincinnati won its last World Series in 1940 under Bill McKechnie. That was seven years before Reds' catcher Johnny Bench was born.

"The series is the goal of every team, but there's no way we can look past the Pirates," said Bench, one of the few Reds without a hot bat. He has one hit so far in the playoffs.

The Reds lost in New York Yankees in the 1961 World Series, and they were disappointed by Baltimore Orioles in 1970 and Oakland A's in 1972.

"We've never gone into the playoffs with a team as good as this one," said Pete Rose of the Reds.

Murtaugh remained mum on whether he planned any lineup changes, including a shift from Manny Sanguillen to Duffy Dyer behind the plate in a bid to stop the Cincinnati running.

"Right now, I haven't made any decision on what I will do," said Murtaugh.

Morgan absolved Sanguillen and said it makes no difference to him who catches.

"We're stealing off their pitchers," Morgan said. "Win me, once I get that lead and take off, no catcher is going to throw me out."

"Cincinnati has stolen bases all year," said Sanguillen. "I am not embarassed. I just wish I had a cannon."

Candelaria, the Pirates' 21-year-old starting pitcher, was 8-6 in the regular season and 1-1 against Cincinnati. Cincinnati's Nolan was 15-8 and 3-1 against Pittsburgh after missing nearly all of two previous season because of injuries.

A's Will Pin Hopes On Holtzman's Arm

OAKLAND (AP) — For Oakland A's, whose three-year championship reign could end tonight, it's time to gamble.

"I might be really sharp, or I might not be able to throw the ball 60 feet," admitted Ken Holtzman, left-hander who lost the opener in baseball's American League playoffs in Boston and will be pitching against the Red Sox tonight with two days rest.

"The more I thought about it, the more I felt we just had to go with our best," said A's manager Alvin Dark, whose world champions are down 2-0 in the best-of-five series.

"If we lose now, there's no tomorrow," he added, piling out baseball's most worn-out postseason saying.

He chose 6-game winner Holtzman, knocked out in the seventh inning of Saturday's 7-1 loss at Boston over right-hander Dick Bosman, 11-6, who was the tentative third-game starter as of late Sunday.

Bosman's last start was 10 days ago and he made a brief relief appearance in the playoff opener. Holtzman faces Rick Wise, 19-12.

KEN HOLTZMAN

Boston manager Darrell Johnson watched his team go through a relaxed and restricted workout Monday at Oakland Coliseum while Dark wrestled with the A's pitching dilemma.

"We didn't know until four minutes before game time Sunday that Johnson said as his players stared catch and run in foul territory and the outfield. "So why should I worry 24 hours in advance?"

The infield remained covered to protect it from a light, steady rain. Neither team took batting practice and only a handful of As loosened up.

"They're favorites now; there's no doubt about that," said A's captain Sal Bando. "But I honestly feel we can win three in a row."

The weather forecast calls for the possibility of more rain today.

Holtzman pitched once with two days rest during the regular season, getting no decision in six innings of work May 3 against Chicago White Sox.

Dark and pitching coach Wes Stock decided on Holtzman as the A's five home from Boston on Sunday night. Then Dark conferred by telephone with owner Charles O. Finley, who doubles as the A's general manager, and the decision became official.

Holtzman was told when he arrived at the stadium Monday.

Bosman was clearly angry about losing the assignment but said: "I don't want to make a big thing out of it."

Cowboys Rope Detroit Lions

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Pontiac Stadium's air-inflated dome didn't spring any leaks, but quarterback Roger Staubach's shotgun offence and slingshot arm found some holes in Detroit Lions' defence as Dallas Cowboys stopped the Lions 36-10 in Monday night's National Football League game.

A near-capacity crowd of 79,794 gave the Cowboys resounding boos when they were introduced before the game, but the boos reverberated off the newly-raised glass-fibre roof of the plush $35.7 million stadium at the end of the game.

Detroit seemed helpless as Staubach turned a 10-9 third-quarter deficit into a runaway for Dallas.

Meanwhile, his defensive mates, led by 250-pound tackle Jethro Pugh, sacked quarterback Greg Landry so many times he almost got artificial grass stains on his pants.

The youth-infused "Cowboys ran their record to 3-0, giving them sole possession of first place in the Eastern Division of the National Conference.

Detroit now is 2-1 and second in the Central Division behind unbeaten Minnesota Vikings.

"I was impressed with the Lions," said Dallas coach Tom Landry, obviously trying to ease Detroit's pain. "They played us real close in the first half and, except for hitting a couple big plays, the game could have been much closer."

Baseball Says Goodbye

GLENALE, Calif. (AP)—Casey Stengel was buried Monday.

Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn "delivering the eulogy, said: "I think no one has a greater debt to Casey Stengel than baseball itself."

And Charles Dillon Stengel himself might have appreciated that special bleacher seats that had to be set up to accommodate his many old friends and admirers in church.

Stengel died a week ago and funeral services were held with notables of baseball among the friends attending.

Don Lafleu, the only man to pitch a perfect World Series game, said: "Playing under Stengel was the greatest time I've ever had . . . we would make it tough only on ourselves if we couldn't play for him. He definitely was an outstanding baseball man."

Larsen pitched his perfect game in the 1956 World Series, one of seven won by Stengel-managed New York Yankee clubs.

Stengel died at 85 and Kuhn, in his eulogy, said: "What a constitution God must have given him to let him live all of those 85 years. He was up and at 'em, Up half the night and at 'em the next day."

Stengel's wife Edna, was too ill to attend the service. She suffered a stroke several months ago and has been in hospital since then. They were married in 1954 and had made the Los Angeles suburb of Glendale their permanent home.

There was a letter from President Ford read at the funeral and there were floral bouquets in the shape of baseballs.

Stengel had his frequent disputes with umpires and even fell in mock deadfaints at some of their decisions.

Yet umpire Jocko Conlan, in the Hall of Fame along with Stengel and many of his players, said: "Some of the times he came rushing out, he said only 'I hope you boys are doing a good job.'"

Skaters Re-instated

Burka Is Back

WINNIPEG (CP) — Sylvia Burka, re-instated as a member of Canada's speedskating team, left for Europe Monday optimistic of her chances in the Olympic Games in Innsbruck, Austria.

Burka was officially re-instated Sunday by the Canadian Amateur Speedskating Association and she left Monday afternoon with five other Winnipeggers on the national team. They headed for the Netherlands to begin a four-month training and competition schedule leading to the Olympics which begin Feb. 4.

Andrew Barron of Edmonton and Gerard Casson of Ottawa were also re-instated.

Burka was suspended last January because of a clash of ideals with coach Jorrit Jorritsma and this summer largely packed her skates into the retirement box.

"I seriously contemplated quiting," Burka said in an interview in the boarding house blaze. "I was sick of training by myself and just said 'To hell with it.'"

She turned her interests to cycling but soon realized she had given too much years of her life to speedskating to surrender months before the Olympics.

After discussing the problem, Burka and Jorritsma, a native of Holland beginning his second year as Canadian coach, and Burka both agreed "to give a little" for the benefit of the team.

"I still don't agree with all his training ideas and he still doesn't agree with all my ideas," Burka said. "But it was a case of his adapting to us and us adapting to him."

The important thing, the 1[illegible] world junior record holder said, was that [illegible] on the team training under Jorritsma.

Burka said Canadian chances are good going to Innsbruck but their level of success depends on many uncontrollable conditions.

"So much depends on the weather, and the ice. It can change in a matter of minutes, especially at Innsbruck. . . .

Burka's best chance comes in the 1,500 metres, the race in which she finished 27th in the 1972 Games. Her best race then was the 500 metres but she fell and was disqualified.

The Innsbruck games will be her final chance at an Olympic medal and probably her best opportunity since she began chasing a medal seriously, and almost exclusively on her own, a decade ago.

"I cant see myself skating four more years," Burka said of her future after the Olympics. "But if I miss by only a little at Innsbruck, I may skate in the world championships next winter."

Short Training Camp A Problem for Huskies

It's a case of ready or not, the season opens Friday, for Frankford Huskies of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior C grouping.

Entering their third season in the seven-team league, Huskies cannot be described as fully prepared.

"We've only had three practices and one exhibition game heading into tonight's pre-season game in Bowmanville," explains second-year coach Charlie Drake of Trenton.

Team manager Brian Coxwell says it'd impossible to get ice time for games or practices.

Smaller centres, Frankford included, have not put ice in as yet and in larger communities like Belleville and Trenton, ice time is at a premium.

Problem is not Huskies had little trouble knocking off Bowmanville Eagles in their only game test to date. Playing at Trenton, last week, the Frankford squad scored an impressive 7-4 victory.

Tonight's rematch in Bowmanville will be Huskies' final tuneup prior to their official league opener, Friday, in Lindsay.

Huskies face the unenviable prospect of hitting the road for their first six league games. Ice won't be in the Frankford Arena until late this month or early November.

The home fans won't get a look at Huskies in Frankford until November 7 when Bowmanville will be the visitor. Before then, Drake's charges will have made visits to Lindsay (twice), Cobourg, Port Perry, Bowmanville and Port Hope.

With limited time to get a good look at each of the 42 hopefuls who turned out for tryouts with the club, coach Drake is concerned that in the rush to trim the squad, "we probably cut some good players".

With training camp facilities almost non existant, Drake prefers to remain noncommittal while appraising his club's potential, except to say, "we'll have a pretty fair club."

Final selections still have to be made but time is running out.

"We've got six goalies trying for places on the team and it has been tough finding the opportunity to get a look at all of them," offers Coxwell.

"Three of them got work in our one and only game to this point," he explains, "but that's hardly a true test."

The hard part comes now. We've cut to 26 players but intend to cut more.

Neither Drake nor Coxwell would comment over the fact the club faces that long stretch on the road before making a start at home.

Both men feel the home games will be welcome when they show up on the schedule but are also aware of the fact that the late start in their own arena could be beneficial at the gate.

It has been our experience in the past that support increases after Christmas as the schedule favors us in that respect," says Coxwell.

Drake and the team manager adds that renovations are still going on at Frankford Arena. Improvements will benefit spectators and teams will be able to use the hockey rooms in Frankford.

In the meantime, Huskies will be looking for smooth sledding in the rinks of the older league entries.

Grant Sage lifts the puck over Bel Con netminder Joe Miller in the third period of Monday night's Gas House Hockey League optener at the Memorial Arena. Sage's marker was the third in Chuckwagon's 4-1 victory over the flegling GHHL club. Chuckwagon tallied three times in the third frame to secure the win.

Chuckwagon Takes Over In Third to Record Win

Bel Con Engineering made every dial count Monday night as they opened the Gas House Hockey League season against Chuckwagon Foods. The new club in the local men's league had only one clear shot as Joe Scanlan let the opening 20 minutes of play, but Tim Bradshaw made sure it lit up the scoreboard.

That goal evened the score at 1-1 and that's how it remained for the first two periods of the Gas House season.

After that, a shell-shocked Joe Miller, in goal for Bel Con, could withstand no more and he gave way to Dave Chuckwagon goals in the final frame as the Caterers rolled to a 4-1 win.

In other action Monday night; Bayview Orchards and Rollins Lumber battled to a 3-3 tie and Belleville Sports blasted Constellation 6-0.

That goal evened the Chuckwagon attack with two goals while Steve Moore and Grant Sage tallied singles. A. R. Walker and Dwight Rathwell collected two assists apiece.

Wayne McGeachy, one of last season's top scorers, picked up where he left off as he potted two goals and assisted on the third to lead Rollins to the tie. Carm Milligan was the other scorer. Hugh Holmes collected two goals and Bill Minaker was one to second for Bayview's markers.

Only the name has changed for Bob's Sports. Last year they were known as Stanley Structures and behind the goaltending of Vern Whalen they overwhelmed opposition in all segments of their club thrashing the league champions.

Monday was no different than the whole of last season. Vern Whalen earned a shutout and six different players shared in the scoring. Ray Summers, Bob Wladyka, Wayne Storms, Russ and Bob Harrington and Damon Richardson each potted a goal. Frank Wiles collected three assists.

3 Senior Teams Unbeaten in East

By TOM GAVEY
Sports Writer

The East Division of the Bay of Quinte High School Soccer league seems to be a happy hunting ground for the Belleville delegation teams.

Both the Senior and Junior division teams are leading in the East. Neither Belleville has been defeated as yet.

In Eastern Division play last week for the Seniors, the BCI Warriors have 4-0 in a strong Quinte squad. The Quinte Saints have been undefeated this season, with Danny Ying potting three shutouts.

The Moira Maroons couldn't get going last week, as they were defeated by the Belleville Wanderers 5-0. Dave Archer pumped a hat trick in the BCI win, while Terry Sinclair and Doug Hoskins scored.

In one of the league's closer hook ups Madoc edged Napanee by a 12 score. The visitor put Madoc in fifth place, ahead of Nicholson Catholic College and Napanee.

Nicholson yet to post a win in Senior play, as the Moira "A" team defeated them 6-0 at Moira. Not only did NCC end up on the losing side, they also lost their top scorer and captain, Jim Bonnell, out with torn knee ligaments.

In Junior play, Napanee remains in the lead over Madoc which put them in third place in the Eastern division.

Nicholson defeated Moira 3-0 in their scheduled match, with Frank Skerl potting the winner.

As far as standings are concerned in the East, the senior division will have the first three teams undefeated. They are, the BCI Warriors, the Moira "A"s and the Quinte Saints. BCI leads with a one point margin on three wins, while Quinte and Moira both have two wins and a tie.

Coach Dave Handley is in his scheduled match, with BCI has a long way to go.

"We have played Moira or Quinte as yet, and they have concentrated upon" Handley commented.

Fourth place is sole possession of the Moira "B" team and Madoc has fifth. Without wins so far are Napanee and Nicholson.

The Junior division is also tight. "BCI "Red Devils" lead the Senior "A" team defeated them 6-0 at Moira. Not only did NCC end up on the losing side, they also lost their top scorer and captain, Jim Bonnell, out with torn knee ligaments.

Junior Trojans In High Gear

Moira Junior Trojans lost their first game of the Bay of Quinte Football League season, but since that time have more than avenged the defeat. Monday in Napanee, the Trojans walloped Napanee District 57-13.

The win was the third straight for Moira and leaves them tied with Centennial Secondary for second place. First is held down by Trenton Pilgrims with a perfect 3-0 mark.

Night behind the Trojans and the Chargers are Quinte Saints and Centre Hastings Centurions with 2-1 records. Bayside Red Devils are in sixth with one win and two losses and, with yesterday's loss, Napanee and Prince Edward Collegiate are tied in the cellar at 0-4.

Jeff Runciman keyed the Moira attack with three majors and a two point conversion. His colleague in the backfield, Jack Poulin, Clarence Brockema, drove for a pair of majors. Mike Hill, Trojans fullback, bulled his way into the end zone twice.

Defensive halfback Phil Hart scored one TD on a punt return and back up quarterback Mike Anglin added another. Punter, Mark Hearst, added a single.

Names of Napanee scorers were unavailable.

Jets and Nordiques in Thursday Opener

Youth Is WHA Plus Years Have

By JOHN SHORT
The Canadian Press

The future of the World Hockey Association is the future of the development of its young talent, says Gordie Howe of Houston Aeros, the oldest active player in pro hockey.

Speaking of prospects for the 1975-76 season which opens Thursday with Winnipeg Jets going to meet Quebec Nordiques, Howe said he was not heartily disappointed when the league signed few former National Hockey League players.

Minnesota Fighting Saints added a Soviet defenceman they picked up Dave Keon from Toronto Maple Leafs. Another former Leaf centre, Norm Ullman, heads Edmonton Oilers.

Howe made it clear he is not thinking just of rookies, although he mentioned John Yorio of Houston as a certain future star. Tonelli quit Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series last season to a distinguished career in the WHA professional contract.

Another former Marlboro, Mark Napier, has joined Toronto Toros, and Gord Roberts, 38-year-old whose signing by New England has led to threats when Chicago Black Hawks and Canada Hockey League, were also were named by Howe as future stars.

Young standouts who already have served their apprenticeship include Howe's son Mark, team-mates Mark and Marty, Frank Golubchuk of Cincinnati Stingers, Ron Chipperfield of Calgary Cowboys, Ron Grahame of Phoenix Roadrunners, Gary MacGregor of Denver Spurs and Mike Rogers of Edmonton.

Cincinnati, Calgary and Denver are new WHA centres this year. The Stingers are a new franchise, while the Cowboys are the transplanted Vancouver Blazers. Denver got its franchise when Chicago Wind folded.

The Stingers will play in the Eastern Division, while the Spurs move into the Western Division in place of Baltimore Blades, who were folded by the league. Calgary takes over Vancouver's place in the Canadian division.

The Canadian Division has several important changes. Clare Drake has been installed as coach of Edmonton. Bobby Kromm is behind the bench of Winnipeg Jets and former Nordiques Bob Guy is coaching Toronto.

Bobby Hull, will be rejoined on Winnipeg Jets' first line by Swedes Anders Hedberg and Ulf Nilsson. The Jets also have added defenceman Ted Green, to Winnipeg's roster, the same for Boston Bruins of the NHL, before jumping to the WHA with the Whalers.

Rookie defenceman Jerry Rollins from Winnipeg Clubs of the WCHL made a good impression on observers at the Toronto camp in Finland and Sweden. They join forwards Frank Mahovlich, Paul Henderson, Gerry Hart, Steve Carlson, Ron Ellis, Pentiti Pesalainen and defenceman Jim Dorey as keys to the Toros' hopes this season.

Quebec lost goaltender Serge Aubry to Cincinnati, but is solid with Richard Brodeur in goal. The defence will be anchored by J. C. Tremblay and Dale Hoganson with one forward who

'Sweeping' Pat A Landmark

NEW YORK (CP) — President Clarence Campbell says a new five-year collective agreement is a "real landmark" for the National Hockey League.

The owners of the 18 NHL teams and the National Hockey Association (NHLPA) announced Monday at a luncheon at the Madison Square Garden that all players now have the option of signing contracts for or without option clauses.

The players accepted the owners' rights to equalization or compensation from an NHL team that acquires the services of a player who has played out his option.

The joint announcement described the pact as "sweeping" and the first time in professional sports history that equalization has been recognized by the players and achieved through collective bargaining.

Alan Eagleson, executive director of the players' association, explained it took more than 13 months of hard bargaining before the agreement came into being. The owners let him do most of the talking.

The agreement is retroactive to Sept. 15 and ends Sept. 16, 1980.

The players also accepted the principle of compensation. Equalization was been recognized for five years on the understanding the agreement ends in the event of a merger between the NHL and World Hockey Association.

The player has the right after his option expires to go to any NHL club and obtain employment. He also has the right to jump to the WHA.

Earlier this spring, there was a chance the NHLPA would just SECURITY TIGHTENS MEXICO CITY (AP) — Security is reported to be tight at special villages where athletes will stay while competing in the seventh Pan-American Games. Mexicans officials want to avoid a repetition of the terrorist attack against Israeli athletes in the 1972 Olympic Games in Munich. Security is especially tight in the apartment buildings housing women athletes where female army guards are posted at the entrances.

COLES LEADS TENNIS PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Glynis Coles of Britain led off the $50,000 Phoenix women's professional tennis tournament Monday with an upset win over Betty Stove of The Netherlands, 6-4, 1-6, 7-5, in the first round. Lenita Bueno, the Brazilian who is making a comeback after a successful career in the late 1960's, was forced to go thrice before topping Ceci Martinez of San Francisco, 6-2, 4-6, 6-2.

Penguins Meet Caps As NHL Season Opens

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The National Hockey League launches its 59th season tonight with a four-game slate that includes Pittsburgh Penguins, one of the 1974-75 playoff teams and Washington Capitals, the league's newest team last year in league history.

The game at the Capital Centre in Landover, Md., is the only one scheduled tonight.

The schedule gods under wraps earned Wednesday with Chicago Black Hawks at New York Rangers, New York Islanders at Kansas City Scouts, California Seals at Atlanta Flames, Los Angeles Kings at Montreal Canadiens, St. Louis Blues at Detroit Red Wings and Vancouver Canucks at Minnesota North Stars.

In Monday's NHL exhibition games, Boston Bruins defeated Philadelphia Flyers 3-1 and Colorado Rockies lopped Vancouver Canucks 6-3.

In a World Hockey Association exhibition game, Phoenix Roadrunners edged San Diego Mariners 4-3.

Pittsburgh coach Mark Boileau said Monday he will start rookie goaltender Gordon Laxton. The Penguin's first draft choice, the 20-year-old Laxton averaged 2.31 goals over the exhibition season. In Saturday's 3-3 tie with the Islanders, Laxton was credited with 35 saves.

Boileau's decision to start Laxton means either Michel Dion, last year's goaltender, will be out of uniform tonight.

Meanwhile, Washington coach Milt Schmidt expressed nothing but optimism over his team's chances this season.

"It has got a very competitive camp," said Schmidt who was the third man behind the Canadiens last year. "The team has a very positive attitude."

Schmidt said his team will have to improve tremendously on last season's record. Washington allowed 446 goals last season on his way to an 8-47-5 mark, also a record.

The Capitals are banking on a year's experience and some new faces in key positions to drag them out of the NHL cellar.

They traded the first pick in this year's NHL draft to the Stanley Cup champion Philadelphia Flyers for Bill Clement, a three-year veterran with a powerful slap fastest, and Don McLean, a rookie defenceman.

On Monday, the Flyers announced they had lost forward Jerry Butler for a month with a broken bone in his foot suffered in practice.

A power-play goal by rookie Barry Smith gave the Bruins their lead with the Flyers, playing their fourth game in as many nights, Don Marcotte had the other Boston goal while Andre Dupont and Mel Bridgman made scored for Philadelphia.

Dave Hrechkosy scored the goals for the Rockies at Salt Lake City. Bob Stewart, George Pesut, Ron Ingram, Bob Stewart, Gary Holt were the other California scorers. Dennis Ver'vergaert, Mike Robitaille and Paulin Bordeleau scored for Vancouver.

An overtime goal by Michel Bergeron gave the Redskimmers their win at Tucson, Ariz. Other Phoenix scorers were Bob Paek, Gary Kurt and Pete McNamee. Andre Lacroix, Ken Baird and Jean-Paul Addison had San Diego goals.

Dave Cutler Is on Target

TORONTO (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos saw a good thing in Dave Cutler in that they haven't had enough thoughts since.

Cutler had an outstanding college career at Simon Fraser University, so outstanding that Green Bay Packers of the National Football League signed him to a contract and brought him to their training camp.

Edmonton also chose Cutler as their No. 1 Canadian college draft pick in 1969. As things turned out, Cutler was released by the Packers in July of that year and signed with Eskimos.

Last year, Cutler continued his dominance in Western Football Conference scoring, booting 34 field goals, 22 converts and 35 singles for 144 points.

This year, Cutler appears well on the way to breaking his previous high and has a commanding 37-point lead in the WFC scoring race.

With four games to play, league statistics released Monday show Cutler has booted 27 converts, 28 field goals and 32 singles for 125 points.

Cutler added another item to his growing list of accomplishments Sunday.

He booted three field goals in the Eskimos' 29-18 loss to Saskatchewan Roughriders to surpass Larry Robinson, who retired last year from Calgary Stampeders, in successful career field goals. Cutler broke the previous record of 171 with his first three-pointer of the day.

Kickers hold the next two spots in the scoring de by, a distant second is Cyril McPaul of Calgary, who has picked up 102 points. Third is Bernie Roth of Winnipeg Blue Bombers with 73 points.

League Helps Out

Swig Gets Seals

NEW YORK (CP) — The National Hockey League has provided $600,000 in working capital to help Mel Swig take the debt-ridden California Seals off its hands.

The league's owners provided the cash to help Swig purchase the franchise, which league president Clarence Campbell says claims has been operating in NHL $10,000 a day to keep in business.

After an NHL board of governors meeting here Monday Campbell announced:

"We leaned—the members limited partnership, which is our operating organization—provided $600,000 in working capital."

The governors received a report on the arrangements a 10-member group headed by Swig made to purchase the Oakland-based franchise, and Campbell said "all stations are go."

The Seals open the season in Atlanta against the Flames on Wednesday night.

"We have no problems that I am aware of," Campbell said in an interview.

The sale to Swig's group was announced last July 8. But the group subsequently had difficulty assembling the $1.5-million guarantee required by the league for the franchise.

At an NHL meeting last Thursday in Montreal, Swig's group posted a $100,000 bond with Campbell as evidence of good faith.

Up until the meeting on Thursday, they had the shorts on Campbell, Campbell explained. "If they hadn't come up with it, if there hadn't been the bond, I would have gone up with it, they wouldn't have operated.

"We would just have wound up the operation and that would have been it."

Campbell said NHL secretary James D. Cullen is going to Oakland at once to conclude the documentation with Swig's bank. When that has been done, he will take over the Seals.

The Seals have been moneyless since they joined the NHL in its first round of expansion in 1967 and have lost about $4.5-million to be paid off during a five-year period.

Swig already has received approval from San Francisco officials to build an 18,000-seat arena in that city in two years and to operate the Seals.

Campbell said both the governors and Swig believe the $600,000 working capital is needed to operate the franchise.

Drugs Can Treat Uric Acid Problem

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: As a youngster in Grade 3 I was quite ill with acidosis, a condition I'm not familiar with. I now have a high acid system. I am 40-years-old. Can you explain this? Also, what does "ketosis" mean?—Mrs. W.E.

I think you are confusing terms and perhaps conditions.

Let me try to explain.

Acidosis and ketosis mean the same thing—that the blood and other body fluids are less alkaline (more acid) than they should be. We usually think of diabetes when we use the term "ketosis." This stems from an excess burning of fats in the body, and it occurs in the diabetic, either because of an insufficient amount of insulin. It is common in juvenile diabetes.

Does this mean you had diabetes when you were in the third grade? No. Temporary acidosis is common in childhood. It can uncomplicated an infection in which there is fever and dehydration. But it is brought under control in such situations by feeding the child candy, sweetened fruit juices, and ample water. Of course the basic infection must be treated simultaneously.

You: use of the term "acid system," which you say you have, confuses the issue. You probably mean your stomach juices are more acid than they should be, resulting in digestive upset. This has nothing to do with the acidosis we have been talking about. Nor would it have anything to do with your acidosis as a youngster.

Acidosis (or ketosis, whichever phrase you like best) can be readily diagnosed by a dryness of the tongue and a fruity odor to the breath. To end your confusion, you probably should be tested for diabetes to settle the matter.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have had emphysema for quite a few years and am under a doctor's care for it. Of late, his medication does not seem to help me much. You wrote about a drug to dilate the bronchial passage and make phlegm thinner. This would be the key to my problem, making breathing difficult.

Could you make the name of this drug available to me? I want to mention it to my doctor. What is it? I am 76.—E.R.

No need to give you the trade name (there are many) or even a generic name. The type of drug is called a bronchodilator. Your physician would be able to advise you on them. They must be used carefully, especially in those with history of heart troubles. Mention it to him the next time you go in. This will not be news to him, but he may want to consider using them to help you over rough periods if you develop your difficulties.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been taking birth control pills for six years. Now I want to have a baby. I haven't had any effects from the Pill. Is there any length of time I must wait or can I produce a child now?—Mrs. G.H.

You can become pregnant at any time after discontinuing the Pill. But it can take a several months wait for some women. So don't be alarmed if there is such an interval. Normally, it should be no more than two or three months before ovulation returns to normal.

Win at Bridge

Sizing it up for safety play

By Oswald and James Jacoby

It doesn't require any trickery at all to go set at three notrump. All South has to do is to win the spades lead, cash dummy and the right after diamonds. East will show out. West will take his ace and clear the spades and there will be no way for South to gather in nine tricks.

It is bad luck to find all four diamonds in the West hand, but a careful declarer won't be hurt by this bad luck. He will look over dummy and see that he can "always score four diamond tricks unless West holds all four against him Four in the East hand will be no trouble at all since he can cash the 10 spot.

Therefore, the careful declarer will win the first spade in his own hand and lead a low diamond.

West will be between Scylla and Charybdis. If he goes right up with the ace of diamonds he will only have one diamond trick and South will make four diamonds; three hearts and two spades. If he ducks, dummy's queen will win. South will leave diamonds; to knock out the ace of clubs and make his game with three club tricks.

Ask the Jacobys

A Louisiana reader wants to know if there ever was a reward for being rid of trumps.

The answer to this one is that in "Bridge" the first game of the Whist family that allowed the trump suit to be played was given a small score in the honor table for "chicane" (notrumps) while "double chicane" (both partners void) was given double that bonus.

Con Artists Hit Halifax

HALIFAX (CP)—This city may suffer an influx of small-time con artists who make big business from selling secretaries fraudulent schemes or stealing wallets from receptionists pursues, the Halifax Better Business Bureau says.

Rob Asprey, president of the bureau, said con artists have a variety of schemes aimed at secretaries, and a few of them have been reported in the city recently.

Sometimes the con artist will take a worthless parcel to a business office during the lunch hour or when the boss is out, and say he was requested to bring the article to the office.

He then demands a fee either for the article or for services rendered. The amounts are usually an small—less than $25—that the secretary pays, only to find out later that she was conned.

Another scheme is for the con man to tell the receptionist he is waiting to see someone. He sits patiently until the receptionist leaves the office, then steals the wallet from her purse.

Some con artists sell the businessman on a service, such as installation of fluorescent lights, extract an advance payment and then disappear.

Others have hilked up to 200 businessmen at a time by selling advertising in non-existent publications.

Mr. Asprey said con artists are hard to catch because their schemes are so elaborately planned.

Also the amounts of money involved are usually so small that victims are apathetic about reporting the frauds, unaware that the same artist is probably already pulling another job.

Negatives Of Nessie

LONDON (CP) — A United States laboratory which handles pictures of Americans from space and this only one in the world to process negatives by computer, has sent negatives of photographs taken of the Loch Ness Monster by a Scottish school teacher. A slight Scottish mist veils the pictures and it is hoped the computer can clarify the shadowy shapes.

Dow Warns Organizers Olympic Roof May Be Fire Trap

TORONTO (CP) — Ron Hayes, product research specialist for Dow Chemical of Canada Ltd., says he wrote four letters to the director of a Montreal company before the roof of the 55-million Olympic Stadium in Montreal was completed to warn that some of the material used to build the dome was a potential fire hazard.

Mr. Hayes said in an interview Tuesday that he received no answer from Guy Lepinsier, director of Techniques SP, which was awarded a $2,238,000 contract to build the skylight roof.

Mr. Hayes said in an interview on Tuesday that the polyethylene foam—made by Dow Chemical and used as filling for the roofing panels—should be more effectively protected against fire.

"The foam now is protected only by a skin of acrylic plastic and is not fireproof, he said.

Mr. Lepinsier was not available for comment.

In September, the Quebec labor department withheld its approval of the panelling material pending completion of tests by the national research council. The results of the tests are expected by the end of October.

City officials said in September that the panels passed safety tests at the laboratory of the French company Sigma Plastics, whose Canadian subsidiary, Techniques SP, made the panels.

However, Dow Chemical advised against its use as a construction material because it had not been sufficiently tested.

A spokesman for the Montreal fire-prevention department said Tuesday that although the roof could burn, it would be difficult to ignite. He said the roof was 25 feet above the ground at its lowest point and that a capacity crowd could be evacuated in four minutes.

The acrylic panels are similar to roofing material which caught fire in 1973 at an exhibition hall on the Isle of Man, England, killing 16 people.

Mr. Valedman, next to the main Olympic bowl, is scheduled to be used for cycling, judo and gymnastics.

Displays Fire Up Quinte Mall

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Coloring books, textbook covers, literature on fire hazards and escape routes from homes, drawings and an equipment display highlight Belleville fire fighters' fire prevention booth at the Quinte Mall this week which is fire prevention week.

"We're here for people to ask questions," said Reg Christopher, fire prevention officer. "That's really what we want. The more people who ask questions then we know they're interested.

There are free drawn on fire extinguishers and first aid kits, literature on fire hazards around the home and how to plan your escape out of your home if you do have a fire, textbook covers for students and "Color Me Fire" coloring books for children.

The display includes breathing apparatus, asbestos suits and a gas exploometer to check for leaks.

Deputy Fire Chief Bob Emerson emphasized one film entitled High Dilemma, which he said is important for anyone living in high-rise apartments.

He said the film shows high-rise fires and why firemen recommend sprinklers and fire escape routes in such buildings. He added it is actually a fire department personnel training film.

"If it doesn't happen to be on when you're going by, then just ask the firemen and they'll show it," he said.

Congress Will Limit Middle East Involvement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The congressional resolution approving assignment of United States monitors in the Sinai also includes two provisions designed to limit the U.S. military involvement in the Middle East.

The resolution, expected to be approved by the House of Representatives and the Senate this week, specifies that congressional approval of the monitors "does not signify approval of the Congress of any other agreement, understanding or commitment made by the executive branch."

It also would require the monitors to be withdrawn immediately if new hostilities occur between Israel and Egypt or if Congress determines there to be in peril. The monitors would operate surveillance stations in the Sinai to watch for any violations of the Egyptian-Israeli truce.

Treasures Now Being Examined

MONTREAL (CP) — Federal revenue department officials have begun examining the contents of a 50-crate shipment believed to contain priceless historic treasures, a customs spokesman said Tuesday.

The inspection began after Federal Court Judge Jean Eudo Dubé issued an order Tuesday placing the shipment in the hands of the revenue department

Lawyer Bernard Mergler and McGill University Prof. Sam Noumoff, representing the Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG) of South Vietnam filed a petition in Federal Court on Monday challenging the right of a Vietnamese immigrant living here to receive the shipment.

The petition said the shipment might contain art treasures and historical documents which members and supporters of the Thieu regime shipped out of the country before the South Vietnamese government fell last spring.

In fact, the president stopped at each of the three spots listed on the plan.

OMA Urges Its Doctors To Withdraw from OHIP

TORONTO (CP) — The president of the Ontario Medical Association (OMA) has urged doctors to withdraw from the Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP) to strengthen the association's bargaining position in talks with the government about fee increases.

Dr. Donald F. MacNeill of Welland said Tuesday at a convention of the College of Family Physicians of Canada that doctors are "very, very concerned and they're prepared to take any action the OMA feels is in their best interests."

He said he wants to see doctors sending their resignations to OHIP. "This recommendation is consistent with OMA policy, he said, because the association has always urged its members to deal directly with patients.

At a closed meeting, between 300 and 400 doctors discussed the options open to them in their drive for a fee increase of between 25 and 50 per cent.

Dr. F. G. Adderley of Toronto, Ontario chapter president, said 90 per cent of doctors at the meeting indicated they would opt out as a last resort if no satisfactory settlement was reached with the government.

About 30 per cent said they would withdraw all but emergency services if the government took action months then back to OHIP," he added.

About 5,200 of Ontario's 12,000 practising doctors bill OHIP for all their patients and accept 90 per cent of the OMA fee schedule as payment in full.

Doctors who bill patients may charge 100 per cent of the OMA fee or above the fee as long as patients are told before billing that the doctor charges more.

Dr. MacNeill said doctor's response to quit OHIP if no satisfactory agreement is reached is significant because general practitioners have been leads in the past to bill patients because of the "complications of billing."

Ontario doctors are unlikely to go on strike solely for money, he added, and "withdrawal of services would only be considered as an extreme last resort."

However, Dr. MacNeill said if the provincial government decided to enact legislation which would force doctors into OHIP, "this would be an infringement on our civil rights and on our freedom to practise our profession."

The government would be reluctant to take such a step, Dr. MacNeill said. But if it did, the move would "impinge on the quality of patient care in Ontario in the future.

"I think we as a free profession — doctors — also be allowed freedom to set our own fee structure within a responsible area."

Bricklan Takes Plight To Ottawa

TORONTO (CP) — Malcolm Bricklin said Tuesday he hopes to visit Ottawa and Saint John, N.B., by the end of the week to ask the federal and New Brunswick governments to provide $15 million for Bricklin Canada Ltd., his proposed sports car firm.

However, the Bricklin chairman said at a news conference that he was not prepared to turn put in private hands. Private investors in the United States are willing to invest $10 million in the Saint John company provided the governments participate financially but do not interfere in the company's operations, he said.

Bricklin Canada was placed into receivership and its 700 workers laid off Sept. 26 after it defaulted on repayment of $7 million to Royal Trust.

The New Brunswick government, which controls 67 per cent of the firm, already has invested $8 million.

Mr. Bricklin said that under his plan, the agreement with the non-government firm would changed to reduce the provincial government's share to 33 and give control to private investors. Bankruptcy proceedings in government would be required to convert its equity the money it has provided to bank.

Shortly after the firm was placed into receivership, George Thompson Jr., of the U.S. parent company and distribution arm of Bricklin, filed for reorganization under U.S. federal bankruptcy laws.

Spanish Terrorists Strike Police Station

MADRID (AP) — Spanish terrorists attacked a Barcelona police headquarters early today, leading to a gunbattle in which police killed three civilians and two of their own officers, police said.

Two other persons, including one policeman, were seriously wounded.

The attack left eight policemen and three civilians dead in seven days of political violence in Spain, plunged into crisis at home and abroad by the executions of five young terrorists Sept. 27.

Since the beginning of the year, 19 policemen have been killed as a result of political violence in Spain, including those who died today.

Police said the latest attack, in the working-class district of La Vereneda came at 1 a.m. (6 p.m. EDT Tuesday) as a group of men drove past the barracks firing with sub-machine guns.

Police guards, untouched by the bullets, returned fire and in terror stricken Seat car, killing a couple and their 22-year-old son and seriously wounding a fourth person in their car.

Continuing to fire, police then all three of their colleagues returning from a night call. Two died, and a third was seriously wounded, police said.

Barcelona is a stronghold of the urban guerrilla organization FRAP—the Patriotic Revolutionary Anti-Fascist Front—which lost three militants to firing squads Sept. 27. The three had been convicted of killing policemen.

Four days after the executions, FRAP commandos were blamed for killing three policemen in Madrid during celebrations marking the 36th anniversary of Gen. Francisco Franco's rise to power in Spain.

Two Basque separatists, also convicted of killing policemen were executed in addition to the three FRAP militants Sept. 27.

Sunday, terrorists in the northern Basque country blew three civil guards by blowing up their jeep in apparent retaliation for the executions of the five terrorists. Hours later, guards killed the owner of a Basque bar.

Labor Takes New Stand and Supports United Way Drive

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The Quinte District Labor Council has given its full blessings to the upcoming United Way campaign.

Last year the labor group raised strong opposition to some facets of the campaign — particularly in the areas of fund allocation.

Council president Doug Sword urged members to "support in every possible way" the workings of the United Way campaign this fall.

The campaign acts as a financial appeal umbrella for 15 agencies which serve the city and surrounding district. This year organizers hope to raise $146,000.

Because some agencies draw funds from both the campaign and from city tax coffers, the labor council last year charged "double dipping" into the taxpayers' pockets should not be allowed.

A threatened boycott never materialized but labor and campaign organizers feel that the threat hurt the success of last year's fund raising exercise.

Explaining labor's vote of support, Mr. Sword said the United Community Services (UCS) has tried to make modifications.

He said labor has a stronger voice on the UCS which administers the fund, and financial controls are being increased on the agencies.

"Particularly, the UCS has begun program budgeting where it can be ensured there will be meaningful programs which are not duplications," said Mr. Sword.

As a tangible sign of support,

Ben Wicks

'May I recommend a quart of 30 weight vintage Saudi Arabian?'

Wendell Reynolds of the labor council, will handle the soliciting of contributions from the labor sector.

Mr. Sword said it is difficult to say in dollars and cents how labor hurt the campaign last year "but we are trying to give it full support this year."

The 15 agencies in the organization deserve the help of the community," he said. "It's a very important program."

"I am going to give it my full moral, and financial support and I urge all members of the labor movement to do the same," said Mr. Sword. "If labor gives its support, the $146,000-goal should be realized.

UCS executive director Gord Mullin said today "certainly we're very pleased to have labor's support. It will be of great benefit to the community at large."

Beirut Truce Breaks Down

BEIRUT (AP) — The ceasefire between Lebanese Christian and Moslem factions broke down today as heavy fighting raged in two areas of Beirut. One mortar round exploded near a hospital in a Moslem district, wearing several dead and wounded, witnesses said.

Five-day holidays broken only by scattered incidents and an unsuccessful hijack attempt by Arab terrorists at Beirut airport ended at 6 a.m. (EDT) today as Moslem and Christian gunmen started pounding away at each other with automatic weapons and mortars.

The fighting is mainly over the Palestinian presence in Lebanon's Moslem business quarter, the guerrillas, the Christians do not.

The sound of explosions shook the battered Lebanese capital as it prepared to go back to work after the three-day Al Fitr holiday, ending a month of fasting for Moslems.

Eye-witnesses radio said reads leading into the capital through northern and eastern suburbs, the areas of intense firing, were closed.

Buildings were reported burning in the northern suburb of Chiyah. Ambulances were seen racing through the streets in several areas.

Judge Dismisses Phone Case Here as Frivolous

BY ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Dennis Gordon, 55, of 81 Highland Ave. in Belleville, who took Bell Canada to small claims court here Tuesday seeking $5 per day storage costs on two out-of-service phones, had his case dismissed by Judge Russell Honey.

During an interview Mr. Gordon said he is gathering more information to verify his defence and intends appealing the court decision.

Mr. Gordon had asked for $120 for 24 days during which the phones were in his home since his phone service was cut off for non-payment of the bill when he was on holidays and Bell Canada refused to reconnect them.

In dismissing the case, Judge Honey called it a "vexatious and frivolous action." He said it was "ludicrous unbelievable" that Belleville company manager George Thompson found it necessary to finally remove the phones himself on a Saturday morning.

Mr. Gordon had claimed that no one from the phone company had come to his home to disconnect the phones.

However, a private Belleville business man said the disconnects phones for Bell Canada under court here Tuesday seeking $5 per day storage costs on two out-of-service phones, had his case dismissed by Judge Russell Honey.

During an interview Mr. Gordon said he is gathering more information to verify his defence and intends appealing the court decision.

Mr. Gordon produced documents showing he had conducted retail transactions in Sebringville and Guelph on the phone in question during the hearing of the case.

Mr. Gordon talked to the crown attorney Glen Deline and he has told me there may be some renewed action," said Mr. Gordon.

Mr. Gordon is seeking written verification that he was out of town and could not have been contacted in Belleville.

Asked why he didn't produce this information during the case, he said "I didn't take the information with me because I thought it was a clear cut case."

Portugal's Military Alert Called Off

LISBON (AP) — An alert by all military units in northern Portugal was called off today and senior officers said they were trying to convince a mutinous artillery regiment in Oporto "with words, that they are non-violent."

The 650 heavily armed mutineers at the Serra do Pilar regiment ran a red banner up a flagpole Tuesday and demanded dismissal of the region's new military commander, Gen. Antonio Pires Veloso, Oporto, Portugal's second-largest city, is 175 miles north of the capital.

They also demanded an end to "they called purges of the barracks and the reopening of a leftist-dominated military officer training centre which was closed, last Saturday on Veloso's orders.

A spokesman at regional military headquarters said the general alert for the region was called off as part of an effort to reduce tension.

"We are trying to convince them, with words, that they are misguided and are being used as part of a political manoeuvre," he said, adding it may take a week or two to get a peaceful solution.

The spokesman said 500 soldiers from the regiment were taking part in the mutiny, plus 150 soldiers from other units inside the encampment. He said another 150 officers and men in the regiment were remaining loyal to the government.

Veloso first had threatened to bomb the regiment, encamped on a hill just across the deep Douro River gorge from Oporto, but later backed off and ordered the strict military alert.

Brief Requests Funding For New Trenton Marina

TRENTON — Town council has prepared a brief for presentation to the Canada Ontario Rideau Trent Severn (CORTS) committee asking for funding to develop the proposed Centennial Park marina.

The brief, which will be formally presented to the regional meeting of CORTS, in Belleville Oct. 9, asks the committee to consider Trenton as a prime area for the location and development of a service centre for waterway traffic, based on its unique position at the gateway to the Trent system.

CORTS is responsible for making recommendations for the co-ordination of development along the 425-mile land and water corridor between Ottawa and the Georgian Bay.

The brief explains that Trenton cannot undertake a project of this magnitude and asks that the committee provide the municipality with the financial assistance needed to build the marina.

The project will fill the essential need for marina facilities of the many boaters who use the bay of Quinte and the Trent Canal system.

Trenton has been soliciting funds for the establishment of the marina since 1967 from both the provincial and federal government and has recently applied for a $96,000 grant under the waterfront improvement program sponsored by the provincial government.

The Centennial Park marina will have water, sewer and electrical facilities a boat launching ramp and parking areas.

Ministry of natural resources officials have said allocations of grants under the improvements program should begin in October.

Authority May Expropriate Needed Land

FRANKFORD — The Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority will be moving for expropriation of the remaining unbought properties in the Trenton Green Belt, Phase II, plan, Bryan Boyce, resources manager for the agency, said Tuesday.

In a meeting of the last advisory board, he said the approiser was instructed to update all the offers on the remaining properties in Phase II "not to ensure the new figures will stand the test of the courts."

There are eight properties the authority still does not own in the Front St. strip of land and some are already moving into litigation. The value of the entire strip is $1.13 million with the remaining land to be purchased worth about $700,000, Mr. Boyce said.

Picton-Hallowell Study Poor Say Councillors

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — The studies compiled for a report on the Picton-Hallowell Urban Area contain "mistake after mistake" says Picton town councillor Russell Alexander, who termed the plan "a pretty poor piece of work."

When a report from the Prince Edward County planning board was read during a council session this week it was noted a special meeting will be held tonight to discuss the Picton-Hallowell urban area study.

Councillor Alexander said that Prince Edward County council paid $16,000 for the report with the town of Picton contributing 20 per cent of this amount.

"I could no more move to have it adopted than I could fly an airplane," he asserted.

"I, too, am a little disturbed by the report. There is nothing stupendous about it," commented Picton reeve Larry Richardson.

"To me, it's a bunch of garbage," said councillor Norman March.

"I read it twice and I don't see what it was even printed for," he added.

The report was received and filed by council after a brief discussion of its contents.

Reeve Richardson urged members of council to attend tonight's public meeting where the report will be presented for review.

"The whole thing deserves a thrashing out. It has been dragged on ad infinitum," he observed.

Fuel Oil Tender Sparks Debate Among Council

PICTON — Deputy-reeve Richard Byers this week called for a recorded vote of council to accept a report of the public works committee because he said acceptance of a fuel tender was "just quite according to Hoyle." The report was adopted, however, with deputy-reeve Byers calling the only nay vote.

The tender submitted by Hepburn Brothers Ltd. offered heating oil at a quoted price of 33.5 cents per gallon and was the second lightest of four bids.

Mr. Byers objected to acceptance of the public works report because the public works committee based its decision on fuel tenders partially on a service factor.

He said that service was not mentioned in the advertisement for tenders and suggested that the committee re-tender stating that service would be considered with the bid.

Chairman of the public works committee councillor Russell Alexander said the tender by Hepburn Brothers was accepted because the company is a taxpayer in Picton. It is located in town for prompt service in inclement weather and because it has a serviceman.

Mr. Byers replied that out-of-town bidders should not be excluded just because they are out-of-town.

Other bidders for the heating oil supply were Murphy Oil Company at 32 cents per gallon, Gulf Oil at 34 cents and Petrofina Canada Ltd. at 33 cents.

All members of council except councillor Charles Hepburn voted on the question of adoption of the report. Councillor Hepburn abstained as he is associated with Hepburn Brothers Ltd.

Study Costs Under Review

TRENTON — Council has approached an independent consultant to discuss the price for the preparation of a study to determine whether Trenton should join Northumberland or Hastings County or remain a separated town, said Aubry Sharp, town clerk.

Mr. Sharp, in an interview, Tuesday, said the decision to consider the study was based on council's feelings that Northumberland might extend an invitation for Trenton to join the county when its own task force has completed its current study.

Council felt if they did not have an independent study to rely on when discussing the matter it would not be a good position to decide, he said.

Rumor Abroad That Dief Could Be Awaiting Conservative Leadership Draft

By RICHARD JACKSON

Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — An interesting memo was atop Keith Martin's Parliament Hill office desk the other morning when he flew in from Saskatoon.

Keith Martin, executive assistant — has been for five years — and long-time disciple of former Conservative Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, was coming in from Saskatchewan after still another birthday bash for The Chief.

The memo, from his secretary Beryl Caron, read:

"Peter Warren called this morning, saying he was a friend of Mr. Diefenbaker's (John he called him) and wanting an immediate interview for airing in 10 minutes on his hot-line show over CJOB-Winnipeg (this was before 8.30 a.m.).

"He said he was going on the air with a story that Mr. Diefenbaker was running for the Conservative leadership and that he had quotes to back it up.

"I called Mr. Diefenbaker at home immediately. He said he was unable to do the interview for Mr. Warren because of the pressure of getting out his memoirs, and he asked me to give Mr. Warren the following message clearly, which I did at once:

"'You have no basis for making such a statement and I'm surprised that you do not put it on the air because it is without foundation.'

"But Mr. Warren put it on anyway.

"Even despite Dief's disavowal, Peter Warren might not be far off the mark.

"For The Chief, you will notice, was careful — he is never careless with words — not to deny unequivocally that he could be a candidate. In fact, THE candidate.

He simply said there was "no foundation" or "no basis" for making the statement that he was running.

Not then. Not at that moment on that particular day. And for running, that is.

But at another time on another day in other circumstances before the Conservative leadership convention in February?

The Chief, in the traditional "no foundation" disclaimer, was careful, you will notice, not to shut the door on the future.

But he is 80, you say.

That he is, and Canadians all across the land have been rejoicing in his birthday celebrations, held in the form of a movable feast between Ottawa's Parliament Hill and Saskatchewan's Saskatoon and Melville.

Listen to Keith Martin former executive secretary to the Manitoba Conservative Association and Dief's right-hand man.

Prejudiced? Of course he is. He is close to the man. Closer than anyone except perhaps The Chief's wife, Olive. Sees him daily, talks to him a dozen times a day.

If anybody knows The Chief — the real man not out on public view, but in the privacy of his offices in Ottawa and his delight and dismay, or triumph and disaster — it is he is Keith Martin.

And Keith Martin says, "Look at him. He stands as straight and firm now at 80 as he did when he first came to Parliament 35 years ago."

He looks solid — a man you can lean on — a man you can count on — a man who has held to his principles through victory and defeat.

"Who is there like him? Where is a Liberal or a Conservative or a New Democrat, save perhaps Stanley Knowles, who you know, deep down in your heart, that no matter what, will remain steadfast?"

Keith Martin says, "A great many Conservative riding associations, organized nonpartisan groups, and of course hundreds, and I mean many hundreds of Liberals and Conservatives — some Liberals, too — have been writing and personally petitioning him to go again."

Will he?

Keith Martin says he doesn't know.

But he does know that the people who are calling him "the once-more-into-the-breach-John" pressure on The Chief sense that he is the one man the country, in the present social and economic turmoil, can hold on to with some sense of security.

"They know at 80 he can't last forever. But they know, too, that if he was given the Conservative leadership he could win the next election.

"And most important of all, they know that at 80 he has nothing to lose politically and would be in a position to say and do the things — unpopular as they might be for the passing moment — to put the country back on a firm economic road."

The key phrase here is "if he is given the leadership." For he won't run for it. They can have The Chief only through an irresistible national draft — and if they get him, they could have the next election.

The Menace of Speed

Speed is a major factor in accidents. Of that, there is no doubt.

And speed could have killed — or at least injured — a young motorcyclist on Pinnacle Street the other day.

The youth was belting along when a truck made a slow and wide turn onto Pinnacle from the Market square and it is fair to say that if there had been a collision the blame could have been spread equally. In any event, the motorcyclist came to a screeching halt, while the truck nosed ahead of him. At this point, the youth, instead of maintaining station as it were, and perhaps making a mental note to proceed more slowly in future, compounded the situation by weaving across the truck's rear and passing on the left.

A woman who saw the incident said she was trying to dissuade her own son from acquiring a motorbike and complained further about the manners of youngsters on ordinary bikes. She noted that to say anything often meets with a rude retort.

Shape up bikers and how about motorcyclists slowing down and cutting out those show-off switches around cars and from one lane to another.

"Well, at least the Tory leadership committee isn't pestering you anymore . . ."

Picket Line Image

At a table in a local fast-service steak house sits a young woman with auburn hair and attired in a blouse and brown slacks. Will her are five young men, in denim mostly, bearded and their hair long.

Indistinguishable from many of their generation, save perhaps for their accent and admirable bearing — contemporary yes, but well-groomed too, the men like young Vikings. We took them to be Dutch and they talked animatedly, in their own language, one of them in particular as he puffed on a pipe and the others

Art Work

Morristown is a quiet little community across the river from Brockville.

But it is not so quiet that students there are not without a lot of "go" and imagination.

The youngsters have painted the community's fire hydrants to reflect early colonial times. The fireplugs have taken on new life, so to speak; where before there were just little old hydrants that no one gave a second glance, there now are colorful Minutemen, Continental troops and kids in tricorne hats, as well as the local fire chief and police chief, Uncle Sam and Betsy Ross.

If nobody paid Morristown much attention before, a these transformed hydrants should make it a late-season tourist attraction. Similarly in Ogdensburg and Alexandria Bay which are said to be following suit. And — on this side — Gananoque reportedly has treated a few hydrants in similar vein.

listened. The girl too. Redheads in Holland?

People remain essentially the same, as fashion evolves and changes, having run the gamut from the animal skins of prehistoric times to the ubiquitous jeans and denim. And with a brief glance in passing at the classic mini — still around but largely overshadowed by the longer outfits of the moment.

For both men and women, though, inheritors of the "unisex" trend, jeans and denim are poular everywhere.

(What of fashions generally — and men's fashions in particular. Popular are magazine spreads of models pictured against all sorts of backgrounds, from tropic islands to construction sites.

And what's "in," for the well-dressed picketer? It might interest John P. Maclean who identifies himself as a retired soldier (1948) of the Canadian Seaman's Union.

"What we need around here," Mr. Maclean says in a letter to the Brockville Recorder and Times, "is a better class of striker on the picket line." Strikers outside a local plant, he described as looking like "rejects from the war of 1812 . . . dirty shoes, baggy pants, yesterday's (blue) shirt."

This is a casual age, and the picket line for one demands comfort and protection against all weathers more than it does the ultimate in good grooming. Still, we can be too casual about such matters. Mr. Maclean has some hard words on the subject; but will they be taken to heart?

Sarnia Lawyer Possible Successor to Nixon

TORONTO — Will Jim Bullbrook be the next Liberal leader?

Although as this is written

By JON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

Mr. Bullbrook hasn't even declared for the leadership he is definitely the man to beat.

As the bright man of the party caucus, both able and personable, as soon as Bob Nixon announced his resignation he was the first man that was looked to.

He, of course, said that he wanted to see who else was running before he threw his dice, but it is fully expected he will be in the race and will be the man for the rest of the field to try and topple.

In holding back as he has this 46-year-old Sarnia lawyer would not be trying to duck a possible threat.

Rather there are two obvious reasons for any hesitancy.

One is that if someone should come up whom he genuinely feels could do a better job, his tendency would be all to support him rather than run. He is a man who can take a cook and detached view.

Then there is a very hard personal decision involved.

As a top lawyer, Bullbrook can make, and has been making, a large income. An income which he certainly can use with a growing family of four.

To take the party leadership at $25,000 a year, which is the stipend for the leader of the third party, would be a big sacrifice. And one that perhaps he could even afford to make.

Then also on the Sarnia member's mind must be considration of just how good a leader he might make; something which the public, and particularly people in his party, also must be starting to weigh.

As of now this is largely an unknown factor.

We do know that Bullbrook has a keen mind, that he is a sharp and to-the-point debater; that he can launch a detached attack that can be effective and that he can put up a controlled argument which steers clear of the trap of personalities.

But we know little about him in the field of policy, and just what his thinking might be. Or of his ability to lead and control his caucus or the many other points that leadership calls for, and which the Liberals have lacked.

Presumably we will learn more about these things in the weeks ahead.

Britain's worst train crash in years killed 10 persons and injured 150 others 23 years ago today—in 1950—when two passenger express trains crashed into a commuter train at Harrow, near London. The impact left a 50-foot high mass of tangled wreckage as the first express from Scotland passed through the caution light and two stop lights to plow into the rear of the stationary train. The second express train coming from London hit the front end.

"I even I, am he that blotteth out thy transgressions for mine own sake, and will not remember thy sins." Isaiah 43:25

Why keep rehearsing something that even God has refused to remember? At times it is much harder to forgive ourselves than it is for the Lord to forgive us. We need only to simply acknowledge that we are sinners and accept Jesus as our Saviour. Do not complicate what the Lord has made clear enough for a child to comprehend.

Student Learned 'Rewards' Of Work

Editor:
The Intelligencer:

My daughter attended the Women's College Hospital Nursing programs these past two years, finishing Aug. 4.

With our financial help and by babysitting and working occasionally at another hospital she was able to put herself through the two-year program without outside help, such as Government loans etc. Even though this was a financial strain on all of us, I being of the old school, felt that this was the way to go, paying our own way.

Many of the Nursing programs apparently finish in June, but at Women's College they are required to continue until August, thereby having FREE labour in the hospital for approximately two months at our expense. Let me say here that I am not against this program per se, as I feel that the Women's College Hospital is an exceptionally fine hospital.

Many of the girls, as did my daughter, send as many as 20 applications to various hospitals for work and received negative replies.

It is apparently becoming the custom for hospitals to hire fewer R.N.s and more R.N.A.'s, because of the lower wage scale.

As of Sept. 22, my daughter was finally accepted on a three month temporary basis at a Toronto hospital, after almost two months of personally applying at various local and Toronto hospitals. We are hoping this will change to a permanent basis at the end of this period, but as it is a Government Hospital it will depend on available funds. Who knows.

In our small town we have a situation where married women are quitting their jobs as sales clerks etc., and one who has her own business and are being PAID while they attend Loyalist College to become R.N.A.s. They can then be employed, instead of the girl who because of advice by her parents and guidance counsellors has stuck it out through grade 13, then paid her own way through Nursing School. This is Justice?

ONE WHO IS WONDERING.

Mexican Presidential Succession — Now You See It Now You Don't

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Mexico's next president will be her present Finance Minister Jose Lopez Portillo.

There hasn't been an election in that country for president and the present incumbent Luis Echeverria won't leave office until next year. Yet when the next presidential election is held in 1976, Minister Lopez is sure to win.

This situation doesn't mean Mexico has a dictatorship nor does it mean she has a democracy in the sense we understand it in Canada and the United States.

Yet there will be an election next year, complete with campaigning, opposition candidates, much of the election ballyhoo for the election of governors of states, members of the Mexican Chamber of Deputies which we associate with American presidential and congressional elections.

So what will the Mexicans be up to next year? It will be a repeat of the same formula Mexico has used to choose a new head of state for almost half a century.

And for a country which wants democracy and understands the other boards is going from dictatorship to representative government too, the formula of choosing, then electing the president, has worked so far.

It's unique in the world, not borrowed by any other emerging country either in Latin America or elsewhere in the Third World. And this is how it works.

Since 1929, Mexico has been ruled by the same political party called the PRI, Spanish initials for the Party of Revolutionary Institutions.

Each time a serving president's five year term is coming to an end, the party hierarchy and all the ex-presidents meet in consort secretly and in effect choose the next president.

Because the PRI is a monster and monolithic party made up after so many years of all spectrums of opinion from right to left, it has always won the federal elections each five year period since 1929 or 1930.

There are other political parties in Mexico of both the left and right and they will run candidates as they have for over 40 years. If they hope somehow to win and sweep away the PRI's vast majority, so far they have failed to do so.

You see the PRI candidate is chosen on the basis of the previous president's pledged and often tested proven record.

By that I mean, if the incumbent president has been heavy on the side of state control, land distribution, control of foreign companies, his successor while pledging loyalty to these goals of Mexican history, will be less interventionist, more, in favor of private industry, less likely to give impetus to land reform.

Through this planned swing of the president from political left to right and back again the Mexican system has so far managed to perpetuate itself through both slim and prosperous years.

In September, 1910, the old oligarchic system which still plagues many Latin American republics, was swept away in the beginning of a brutal and bloody civil war called The Mexican Revolution.

When it became "institutionalized" in the late 20s as outlined above, it also permitted the rise of a Mexican middle and upper class, resulted in the ignoring of basic rural and landless needs as guaranteed in the revolution, has led to great injustices in modern Mexico.

The everlasting PRI is aware of the failures in the system. Mexico is called a "guided democracy." But more and more Mexicans are coming to feel there is a good deal more "guidedness" than "democracy" in their country.

If enough do so, the PRI could at last come close to losing an election, taking Mexico perhaps down a road to a new anarchy.

A current fashionable bit of mythology is that Britain isn't really interested in Canada. Nonsense. The Common Market is supposed to have turned British attention away from this country and towards Europe. That is a superficial statement and it can be refuted in many ways. One rebuttal is neatly provided by a list of official visitors from Britain to Ottawa over a period of a week recently. This was the parade:

Often Hated Irish Moors Turn from Curse to Blessing

LIMERICK, Ireland (CP) — To generations of struggling Irish the moors were a curse. If a family didn't die from the work of reclaiming a few acres of land, the pitiable harvest from the poor soil starved them.

And although the bog has often been hated by the Irish, it has often been a blessing. Now the bogs, that cover a seventh of Ireland, have become a source of wealth, warmth and health.

The creation of the bog lands goes back 2,500 years. Then the Irish climated changed to cooler, wetter weather. The absence of mineral salts in the soil meant that decaying plants, steeped in stagnant moisture, began to carbonize, much like coal, but without the intense pressure.

Until the 17th century the peat deposits were deserted wilds, but as the forests were depleted, the people turned to the bogs for fuel. This cheap and abundant source of fuel is said to have provided the heat that helped spark the country's population boom. Even though families existed in poverty they were always warm enough.

Nothing is more pleasant than to sit in front of a sweet-smelling turf fire on a stormy, rainy night when the wind is howling. With nine out of 10 Irish homes without central heating, the hearth still is the gathering-place for a family evening.

Though most of the huge midland peat deposits now are harvested mechanically, many farm families in the west still cut their turf in the traditional way.

The cutting is carried out between mid-March and early June. A strong man can cut a year's supply in a fortnight, but the entire job stretches through the summer while the turf is stacked, dried and stored.

The upper layer of moss and heath is stripped from the bog when cutting begins. The raw peat then is cut with a shorehandled spade called a slane, the design of the tool depending on local tradition and the nature of the peat.

The turf then is built into ricks with the outside layer of sod stacked to form a protective wall against the weather.

The lighter-colored turf from the top of the bog is placed at the top of the rick for use in the slow-burning summer and autumn fires. The rich black turf was from deep in the bog is stacked at the bottom for fuelling hot winter fires.

Since the formation in 1946 of the Irish Peat Development Authority—Bord na Mona—the bogs have been developed as a major industrial, commercial and domestic fuel source.

The authority produces more than four million tons of peat products each year from 23 bogs totaling 130,000 acres. The saving in imported fuel amounts to about $80 million a year.

An export market worth about $7.5 million has been built up, but most of the turf is used to fuel sophisticated turf-burning power stations that produce more than a quarter of Ireland's electricity.

Since the start of the energy crisis there's been a buildup in the use of peat. The work force of 5,500 employed by the authority is being augmented by another 1,500 men and another 40,000 acres of bog are being brought into production at a capital cost of about $60 million.

Meanwhile, research shows exciting potentialities for new products from the turf. These range from peat paper to medicines not much different from the bog mud used for generations to help in healing cuts and sores. Wallboard has been made from the turf and alcohol and illuminating gas distilled from it.

Tests have been made on dissolving ocean oil slicks with turf. It has been made into roofing and building materials, thermal insulation, sound dampers for loudspeaker boxes, oil filtration, packing material, tanning solutions and dye.

But the most intensive research is aimed at finding what to do with the boglands when the turf is gone in about 20 years. In some areas forests will be planted, while in other areas the land will be turned into pasture. Commercial production of ornamental shrubs and vegetables is also being considered.

Automation Replacing Dock Staff

St. John's, Nfld. (CP)—The number of longshoremen in this old sea-port is growing smaller as the seasons pass.

"Twenty-five years ago there were well over 3,000 men employed loading and unloading cargoes, but now there are a mere 300," a spokesman for the Longshoremen's Protective Union said.

"Automation has put the majority of longshoremen out of work."

In times past, hundreds of schooners unloaded salt codfish in St. John's, but salt now is handled by the Canadian Salt Fish Corp. and the big Water Street fish merchants have all quit handling it. The city's involvement in salt cod is a thing of the past.

A network of roads constructed around the province since Confederation permits trucking of fish and freight, so practically all the little wooden freight boats that once plied the coast have been abandoned.

Lack of chugging activity in the port is affecting other workers as well.

Canadian National, in an effort to match workforce to workload at its dockyard, reduced its working force to about 260 from 400 in a series of layoffs over the last eight months.

Both skilled workers and labourers are being laid off. A recent layoff of 65 employees included 18 machinists, 13 boilermakers and six pipefitters.

Meanwhile, 200 miles southwest of here at Mortier Bay on the eastern side of Burin Peninsula, a shipbuilding and repair yard is booming.

The yard, built a few years ago, has been busy building and repairing fishing boats including modern trawlers. It employs about 400 workers.

A month ago, it received a $4-million contract to build a 100-foot tug for Cargill Grain Co. of Baie Comeau, Que., which will use it to berth large bulk grain carriers.

Shipyard officials are working on additional contracts with some European firms.

More Information Needed

MELFORT, Sask. (CP)—Demand for technical information on agricultural subjects is rapidly increasing as farmers become more aware of the importance of maximum returns, says an official at the federal research station in this north-central Saskatchewan town.

Ken Bowren, program leader for tillage and cropping, says farmers are becoming more interested in results of research carried out at the station because of the emphasis on higher efficiency and production.

"They have to produce as much as they can or they won't be in business long." The research station, which employs 60 persons, is involved in testing new crops, machinery and chemicals and management studies on various aspects of farming operations.

Taxi Service Prompts Complaints by Hotel

PICTON — Picton town councillor Norman March says it is sometimes impossible for him to obtain a cab for his customers at Rideaton Hotel and he terms the poor service "ridiculous."

Councillor March informed town council Monday that he was unable to find a taxi for two patrons recently when they wanted to return to their motel shortly after one a.m. He said that answering service told him two cars were on call but one was in Cherry Valley and the other could not be located.

Mayor Donald King said he has received another complaint about night cab service and plans to bring the issue before the town police commission.

He noted that the taxi drivers licences are in jeopardy if they fail to provide 24 hour service. Drivers are expected to develop a shift system that guarantees a cab on call around the clock.

Mayor King added that Picton taxi drivers will be advised through the police commission of their responsibilities.

Work on Sidney to Continue

Another phase in the widening of Sidney St. is the offing for next year.

City council Monday approved reconstruction from Tracey St. to Bell Blvd.—after hearing from city manager Wilkie Purcell there will be sufficient finances in its road renewal reserve fund to permit an additional "reasonably-sized" road project in 1976.

The new reconstruction will link into the recently-completed College-Tracey streets streets of the Sidney four-lane reconstruction program.

After 350 Years, Turkey Is Still Tops for Thanksgiving

It began in 1621, a celebration by Pilgrims, in what is now the United States, of a good harvest. It has continued for more than 350 years, celebrated in the U.S. on the fourth Monday of November, in Canada on the second Monday of October.

It is Thanksgiving Day and with the exception of Christmas, it is the holiday most tied to tradition in the matter of eating. Two hundred years ago, in New England, a typical Thanksgiving menu might have included the roast turkey most of us eat today and venison, pork, pigeon, roast goose, and vegetables like onions in cream, cauliflower, squash, potatoes, the then unknown celery and cider to drink. Deserts would have included apple, mincemeat and pumpkin pie as well as Indian and plum puddings.

Today few families would seat 40 or 50 guests and five kinds of meat would be excessive. But the turkey and fall vegetables and pies have continued to play an important role in this holiday.

For the main dish of your Thanksgiving meal, you want a special stuffing. Bread, chestnut and fruit are traditional.

Bread Stuffing

two medium onions, chopped
¼ cup butter
¼ cup chopped parsley
¼ cup chopped celery
two tsp. salt
two tbsp. poultry seasoning
one tsp. pepper
one tsp. sage four tbsp. molasses
two cups chicken broth
six cups day-old bread cubes

In a large skillet, saute onion in butter. Add parsley, celery, seasonings. Add remaining ingredients and toss together. Enough stuffing for one — 10 — pound bird.

Chestnut Stuffing

two pounds chestnuts
1 ½ cups butter
two cups onion, chopped fine
two cups thinly sliced celery nine cups fine dry bread crumbs
two tsp. salt
one tsp. dried thyme
one tsp. dried marjoram
one tsp. dried savory

Prepare the chestnuts by gashing the flat side and placing in a saucepan with boiling water to cover and simmer for five minutes. Remove shells while nuts are still hot and cover once more with boiling water. Cook slowly for 20 minutes. Drain and chop coarsely. Melt butter in a sauce pan and add onions and celery; saute until limp. Add bread crumbs to vegetable butter combination and mix thoroughly. Add seasonings, mixing well. Add chestnuts. This will stuff a 12 pound bird.

Fruit and Pecan Stuffing

one cup chopped dried apricots, chopped one cup pared cooking apples
one cup coarsely chopped pecan
¼ cup chopped celery
two cups plain croutons
one tsp. salt
one tsp. pepper
¼ tsp. thyme
¼ cup melted butter
one-third cup honey
¼ cup boiling water

Combine ingredients except honey and water. Mix water and honey and pour over dry ingredients, tossing lightly with a fork. For a 10 pound turkey.

Turnip "Sauce"

Pare two medium-sized yellow turnips or rutabagas and two large potatoes. Cut into chunks of equal size. Place in a saucepan and cover with boiling salted water and cook until tender. Drain and dry thoroughly. Put through a ricer or mash very well, beating in a generous amount of butter, salt and pepper, a big pinch of sugar and some warmed heavy cream. Beat until turnips are very smooth. This can be made ahead and kept warm in a double boiler.

Succotash

two packages frozen lima beans two cups whole kernel corn two tbsp. butter
one tsp. salt
dash pepper
one tsp. sugar
¼ cup water
¼ cup heavy cream

Cook lima beans and mix cooked beans with corn, butter, salt, pepper, sugar and water. Cook over a low heat for 10 to 15 minutes. Drain, then add cream. Heat through but do not boil. Serves six.

Green Pears with Mint

Cook frozen peas according to package directions and when just cooked, dot with butter and sprinkle with fresh chopped mint.

Apple Custard Pie

one-third cup butter
one-third cup sugar
three beaten egg yolks
two tsp. lemon juice
¼ tsp. nutmeg
dash cinnamon
two cups applesauce

Cream butter, sugar and eggs. Stir in two cups applesauce and flavour with remaining ingredients. Bake in unbaked shell for 10 minutes at 400 degrees. Reduce temperature to 350 and bake an addition 30 minutes. Add a meringue.

Pumpkin Pie

two tbsp. flour
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. ginger, mace, nutmeg, cinnamon
one-third cup brown sugar
¼ cup maple syrup
one cup scalded milk
two eggs well beaten
1 ¼ cups canned pumpkin

Mix all ingredients; pour into unbaked pie shell. Bake in hot oven (450) for 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 325 and bake 30 minutes longer or until filling is firm.

BREAD cubes softened with chicken broth and molasses, and traditional seasoning blend for a new flavor in dressing.

Books By And About Women

LOT'S WIFE
By Monique Bosco

Helene has been cast off by her married lover and now, at 40, with a lifetime of rejection and lovelessness behind her, stands on the brink of suicide.

In this 1971 Governor General's Award for Fiction novel, Monique Bosco weaves the tale of an ugly-duckling only child isolated by her parents, with few school friends and no men friends. Desperate at last, Helene marries a homosexual. She leaves him days after their marriage and finally enters into a 10-year affair with a physician who manipulates, controls and finally rejects her.

Lot's Wife is her diary and through it all she teeters between life and death, afraid to look back at her life but unable to resist.

The novel, originally published in French, has been sensitively translated by poet John Glassco and republished this year by McClelland and Stewart. It is available at Corby Library.

'Stress Doesn't Bring On Migraine'

TORONTO (CP) — Many persons who suffer from migraine headaches had been forbidden as children to express anger, a University of Arizona professor of neurology says.

Dr. Arnold Friedman of the university's medical centre in Tucson told delegates attending a weekend symposium on migraine headaches that "stress alone in itself does not precipitate migraines."

He said that fighter pilots who suffer from migraine headaches never have an attack in combat, possibly because they are able to admit having hostile feelings while in action.

He told the conference about a woman in her 60s who suffered violent headaches. Her husband, who suffered a heart attack and thought he was dying, told her about keeping a mistress.

"The husband recovered and the woman stayed in his relationship," said Dr. Friedman. "The woman was the devil of a time from then on. But she never had another migraine."

Dr. John Graham, director of the Headache Research Foundation, Boston, Mass., told the symposium that migraine headache often disappears when the patient has a major illness or operation.

He said it is not known whether the hormonal changes body hormones or if it forces the patient "to pull back from stress."

Rosemary Dudley of the Mayo Clinic in Rochester said that many persons in Metropolitan Toronto who suffer from migraine headaches reported during the last month that their headaches were more severe than they had been in years.

She said it appears the exhausting may be unusually high pollen level.

She said the foundation got a clue that the pollen level might be behind the severe headaches when five persons living within a block of each other called in almost simultaneously to complain.

Some Men Disturbed By Women Bellhops

TORONTO (CP) — "May I carry your bags, sir?"

It is a common service offered to hotel guests and many a weary traveller is happy to turn his bags over to a bellhop to carry, but what happens if the bellhop is a woman?

Janet Scott, 20, and Anita Fitre, 22, have been in a position to find out. The two women work at Harbour Castle Hotel and management claims they are Canada's first female bellhops.

Both women said that men have varying reactions to the sight of a woman carry their bags.

Some will not be seen letting a woman carry their bags in the public lobby, but once inside the elevators they have no objections. Others let the women handle their baggage in the lobby area, while inside the elevator they take them themselves.

They both said that women guests do not seem to mind another woman carrying their bags.

"So many of our female guests are professional women working in demanding jobs, they just think nothing of it," said Miss Scott.

In their unusual job, the two women have discovered that toting baggage is a busy hotel may mean carrying anything.

They said guests have shocked in carrying everything from a teddy bear to a stuffed elephant's foot.

Luggage carts used at the hotel take a lot of the heavy work out of the job.

Miss Fitre said: "Many of our customers are travelling with a valise and briefcase. Their bags are not heavy and not hard to manage.

"The only piece of luggage I haven't been able to cope with

Women Still Clinging To Stereotype Jobs

OTTAWA (CP) — The role of women in the public service is a stereotyped as it was when equal opportunities programs were instituted in 1970, a report prepared by the Advisory Council on the Status of Women says.

The report, made public Monday, says traditionally-female occupations such as secretarial work, nursing and teaching were more numerous in 1976 than in 1971.

Occupational segregation and the "specialization by department on the basis of sex" is more obvious now although women are "slightly better distributed" throughout jobs, it says. Almost 33 per cent of public service employees in 1976 were women, compared with 30.3 per cent in 1971.

In the senior executive category, the number of women had doubled to 18 only 1.7 per cent of the 11,871 employees in this group.

The report says that in the administrative support category where the majority of women are employed, women occupied 76.4 per cent of all jobs in 1976 compared with 67.7 per cent in 1971. Here, 98.1 per cent of the typing jobs and 95.8 per cent of the telephone operation jobs were staffed by women.

Because most women public service employees were grouped into support jobs and administrative positions, the report says, it is "hardly surprising that they are concentrated in the lower salary range."

Female Hormone Cream May Slow Down Baldness

CHICAGO (AP) — A lotion made from the female hormone estrogen reduces baldness in men when it is rubbed into their scalps, says a New York City physician who says he has successfully experimented with the treatment for the last decade.

Estrogen cannot be taken by men internally without certain undesirable side effects, such as eylarged breasts. But Dr. Edward Settel says when estrogen is applied externally it reduces hair fallout in men and stimulates hair growth in bald areas.

Dr. Settel reported the results of his experimentation in a scientific exhibit at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Family Physicians this week. He said the treatment is still in the experimental stage and is not ready for commercial distribution.

Of the 760 men he has treated in 10 years, 90 per cent had "markedly less fallout" after using the estrogen lotion and 60 per cent showed improved hair growth, he said.

"I don't make the claim that you're going to grow back as much hair as you had when you were 15 years of age," Dr. Settel said in an interview. But he said some hair grows back on the heads of men with a hereditary condition called pattern baldness.

He said 45 per cent of American men have pattern baldness, caused by an oversupply of the male hormone androgen. His treatment tries to balance the androgen excess with the female hormone.

Estrogen, which does not get into the bloodstream when applied in a topical cream, is related to growth of hair on the scalp, while androgen is responsible for facial and body hair, Dr. Settel said.

That's why balding men may have an ample crop of chest hair.

Dr. Settel's estrogen cream, which has a lanolin base, is massaged nightly into areas of the scalp where hair has disappeared but which still have living follicles. A shampoo designed to reduce hair breakage is used three times a week.

Within four months of the start of treatment, hair loss dropped from 100 to 250 a day to an average of fewer than 50 a day in most of the men treated, Dr. Settel said. His total average daily hair loss for men who are not bald is about 100 a day or less.

Ann Landers

Chilling Number of Letters Tell of Incestuous Fathers

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from the mother whose husband can't stay out of the bathroom when his teen-age daughters are showering or bathing really got to me. I owe it to every teen-age girl in the world to tell my story.

That mother said her 14-year-old didn't seem to mind because she never complained. Well, maybe she has been threatened into silence—like I was.

You should have told Mom to get her crazy, sick husband out of the house before one or both of her daughters got raped.

Being sexually attacked by a stranger is bad enough, but when it's your own father it creates horrible, twisted feelings that hang in your head night and day. No one can imagine what an effect such an act can have on a young girl.

I was 13 when it happened to me. Now at 19, even after all the counseling, I still get sick to my stomach when a decent boy wants to hold my hand. I keep wondering if I'll ever be able to have a normal sex life.

If I were in that mother's place I'd order the father out of the house immediately and insist that he get psychiatric treatment. He could come back if and when the doctor said he was well. No man will ever jeopardize the children I hope to have someday.—Been Through It

Dear B.T.I.: So have hundreds of others, dear. I was chilled by the number of letters I received from young girls who wrote to say they had been sexually assaulted by their fathers.

Once again, I urge every girl who experienced such a trauma to tell her mother at once. If, and this may be hard to believe—your mother refuses to believe you, or will do nothing to protect you, call the police at once and let the law step in.

Dear Ann Landers: We hear a lot about people who can't sleep, get any place on time. What about those who come early to dinner?

I love this couple dearly but they always louse me up by showing up at least 20 minutes ahead of time. Every hostess needs those 30 minutes to do her last-minute chores before guests arrive.

I'd appreciate any word of advice you can offer. This has been going on for at least three years and—I Have Had It With The Early Birds.

Dear Had It: You write rather well for a lady. I assume you can also speak. The next time you invite the Early Birds for dinner tell Mrs. E.B. you'd appreciate it if they wouldn't arrive before the appointed hour because you need the extra time to get things ready.

If after that little speech, they STILL arrive early, let 'em eat in the bell awhile.

Unpickable Lock

Income Rises, But Local Taxpayers Drop in Survey

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Belleville taxpayers had an average income of $8,226 in 1973 to rank 6th among a representative group of 100 cities across Canada.

Maurice Jefferies, a spokesman for the federal revenue department, said Tuesday Belleville's ranking for the 1973 taxation year dropped among the 100 cities from the 36th position it held in 1972.

But he said "If you use position alone, it looks a little more startling than it is."

Average incomes of taxpayers in the 100 cities sampled varied in some cases as little as $3. Regina, for example, ranked 64th in the top 100 with an average income of $8,229. In 66th position is Niagara Falls whose 22,466 taxpayers earn an average $8,216.

Dollar-wise, Belleville residents are better off. On the average, a city taxpayer earned $237 more in 1972 than in 1972 when the average income was $7,989.

The number of taxpayers also increased in the city from 17,687 to 18,540 two years ago. (Statistics are based on 1974 returns on income in 1973).

The average income in Trenton, which is not included in the 100-city sampling, was set at $7,919 (based on 9,913 returns).

Leading the 1973 list was Oakville, the home of Ford Motor Co.'s major assembly operation, with an average income of $9,822. It's the third consecutive year the city has led in average incomes.

Sept-Iles, Que., was second with $10,810 and Mississauga was third with $10,254. Toronto, Ontario's largest metropolitan area, ranked 12th with $9,315.

In Belleville's case, the revenue department spokesman did not attribute the average income to any particular aspect of the local economy.

The averaging process was spread over the city proper and did not include portions of adjacent municipalities.

Union Adds To Squad's Tool Fund

Local 1829 of the United Auto Workers at Northern Electric Co. Ltd. in Belleville have put the Quinte Rescue Squad halfway towards its goal of purchase a special tool to rescue victims trapped in wrecked motor vehicles.

The union's 543 members voted this week to donate $1,000 to the squad, based at the Thurlow Township Volunteer Fire Department hall in Corbyville.

The donation means the squad has realized about $3,000 towards the $6,500 purchase price of the Hurst Rescue Power Tool, nicknamed "jaws of life", which can shear car doors open in less than a minute.

Lorne Moses, chairman of the union's in-plant committee, said Tuesday the cheque will be formally presented to the squad later this week and that the union was pleased to contribute to such a worthwhile cause.

Squad member Robert Pearce said Tuesday the donation is a "big boost", noting that the squad has to raise every penny through donations.

Crime Seminar Shown New 'Pick-proof' Lock

BAYSIDE — A new Emhart high security system cylinder for business locks was unveiled for the first time in Canada here Tuesday at a crime prevention seminar at Bayside Secondary School.

It was unveiled before 103 Quinte area businessmen during the first session of the twoday seminar which will continue today from 7.30-10.30 p.m.

Fred Hollfelder, director of marketing for International Hardware Ltd. at Belleville, explained the lock employs an interlocking sheer pin technique and intricate computerized keying to produce virtually "pick-proof" security.

It was reported a New York City police detective, who has opened hundreds of locks, was stymied in his attempts to open International Hardware's new one in a recent demonstration.

Lee Jourard, director of Cablevue 4, the community program division of Cablevue (Quinte) Ltd. has been elected secretary of the Ontario region Program Directors Committee of the Canadian Cable Television Association (CCTA). He was chosen for the position at the annual meeting of the Committee, held recently in London, Ontario.

The organization consists of program directors of cable TV systems which are members of the CCTA.

Work on Sports Centre May Begin Next Month

Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund co-ordinator Jack Lundberg said Tuesday the 10-million-plus sports complex on Canifton Rd. is progressing to the stage at which tenders will soon be called for a November start on construction.

Soil tests on the 26-acre site proved it to be an excellent location for the complex, said Mr. Lundberg, and Yardmen architects now are in the last three of drawing up final plans.

The project is "still on schedule" and heading for a November start, predicted by one of the complex's architects Bill Sanford in early September.

It "shouldn't be long" before officials of the Belleville get plans from their Toronto architects, said the project co-ordinator.

Yardmen have already received a list of nine contractors who will be asked to bid on the first phase of the job — excavation of foundations. Mr. Lundberg said three of the companies are local.

Construction, he said, will be on a staggered basis, with plans being approved at various stages of building the combination Olympic-sized swimming pool, international size figure-skating ice surface, a gymnasium, squash courts and dressing rooms.

Yardmen officials have applied for a grant with the Culture and Recreation ministry, the source of Wintario dollars, said Mr. Lundberg, no word is expected for some time.

Labor Council May Test Store Hours Issue in Courts

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The Quinte District Labor Council is seeking legal advice whether it can bring court action against grocery stores opening on Sundays.

The question of store hours occupied a major portion of the labor council's meeting Tuesday.

In Belleville, the A and P store at the Belleville Plaza has been open on the last two Sundays. Fred City at the Towers building on west Dundas has been open last Sunday.

President Doug Sword was instructed to meet with lawyers over the issue as soon as possible.

The council made a distinction between large supermarkets and neighborhood convenience stores in its motion to test the Sunday openings.

"We're not trying to close down family operations that sell milk and bread and the necessities on Sundays," said Mr. Sword.

Commenting on the problem in general, Mr. Sword said it is a complex problem. "We're wrestling with economic, moral and social implications."

He did say that for all the issues the church should be speaking on store hours is the word "profit".

"I'd like to see the clergy picketing the marketplace to show their sincerity behind their statements that these meets should be closed," he said.

The labor council will also approach the Ontario Federation of Labor to find out how it is within the rights of the council to take this form of action.

Two employees of a Belleville Dominion Food Store were present for the first time at the council meeting — interested in hearing the council's point of view on hours."

When asked if either had any thoughts on Sunday hours, both replied their were "conflicting" and would not want to work Sundays themselves.

A report on the legal possibility of bringing the grocers to court will be available for the November meeting of the council.

Museum Plans Bash

AMELIASBURG — Fresh apple cider and the sound of the smithy's hammer will highlight an old-fashioned country weekend planned next Sunday at the Hillcrest Museum, Ameliasburg deputy-reeve and a member of the museum board, Gordon Babbitt, said that a cider mill, a blacksmith's shop and a display of gas motors will number among the exhibits on activities day.

Parents Gather

Parkdale Home and School Association recently held its first annual meeting for 1975-76. President John Gibson led the meeting and principal Bernard Herbert introduced this year's staff. A panel discussion on learning followed the meeting.

Corke Says Public Has Influence

Belleville Mayor Ben Corke said Tuesday the buying public has more influence over Sunday openings than supermarkets in Belleville than it suspects.

"If people don't buy, then stores won't be open," he told about 30 members of the Wintarc Club in Belleville Tuesday night.

In his brief address, he touched on the Sunday opening issue, which has been gaining momentum in Belleville since A & P in the Belleville Plaza opened Sunday two weeks ago.

Mayor Corke said he can get "greatly exercised" about it. Even though believing himself a good Christian, he says he plays golf, bridge, "even drinks" on Sundays.

"I really think that its up to the people of this city to decide whether they want to buy on Sunday," he said, making no mention of possible action by city hall to regulate Sunday opening.

Mayor Corke felt this was in council suggested deferring action on a request from the entertainment board of Bridge St. United Church for action—which "might include the enactment of a regulatory by-law." Councillors agreed to wait two weeks pending a report from the city manager.

The 'Mache' Way

Belleville craftsman Florence Watson explains paper mache construction techniques to Willie Cause Club members at the community recreation centre Tuesday. Some of the 30 club members may take lessons next year from Mrs. Watson, who now teaches at Hillcrest West and George Vanter public schools.

Cyclist Leads Police On Lengthy Chase

TWEED — A 20-year-old Ottawa man has been charged with a series of dangerous driving and with criminal negligence of a motor vehicle following a high-speed chase involving two police cruisers and a motorcycle on Highways 37 and 7 late Sunday.

The man is identified as Larry James Mellill of 2078 Springland Dr. He will appear in provincial court at Madoc Nov. 4.

Police said the incident was not released until late Monday due to consultation with the crews involved in the chase at Belleville.

Police said Constable Tom Andrews of the Tweed Police department was on duty here at Tweed when at 9:58 p.m., a motorcycle speed by him.

He pursued the motorcycle north on Highway 37 to the junction with Highway 7 and, when unsuccessful in getting the driver to pull over, radioed Ontario Provincial Police at Madoc for assistance and Constable Don Creelman responded.

With two police cruisers in pursuit, the motorcyclist proceeded east on Highway 7, apparently heading for Ottawa.

Constable Creelman passed the motorcycle twice, stopping his cruiser lengthwise across the road and the motorcycle struck the car twice. On the second occasion, both officers managed to apprehend the driver.

Damage was estimated at $200 to the motorcycle and at $75 to the Tweed police cruiser.

Course Shows Parents How to Help Children

By SUSAN McCONNELL
Staff Reporter

Joy Herbert is setting out to prove to Quinte area parents that there is a better way of helping the disturbing child than through punishment.

Mrs. Herbert, a graduate of Loyalist College in behavioral science and recent graduate of the Parent Effectiveness Program (PEP) and advance course in reality therapy in California, is coaching parents through PEP to reach the Schools.

PEP teaches parents to teach their children to be responsible. Parents learn in the positive qualities their child displays instead of emphasizing the negative.

The 10-week course sponsored by the Board of Education now is offered weekly twice a year at Parkdale School as well as Foxboro, Harmony and Stirling public schools. The course is a venture for parents with its reading, homework and "think-tank-cluster" discussion groups.

Bernard Wright, principal of Parkdale School, said the time when clerks are sent to the principal's office for misbehavior is over. "Teachers and parents counsel the kids now," he said.

A workshop version of the course will be offered to teachers Oct. 23 at Harry J. Clarke and Queen Elizabeth's Schools.

Youth Dies In Crash

DESERONTO — A 19-year-old Deseronto youth died early Tuesday at Lennox and Addington County Hospital from injuries suffered shortly before in a one-car accident on Highway 2 about 12 miles east of Deseronto.

Ontario Provincial Police say Napanee identified the man as John Benjamin Brant, the only occupant in the car. A post mortem was held at Kingston Dieu Hospital in Kingston.

Police said a 1973-model car driven by Brant was eastbound at a high rate of speed and was in the process of passing two cars when it went out of control and hit a tree.

The accident occurred at 8 a.m. and Brant died about two hours later. Constable Richard Fenton said the car was a write-off.

Dog Catcher Unpopular Post

PICTON — The town of Picton this year decided to terminate its agreement with animal control officer Donald Tucker of Stirling then retender the job.

Mr. Tucker was advised of council's stand and advertisements were inserted in the local press but not one application was received.

At a council meeting this week councillors were told by town clerk Andrew Jarvis that Mr. Tucker has applied a second time for the animal control officer's job. This time he is seeking a salary raise from $2,000 to $2,200.

Picton mayor Donald King suggested that his application be received and filed because complaints of dogs at large diminish in the fall and winter months. He added that the application should be reconsidered early in 1976.

Treasurer Blasts Labor For Poor NDP Support

Quinte District Labor Council members were criticized Tuesday night for their lack of support to the New Democratic Party in the Sept. 18 provincial election.

Council treasurer Jack Thomas said, "It's nothing but a facade that the NDP is supported by labor — particularly when it comes to the Quinte riding.

"Only three unions made contributions to the NDP campaign and 87 per cent of union members did not contribute anything at all," he said.

Mr. Thomas was treasurer for the Quinte riding NDP campaign and had access to this information.

"You're not doing your job very well . . . in fact you're not doing your job at all when it comes to election campaigns," he said.

"Let's not kid ourselves in saying that I supported the NDP," he said. "The party got 16 percent of the vote in the riding and the riding has a lot more than 16 per cent workers."

ARC Industries: Jobs for Mentally Handicapped

ARC Industries, located in the downtown section of Belleville, in a white stucco building has a very business-like sign. And, as many industries and business in Belleville are starting to learn, it provides a definite service to the community.

Sponsored by United Community Services the industry for the mentally retarded operates on regular business hours from Monday to Friday and the 30 employees ranging in ages from 18 to 55 spend their time readying fliers for advertising, stuffing envelopes, stringing tags and publishing bulletins. Employees are work regularly for The Intelligencer and Simpson Sears.

Wages, not amounting to more than $50 per month are given to each employee, who also collects a disability pension of $240 monthly.

The program's financing is simple. Acting-manager Maxine Little said the United Way campaign provides 20 per cent of their budget; and what can't be raised through contracted work by the employees is covered by a provincial grant — up to 80 per cent.

Although they are busy this time of year, Mrs. Little said it was sometimes difficult to get work. "We don't always have the people required," she said.

The employees, who usually work at ARC Industry after graduating Wallace R. Fox High School for Retarded Children, can go on to part-time employment in the community, but, says Mrs. Little, that doesn't happen often enough "I encourage it though" I don't want to see them beat the rest of their lives.

"A lot of people are afraid of the word retarded . . . most of our employees are fairly average and get around town on their own," she said.

She said it is the fault of the community. Association for "border line" employees can't be found. "Production is so fast that management just wasn't stand for them being slow. You need a special type of employer," she said.

The program doesn't have a long history. It's six years old in Belleville, and the building, purchased by the Lions Club, was furnished by various community organizations. Students from Loyalist College community courses spend weeks at ARC Industry as part of their curriculum.

ARC Industries also works closely with the Belleville and Quinte Association for Retarded Children under the direction of president John Ross.

Macmillan Faces Obscenity Charges

TORONTO (CP) — Obscenity charges have been laid against Macmillan Co. of Canada Ltd. and its president for distributing an illustrated sex-education book for children called Show Me. Metropolitan Toronto police say.

Company president George Gilmour said in an interview Monday that police told him they had received complaints about the sale of the book, which depicts naked children exploring each other's bodies and sexual acts between teenagers.

Police asked Macmillan for 25 copies of the book, but Mr. Gilmour said it only had 17 copies in stock and these were turned over.

The charges of possession of obscene books for the purpose of distribution are scheduled to be heard in provincial court Nov. 7. They were laid last Thursday, police say.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Editorial and advertising employees of the Washington Post voted Tuesday to continue crossing the picket lines of three striking craft unions.

After four hours of debate, the members of the Washington-Baltimore Newspaper Guild voted 270 to 251 against a proposal that they honor the picket lines. The local voted twice last week to continue to work.

Union pressmen went on strike last Wednesday night and much of the equipment in the pressroom was disabled, but the Post has continued to publish except for the first day.

French Women Become Active

OTTAWA (CP) — The women of France are beginning to "tackle head on" the problems of abortion, equal pay for equal work and taking an active part in decision-making, according to the French minister responsible for the status of women.

Francoise Giroud, said Tuesday in Ottawa that women's rights, and particularly abortion, are currently the hottest topics in France.

Mme Giroud is here to talk with Health and Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde, her Canadian counterpart.

As the end of International Women's Year approaches, French women still face an average 48-hour work week and are stuck in so-called job ghettos—traditionally low-paying female occupations—she said.

BC Orders Workers Back

VICTORIA (CP) — The British Columbia NDP government caught almost everyone off guard Tuesday when it legislated a temporary end to four major strikes involving more than 50,000 workers.

The government said Sunday that an emergency session would be held to deal with an 11-week strike in the propane industry—specifically to get propane and butane deliveries resumed to 1,400 customers on Vancouver Island. Labor Minister Bill King said then that the government would not deal with any other labor problems.

Instead, the government presented the Collective Bargaining Continuation Act. It received three readings with 46 of 49 MLAs voting approval and was given royal assent by Lieut.-Gov. Walters Owen following a seven-hour special session of the legislature.
